NEARLY 1,000 ARRESTS MADE IN CHICAGO GANG HAUNTS

Drive On Criminals Was One of the Most Sweeping in the History of the City—Forty Special Police Squads Were Engaged In the Raids—Police Stations Are Jammed With Prisoners—Professional Bondsmen Besiege Headquarters.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Aroused by the reign of hoodlum savagery that has been marked by nearly a dozen murders, numerous bombings, shootings and robberies during the past ten days, police swooped down on gangland haunts early today and by nightfall nearly a thousand suspected thugs were behind prison bars.

The drive, one of the most ambitious in the history of the local department, was instituted by Police Commissioner William Russell and Chief of Detectives John Egan, who ordered their lieutenants to continue the campaign until the city had been "purged" of criminals.

Forty special squads assisted by precinct police made a thorough canvass of the city, jamming police stations with their prisoners. The Loop and Northside district, reputed territory of the Al Capone-Jack Gusick clan were the first sections visited and a score of the followers of the pair were taken. Next came the North Side were Bugs Moran, the Aeillo brothers and Ted Newberry hold sway and then the bailiwicks of Al Winge, Matt Kilb, Danny Stanton, Frank McErlane, Red Bolton, Klondike O'Donnell and a host of others.

Although none of the reputed leaders was taken in the first stage of the drive a total of 917 men, many of them described as "hired killers" had been arrested by early evening. They were rushed to headquarters for "showup" tonight to be paraded before victims of recent crimes.

About half of the total were said by police to have local police records and numerous others were suspected terrorists imported here from other cities by local bootlegging organizations.

Cabarets, hotels, soft drink parlors and speakeasies as well as all known rendezvous of gangsters were raided and those unable to give a satisfactory account of themselves were taken in custody.

Tonight a swarm of professional bondsmen, attorneys and others were besieging headquarters in an attempt to obtain release of suspects, but in most instances, bail was being set so high that there was little likelihood of the suspects obtaining their freedom for the time being.

Meantime any possibility of a letup in the drive was precluded by one of the heaviest week end crime logs in months.

Two youths, Herbert Gers, 18, and Anthony Kilburg, 20, motoring home from a party, were shot to death by a group of Negroes in an automobile during a traffic dispute at a street intersection. The Negroes escaped.

A quartet of robbers, trapped by police, while attempting to hold up the fashionable Orrington hotel, fired on a police squad. The shots were wild and the men were overpowered and arrested.

James Riley and Thomas Sawyer, alias Carl Hanson, said to be Detroit extortionists, were shot and probably fatally wounded when they attempted to rob an automobile on a South Side street, but fled when the intended victim opened fire on them with a pistol. A patrolman came upon a man attempting to hold up a restaurant on the near North Side, but the latter escaped amid a hail of bullets fired by the officer; a police detective was shot when he and members of his squad engaged in a pistol battle with four gunmen in an alley and another officer shot and captured a robber in front of a store the latter had robbed.

CHICAGO'S LATEST FINANCIAL SCHEME

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The latest scheme for steering Chicago out of its financial straits, reported to be under consideration by city and school authorities, is to grant premiums to purchasers of tax anticipation warrants in addition to the regular 6 per cent. interest.

In the hope of attracting purchasers for the warrants, Mayor William Hale Thompson and H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education, were reported today as willing to give buyers a substantial profit for helping out the community in this time of need.

The warrants would be sold at discount, and redeemed at par when the taxes start coming in, probably in June.

Conferences between city authorities and Herbert C. Heller, New York investment banker, are said to have included consideration of such a discount and City Comptroller Schmidt is quoted as saying he had hopes of selling the city's entire block of $27,000,000 worth of tax warrants to a syndicate headed by Mr. Heller.

Mr. Caldwell, who is in New York attempting to sell $48,000,000 worth of the school board's warrants, is understood to be making approximately the same offer.

It is certain such a plan would meet with opposition in some quarters. Chicago banks have already issued a warning against acceptance of scrip, pointing out the consequences of depreciated currency and Silas H. Strawn, head of the Citizens' Rescue committee, has criticized the proposal as "wasteful of the taxpayers' money and detrimental to the citizens."

Meanwhile the E. J. Ringley company took $50,000 worth of the scrip for printing work done for the city during the last year.

The city has offered tax warrants to any of its creditors who would rather accept the paper at face value until the city can pay its bills in regular currency. It is generally believed that the 40,000 employes who have not been paid this year will also have the opportunity of drawing salaries in warrants if nothing comes of any of the relief plans by the end of the week.

ASKS COMMUTATION OF LIFE SENTENCE FOR SHOPLIFTER

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Commutation of the life sentence of Ruth St. Clair, shoplifter, was urged on Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in a letter sent today by District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain.

Mr. Crain thus added his voice to those of Chief Magistrate William McAdoo and Judge Max S. Levine, who had previously urged clemency for the 29-year-old woman.

Judge Levine on Thursday pronounced the life sentence, being compelled to do so by the Baumes law, which makes a life term mandatory for persons convicted of a fourth felony.

"It occurs to me," Mr. Crain said in his letter, "that this is a case where the real efficacy of the Baumes laws may be demonstrated, in that the power of commutation is always with the governor.

"Through their apparent rigidity, the laws seem often to necessitate a sentence out of all proportion to the crime, but, of course, executive clemency may always be exercised to correct any obvious injustice."

50 PERSONS ESCAPED FROM BURNING HOUSE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Fifty persons today escaped by fire ladders, windows and fire escapes from a five-story apartment house on Morningside Heights as flames destroyed the building.

A policeman, straddling from a window to a fire escape on the fourth floor, helped seven persons to safety. A family on the ground floor made their escape across ironing boards spanning a basement stairway beneath their windows. Firemen rescued six persons from the fifth floor with ladders.

About 150 persons in adjoining houses were forced to leave until the fire had been extinguished.

A fire truck hurrying to the fire was damaged in a collision with a taxicab, but no one was injured.

NEW CUBAN DIVORCE LAW HAS BECOME EFFECTIVE

HAVANA, Feb. 9—(AP)—A new Cuban divorce law, recently passed by congress, became effective at midnight last night. It provides nine radical changes in the old laws.

Under the new law there will be 16 valid grounds for divorce instead of four. It furthermore declares that killings in the case of infidelity are punishable by death though formerly infidelity was considered just grounds for homicide.

Most of the grounds for divorce are greatly reduced in time, desertion formerly requiring extension over a period of ten years but now only four. The reduction of time is true in all nine charges.

STUDENT BADLY BEATEN BY FIVE MASKED MEN

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Charles Kellenberger, Jr., 17 a sophomore at North Carolina State college, Raleigh, was attacked and severely beaten by five masked men early Saturday morning in his dormitory room at the college, it became known here today.

The young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Killenberger, is at the home of his parents here with serious injuries. He has severe bruises on the head and body and his physician said he was possibly injured internally.

Kellenberger said he was asleep when five intruders broke into his room. They attacked him, he said, one of them striking him with a blackjack and knocking him unconscious.

The youth said that when he regained consciousness he got into his automobile and drove to the home of his parents despite his serious condition.

Kellenberger was unable to recognize any of the men who attacked him. He said he knows of no motive for the attack.

WITHDRAWS FROM DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REVOLUTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Dr. Valeria H. Parker, honorary president of the National Council of Women and prominent in the activities of other women's organizations, today announced her withdrawal from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In her letter of resignation, addressed to the president-general and the national board of management of the D. A. R., at Washington, Dr. Parker said:

"I have reached the conclusion that I can no longer support, even indirectly by a silent membership, policies which I believe to be mistaken and contrary to the purposes for which the D. A. R. was founded."

In discussing the so-called "blacklist" of individuals and organizations, Dr. Parker said, "The lists have included the names of many distinguished citizens, leaders in social, educational and religious fields, whose unselfish services and reputation for integrity should have spared them such indignity.

"The denial of this circulation of lists in the face of generally known facts does not give me confidence in the administration of the National Society of the D. A. R."

She further objected to an attack the said was made by the D. A. R. on the United States Children's bureau.

Dr. Parker has served as director of the National League of Women Voters, National Congress of Teachers and Parents, and the National Women's Christian Temperance union.

HOOVER SPENT ABOUT 25 MINUTES IN JACKSONVILLE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover and his party, en route to Long Key for a fishing trip, spent about 25 minutes here tonight.

A crowd of spectators which sought to gain entry to the train sheds was held back by special officers of the railway and police.

Soon after the train came to a stop, the president climbed down from his car and took a brief walk for exercise. It was the first time he had left his car since departing from Washington.

A delegation of officials was at the station to welcome the president. The president also greeted his warm personal friend, Gilchrist B. Stockton, whom he has appointed American minister to Austria.

As the president was striding along the concrete passenger runway in the sheds he saw Mr. Stockton. "Hello, Gilchrist," said Mr. Hoover. "Come over and join the party." The two conversed for several minutes as the president continued his constitutional.

Mayor Alsop thanked Mr. Hoover for his appointment of a Floridan and a Jacksonville citizen as minister to Austria. The president smilingly acknowledged his thanks, declaring that "Gilchrist is a mighty fine boy."

It was learned that this afternoon as the train moved through Georgia, President Hoover took a brief period of sleep, something he seldom does in the day.

The presidential party will arrive at Long Key tomorrow morning.

WARDEN OF SING SING CRITICIZED BAUMES LAW

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—Lewis E. Lawes, warden of Sing Sing prison, today criticized the Baumes fourth-offenders law and predicted that within 40 years a committee of psychologists and sociologists would sentence criminals. He adressed the Temple Emanuel Junior society.

"I believe that if a man is not fit to be released in 15 years, he never will be," he said. "But if after that length of time he has shown he can behave himself he should be given another chance. I don't believe the Baumes law will remain in action long.

"No judge can determine in advance how long a man should remain in prison. Within 40 years we will have a commission of high grade psychologists and sociologists to decide what to do with a man after the jury has convicted him."

NEW AUSTRO-ITALIAN TREATY OF FRIENDSHIP

VIENNA, Feb. 9—(AP)—Chancellor Johann Schober of Austria returned here today from Italy with a new Austro-Italian treaty of friendship and conciliation in his pocket. The treaty will be published February 13.

He was greeted enthusiastically at stations along his route. Many newspapers refer with approval to the revival of friendly relations with Italy, but the republican press waited before commenting to see whether any improvement would result in the situation of former Austrian subjects included in Italian territory by post-war readjustments.

She alleged that she turned the money over to her husband.

Killed During His First Plane Flight

Commercial Pilot Peri [redacted] With His Compani Crash At Jamaica

NEW YORK, Feb. com-mercial pilot and a who was enjoying his first at when killed today as their pl shed into a wooded section o Long Island.

The bodies, badly burned, were identified several hours after the crash as those of Edwin Magruder, 34, pilot for the Russell Lobe Parachute company, and Richard H. Gillette, about 26, both of New York.

Witnesses of the accident said the plane, which had taken off shortly before from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., was performing loops when it suddenly fell from a height of 1,000 feet. It burst into flames as it dropped and was reduced to a tangled mass of wreckage.

The plane was a demonstration ship of the parachute company. Recently Magruder, with Fred Cole, mechanic, made a tour of several cities in it, demonstrating parachutes.

Magruder and Gillette lived at the Phi Gamma Delta club in West 56th street, Manhattan. Before taking off from Roosevelt field today they told Cole they intended to go to Red Bank, N. J.

Just before the ship crashed, however, it was flying toward Manhattan, and authorities believed Magruder had decided to go for a pleasure ride before heading for Red Bank.

Two youths who saw the accident hurried to the scene but the flaming wreckage was so hot that they could do nothing. The identification of the plane and occupants was made through pieces of the fuselace painted a bright orange and through a charred license card found nearby.

Magruder has two brothers, William and James, living in Los Angeles. He held a limited commercial license and had flown a total of 360 hours.

ESCAPED PRISONERS STEAL POLICEMAN'S CAR

BARNSTABLE, Mass., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Two prisoners at the Barnstable house of correction stole a state policeman's car after sawing their way out of their cell early today, and made good their escape. They were Manuel Lima, 20, of Falmouth, and Joseph Riendeau, 17, of Fair Haven, both serving terms for larceny, breaking and entering. Riendeau's six months term would have been up in three weeks.

Using a smuggled automobile jack and a hacksaw, Lima and Rieudeau first sawed and pried apart the bars of their cell window, then dropped ten feet to the jail yard with the aid of blankets tied together, and climbed over the 14-foot outer wall, again with the aid of a rope of blankets. They broke into a garage in the village, stole a coach owned by William T. Armstrong, state policeman, and drove to Falmouth, where they thought to cover their escape by abandoning the police car and breaking into the Hyannis garage for another. Before driving off in a dealer's car they entered the garage office and stole $67 from the cash register.

Beyond this point their movements have not been traced.

FAVORS LARGER SHARE OF PROFITS FOR F. R. B. MEMBERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston and a former governor of the reserve board, writing in the current issue of the American Bankers Association Journal suggests that the law be changed to give member banks a larger share in the profits of the reserve banks. They now receive a 6 per cent dividend on the stock held in their federal bank.

Mr. Harding points out that such a change might tend to make membership in the reserve system more attractive and might reduce the number of voluntary withdrawals.

"The larger banks and trust companies throughout the country appreciate the value of membership in the federal reserve system," he writes, "but in order to assure the continued successful operation of the system, it seems necessary to retain the interest and cooperation of the great body of small and medium sized banks whose own independent existence may depend in some degree upon the continued operation of the federal reserve system with its mobilization of reserves and rediscount facilities."

AUBURN, N. Y., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Six Auburn prison convicts on trial for their lives here, are expected to know their fate by the end of this week. All have been identified by prosecution witnesses as among the men who vainly tried to fight their way out of the prison. All had guns, the witnesses said.

Committee To Give The Wets A Hearing

House Judiciary Committee Will Hear Their Views, Beginning Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Congress is to do some exploring this week into the national controversy over the merits of the dry law after having already made a start on the administration program to bolster prohibition enforcement.

For the first time in the ten years of prohibition history, the house judiciary committee will hear pleas for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Beginning Wednesday, it will listen in open hearings to those interested in every proposal for modification or repeal of the dry law.

As a prelude to these hearings, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, cabled from Spain, while en route to Africa, a statement deploring the bill for 2.75 per cent. beer as unconstitutional.

In the senate, senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who voted to drive the saloons out of Montana, is drafing a resolution to be introduced tomorrow asking the senate judiciary committee to investigate whether the prohibition law has been enforced and whether it can be enforced.

Meanwhile, the bill recommended by the law enforcement commission for transfer of the dry enforcement service from the treasury to the justice department is up to the senate. Without a record vote, the house put through this legislation yesterday. Other prohibition legislation hangs in the balance with doubtful chances of enactment.

The drys are ready to vote at any time on proposals for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and are ready to block efforts for modification, but there are signs of opposition within their own ranks to any other prohibition legislation, so, the transfer bill is expected to form the basis of a thorough threshing out of the liquor issue in the senate when it finishes with the tariff, probably next month.

In his statement from Spain, given out here today from an office in the Bliss building, where the Anti-Saloon league is located, Bishop Cannon demanded action on the bill of Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, "to brand the buyer as equally criminal with the seller" of whiskey.

As for the bill of Representative Dyer, republican, Missouri, to allow 2.75 per cent. beer, the bishop said this would "destroy any possibility of enforcement."

"The bill," he said, "is the product of enemies of prohibition, and if passed, will make prohibition enforcement impossible until declared unconstitutional by the supreme court as subversive of the purpose of the amendment."

FORMER JUSTICE TAFT IS GAINING STRENGTH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—The indomitable spirit of William Howard Taft kept him alive and gaining strength tonight nearly a week after physicians virtually despaired of his life.

The former president and chief justice still lay gravely ill at his home here but signs of further improvement were seen in the announcement that he is now permitted to sit up in bed for brief periods and in the decision of Drs. Thomas A. Claytor and Francis R. Hagner to issue only one bulletin daily hereafter on his condition.

After the noon visit today, the physicians reported:

"The chief justice is resting quietly and his condition is unchanged."

Since the severe sinking spell that followed the return of the distinguished jurist from the south last week, he has improved almost steadily. His conscious moments during which he is able to speak in disjointed sentences have increased; he has overcome the difficulties that prevented him from taking nourishment, and the ability to rest comfortably has given him added strength with which to wage the most trying battle of his illustrious life.

DETROIT POLICE BOARD TO INVESTIGATE SCANDAL

DETROIT, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A police board will reconvene here tomorrow to hear more testimony on which its members will form an opinion as to whether Henry J. Garvin, inspector of detectives, is a friend of the underworld or a feared and hated foe of criminals, worthy of the 18 citations he has received during his 16 years in the Detroit police department.

The board must pass on this question, although Garvin is not on trial but is, on the other hand, an invalided witness, carrying his arm in a sling as the result of wounds inflicted by gangsters who forced his automobile to a curb on Jan. 2, and emptied their guns, wounding Garvin and an 11-year-old school girl who was passing.

During the two days the board sat last week most of the testimony was about Garvin and the merits of a personal enmity between him and Inspector Robert A. MacPherson. The unusual trend of evidence gave a baptism of departmental fire to the chairman of the board, Harold H. Emmons, who became police commissioner 18 days after Garvin was shot.

AGRICULTURISTS OPPOSED TO PENDING TARIFF BILL

Take Exception to Senate Vote Against Increase in Duties On Sugar—Representatives of Seven Leading Farm Organizations Contend That the Lack of Consideration Afforded Agriculture Is Even Greater Than Appears On the Surface

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Organized agriculture is in rebellion against the pending tariff bill.

Representatives of seven of the leading farm organizations of the country, in an open letter addressed to members of the senate today, asserted the present state of the senate measure would "prevent a restoration of a balanced agriculture."

Taking exception particularly to senate votes against increases in duties on sugar, blackstrap molasses, fats and oils, the failure to place a duty on hides, now free, and the increase granted casein, the letter continued:

"In recent weeks representatives of general farm organizations and co-operatives who have been called here by the situation which has arisen have noticed that the objective for which tariff adjustment was begun appears to have been forgotten. In our estimation this objective is the placing of American farmers, who must meet competition from low cost, low living standard producers abroad, in a position to enable them to supply the domestic market as completely as possible and to enjoy the benefits of so doing."

The significance of the votes on sugar and the other products mentioned was said to be apparent when it is realized that their annual import value exceeds $472,000,000.

"But the lack of consideration afforded agriculture," the letter said, "is even greater than appears on the surface; for there are many items of an agricultural nature on which duties were given which will not respond to tariff influence. Such are the products which we produce considerably more of than is sufficient for our domestic requirements."

The need for protection was said to have been "never greater than at the opening of this year of 1930, when farmers of all major products face a gloomy outlook for the next few years."

"Effective rates on agricultural commodities such as are advocated in this communication and have been presented in detail by the principal farm organizations will increase very materially the buying power of the largest single consuming group in our nation—agriculture.

"It is not too late for the senate to rectify these injustices. In the senate are many loyal and devoted friends of agriculture. We appeal to them to renew their efforts. To those senators who have not yet been able to see the wisdom of a tariff policy that will protect agriculture, we urge further study and spirit of concession."

The letter was signed by officers of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation, the American Cotton Growers' Exchange, the National Livestock Producers' Association, the American National Livestock Association, and the Central (Livestock) Co-operative Association of St. Paul.

The farmers' communication made no mention of the present phase of industrial tariff revision which finds republican regulars on the one hand and the coalition of democrats and republican independents on the other at loggerheads over the coalition attempts to slash existing rates on manufactured products.

During the past week the coalition forces succeeded, after stiff opposition from the republican tariff-framers, in cutting 13 duties now in force on various chemical products and in eliminating proposed increases in levies on seven others.

Party leaders do not expect the senate to dispose of the tariff bill before the first of March. Some believe it will be much later than that if more progress is not made this week.

KILLED IN STREET FIGHT WHILE WIFE LOOKED ON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 9—(AP)—While his wife and a crowd of children looked on John Temple, 32, was shot and killed in a street fight here tonight by Joe Groons. Mrs. Temple formerly was Groons' wife.

Temple and his wife were taking an early evening stroll when Groons met them. Previously, police said, friends had told Temple Groons was "out to get you," and had been informed by Temple that "I will meet him man to man with my fists."

Soon after the two met, a fist fight was started. Children playing on the street gathered around. A few men looked on. They told police Temple was winning until Groons drew a pistol and fired six shots into his adversary's side. The children screamed and the crowd scattered.

Groons walked into a nearby cafe and telephoned police. He was locked in jail on a charge of murder.

Police were convinced Groons' jealousy of Temple was responsible for the attack. Temple and his wife were married recently, soon after she divorced Groons.

WOMAN RESCUED FROM ICE FLOES OF CHICAGO RIVER

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Coast guardsmen and a detective bureau squad emulated Washington's storied Delaware crossing today in rescuing a drowning woman from Lake Michigan.

The squad, driving along the lake front near the Chicago river, was attracted by a fur-clad figure floating among the ice floes 200 feet from shore.

The coast guard found its motor launch disabled and an ice barrier across the mouth of the river made it impossible to move any craft from the docks into the open water.

But the rescue party met the situation by lifting a scow from the river, placing it upon a trailer fastened to a police automobile and trundling the equipment a half mile to the foot of Superior street. The boat was launched and, with the coast guardsmen handling the oars and the detectives fending off jagged ice cakes with long pikes, the rescue was affected.

REPAIRING THE LINER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Officials of the United States Lines, Inc., were confident today that repairs to the stern of the liner President Roosevelt could be completed in time for the ship to sail only 24 hours later than her schedule called for. The liner was damaged yesterday in collision with the British freighter Philotis.

The repairs ought to be finished by Wednesday evening. Local maritime circles believe the collision was due to the low water in the Elbe estuary, which when east winds are blowing frequently makes ships difficult to steer.

Deno, of South Meriden, a supernumerary on the Meriden police department.

SAYS HE KILLED WOMAN BECAUSE HE LOVED HER

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 9—(AP)—Forest E. Weaver, 26, an eccentric character who posed at times as a cowboy, a deputy sheriff and a federal officer, admitted today that he murdered Mrs. Gladys Echardt, 20, chopped up her body and buried it in a shallow grave half a mile from his home in Muskegon township.

"I killed her because I loved her," Weaver said in his cell at the county jail. He indicated that he will plead guilty to first degree murder when he is arraigned tomorrow.

The woman's body was found last night in its shallow, snow-covered grave in a wooded section not far from a hill where Weaver had gone on a skiing expedition with Mrs. Echardt during the afternoon.

Weaver was arrested at midnight as he was walking toward his home from Muskegon.

Officers learned that during his visit to the city after the murder he met Austin Vandorn, brother of the victim, and asked him where his sister was.

After that Weaver drove his automobile past the victim's home several times and talked to her brother.

Weaver had been divorced while Mrs. Echardt was separated last spring from Ronald Echardt, whom she married when she was 16. Authorities are trying to locate the husband.

JURY IN BRADY MURDER DISCHARGED, OUT 96 HOURS

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 9—(AP)—District Judge J. D. Moore tomorrow will act on the state's motion to transfer the case of John W. Brady, former Texas court of civil appeals justice, charged with the murder of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, 28-year old stenographer, to Georgetown for another trial.

A jury which for almost 96 hours had held the murder case was discharged yesterday afternoon because Foreman J. R. Keltner, in reporting, had announced that the count was 11 to 1 "for conviction," in spite of the court's instructions that he reveal only the numerical standing.

Dayton Moses, one of Brady's attorneys, called the remark to the attention of the court later, and Judge Moore declared a mistrial.

Keltner, it was revealed as the jurors separated to go to their homes, was the juror who stood for acquittal. Nine others wanted to assess the 58-year old former appellate court justice the death penalty and two others, also refusing Brady's plea of insanity induced by chronic alcoholism, voted for life imprisonment.

MANSFIELD DEPOT DESTROYED BY FIRE FROM CHIMNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 9.—Fire that probably started from a defective chimney, totally destroyed the Central Vermont railway station at Mansfield Depot between 4 and 5 o'clock Saturday morning. The loss, including the contents of records, tickets, a quantity of baggage, freight matter and about ten tons of coal, was estimated at $4,000. A more definite check on the loss is being made by officials of the company who arrived from Brattleboro, Vt., for this purpose.

Elmer Botham and others residing in the vicinity discovered the blaze, which had gained much headway and had penetrated the waiting room. The people of the village feared that the community was threatened and telephoned an alarm to the office of the local yardmaster, asking assistance from the fire department. Chief Charles A. Reynolds secured permission from the fire committee to rush to the scene with the chemical truck of Engine company No. 1. The building was virtually destroyed upon the arrival of the firemen, who guarded neighboring structures for about an hour and then returned to the city.

The station was a one-story structure and several hundred dollars had been expended on it recently to improve the floors and general condition. It consisted of a waiting room, baggage department and freight addition. Station Master Samuel Alguire of this city established temporary quarters in a freight car on a siding.

The Willimantic police department has a pleasure-body sedan in use for patrolling and investigating work. Everybody knows about it today as the machine has been plastered with four-inch billboard letters reading: "City of Willimantic, Police Department." Alderman Eugene B. Lewis, who was chairman of the police committee when the car was purchased and continues as chairman under the new administration, has repeated on various occasions that the purpose of securing a pleasure-make automobile for the department was manifold. The basis of the plan is that a "plain-make" automobile works out for the same good results in some phases of police work as a "plain-clothes" officer. The advisability of plain appearance, as against the highly bedecked uniform or the well-known body-make of a "black Maria" is widely recognized in police and public circles. Stating that gilt letterings on the police sedan would defeat its very purpose, Chairman Lewis staunchly opposed a resolution recently passed by the council that the machine should be lettered. While dissention in the police committee may have been either the cause or the result of the lettering, Aldermen Herbert L. Sanderson, democrat, and John P. Carlsen, republican, claim that lettering the car will relieve the officers of the temptation to journey on unofficial business in the sedan and further will be just so much more advertising of the progressiveness of the city. The police car controversy is not regarded as of far-reaching or serious effect but it has, nevertheless, aroused a great deal of interest.

A flock of pine grosbeaks has been seen around the homes near the center park the past week. In 1917, they were seen in New London and have been seen occasionally in past winters around this part of the county. The females and younger males are mostly ash-brown in color with a streak of brownish red on the back, between the wings, while the wings are barred with white. During the second year the males have a beautiful shade of red plumage. The late John H. Sage, of Portland, Connecticut, well known in Colchester, noted them about his home as "Irregular Winter Visitants." It is usually between November 15 and March 25 that they appear and apparently February is the month that they have sometimes visited this region. While they vary somewhat in size, the pine grosbeaks are nearly as large as a robin. They are only occasionally seen south of Canada or northern New England. While some people have heard their note, few have heard their song.

WHAT seems like a slight difference, in one cigarette, grows mighty important in a month's smoking.

You might take Chesterfield's silky mildness for granted—but just notice that it never tastes "flat." And where else but in Chesterfield will you find such delicate shading of flavor, such spicy aroma of choice tobaccos, such rich and satisfying character?

DANIELSON

W. E. PAGE DIES FROM EFFECTS OF BLOOD POISONING

DANIELSON, Feb. 9.—Blood poisoning caused the death of Warner E. Page, 32, of Brooklyn. He died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital, where he was taken when his condition became alarming and where he was operated upon in an effort to save his life. The body was brought to L. E. Kennedy's funeral home on Furnace street.

About ten days ago Mr. Page, who was well known in Danielson, was chopping in the woods when a piece of a steel wedge that he is understood to have struck with an axe flew off and penetrated his leg deeply. It was removed, but complications that ended in his death resulted.

Mr. Page was born in Virginia, but had been resident in Brooklyn the greater part of his life. In his youthful years he attended Killingly high school and was outstanding in athletic affairs while there. In more recent summer seasons he played with teams in the Danielson Twi-Light Baseball league.

He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Page. Relatives he leaves in Brooklyn, are his mother, Mrs. Julia Page, two brothers, Charles and Thomas, and a sister, Miss Bessie Page.

OBITUARY.

Francis X. Gaudreau.

A death on the West Side at the week end was that of Francis Xavier Gaudreau, 83 years of age, and for many years a resident here. Mr. Gaudreau was born in Canada. In addition to his wife he leaves seven children—Francis X., Alfred, Mrs. Alexandrine Bedard, all of Danielson, Mary Anna Grenier, Hartford, Emil, Jewett City, Mrs. Laura Gagnon, of New York, and Mrs. Exilda Huot, of Canada.

Another Raid At Moosup.

A squad of state officers from the Danielson barracks raided a place alleged to be conducted by Joseph Charon at Moosup on Saturday night. It was reported to be a place where gambling has been allowed and where youths and young men have been frequenters. Two packs of cards and $1.35 in money were seized by the officers and the young men present placed under arrest. Those caught in the net were of varying ages from 16 to 20, it was said. All were at liberty under bail today, and will appear in the Plainfield town court Monday. The state officers making the raid were Sergeant G. L. Gardner, Royal V. Scranton, H. Theodore Strand, John Murphy and James Carmody.

Another arrest, at a dance hall in Abington, Saturday night, was that of Earl C. French of Woodstock. French became so hilarious and created such a disturbance that he was placed under arrest by State Officer James Carmody. He will be arraigned in a justice's court in the town of Pomfret.

Many attended the Citizens' meeting sponsored by various churches of Danielson at the Westfield Congregational church tonight in the interest of law enforcement, about which Danielson has heard considerable within the past two or three weeks. Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of Hartford, head of the state police department was the speaker. There was a special programme of music.

A sidelight on the law enforcement situation here was a rather torrid interview that took place yesterday between a citizen and a clergyman, the citizen feeling that he has been grievously wronged by insinuations that he is dealing in liquor. The situation that has been set up here by publicity and otherwise has drawn statewide attention to Danielson, as evidenced by a front page story in a Sunday paper having a state-wide circulation.

Up to today it was not indicated that Danielson has become much aroused over the laudable effort originating in Putnam to induce the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company to restore passenger train service over the local branch between New London and Worcester. It so happens that at various times in the past efforts to get the railroad company to agree to increase train service have proved unavailing. On the other hand, the service for passengers was curtailed more and more until at has finally disappeared. This discouraging retrospect is the reason so many here believe that, as much as passenger train service is to be desired, it is almost futile to endeavor to get the railroad company to supply it.

With Rev. George B. Hawkes of Abington assisting the pastor, Rev. Carlos C. Rowlinson, a service of remembrance of Rev. John R. Pratt, who died Feb. 7, 1929, was conducted at the Congregational church in Brooklyn this evening. Rev. Mr. Pratt, one of Brooklyn's best beloved pastors in this generation, served in that community for about a decade. Rev. William Williams of the Congregational church at Wauregan and Rev. George H. Reese of Central Village, paid tributes to the memory of Rev. Mr. Pratt.

Hosts To Forum and Guests

Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs Thomas Hope entertained the men of the forum with their women friends, in a social evening at the Baptist church. The evening was hilariously happy. Men found partners by mating their half of a valentine heart with the half held by some woman. The men with white and red paper had to fashion a bonnet and apron, don them for exhibition, and then put them on their partners. Shadow action pictures were very deceptive. In the rapid fire word production contest, Mrs. Roy A. Playdon and William Hill were tied. Will Rogers and Harry Denison as No. 1 and 3 men held their seats when everyone else was dethroned over and over again. At last even Rogers missed out. Refreshments were served by the host and hostess. President Mortimer moved a vote of thanks for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hope, who acknowledge it very graciously. Led by Anthony Paranzino all joined in "God Be with You Till We Meet Again," as the party adjourned at a late hour.

Dr. W. O. Lewis, American representative to the European Baptist churches, renewed acquaintance begun in Paris, after the war, with Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe. Dr. Lewis spoke Sunday night to the young people and friends who assembled at seven o'clock and who met especially to hear him.

PUTNAM

ROBBER OF POOR BOXES GIVEN A LONG SENTENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 9.—Charles H. Simonds, poor box thief of Framingham, Mass., has been convicted and sentenced to serve a long term in the state reformatory at Concord, Mass. Judgment was passed by Judge Sisk in Middlesex county superior court in Boston Friday and Simonds began serving his sentence at once. Simonds robbed poor boxes systematically in hundreds of Catholic churches in three states for over a period of two years, before his arrest was caused in Concord, Mass., more than two months ago. Shortly after being taken into custody, Simonds produced a notebook in which accounts of his activities had been entered. Mention of two visits to St. Mary's church in this city led Putnam police to believe that Simonds was responsible for the robbery of the rectory, which remains a mystery. Ex-Sergeant George H. Liard, then in charge of the police department, interviewed Simonds at his cell in the Concord jail. Simonds frankly admitted that he had visited Putnam several times, but firmly denied being implicated in the rectory robbery.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN CONDITION OF MAYOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 9.—A slight improvement was noted today in the condition of Mayor Charles A. Richard, who is seriously ill at his home on Main street, suffering from an illness believed to be pneumonia. The chief executive was reported to have passed a fair night Saturday. His temperature which for the past three days has at intervals hovered above the point of normality, was said to have subsided, affording him a period of much-needed rest. Despite his illness, Mayor Richard maintains his usual cheerfulness and is making a determined effort to overcome the malady with which he is stricken.

Rhea Co. Resumes Operations

A quantity of stock to be manufactured into rayon products at the plant of the bankrupt National Rhea Co. arrived here Saturday morning. Only a part of the staff of employes have been recalled to their duties at the mill.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Day Kimball hospital, held Friday afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms, plans for a nurses' home for the hospital were discussed. No definite action was taken. Many types of buildings suitable for the hospital were submitted for consideration, but the members of the board, after hearing details of various plans, brought the session to a close for the purpose of carrying the investigation further. Another meeting will be held, at which time an effort will be made to select a set of plans for the proposed home of the hospital nursing staff. The nurses' home for the Day Kimball has been under consideration for several years. A fund large enough to insure the launching of the project has accumulated, but more money will be required before the building which is now being planned can be completed.

The three-story fire-resisting institutional building donated to the Haven in Abington by Mrs. T. Morris Murray of "Gwen Careg Farm" and Boston is completed and being occupied by patients at the institution. Griggs, superintendent, said Saturday, Mrs. Murray, since taking an interest in the work of the Haven, has contributed freely to its cause, to make it one of the most modern institutions of its type in the state. The new building, Mrs. Murray's latest donation, is constructed of brick.

Officials of the school health department are of the opinion that a general epidemic of German measles has been averted, although several children in the city are suffering from the effects of the disease. The germ in most cases affects one in a mild stage. The school health officials and the city health department are cooperating in an effort to stamp out the disease.

Three commercial vehicles were involved in an accident occurring on Killingly avenue, near the Rose Ann Inn, Friday morning. One, a mail van in the service of the New England Transportation Co., operated by Clarence Kindrew of Newbury, skidded into a milk truck which was parked on the side of the road. The truck was registered in the name of Bertha Shippee of Putnam Heights road and was being operated by Bertha Page. A Connecticut Co. bus, being operated by Arthur Whitman of Danielson, was indirectly involved in the crash. None of the drivers were injured, state police of Danielson barracks learned, after an investigation. The accident was attributed to the icy condition of the highway. The van was carrying a shipment of mail detined for this city, the truck arriving too late for the mail to be delivered on the morning runs.

Priests from this city and many other parishes in Windham county were numbered among the scores of visiting clergymen who attended the funeral of Rev. William A. HAT BILL RULING MAKES FRENCH HUSBAND BOSS

LYON, France, Feb. 9—(AP) — Woman and her hats have been "put in their right place" by French jurisprudence.

Milliners who sell a woman more hats than her husband can afford can't collect.

A wife can exceed unduly the normal family budget, only with her husband's specific authority.

With those as principles the civil tribunal reduced from $2,800 to $400 the year's bill for hats of Madame X. Because of public ridicule newspapers agreed not to use the family name.

Madame X bought hats on credit. The milliner put in his bill. The husband refused to pay. Came the lawsuit.

Judge Goyet found the husband earned $2,000 a year with other income of $1,200.

So the judge decided the husband, knowing his income, would never have authorized such purchases, and reduced the bill to $400.

MEN MAY SMOKE IN D. A. R.'S NEW HOME

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)— Men may smoke in the new D. A. R. headquarters here, but no places have been provided for feminine smokers.

In the old home "no smoking" signs were conspicuous, applying to all. But men are desired at important musical and dramatic events planned for the new hall and arrangements for their comfort were considered essential and they have two smoking rooms. Women have many cozy dressing rooms but none for smoking.

Test Them in The Spring.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9—(AP)—Newspaper writers run to poetry, Roma Clifts, University of Chicago graduate student discovered. Her tests found reporters use poetic words more frequently than others, plus adventures in verse. The tests may have a practical value, she thinks, in examining applicants for schools of journalism.

JEWETT CITY

SHEA BROTHERS STORING PRIME ICE WHICH IS 10 INCHES

With the mercury at 40, Shea Bros. rushed the ice harvest all day Sunday, not wishing to lose a day, with the season so far advanced. Cutting began Friday and by Sunday evening the big houses were about half filled. Mr. Shea said Sunday evening that seldom has he housed finer ice, 10 inches thick and with no snow, fine and clear. The work will go on now until the five big houses are full. No halt will be made unless there comes a storm of unusual violence, within the next three days. This is the first time in twelve years that the cutting has been done in February. In 1889, nobody in this section was able to get ice, which, a great inconvenience then, is hardly comparable with what it would be now, with the consumption of ice increased four-fold.

People all over the borough listened in on the great sermon on Lincoln, delivered by Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Sunday afternoon.

Personal letters of felicitation from President Hoover and Calvin Coolidge, also messages from various Red Cross societies over the world were read at a dinner given in Washington, D. C., by friends and co-workers to Judge Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, in honor of his seventy-fifth birthday. Judge Payne has now served under four presidents. Besides his large gifts to the funds of educational, religious and charitable institutions, Judge Payne serves the Red Cross without salary, paying his own traveling expenses.

The local American Legion post is planning a military whist in Rioux hall soon.

Arthur Millard of the coast guarder Champlain, has returned to Staten Island, after spending several days at his home.

George B. Richardson of Newark, N. J., is visiting his brother Herbert L. Richardson in the south part of the town. The brothers have not seen each other for twenty-one years, as until recently the former has lived in the west.

The railroad company has kept driving the piles for the temporary shoring of their tracks, regardless of weather, and that part is completed. Work of putting the heavy cross timbers in place under the track will be begun at once. According to the plans, the right of way under the overhead viaduct is to be two tracks wide. This same space accommodation is to be allowed by the plans of the new bridge at Tadpole. Thus it is seen that in event of the possible future double-tracking, this branch, no hindrance will be presented by the bridge piers.

An Able Eulogist

A number from the borough were in Norwich Saturday to attend the funeral services of the late Rev. William A. Keefe. To those who listened to the fine eulogy by Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of St. Mary's in Jewett City, ample justification of his selection from among so great a number of the members of the able Catholic clergy, seemed apparent.

EFFORTS TO MAKE TOWN DRY NOT YET SUCCESSFUL

As the result of several liquor raids last Friday evening by local officers, Henry Vegiard, Harvey Maynard and Alfred Balcom, there will be a number of cases before the Griswold town court this (Monday) morning. Only a few weeks ago, a federal officer put over a grand dry-up and raid in this section, which was supposed to have cleaned up the very last drop. The present day seizures, seem among other others to verify the statement that history repeats itself. Daniel L. Phillips' History of Griswold, tells that, "In 1907, a number of citizens bound themselves together to enforce the law regarding the sale of intoxicating drinks. Then began the most serious effort ever made to dry up the town. In the fall of that year the town was carried for no license. Complaints were made against the violators of the law, so backed up that the officers were forced to take action. Case after case was brought before the courts, and, where evidence was sufficient, conviction followed. But the worst violators were able to elude punishment.

"To get evidence in January, 1908, an old state law was invoked whereby a court of inquiry was instituted. Three justices of the peace presided, and citizens were called before them to answer under oath as to their knowledge of sales of intoxicating liquor by suspected parties named. Some fifty persons were called before the court and questioned, and a small amount of information was obtained. But the moral effect of the jurisdiction of this court, and the knowledge of the testimony given, filled both the seller and the buyer with fear. Also hired detectives were employed to gather evidence, and for a season the illegal sale of intoxicating drinks was partially stopped. When new efforts were made to slake the burning thirst of the community by statute violators, the citizens' committee, ever on the alert, brought down on the criminal the full force of the machinery of the law.

"At last the temperance workers came to recognize that the general public was not sufficiently advanced to sympathize with such drastic law enforcement. Their efforts slackened and former conditions gradually returned, and remained until the end of this period."

POETRY

Tomorrow

Strength for today is all that we need,
As there never will be a tomorrow
For tomorrow will prove but another today,
With its measures of joy and sorrow

Then why forecast the trials of life
With such sad and grave persistence
And wait and watch for a crowd of ills
That as yet have no existence?

Strength for today,— what a precious boon
For earnest souls who labor,
For the willing hands that minister
To the needy friend or neighbor.

Strength for today, that the weary hearts
In the battle for right may quail not.
And the eyes bedimmed by bitter tears
In their search for light may fail not.

Strength for today on the down-hill track,
For the travelers near the valley
That up, far up, on the other side
Ere long they may safely rally.

Strength for today, that our precious youth
May happily shun temptation,
And build, from the rise to the set of sun,
On a strong and sure foundation.

Strength for today, in house and home.
To practice forbearance sweetly,
To scatter kind words and loving deeds,
Still trusting in God completely.

God's Pity

God pity all the brave who go
The common way and wear
No ribboned medals on their breasts,
No laurels on their hair.

God pity all the lonely folk
With griefs they do not tell—
Women waking in the night,
And men dissembling well.

In common courage of the street
The crushed grape is the wine,
Wheat in the mill is daily bread
And given for a sign.

And who but God shall pity them
Who go so quietly,
And smile upon us when we meet
And greet us pleasantly!

"Yes," said the skipper, "I know of one that'll cure you."

THE PRESIDENT'S VACATION

Off for a week's fishing in Florida waters, President Hoover will obtain a rest through indulgence in his favorite recreation. He has been sticking closely to his desk for a long period and only those who have to wrestle with the duties of the chief executive know what that means. A person in his position needs more in the way of a rest or a change than comes from an occasional week end. There is need for a different environment, an opportunity to get away from the burdens of the presidency, a chance to do some thinking for himself.

What the president thinks of fishing is no secret. He has expressed himself quite clearly to the effect that "Fishing seems to be the sole avenue left to presidents, through which they may escape to their own thoughts and may live in their own imaginings and find relief from the pneumatic hammer of constant personal contacts, and refreshments of mind in the babbling of rippling brooks. Moreover, it is a constant reminder of the democracy of life, of humility and of human frailty—for all men are equal before fishes. And it is desirable that the president of the United States should be periodically reminded of this fundamental fact, that the forces of nature discriminate for no man."

Even though Mr. Hoover may have been thinking about Virginia when he expressed himself concerning fishing, it is apparent that it applies equally well to Florida or elsewhere, according to the season. Obviously this is the time of year when the Florida fishing has its special appeal, but whether it is in quest of trout or tarpon, whether he is angling for brook fish or deep sea fish, there will be opportunities for meditation between catches unless presidential luck is different from that of most fishermen.

The country will wish for the president a successful vacation in every respect. It is evident that he regards this as a time when the duties of the president can be put aside for a few days without taking any risks and it is to be hoped that the outing will be as beneficial in every respect as he has anticipated. Needless to say, the eyes of the country will be turned, for the next few days, to the fishing grounds off the Florida keys.

TRANSFERRING DRY BUREAU

Although it was the house that declined to accede to the president's request that there be a joint congressional committee named to consider the recommendations of the commission on law enforcement, that body has, nevertheless, given speedy attention to the recommendation by the commission that the work of prohibition enforcement be transferred from the treasury department to the department of justice.

Such debate as took place concerning, and such efforts as were made to amend, the bill authorizing the transfer required but little time/and were easily disposed of. The result clearly indicates that the house believes, along with a lot of others, that the treasury department is not the place for the enforcement of the prohibition law. Whether the placing of the enforcement bureau elsewhere will accomplish any better results can best be told by experience, but there is no question but what the department of justice is where enforcement should rest.

What the senate will do and how soon it will do it, nobody knows. If tactics are resorted to for the purpose of delaying action, or if inquiries are launched in directions far afield from the subject of the bill, it will create no surprise. The country has gotten so that it expects all kinds of horseplay, sidestepping, false charges and needless obstruction from what was once proudly claimed to be a deliberative body. It is from the senate that much has been heard concerning the ineffectiveness of prohibition enforcement. Whether any better enforcement is possible is a question, but one means of helping it has been put forth subject to approval, and that approval now rests with the senate. It has a chance now to balk the president's commission, to upset the house vote and to go contrary to what the secretary of the treasury favors. It has been difficult for it to resist those things in the past.

THE HAITIAN COMMISSION

Once again, in the naming of a commission, President Hoover has made an excellent impression by the men he has chosen and the reasons for selecting them. He has long since indicated his belief in commissions and he has gained public confidence because of his purpose and the high-grade men he selects for such work.

The latest commission is that which has been named to inquire into the Haitian situation, where the desire is, as pointed out by the president, to get out as soon as possible but to deal with the conditions meanwhile.

As the head of the commission, W. Cameron Forbes will be recognized as a man in whom confidence has been previously placed by presidents in dealing with island conditions. He rendered a high grade of service when he was sent to the Philippines and it cannot be overlooked that, while Haiti and the Philippines are not exactly the same, there is a similarity of conditions which makes his selection an excellent one.

Another member who has repeatedly demonstrated his fitness wherever placed is Henry P. Fletcher, and this is particularly true in connection with Latin-American countries. He has displayed marked ability in diplomatic posts, a keen observer of conditions and one who can be relied upon for constructive thought in dealing with them.

Elie Vezina of Woonsocket has apparently been selected because of his ability as an organizer and because of his knowledge of the French language. The other two members of the commission, William Allen White and James Kerney, are well known newspaper men, a republican and a democrat, men who understand how to get at the facts and make use of them for the purpose of revealing conditions and who can be relied upon to have definite views in regard to bettering conditions.

The inclusion of Dr. R. R. Moton for the purpose of considering the educational problem among the Negroes of the island unquestionably recognizes the outstanding member of his race in dealing with this huge problem in Haiti.

With the commission getting away for its work before the end of this month, it is evident that it understands the need of early attention, but it is impossible to overlook the fact that the job might have been well underway but for the senseless delay which has taken place in the senate.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

Municipal mismanagement springs up in many places and goes along until the people become aware of the situation and apply the remedy.

There isn't any question about what has been going on in Chicago. There, money has been spent so lavishly, and in many cases needlessly, that the city is without credit. It cannot even borrow money to pay salaries. It is a sick city financially and completely in the hands of the citizens' committee which has been named to get it out of its serious predicament. Through such guarantees as the committee is able to make the committee will be able to raise the money needed to keep the city going, to pay the firemen, the policemen, the teachers and other employes. But what is beyond that?

There seems to be no disposition on the part of the officials to acknowledge the seriousness of the disgraceful situation. It might be expected that they would be anxious to dig the pruning knife in deep, curtail expenditures and begin to make a saving in the many ways which are apparently possible. But nothing of the kind is evident. The adviser to the council finance committee has directed attention to certain forms of extravagance and wilful waste which even now characterize the city administration, but no heed is paid to it. A member of the board of aldermen has severely criticised several departments for their resistance to genuine economy, and it has otherwise been claimed that the taxpayers do not know one hundredth part of the waste perpetrated by the governments.

One might suppose, in view of the situation, that the taxpayers would be sufficiently informed to recognize the need for a change. Unless they are dumb and blind they must understand that existing conditions cannot continue. And yet it rests with them to bring that influence to bear which will cause the housecleaning which Chicago needs. Just as long as they vote for the continuance of present conditions there need be no surprise if they prevail. When they insist upon a change there will be the purging in Chicago which those at a distance have a right to think should take place, and which those at home ought to be insisting upon.

THE ICE PATROL

With the ice patrol going into service today, it gets busy three weeks earlier than usual, for the purpose of warning ocean transportation of the presence of dangerous ice.

This means that the cutters which are employed in this work must set forth on a cold, lonesome vigil as they patrol the sea lanes in the north Atlantic and give notice to other ships as to where icebergs may be expected. It is part of the duty of the cutters to seek out the floes for the benefit of advance information and throw as much protection as possible about those whose course takes them in localities where big ice can be expected. Many are those crossing the ocean who are desirous of getting a peek at an iceberg, but even they are desirous of information sufficiently in advance to prevent their ship from striking one.

Uncle Sam renders this patrol service through the cooperation of several governments. It is protection of a vital character, which does not prevent all vessels from coming in serious contact with bergs, but for the most part it is the means of preventing collisions if due heed is given to the warnings. It is quite certain that nothing approaching the wreck of the Titanic has occurred since the patrol was established following that great disaster, and if vigilance will prevent it in the future Uncle Sam's cutters can be relied upon to give the service. The protection gained is worth all the expense involved.

APPLE ACRES

"Dear Miss Sims," read Polly Sims, opening her morning mail. At the top of the letter was the name "Burnham & Peterson, real estate," and at the bottom was the signature, "John Peterson," whom Miss Sims remembered with palpitations as having met at a friend's tea the week before.

"Dear Miss Sims: Will you take next Sunday afternoon off and go for a drive out in the country? Now is the best time of the year. The young fields are sprouting, the spring sunshine is invigorating, the roads are marvelous bits of ribbon, inviting the weary city dweller.

"And out at the end of one of these ribbons is a beautiful stretch of country, 'Apple Acres,' which I wish to show you. It is ideal for a homesite. I am confident you will love it as I do and I want to show it to you. If you can come, please answer by return mail, I will call for you in my car at 1 o'clock."

"A day in the country," breathed Polly, who was fresh from a small town and weary of her city job. "A ride with the handsome Mr. Peterson," she reflected joyfully. "An invitation to look over a prospective home site! Would she go? She certainly would!

"My dear Mr. Peterson," wrote Polly, "I received your invitation and am delighted to accept. I, too, am much interested in country homesites. I will be ready at 1 sharp and am looking forward to a delightful and mutually beneficial trip with you out to Apple Acres. Thank you so much for inviting me."

"What's this!" gasped Mr. Peterson in dismay as he read Miss Sims' letter. Mr. Burnham, his associate, reached for the letter.

"Hold on!" said Mr. Peterson. "Hold everything and listen to this. Here is the way your bright idea turned out, for inviting prospective customers out to look over Apple Acres. Here's a woman who has taken the letter personally. Thinks I want to build her a home. Thinks this is a matrimonial agency, instead of a real estate firm. 'I hope the trip will prove mutually beneficial to both of us!' That's what comes of inviting silly women—"

"But," interpolated Mr. Burnham, "I thought you said you met her at a tea."

"True," lamented Mr. Peterson, "too true."

"I thought," continued Mr. Burnham, "you said she was sweet and witty and wholly desirable."

"True," conceded Mr. Peterson, "desirable as a buyer, but heavens, I never thought"—and poor Mr. Peterson was off again.

"Leave off your gnashing of teeth," soothed Mr. Burnham, "and leave Miss Sims to me. Are we not in desperate need of selling Apple Acres? We are. Has any one signed on the dotted line? Emphatically not. Do we need customers? We do. Are we baffled because some slight, pretty but romantic woman misinterprets our letter? We are not. Just leave Miss Sims to me."

Sunday came and in his shiny automobile Frank Burnham called for Miss Sims. She looked like a spring flower in her orchid and yellow sports suit, with her golden hair tucked under a powder blue hat. And the strange part of it was the minute he saw her his immediate concern was, not of dread lest she take him too seriously but of fear lest she wouldn't. Would he talk homesites to her? He would. And not from a business point of view, either, if he had his way.

But Miss Sims' thoughts were surprisingly on business. She began by asking him about his firm. About their property holdings, of which there was much, and about their sales, of which there was little. And when they reached Apple Acres Miss Sims surprised the realtor by this outburst:

"Not selling! But of course not. How could they. Don't you see what you need here?"

"What do we need?" gasped the astonished Mr. Burnham.

"Why, you need a little cottage, fitted up the way you picture it to your customers. People have to see with their own eyes. A model house, with sunrooms, and electric lights, with fireplaces and large rooms, and furnished cheerfully, with colors harmonizing with the blue of the sky and the yellow of the fields. Oh, I can just see it! I could see it when I read your letter and that's why I was so anxious to come out and try to sell you my scheme." And she handed him her card: "Miss Polly Sims, interior decorator specialist."

"Well," asked Mr. Peterson, dubiously, next morning, "who won?"

"Who won?" repeated Mr. Burnham, his thoughts on a girl in yellow and orchid, who talked about houses to match the sky and the grass, "she won, of course."

"I feared as much," sighed Mr. Peterson, "So we lost!"

"Lost," echoed Mr. Burnham. "We've won the biggest idea this company ever struck. That girl's coming here next week to work, and she's going to win where we failed. She is going to sell Apple Acres for us!"

"Yeh?" said Mr. Peterson weakly.

"Yes," said Mr. Burnham emphatically, "but I'll win yet. After that house is up and finished she's going to change her name to Burnham and live right there with me. An orchid dress," he reflected dreamily, "in a yellow and blue house on a hill in Apple! Oh, boy!"

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—"Major General William G. Everson preaches tonight," said a Baptist Memorial church announcement along in January. Then it added this comment:

"He comes from the First Baptist church of Muncie, Indiana, where by God's grace he did great work and was known as 'The Flying Parson,' as he used the airplane often in his work."

And as chief of the militia bureau, war department, this first preacher-soldier to reach high executive duty plans to enlarge his aviating activities. His notion, he told the Bystander, was to get his headquarters out into the field, to meet guard problems and guard personnel face to face.

"I don't want 'em to write me," he said. "I want to sit down with 'em and talk it over. I want to smell and taste their troubles on the spot. Then I'll know what they mean when they do write."

Fighting Parsons

The army has had doctors in high command before. They were doctors of medicine, however, not divinity.

Back in various wars there were many fighting parsons in American ranks. There were a good many such in the World war, not as chaplains but as leaders of combat units. And among these the Reverend Everson, then a lieutenant colonel commanding the American sector in Italy, now a brigadier of the line at home and a major general in Washington, was about the highest in rank.

He's a fine, upstanding young-middle aged type, well liked by his hard boiled regular army comrades, is the highly militant divine. He goes after whatever job he tackles with boundless enthusiasm and bulldog tenacity.

Through The Mill

He's been through the mill of soldiering from private to sergeant-major, from chaplain lieutenant under Colonel Edwin Pope Thayer of Indiana, now secretary of the United States senate, to brigadier of the line.

General Everson has mapped a double tour of the nation in the next four years that will compel great reliance on airplanes to keep his schedules. Already he has combed the north Atlantic states contracting with officers of the guard and state officials everywhere. In summer he will visit two-thirds of the guard training camps. And his two-starred flag will fly not from the regular army plane at his disposal, but from guard ships manned by service pilots of the guard. That is by way of proving the faith this particular sky pilot has in his aviation comrades of the guard.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 7

One of the chief sources of income is "compensation for personal services rendered." All of the various types of compensation, unless such income is specifically exempt by statute, should be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income. In general, it includes salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses, tips, honorariums, prizes, awards, pensions in recognition of past services, etc.

Compensation for services should be reported for taxation purposes in the year it is received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand. If the services were rendered during the year 1928, or even prior thereto, but the compensation was no treceived until 1929, the entire amount is taxable in the year received, when the taxpayer is reporting on the cash receipts basis. Most individuals use the cash receipts basis in reporting net income.

The salaries of Federal officers and employees are subject to the income tax, except the salaries of Federal judges and the president of the United States. The following items also are subject to the tax: Salaries of Members of the House of Representatives and United States Senate; fees received by ministers of the gospel for funerals, baptisms, marriages, masses, and like services; Federal jury fees, executors' fees, fees received by a referee, trustee, or receiver under the National Bankruptcy Act; and retired pay.

YOUR HEALTH

In These Days Of Science

By Samuel D. Shull, M. D., Chambersburg, Pa.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Has it ever occurred to you how difficult it must have been for navigators to sail around the world a number of years ago with the compasses they used then, in comparison with the ease of navigation today with our modern equipment? The instruments of precision in aiding diagnosis of medical and surgical diseases have made the same rapid strides of development as those of other sciences and arts.

Today, when the patient is ill, his physician first of all uses his thermometer, for it is equally important to know whether the patient has an elevated or a subnormal temperature. He then uses the stethoscope, which will elicit sounds in the chest, indicating sore spots in the bronchial tubes and lungs; the sounds of the heart are plainly heard, and tell whether the valves are holding the blood as it passes through or whether they leak; when the instrument is used on the abdomen, it tells whether peristalsis is active, that is, the constant wave-like motion of the intestines, a condition which is so important in health.

Blood pressure in diagnosis today is of paramount importance because so many diseases have associated with them elevated blood pressure and some have a lowered blood pressure. There is a normal blood pressure reading just as there is a normal temperature and normal heart beat. When our blood vessels are hardened from overwork, overeating or excesses of other sorts, we are in danger of having a rupture of vessels in the brain and becoming paralyzed. There may be severe headaches and other distressing symptoms. On the other hand, a low blood pressure will cause one to present symptoms of weakness and may indicate diseases of the blood and other organs.

The instruments used by the technician in the laboratory are just as wonderful. For instance, it can be learned there whether the blood is normal, whether the urine is chemically all right, etc. The urine should be examined at regular intervals, and very frequently when it is definitely known that a diseased condition exists. The instruments of precision required to do all these tests in helping us to make a diagnosis are greatly improved over the ones we had a number of years ago.

There is a normal physiological condition known as metabolism, which means the normal wearing out and building up of our body tissues. This function is oft-times impaired due to a faulty action of the Thyroid Gland. To determine this, one should have a metabolism test made. The metabolism machine of today is accurate and has helped us greatly in handling goitres of various kinds.

Again the X-ray instrument has reached a high standard and can detect many conditions which formerly would have passed unnoticed. The Fluoroscope, which is a device for examining deep structures by means of the Roentgen rays, is a great help in diagnosing abdominal conditions.

All these tests are necessary before a fairly accurate diagnosis can be made. It would be well to have a periodic health examination made every year to determine one's state of health, for by so doing we would discover and treat diseases before they have far advanced.

CHILD TRAINING

Patty Goes Shopping

Helen Gregg Green

"Earn a little and spend a little less."—Benjamin Franklin.

"Come on, honey-girl, we're going shopping," mother coaxed.

"But, mother, Mary Joe intended coming down, and we were going to have a pile of fun," Patty protested.

"Yes, but Patty and mother will have a pile of fun!"

"That's right," Patty smiled, "we do have good times when we go shopping. And I have a dollar left from this month's allowance."

When Patty skipped away to ask Mary Joe to postpone her visit, her mother said to me, "You see, Patty and I go shopping together. She's learning how to spend money wisely. Too many children grow up knowing nothing about the value of a dollar, of the quality of materials and clothes."

"That is an excellent idea," I answered.

"I let her make small purchases alone. Of course, at first she made mistakes, but now she's doing well. We give her a small allowance, and make her keep within it. So she's learned to respect Daddy's dollars. Too many mothers do all the sacrificing, while their sons and daughters throw money to the wind. It isn't a kindness to the children, and it's surely not fair to the parents."

Patty returned, all aglow.

"I was just thinking about that new coat we are going to get for me, mother," she said. "I want a good practical one."

Her mother winked at me as Patty hurried off to get ready.

"Of course, she's quoting me," she said, "but all the same, she's gradually learning just the things I'm trying to teach her by my find-it-out-for-yourself method."

I was much interested. "Won't you tell me more about your find-it-out-for-yourself plan?" I asked.

"It only means giving Patty a great many first-hand, helpful experiences," her mother answered. "My idea with regard to these shopping trips is to teach Patty the value of money. Long ago when we began giving Patty an allowance I often borrowed a little change from her when I needed it, sometimes forgetting to pay it back. One day Jim spoke to me about a bill I owed. Patty overheard us talking. 'Oh, Daddy, I wouldn't bother about that,' she said, 'mother often forgets to pay me, and I don't mind.' Well, that was the last time I ever neglected to return Patty's money. Since then, whenever I have borrowed from Patty, I have 'paid back' as soon as I got the change—and added a few pennies for interest."

Stories That Recall Others

Pretty Low

Little Harry, age six, heard an airplane and ran to the window to see it. The weather being rainy the plane was flying low. Harry turned to his mother and said: "Mother, it was so low I could see the horse power."

"Ladies' Aid Society"

Five-year-old Mary was entertaining several of her small Sunday school class friends, when mother noticed Mary would take one little girl out in another room and whisper something, then another and so on. Also other girls would do likewise. Mother said: "Now, Mary, you must not do that; you must treat all alike and play nicely together."

Doris, a guest, said: "Oh, Mrs. X, we are not angry. We're only playing 'Ladies' Aid society'."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Suggestion

Mr. Editor: Under Brief Telegrams in The Bulletin of Feb. 5 appeared the following:

"A system for two-day voice communication between surface vessels and submarines resting on the sea bottom has been developed by the navy."

Just a suggestion: Resolved: That the navy department be requested to test their newly developed system on the prohibition enforcement investigating committee.

IN DAY'S NEWS

HOW THE MANDATED TERRITORIES ARE FARING

Discussion of the political status of western Samoa, a mandated area under New Zealand, coming soon after announcement of a change of policy in Iraq, raises the question: How are the mandated territories faring? A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society briefly reviews the present mandate situation.

"Twelve areas were marked out for fourteen mandates immediately following the World war," says the bulletin. "Since that time one of the areas—Ruanda in Central Africa—has been divided between Great Britain and Belgium, so that now fifteen mandates exist. The recent action of Great Britain, however, in promising Iraq to work for the ending of the mandate over that country and its reception into the league of nations, may point the way to a decrease in the number.

"All the mandated territories were carved from the colonies and dependencies of Germany and Turkey. Of the fifteen, ten were placed in charge of members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, three in charge of France, and one each in charge of Belgium and Japan.

"Three classes of mandated territories were recognized. The class A members, the three regions with most advanced populations, were all created from former Turkish lands. They are Iraq, with an area nearly three times that of New York state, and a population of nearly three million; Syria, with an area greater than that of Illinois and a population of more than two million; and Palestine-Transjordan, with an undetermined area which is probably twice that of Maryland, and a population of approximately a million.

"Class B was made up of the tropical African colonial possessions of Germany: Tanganyika, Togoland, Cameroons and Ruanda. Tanganyika and Cameroons were great areas, the former nearly once and a half the size of Texas, and the latter larger than California. The population of Tanganyika is over four million and that of Cameroons about two million. Togoland was relatively small, approximately the size of Maine; while Ruanda was only half the size of Kentucky.

"The class C mandated territories are a varied lot, with huge South West Africa (almost equal to Texas and Louisiana combined) at one extreme, and the little Pacific island of Nauru, less than 10 square miles, at the other. Between the former German New Guinea and near-by islands, with an area of more than 90,000 square miles; Western Samoa, 1,200 square miles in extent; and the Marianas, Caroline and Marshall islands, with a total area of about 785 square miles.

"Until the recent friction in Western Samoa, when some natives refused to pay taxes to the agents of the New Zealand Mandatory, the three near eastern mandated areas have been the only ones to find their way into the limelight of world news. In Syria a brief revolt arose among the Druses, but the country has been pacified. Iraq has sought a greater degree of independence. This has now been promised by Great Britain, the Mandatory power.

"Palestine saw rioting in the summer of 1929; and previously Transjordan, a part of the Palestine mandated area, was the scene of uprisings by desert tribes. In both regions Great Britain, the Mandatory power, has restored order.

"The methods of governing the mandated areas vary greatly and in some cases have changed radically since the organization of the mandates. The greatest degree of autonomy is seen in Iraq which has its king, responsible cabinet and parliament. The influence of the Mandatory power is exercised only through a high commissioner who advises the king, and through an air force.

"In Syria, France has set up several states and territories. Those of greatest autonomy are the Republic of the Lebanon, and the Republic of Syria. The latter, embracing the former states of Damascus and Aleppo, has not had its constitution approved in its entirety.

"Great Britain has divided the Palestine mandated area into two parts: Palestine proper, and Transjordan. Palestine proper, the major division, is governed in the general manner of a crown colony, but with a high commissioner instead of a governor in charge. Plans for a partially elective legislative council have not been put into operation because of refusal of some of the Arab inhabitants to vote.

"Transjordan, the minor division, has been given the governmental form of an independent kingdom, governed by a king and an advisory council. Through the high commissioner in Jerusalem and a British resident in Amman, the Mandatory power exercises close control over the government.

"The Central African mandated areas adjoin territories of the powers which received the mandates, and in most cases the areas have been incorporated with those territories for governmental purposes. Thus the slice of German Togoland given under mandate to Great Britain was attached to the adjacent provinces of Gold Coast Colony and northern territories. The slice placed under France is administered separately. The portion of the former German Cameroons mandated to France is attached to French Equatorial Africa. The British share of Cameroons is similarly attached to Nigeria. Ruanda was originally to be mandated to Belgium; but by agreement between that nation and Great Britain, a strip was handed over to the latter country, and the two parts were separately mandated. The Belgian portion has been attached to the Belgian Congo and the British part to Tanganyika territory, for administrative purposes.

"Tanganyika, the remaining area of the class B mandated areas, has a separate territorial government. If Great Britain's East African Dominion is created, as proposed, Tanganyika will become a part of it.

"South West Africa, under mandate to the Union of South Africa, is governed as a territory of the Union. An administrator, representing the governor general of South Africa, is in local charge.

"Of the remainder of the class C mandated areas, northeastern New Guinea and the adjacent islands are governed as a territory of Australia; Western Samoa is governed as a territory of New Zealand, and the Marianas, Caroline and Marshal islands are governed as a territory of Japan. Little Nauru was mandated to Great Britain. Its sole value results from its phosphate deposits, which are jointly owned by British, Australian and New Zealand capital. By agreement among the three interested countries, Australia is at present furnishing an administrator."

OPPOSED TO MILITARY DRY OFFICER IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—Opposition has developed to President Hoover's choice of an army man, Major Herbert B. Crosby, to replace a civilian commissioner for the nation's capital, on the ground that it "robs voteless Washington of its last vestige of home rule."

Crosby was selected to be in charge of the District of Columbia law enforcement machine as President Hoover's "guarantee" that the capital would be free of organized crime.

A meeting of Washinton's civic and business leaders was called today by Edward J. Murphy, president of the board of trade, to meet Wednesday to discuss the Crosby selection.

The board of trade and the chamber of commerce have advised Mr. Hoover of their opposition to Crosby because he is an officer of the military service. Crosby will retire next month as chief of the cavalry, before assuming the role of district commissioner. The opposition, however, has cited court decisions which it contends hold that a retired officer still is under the jurisdiction of the military and therefore is not a civilian.

Crosby's nomination must be acted upon by the senate. The president has not forwarded it to the senate, pending Crosby's retirement from the military service.

Washington is governed by congress and three commissioners appointed by the president, one of whom is required by law to be an engineer from the Army Engineer Corps. Crosby, however, is to take over the commissionership in charge of police. There also will be the regular engineer commissioner.

127 MEN TAKEN IN RAID AT COCKFIGHT

GOSHEN, N. Y., Feb. 9—(AP)—It cost 127 men from Orange and surrounding counties nearly $2,000 to see nine fighting cocks killed and six wounded today.

There were still 39 birds ready to fight when Lieutenant Christopher Kemmler and 14 state troopers interrupted and took all the spectators before a Goshen police justice.

They were fined from $10 to $50 each. Some demanded a refund of the $3 admission but did not get it.

The 39 live cocks were shipped to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in New York city, and the fine money turned over to that organization in accordance with state law.

There are 5,287 churches in Oklahoma, representing 88 denominations.

Boy Scout Home Day

As a part of the celebrating of anniversary week, the Boy Scouts will observe today (Monday) where possible as home day. This day is set aside to enable a scout to show his loyalty to his home in special ways, and to enable the home to celebrate the birth of the Boy Scouts of America in ways that will encourage and help the scout.

Suggested ways of observing this day are:

1—Completion or the start, of some very practical good turn to the home, preferably one that calls for Scoutcraft or merit badge skill. Often the presence of an invalid, aged or other handicapped member of the family suggests excellent good turns. That home good turn is best that embodies the most thoughtfulness.

If mother wants to surprise her scout, it is suggested that she have a special Boy Scout birthday cake with a candle for each year of troop membership.

According to the local Scout headquarters, Tuesday will be observed by the scout as his school day and Wednesday will be observed as his community day. Scouts are asked to plan good turns for their school and school teachers for Tuesday and the community for Wednesday.

P. Leslie Conklin

At Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the funeral of P. Leslie Conklin, former assistant secretary at the Norwich Y. M. C. A., who was killed in an automobile accident at Albany, N. Y., was held with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Prayer was offered by Rev. Myron E. Genter district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the service was conducted by Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of the church. During the service, Mrs. Carl Johnson, accompanied by Miss Alma Boutilier, sang Ivory Palaces. The eulogy was by Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A., who said, in part:

When Leslie came to us at the Y. M. C. A. two and a half years ago, we quickly discerned in him something out of the ordinary for one hardly out of his 'teens'.

First and foremost, we saw in him the clear cut evidences of a character being built upon very high ideals, the foundation of which was a splendid home influence, such as can only emanate from a family life, where the Master, Christ, is recognized as a member of the family.

Then we soon saw that Leslie had a vision that was bound to lead to a splendid goal, and he followed that vision steadily, and with the spirit of "this one thing I do".

Not every young man can be safely followed in his moral life, but this young man lived far above the question mark, and others could follow him. not only with safety but with real profit.

We have seldom seen in one so young such a large development of the Christian graces.

The paths of this noble young man were certainly straight, and the inspiration of his splendid life will long remain with us.

Another solo was then given by Mrs. Johnson, following which an impressive tribute was paid to the deceased by the pastor in a fitting eulogy, which follows:

Nearly a year ago I came into contact with Leslie Conklin. Since then I have been in almost daily touch with him through the medium of the Y. M. C. A. and the church.

I found him a growing young man. He was ever seeking for himself something better. He was not content with his education. He wanted the best the schools could give him. He sought this in many ways. That eager mind sought for light to guide him along the pathways of experience and understanding so that in his turn he could guide others. I cannot think that even now in a fairer clime that eager mind will still go on learning the ways of God and men and fit himself into God's ways of educating the race for higher things.

This young man grew in soul. I could see he was getting a grip upon himself and his life's great task. His clean, sweet young life was dedicated to the best things. Honest to the core in his thought and conduct, he was trusted by all who knew him.

"Self-reverence, self-knowledge, self-control leads life to sovereign power." These three things our young brother was seeking earnestly to possess and more and more they revealed their presence in his life. He left an example behind him to the young men of this city that they will not forget. He was reverent in his attitude towards all good things. He behaved himself well in the house of God and in the house of life. He carries with him into that far country our loyal appreciation and sincere comradeship.

I cannot but believe that God has for him a nobler task than even the one he hoped to fill on earth. Death does but husk the corn and leaves the finest on the wheat. Death does but strip off the ephemeral but leaves the house not made with hands with him in all its spiritual beauty.

The honorary bearers were Herbart B. Cary, Arthur F. Wyman, Shepard B. Palmer, Harold E. Robbins, Charles W. Perkins and Frederick H. Topli. The active bearers were Aubrey Brown, William Wyman, Cecil Weatherbee, Arthur H. Nevin, Howard Ludlow and Robert Geer, all intimate friends of the deceased.

Ushers at the church were Emery H. Davis and J. H. Demarest, of the Y. M. C. A., with whom Mr. Conklin had had as fellow workers at the local "Y".

The interment was at Maplewood cemetery and Rev. Mr. Cooper conducted the committal service. During the funeral hour the local Y. M. C. A. was closed out of respect to the late Mr. Conklin. Undertaker George G Grant had charge of the funeral.

LINCOLN REMEMBRANCE SERVICE IS HELD AT TRINITY METHODIST CHURCH

Four characteristic traits of Abraham Lincoln were used as the foundation of a very stimulating sermon delivered by Rev. Joseph Cooper, the pastor, at the service of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, which was set aside as one in remembrance to the martyred president, whose birthday is to be celebrated this month on the 12th day. The pastor spoke upon the subject, "The Soul of Lincoln," taking his text from Proverbs 10, verse 7, "The memory of the just is blessed."

The four points upon which Rev. Mr. Cooper stressed were: His whole-souled democracy; he was the soul of real, practical kindness; Lincoln had an astute sense of justice, and a deep abiding reverence for spiritual things. As an added and attractive feature of the service the church choir sang in fine voice a number of Negro Spirituals.

In his sermon, Rev. Mr. Cooper spoke in part as follows:

Monuments are being erected, dramas are being enacted, poems are being wrought out, and even policies are being shaped in memory of this man who left the land of the living sixty-five years ago. The more the peoples of the earth have known his simple life and read his words of truth the more have they thought of him with growing affection and reverence. Like John Brown, "his soul goes marching on."

What do we mean by "soul?" We mean the bent of his mind, the inner disposition and conviction, the real man in the tone and temper of his life. Four tints in this picture stand out today.

His whole souled democracy. He never sought to be anything but what he was. He was born among the lowly and he never forgot his birthright. "Of the people, for the people, by the people." It was not a mere catch phrase—it was his very life. The common people were to him nature's aristocracy. They form the backbone of the commonwealth — its first defense in war, its first foundations in peace. He never attempted to disguise his feelings for those from whom he came. When nominated for the presidency a citizen of Springfield held up his hands in horror and said: "What, Abe Lincoln for the presidency of the United States. Can it be possible? A man who buys a ten cent steak and carries it home himself?" The people were looking for a man who had honesty of purpose and who could carry that purpose into action. They felt they had secured a man who knew what should be done in the crisis that was upon them and had courage to do it.

Lincoln had an acute sense of justice. It was not mere verbiage of unthinking minds that this man was known as "Honest Abe." He seems to have been born with an acute sense of right and wrong. There was in him an innate sense of disgust with everything that savored of dishonesty or injustice. The Cooper Institute speech blazes up with the passion of the old Hebrew prophets as he denounces the hideous wrong of slavery. "Their thinking it right and our thinking it wrong is the precise fact upon which depends the whole controversy."

The soul of the honest man is ever seeking to find the right path. This is the straight aim not to be deflected by any other. In the tangle of conflicting interests a man cannot always determine precisely which is right or wrong but he can at least keep his soul earnestly in the search. We need the power of detachment from selfish aims. The honest soul takes the high road, the road of honor, of the higher good. This was Lincoln's constant attitude, "To do right as God gives us to see the right."

He was also the soul of real and practical kindness. Lincoln was a great heart. You think of such men as Alexander, Ceasar, Napoleon, Bismarck and you cannot seem to associate their names with real kindness of heart. They were great men but ruthless, despotic, cruel. In that great frontier country where Lincoln lived, he had learned the lesson of neighborliness. Two good mothers had taught him by precept and example to live kindly and cleanly. To help and not exploit other folks. Every one of his speeches where he touches upon the human side of things is full of the poetry and beauty of his sympathetic nature. Most of his sorrows were vicarious— brought upon him by others. The Civil war was a speechless agony to him because he was built for kindness and good feeling. It was hard for him to do the cruel thing even though the occasion demanded that it should be done.

His deep and abiding reverence for spiritual things. This was a real and vital element in his life. He had a deep appreciation of the Bible and no public man has quoted its sayings more aptly than he has done. He believed in prayer and called in good men to pray with him and for him and his country in the emergent times that he faced. He believed in the church and while he did not join any yet he asked that God would bless all the churches in the loyalty to the right.

In his first inaugural he says: "Intelligence, patriotism, Christianity and a firm reliance in Him who has never forsaken this favored land are still competent to adjust in the best way our present difficulties."

His religion is summed up in Foss's poem:

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn
In the peace of their self-content
There are souls like stars, that dwell apart
In a fellowless firmament
There are pioneer souls that blazed the path
Where highways never ran
But let me live by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

This was the heart of Lincoln's religion.

BOY SCOUT WORKERS RUSHING CAMPAIGN DRIVE

Reports from the different teams of the Boy Scout workers indicate that the men are setting to with a will to win. Teams got underway early Saturday and throughout the day made calls upon prospects. First returns will be made at the Arcanum club this (Monday) evening at supper which will be held at 6 o'clock. Team captains are again trying to have teams present 100 per cent that all men may report what has been accomplished.

According to the local scout headquarters the general response to appeals has been very encouraging. Everyone is in a co-operative mood and expresses confidence in the work of the Boy Scouts for the coming year. Many persons in Norwich would like to see a boys' camp for Norwich boys owned by Norwich, and with the assurance of the local council that funds contributed over $8'000 will be used to purchase a camp, these are increasing their contributions that this camp may become a reality.

Hundreds of subscription cards have been sent to families who cannot be seen personally and it is hoped that all will contribute something to the boy work. With the induction of the Cub program for boys 9-12 during the coming months, the enrollment and the general value of the work should increased several fold.

The program for this evening will include:

America; the invocation; collecting of pledges and contributions; address by Rev. John J. Reilly; the announcement of the amount subscribed; Star Spangled Banner.

The menu for this evening will consist of:

Grapefruit, celery, olives, roast lamb, mashed potatoes, spinach, mint jelly, tomato salad, French dressing, rolls, chocolate pudding, and coffee.

The meeting will be brief, peppy, and to the point. H. D. Larrabee, campaign manager, will urge the workers to see every prospect as quickly as possible that everyone may contribute towards the boys work of this community.

TALBOT CASE CONTINUED BEFORE CITY COURT

Trial of the reckless driving case against Henry L. Talbot, 28, Montville, brush salesman, was continued until this (Monday) morning when it came up in the city court Saturday morning. Talbot pleaded not guilty and stated that he desired to secure a lawyer. Talbot was arrested at Taftville Friday night while the state police were investigating an automobile accident there. Talbot is alleged to have been driving at a fast rate of speed when stopped by the officers.

It is said that he became abusive to State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh when summoned, and, in view of Talbot's attitude, Officer Whitmarsh asked the court to put him under bonds. Talbot stated that he could secure bonds from his employers in Hartford but was informed by the court that he would have to be locked up at police headquarters until his bondsman appeared at police station and posted the bond. Later the court allowed Talbot his liberty on his promise to be in court Monday morning.

$100 FINE ON CHARGE OF SELLING BEER

Henry Sharkey of Providence, R. I., was fined $100 and costs and given 10 days in jail, suspended, when he pleaded guilty, in the city court, Saturday morning, to violation of the liquor law at a place in Taftville. He was charged with selling beer. Before the fine was given Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, who was on the bench, inquired whether there was any evidence of hard liquor found in the place conducted by Sharkey. State Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, one of the raiding officers informed the court that as far as he knew Sharkey sold only beer at his speakeasy No. 164 Norwich avenue, Taftville.

In fining Sharkey, Judge Pettis explained that in his opinion, the sale of beer was not as serious an offense against the state and federal liquor laws as the sale of liquor of strong alcoholic content. Sharkey had been conducting the place only about a week, when it was raided Friday night.

Elaborate plans and preparations were made for the valentine party at the next meeting. At this time each club member is to bring a guest.

Miss Collins of Pembroke college, was a guest of the club on Friday evening. Refreshments were served, concluding another happy evening for the girls.

HAD BIG AUDIENCE FOR Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

A large audience enjoyed the service at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. After the singing of "The Battle Hymn" and the reading and prayer, the touching historic picture, "Johnny Ring and the Captain's Sword," was shown in four reels. This was a true happening in the life of Russell Conwell, who was as a captain in the Civil war, an atheist, but was really converted by the splendid Christian influence of the young lad, Johnny Ring, who was a sort of servant to the captain. The lad's faithfulness to duty and his sacrifice for his captain had a wonderful effect on Mr. Conwell. During the service, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak briefly of three personalities; first, Johnny Ring, whose devotion to his God and his love for his captain changed the whole after-life of Captain Conwell. Who can measure the tremendous influence of this young lad? Then I want to speak of one whom many of us knew so well, Leslie Conklin. His was a splendid life; a pure life; a very noble life. He has been taken away from us very suddenly, but he has left a great influence for good upon many of the boys and young men of Norwich; we shall miss him, but we thank God for his life.

"The third personality I wish to mention is the young man of 33 years: His name was Jesus Christ. These two young men I have mentioned received their inspiration from this same Christ, who Himself was the inspiration of countless millions and is still the great inspiration of humanity. Are you young people here making the most of your lives? Take a lesson from Johnny Ring, and from Leslie Conklin, and especially from the great Christ. Make your lives count for the most possible for everything that is fine and splendid."

Now you can protect her lovely hair!

Millions of men and women know how Danderine helps stop falling hair and dissolves the worst crust of dandruff; how easily it changes dull, lustreless, brittle hair into hair that is soft, sparkling, vigorous.

With Danderine it is so easy to "train" a child's hair; to keep it orderly, sparkling, clean. Danderine accentuates the natural curl of a child's hair. A girl's "waves" look more natural when "set" with it. And they stay in longer.

Use Danderine with children to overcome the evils of frequent washing. It puts back into hair and scalp the natural oils removed by soap and water.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It is no trouble to use. Just put a little on the brush each time the hair is arranged. This will keep the scalp healthy and encourage the growth of long, silky and abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year is proof of Danderine's effectiveness.

GREENWICH Y. M. C. A. BEATS LOCAL FIVE TO SEND THEM BACK INTO FOURTH PLACE

Coach Demarest's Y Seniors have fallen by the wayside again and today finds them in a bad way in the state Y league championship race.

The local basketball players dropped their fourth contest in title play Saturday night at the Y gym, when the league-leading Greenwich five gained a 35 to 25 decision in a drab game after Norwich was in sight of the promised land at game time. By losing the locals have sunk deep into fourth place, whereas a victory would have settled them comfortably in second place and within easy striking distance of the top rung. Now they have lost four games and three teams, Greenwich, Bridgeport and Middletown have rounded the turn and started up the hill in the home stretch, going at top speed.

The Seniors have no one to blame for their present predicament but themselves—and the superior shooting ability of a couple of Greenwich forwards. Clifford and Boles, left and right forward, respectively, of the visitors, put their 15 and 13 points together to more than match the total of the Norwich team, which was led in scoring by Brown, with nine points. It was the old story of a pair of long-shooting forwards that sink them from mid-floor and beyond with comparative ease, while the local boys manfully struggle to work the ball under the basket only to have it taken away or have them miss hurried shots.

During most of the second half, and especially in the last quarter, Coach Demarest sent his boys out to toss the long ones as a last hope, but the Seniors have been using the short-shot method so long they were not equal to the task of making up a ten point lead. The local outfit showed only brief bits of good basketball during the evening, the chief fault being their extreme slowness afoot. Coming as it did after the two brilliant exhibitions against the Sub Base and Torrington Y in their two previous starts, it was a surprise. Adding further to the fans' amazement at the poor game put up by the locals, was the fact that they had beaten Greenwich at Greenwich.

Greenwich got right down to business in the first minute of the game with a six point lead on spectacular long baskets, two by Clifford and one by Boles, and held the lead for the remainder of the game. The closest the Y Seniors came was late in the second quarter when the score was 17 to 15, after it had been at 11-7 at the conclusion of the first quarter.

The local quintet scored only two points in the third quarter, which ended 28 to 17. Brown, of the Seniors, and Boles and Peck of the visitors were ejected on personal fouls.

Girls Win Again.

The Norwich Girls returned to winning form after a one-game lapse, when they trimmed the Conn. Aggie Freshmen Girls' team, 29 to 16. Once again the work of Miss O'Hart, the clever right forward, thrilled the large crowd. She and Miss Kelaszek form the ideal forward combination that is proving a thorn in the side of all opponents. These two scored all the points Saturday night. The half time score favored Norwich by 18 to 8.

SONNENBERG WILL BE ABLE TO FILL ENGAGEMENT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling star, who was operated on in this city yesterday for an abscess on the groin and infection resulting from mat burns, will probably be able to keep his engagement to wrestle Joe Stecher in Miami, Fla., on February 12, Dr. John A. Bolster, who performed the operation, said tonight.

MULE HAAS' TEAM AT PLAINFIELD

Those who were not fortunate enough to see Mule Haas pole out his home run in the last game of the world's series will be given an opportunity to see him play basketball against Plainfield next Wednesday night. Mule Haas' All Stars of Cedar Grove, N. J., come to Plainfield on Wednesday night to give battle to the Plainfield Pros.

There is more than passing interest in the All-Stars because of the fact that Harry Mills, a former local basketball and baseball star is the manager. Harry writes that he is bringing up a fast club and nothing would give him greater pleasure than to take the Plainfield boys into camp. Although Harry's active basketball days are over he still takes a keen interest in the game and upon rare occasions gets into the line-up for a few minutes.

The All-Stars are playing nice basketball and have won 19 games in 22 played with some of the strongest clubs in the metropolitan area. Besides Haas, who is recognized as a brilliant basketball player and coach, there are a number of well known basketball players included in the line-up.

Plainfield will have to travel to beat this club if basketball reputations mean anything. A glance at the line-up, which will be announced later, shows some fast players who should be capable of handing the Pros a neat trimming. Of course, it doesn't necessarily mean that they will for Plainfield last week beat one of the fastest clubs in the country and have apparently hit their stride.

Mame and her girl friend had just finished bargain hunting in Willimantic and were in need of refreshment.

"Come on Mame, let's put on the old feed bag. Hungry, aintcha? What's that, where we going? Why, I don't know let's go somewhere Ritzy, are you game?"

"They say there's a nice hotel up here where they put out some good chow. What's the name? Gosh, Mame I forget. Let's see, I think it was named after the fellow who said 'I'm sorry I ain't got but one life to give for my country' and then was hanged."

"No, No, Mame, Gerald Chapman didn't say them words. They didn't name no hotels after him, the only thing they named after him was machine guns."

"Oh, Mame, there's the place over there. Come on and brace up and act like you'd eaten some other places than off the arm chair. Lookit Mame, at them two guys in them grand uniforms. Ain't they classy?"

"And Mame don't say 'Howdy do' to 'em, just go by with your head up in the air like the real swells do. If you say "thank you" to a bell hop people'll think you ain't never been in a hotel before."

"Gee, Mame, ain't this a swell eating joint? Hey, Mame, cut out wiping your feet on that rug. Oh, yes, waiter, a table for the two of us. Say, Mame, will you quit pinching those flowers 'course they're real. She would give us the only table with a bouquet on it."

"Don't this table look like they had set it for the Prince of Wales? Didja ever see so many different things to eat with? Lookit, here's two forks, two knives and one, two, three, four spoons. Gosh, one of each would be enough for me."

"Oh, excuse me, waiter. Yes, I'll do the ordering Mame here ain't ust to these food programs. No, Mame, we don't have to eat everything on the program, you just guess at 'em like taking chances on a punchboard."

"Yes, waiter, you just pick out what you'd think would be the best, you've been here longer than we have. There. Mame, pretty slick ain't it? You know, I didn't know what half them things were on that program let alone trying to tell that girl."

"Hey, Mame, stop goofing at the bell hop, he sees better looking dames than you and me every day. Go on, eat your soup, and be as quiet as you can, you know that radio ain't very loud."

"Now, Mame, don't put those olive stones in your pocket, it's all right to leave 'em on the plate. And, Mame, take the soup spoon to eat the soup with. Which one is it? How do I know, I've never been here before."

"Oh, Mame, how you embarrass me. Just because your father only used his fork to spear bread with, it ain't no sign you got to do it. Us of the young generation ought to pay more attention to the way we handle our eating utensils."

"Yes, Mame, that's a salad. What do you eat with? I don't know but I'm going to take a chance on a spoon 'cause I got more of them than anything else. Mame, for the love of Mike take that spoon outa your coffee, you'll blind yourself some of these days."

"Yes, waiter, I'll have ice cream for dessert. Say Mame, there's one thing you know how to eat. Lookit Mame, we've made some mistakes. I got three spoons, a fork and a knife left over and you got two forks and two spoons. No, Mame, that ain't no way of covering up your mistakes, take them spoons right out of your pocket."

"Lookit, Mame, lookit. What's these for? To wash our hands in? Say listen, girlie, there ain't enough water in 'em to do that and besides there ain't no soap or towels. Say, the nerve of that waitress, she must think we've been eating with our hands."

"All right, Mame, let's go. Yes, Mame, it was a good meal but I think I'm going to have indigestion, from eating under such a nervous strain. You know, Mame, you are an awful care and I have to watch so carefully to see you don't make no bad breaks."

"Hey Mame, didja hear that waitress and the bell boy say 'good night' to us. Guess we didn't make such a bum hit after all."

SLATTERY-SCOZZA BOUT HOLDS CENTER OF BOXING STAGE FOR THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Two Buffalo boys, Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozza, hold the center of the fistic stage this week. They meet at Buffalo tomorrow night in a bout which will decide the world's light heavyweight championship so far as the New York State Athletic commission is concerned. The bout is over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

Slattery, a master boxer, rules a slight favorite over Scozza, a rough and ready customer who wears his opponents down with body punches. The distance favors Scozza for there is considerable doubt whether Slattery can maintain his speed for so long a battle.

The state commission, in ruling that the bout was for the championship relinquished by Tommy Loughran, added a condition that the winner must meet Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem Clown, within 60 days with the title at stake.

Rosenbloom, incidentally, meets Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, in the feature bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant, makes his fourth start in the United States against Buster Martin, of Tulsa, Okla., at St. Louis Tuesday night. Mickey Walker, middleweight title-holder, meets Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., light heavyweight, in a non-title bout at Detroit Friday night.

Other bouts on the National schedule include:

SECOND ROUND OF CHURCH LEAGUE STARTS TONIGHT

Tonight at 8.15 the second round of the Church league will start when the two leaders of the league, the Brothers of Joseph and the Gamma club, meet the tail-enders in the Phi Delta Nu and the Stronghearts of Jewett City.

The Phi Delta Nu, always capable of waging a good battle, in spite of many losses, with a new player and the memory of a former defeat, intend to fight for their second league victory. The Brothers of Joseph, on the other hand are well up in the Church league with victories from some of the league's hardest team and intend to be in a position to threaten the Gamma's lead after tonight.

In the second game of the evening at 9, the Gamma club will attempt to administer another defeat on the tail end Stronghearts. To those who have been watching Jewett City's rise in the league, there is a good possibility of an upset tonight. Last week the Jewett City team came within two points of a victory from Baltic, and that because Grey shot a basket for his opponents. The present standing of the league:

COCHET-RYAN TEAM WINS MIXED DOUBLES TITLE

CANNES, France, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian, now living in England, and Henri Cochet, of France, defeated Big Bill Tilden and Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, of German, 18-10, 6-3, in the finals of the mixed doubles of the Cannes tennis tournament. Both Cochet and Tilden played erratic tennis, the continued superiority of Miss Ryan over Fraulein Aussem giving her team the victory.

Visitation Five Wins

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—Holding the Bruins scoreless in the first half and checking their late rally, the Brooklyn Visitations vanquished the Chicago quintet, 18 to 15, in an American Basketball league game here tonight.

(First of a number of articles recalling old-time ball games)

This was one of those Academy-Bulkeley thrillers, which the Academy won in a tenth inning rally for two runs after Bulkeley had gone ahead with one run in their half of the frame. The score was 3 to 2.

It was played at the campus Memorial day, 1921.

It was the three-base hit of Court Whitney, present football coach of the Red and White that decided this game, he driving in Hitchon with the winning run. The Academy won the league pennant that year and then didn't repeat until 1925.

MAPLE LEAFS BEAT THE AMERICANS BY 3-2 COUNT

NEW YORK, Feb. 9—(AP)—Toronto Maple Leafs turned back the New York American threat tonight with a 3 to 2 victory in a fast and hard fought National Hockey league game.

The brilliant play of Toronto's "kid" line was the feature of the game and was more than enough to offset the experience of the Americans. The kids scored two of the three Leaf goals after the Americans had taken an early lead. The game was rough at times and six of the 12 penalties were handed out in pairs on roughing charges.

Each team got a goal in the first four minutes of play, Billy Boyd tallying for the Americans and Primeau taking C. Conacher's pass to tie it for Toronto. Two Toronto goals put the Leafs ahead in the second frame and they lasted through a furious New York attack at the finish that brought one counter.

PENN TAKES LEAD IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's Quakers were back in the pace-setting position of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league today but trouble looms from the New York sector where Columbia is making gestures toward its first league championship since 1926.

A thrilling overtime victory over Cornell at Ithaca yesterday, 37 to 34, enabled Penn to regain undisputed position of the lead with three victories in as many starts. Columbia, beating Dartmouth in its only start of the past week, holds two triumphs against no league defeats. The two leaders meet in a "crucial" game here Wednesday night.

Dartmouth moved up to a tie with Princeton for third place by trimming Yale, 39 to 35, in another spectacular battle at Hanover, N. H., last night. The defeat dropped Yale into the cellar with four losses and one win, Cornell is just ahead of the Elis with one victory in four starts.

The standing to date follows:

	W.	L.	Pts. For	Pts. Against
Columbia	2	0	71	57
Penn.	2	0	86	81
Dartmouth	2	2	123	123
Princeton	2	2	99	106
Cornell	1	3	88	117
Yale	1	4	138	123

HOROWITZ TOPS SCORERS IN COLLEGE LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A 15-point splurge against Dartmouth last night enabled Ed Horowitz, Yale forward, to take a commanding lead in the race for individual scoring honors in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league. The Yale flash has scored 62 points in five games to lead his nearest rivals, Lewis of Cornell and Schmidt of Dartmouth by 13 points. Lewis and Schmidt each have tallied 49 points. Al Brodbeck of Penn holds fourth place with 34 points.

Horowitz has scored the most field goals, 26, and the most foul goals, 10. Murphy of Cornell has committed the most personal fouls, 14.

J., former Columbia player; Mike Pesit, of New York, Columbia graduate; and William Cook, of New York, freshman coach for nine years.

Commenting on his selections, Little said:

THREE WORLD'S RECORDS SMASHED AT MILLROSE A. A. INDOOR MEET

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The annual indoor track meet of the Millrose A. A., held in Madison Square Garden, has gained a fine reputation for exciting races and new records. And in this season of little international competition and few outstanding stars, it did not go back on its reputation.

Three world's records went by the board in the meet Saturday night to uphold that part of the reputation, even though they were not marks which get frequent tests, and a thrill came at the end of nearly every race.

Stella Walsh, a sturdy young miss from Cleveland, opened the evening's record breaking by winning her heat of the girls' 50 yard dash in six seconds. She beat the old mark, set two years ago by Helen Filkey of Chicago, by a fifth of a second. In winning the final she tied the former mark.

Monty Wells, former Dartmouth hurdler now running for the Boston A. A., clipped two tenths of a second from the world's mark for the 50-yard high hurdles by running from scratch to win the handicap event in 6 4-10 seconds. The third mark fell before an international relay team composed of three New York university students, Sol Furth, Irving Gold and John Trachy, and R. Griffiths of the New York A. C., in turning back a Canadian quartette at the 880-yard distance. They did it in 1:33 4-5 to lower the old mark of 1:33 2-5 made by the Newark A. C. team.

The most brilliant performances, however, were not in setting new records but were turned in by a group of young stars in defeating more famous campaigners in a set of exciting events. Fred Veit, just out of New York university, put a thrilling finish in the 350 yard run by a sprint in the last few yards to nose out Dr. Paul Martin, Swiss Olympic ace, by a hardly visible margin.

Paul Rekers, husky Penn State college runner, made an even finer sprint at the finish of the two mile miss-and-out race to lead Stanislaw Petkiewicz, Polish invader, to the tape by 20 yards after a fine duel. Two Canadian sprinters, Leigh Miller and John Fitzpatrick, tossed in another surprise by finishing first and second in the 50-yard dash with Jack Elder, Notre Dame's great halfback, third.

Most of the stars who appeared Saturday night will show their wares at least once more within the next week, which brings the indoor season to its height. The Seton Hall college games at Newark reopen the action tomorrow with Bernie McCafferty of Holy Cross, Reginald (Pete) Bowen of Pittsburgh and Vic Burke of Georgetown scheduled to meet at 500 yards and Elder and Howard Kries, formerly of Ohio State, opposing eastern stars in a sprint series.

Tuesday night the Brooklyn Edison club meet will draw a number of the lesser lights. The annual Meadowbrook club games, Philadelphia's counterpart of the Millrose meet, will be held with many of the stars competing. Some will remain in New York for the Osceola club meet. The Boston A. A. games are the leaders on Saturday's schedule but the Crescent A. C. also will hold its annual meet in Brooklyn, with which are combined the Metropolitan A. A. U. championships.

The following Monday the annual New York A. C. meet is scheduled with Petkiewicz due to make another appearance. He has entered the 5,000 meter event.

Juliana, heiress apparent to the throne of Holland (upper right), plans a voyage to the Dutch East Indies, shown in map. In the carriage with Juliana are her royal parents.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 9—(AP)—Juliana, 20-year-old heiress to the throne of Holland, is to make a royal voyage to the Dutch East Indies soon after her next birthday, April 30.

She has completed her education at the University of Leyden and has left Katwyk, little seashore resort near Leyden where she lived with three other students.

Her impending engagement to Prince Wilhelm of Erbach-Schoenberg has been reported by the usually well-informed Telegraaf. The prince, 25 years old, comes from an old German family, as did Princess Juliana's father. He has been visiting the royal family at The Hague.

Juliana, only child of Queen Wilhelmina, has had a very simple life. She is serious minded and like her parents, has little time for frivolities. For the vanities of dress she has a sublime disregard.

Juliana is the first member of the House of Orange to indulge in tennis.

Dutch law requires the heir to the throne shall have her own palace and court, and Juliana maintained her own household since she was 18. On that occasion one of her birthday presents was a fully equipped palace.

Princess Julliana became a student at Leyden when 18, and has just passed for her final law examination.

Her career at Leyden has been that of an ordinary student under the assumed name of "Freule van Buren." But she put into it an extraordinary degree of ability and energy. Besides studying law, philosophy and theology, with lectures on such diverse subjects as Chinese history and Russian literature, she was a keen member of the club for women students and not only wrote a prize poem but produced her own play, "Blue Beard."

Vallee To Sing For Mrs. Hoover At Capital Party In Her Honor

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP) — Rudy Vallee is coming to Washington to sing at an affair in honor of Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

A distinguished audience will listen to the radio crooner in the imposing hall of the Americas in the Pan American building Feb. 14. The Congressional club, composed of wives of congressmen, is giving a noonday breakfast in honor of Mrs. Hoover.

Instead of school girls munching candy it will be dignified women sipping coffee at whom Rudy will launch his lyrics.

Mrs. Porter H. Dale, president of the club, conceived the idea of getting him and his orchestra to put pep into the breakfast. The Dales and the Vallees are old friends.

This is the first time the Congressional club has entertained for Mrs. Hoover. When the reception was given for the president and the first lady the latter was unable to attend.

BEAUTY WAS A TASK EVEN IN ANCIENT UR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—Maids of ancient Ur of the Chaldees, nearly 5,000 years ago, knew the perils of a shiny nose and the pitfalls of beauty unadorned.

Some of their aids to beauty have just been unearthed.

Vanity cases, jars of cosmetics, mirrors, and ornamental combs have been found by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British Museum, now excavating in territory which probably knew the tread of Abraham.

PINK AND WHITE FOR THE COMING SPRING

PARIS, Feb. 9—(AP)—Pink and white, symbols of daintiness and innocence are going to be conspicuous in the highly feminized fashions of the coming spring it appears.

Couturiers, having reinstated long skirts and pinched-in waists, are seeing everything through rose colored spectacles. Pink is the new spring shade, according to many, replacing yellow, the rage of last year.

Important fabric manufacturers, who supply the haute couture with materials, are agreed that pink shades will be noticeable for sport and evening costumes in many leading style houses.

White is already an established favorite with well dressed women, both for sport and evening dresses. White will retain all of its prestige, and pastel shades, particularly pink, will supplement it.

The particular shade of pink preferred is a faded version of wild rose. Some of the new pinks are just barely discernible from white, so delicate is their tint.

Tea rose pink satin for evening is prophesied for the women who insist upon summer sunburn.

Pale blues and greens are other colors much talked about for the coming season.

HUGHES CALLED WIFE HIS "CLOSEST ADVISER"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes will return to Washington as a hostess experienced in social ways.

Mrs. Hughes was a ranking member of Albany and Washington society when her husband was governor of New York, justice of the supreme court and secretary of state.

A graduate of Wellesley, she has always been interested in public affairs. During her husband's campaign for the presidency she was called by him his closest adviser.

As vice president of the Militia of Mercy and the Women's Evening clinic in Washington, and later chairman of the Pan-American International Women's committee, Mrs. Hughes herself has been a prominent figure in public affairs.

BLUE DAYS AHEAD, SUMMER STYLES SAY

PARIS, Feb. 9—(AP)—Sleeveless and half-sleeved summer frocks will precipitate a craze of multiple and varicolored bracelets costume jewelry makers believe. The vogue of Algerian and Tunisian jewelry is far from finished according to the jewelry dealers.

They anticipate a demand for light blue costume jewelry next spring and offer many sapphire shades.

Business Women Plan Hotel.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—A $1,000,000 headquarters and hotel for the National Federation of Business and Professional Women is projected for Washington.

The building committee headed by Miss Mary Armstrong of New York, has looked over a number of sites and will report to the 1931 convention in Richmond.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Empty baking powder cans make excellent molds for gelatine desserts.

Raw oysters may be served in grapefruit shells filled with chopped ice.

Pour melted parafin over an opened can of paint to prevent it hardening.

Paste a large envelope on the inside cover of your recipe book to hold clippings.

If a wick refuses to go into the burner of your oil-stove, wax it with common beeswax.

Match marks may be removed from paint by rubbing the spot with a cut lemon.

A piece of cheese the size of a walnut added to potato or onion soup gives it a rich, creamy taste.

Before peeling apples for pies, place them in boiling water, cover them and let stand 10 minutes. The skins will then come off easily.

Onion salt is invaluable to give that delicate onion flavor to a vegetable salad without biting down on an actual piece of onion.

Keep a large shaker containing six parts salt to one part pepper on the shelf of your kitchen range to use in seasoning foods.

If iodine-stained linen is soaked in a solution of ammonia and water, a teaspoon of ammonia to a pint of water, than stain will quickly disappear.

Gelatin may be molded in one hour at any season of the year if set in a pan of cracked ice over which rock salt has been scattered. In winter pack the mold in snow.

Chocolate will not stick to the pan when melting it for cake filling, if the inside of the pan is rubbed with a little butter or olive oil.

STAINLESS SHEARS.

Stainless kitchen shears are now on the market and are a boon to the housewife who uses them constantly for cutting vegetables, fruit, fish and other foods.

EGGS.

When hard-boiled eggs are to be served cold, put them into cold water immediately after taking from the hot water. This will keep the outside of the yolk from turning dark and they can be peeled more easily.

RUG CUSHIONS.

Rug cushions will add years to the life of your rugs and are simple to care for. The vacuum cleaner will do all that is necessary for them. If the baby plays around on the floor, they will be found to act like a blanket, keeping out considerable cold. If your floor boards are warped or uneven, the cushion fills out the unevenness, so that ridges are not worn in the carpet.

PUDDING BASIN.

When you are short of a pudding basin for making a boiled pudding, try making it in an ordinary two-pound jam jar. Grease the jar well, and leave plenty of room in it for the pudding to rise. Then tie a piece of greased paper over the top.

The pudding will turn out a neat round shape, and is much easier to cut up into portions when boiled in this way.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Tea, if properly prepared and used moderately, is not harmful.

To harden the gums and sweeten the breath, rinse the mouth each day with a little tincture of myrrh.

Here is a dandruff remedy: Mix sixty grains of sulphur with one ounce of vaseline and apply every other night to the scalp with massage.

If you have served onions for a meal, it is a good plan to end with some clove drops, or candied spice to take away the smell of onions on your breath.

Drink from six to eight glasses of water daily. Water is necessary to dissolve the food materials and to wash away the waste. Constipation and failure of free kidney action are likely to result from lack of water.

WHITEHEADS

Whiteheads are chalky deposits under the skin. They are imprisoned blackheads, protected from the surface dirt. Apply hot towels to the face to soften the skin. Open each blemish with a sterilized needle and press out the contents with the needle. Wipe the spot with peroxide and gently massage with cold cream.

BUNIONS

Bunions are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint caused by short shoes or stockings. The joint should be relieved of all pressure. Bandage the great toe into position with adhesive tape to relieve the inflammation if trouble has started. Buy shoes which give the toes plenty of room to spread.

COLOR

A more successful room is one in which the color is woven in with thread upon thread intermingled to present a harmonious picture as in a tapestry. There must be a dominant color, of course, but it must predominate in a friendly, diffusive way and never by merely being large or startling. A figured wallpaper with colors which can be repeated throughout the room, if wisely chosen, is often much more apt to give the unobtrusive background desired.

STYLISH COUPLE

It is smarter now to have things arranged in pairs when possible. Two pictures framed identically, are very ornamental over a mantel, with candlesticks or vases at either end.

MILDEW

Leather bags and suitcases put away in storage sometimes become covered with mildew. To remove this rub them with petroleum ointment of saddle soap and let them stand until the mildew comes off easily.

SOLVES A PROBLEM

A handkerchief, basted into the neckline on the inside will protect the back of a dress from soil across the shoulders.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Pastel tinted caracul is another innovation of the year.

Bolero lines are approved in youthful suit styles for spring.

Chiffon or lace and net dance handkerchiefs are a pleasing novelty.

Scarfs remain necessary to the successful conclusion of a sports outfit.

Gores, rather than pleats, contribute fullness to the separate or dress skirt for spring.

Bows remain important on coats and dresses and have gained almost equal importance as a hat trimming.

Fabric handbags are much in evidence—hand-blocked cottons or linens matched to shoes are a resort novelty.

That longer skirts have brought about a concentration of decoration on the instep and vamp of spring footwear.

A picturesque evening gown of black mesh net has a deep decolletage and then matching mitts of the same material.

Gold chain jewelry comprising a pendant necklace sufficiently long to provide a loop close to the throat, a pendant bracelet and matching earrings has great chic.

VELVET BOWS

Red, green and burnt orange bows in three narrow velvet ribbons adorn a brown frock and the velvet hat that tops it.

FOR BOYS

Coats, carefully tailored and right in every respect for the growing boy, are made of a deep shape of heavy blue wool, double-breasted and belted in the back.

STRIPED JERSEY FROCKS

As one clever ad writer puts it, fashion has done all sorts of tricks with jersey. Instead of the familiar plain tones or quiet patterns, it blossoms out this season in the gayest of stripes. Some are zigzag, some diagonal, many horizontal.

NEW PEARLS

One of the newest pearl necklaces is a single strand of large milky pearls with a large tassel of small pearls suspended from a carved jade pendant which hangs rather high on one's neck.

BLUES FAVORED IN SPRING HATS

Blues of almost every kind are promised in hats for spring, but the favorites are forecast as sky blues, which include all the blues of the sky from dawn to noon. Duomo blue is the luxurious shade of an Italian sky; linen blue and fleet blue are other interesting shades, the latter named for the U. S. navy.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Sealing wax may be removed with alcohol.

When shrinkage makes a blanket too short to tuck in sew a piece of muslin on the end.

Soak new clothes pins in cold water a few minutes and they will not split.

Tea, coffee and fruit stains can be removed from linen by smearing glycerin on them for two hours, then laundering.

Pink and blue ginghams will not fade if washed in a weak solution of vinegar and water. Rinse in the same way and dry in the shade.

CLOTHESLINE

Of course you always soak the new clothesline in cold water, but after soaking you should put it on the stove and bring to a boil. Then your line will not only last longer but it will not tangle so easily.

SIMILAR TO SILKS.

In washing fine woolens, first trace the outline of the article on a piece of wrapping paper. The process of laundering is the same as for silks. When the article has been pressed out in a towel pin it with rust-proof pins to drawing, meanwhile pulling it gently to fit the original traced outline. It is well often to lay drawing flat on rug.

CLEAN BRUSHES

Household brushes require as much care as the objects they clean. If clogged with dust and dirt they cannot be expected to give satisfactory service. In cleaning any sort of brush, first remove all threads and hairs by cutting with a scissor and pulling them out. Then prepare a pail of hot soapsuds and dip the brush in and out several times. Never leave a brush to soak, lest the bristles become loosened.

Replace the sudsy water with a fresh supply when it seems too dark to absorb any more dirt and continue the process until the water is left fairly clean. Rinse in clear, warm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Hang in a warm place to dry.

PLASTER OF PARIS

When mixing plaster of paris use glycerin or vinegar instead of water. You can then work it from twenty to thirty minutes before it will set.

BUDGETING WORK

When trying to budget your time devoted to work, start with the daily necessities, such as meals. No two people will budget exactly alike, but an approximate schedule is more likely to insure leisure than none.

HARDWOOD FLOORS

Hardwood floors will never show the effort one puts on them by shellacking or varnishing unless they are perfectly clean beforehand. It will probably take some sort of a dirt remover to get off the previous soiled varnish and wax before the refinishing can be done. It is a big job, and think twice before you do it yourself if your floors are very dirty.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Of the 518,014 women and girls in Peiping, China, 21,625 bind their feet.

Mill girls in Southbridge, Mass., have adopted overalls for wear at work.

The Queen of Spain has adopted emeralds as the fashionable precious stone.

Girls who work in mills in Japan receive on an average the equivalent of 50 cents a day in wages.

Mrs. Rebecca Hoffman, white-haired-grandmother, receives $12,000 a year as register of New York county.

Mrs. Touhey, widow of the late George V. Touhey, recently made her debut as a wrestling promoter at the Arena, in Boston, Mass.

Among the 200 members elected to the new parliament of Finland, there are 16 women, representing practically every party.

Miss Gene DuRand, aged 20, recently made her 740th parachute jump from the wing of an airplane at St. Petersburg, Fla.

RENEWS CARDS.

Sprinkle sticky playing cards with a little talcum powder and shuffle them and they will be as smooth as new.

STAIRWAYS.

A whisk broom is splendid when cleaning stairways. It will get into all corners of both carpet and woodwork and prevent dust accumulating.

RECIPES.

New Casserole: A delicious dish is cabbage and tomatoes, served en casserole. Shred the cabbage and then alternate lining a baking dish with slices of raw tomatoes and shredded raw cabbage. Put bread crumb layers between and on top. Cover with a meat sauce, a cheese sauce or just a very thick white sauce. Bake from 30 to 45 minutes, slowly.

Peach Custard Pie: Soak one cup of dried peaches over night in cold water, cook until soft and cut in small pieces. Scald two cups of milk, add three well beaten eggs mixed with three-fourths cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Add the peaches and pour into an unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon over the top. Put into a hot oven and after 10 minutes reduce the temperature to moderate.

A DAUGHTER OF SENATOR IN HER DEBUT AS PIANIST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP) — Betty Vandenberg, 17, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be featured piano soloist with the National high school orchestra in Washington March 1. This will be Miss Vandenberg's debut.

The National high school orchestra, under the direction of Joseph E. Maddy of the University of Michigan school of music, is picked from high schools of 43 states.

MARRIAGE RANKS DAUGHTER ABOVE MOTHER IN CAPITAL

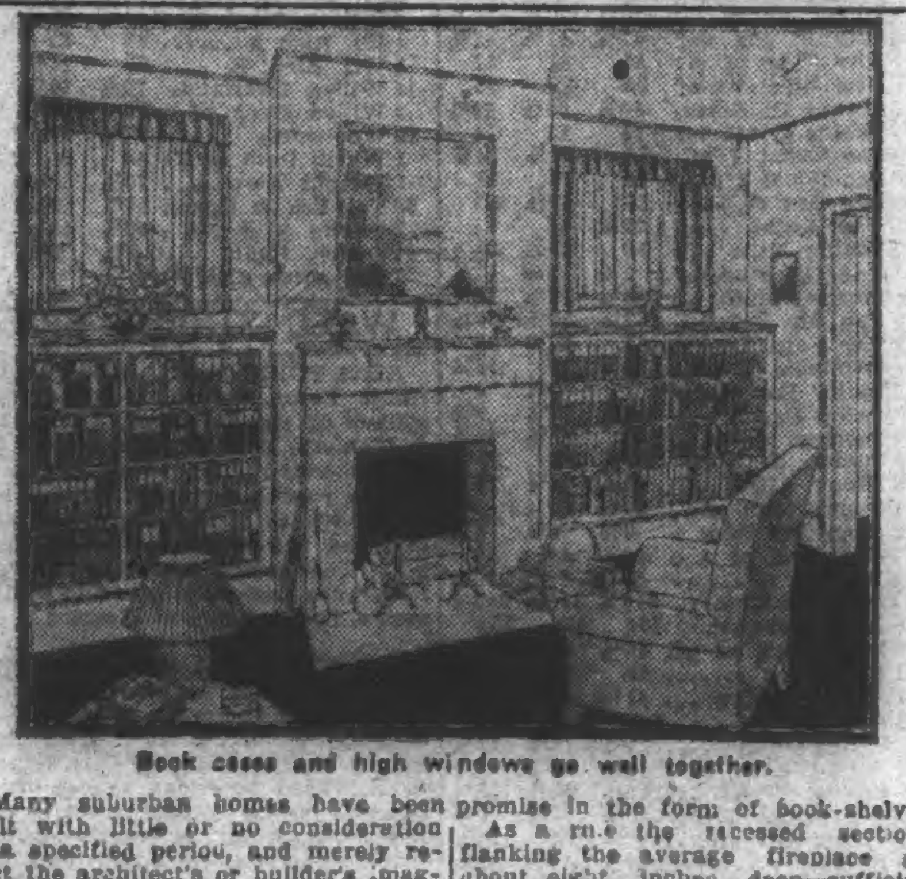
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP) — When Miss Alva M. Seger, daughter of Representative and Mrs. George N. Seger of New Jersey, wed Representative Fred H. Dominick of South Carolina she took rank above her mother in Washington's scheme of social precedence.

Representative Dominick has served in congress three terms longer than his father-in-law, hence the higher rank.

"Pocahontas" May Don Aprons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—Indian girls soon may be house maids if plans of the secretary of labor materialize. Negotiations are pending with the Indian service to establish an Indian employment service to find work for Indian boys and girls graduated by Indian schools. Work for Indian girls as domestics is part of the program.

SOLVING THE BROKEN WALL SPACE PROBLEM



Book cases and high windows go well together.

Many suburban homes have been built with little or no consideration to a specified period, and merely reflect the architect's or builder's imagination or ingenuity.

This is particularly true in respect to homes built a score of years ago, in small sub-divisions. Frequently too, the wall space was sacrificed to wide openings, and to odd-shaped windows of various sizes and proportions having no relation to one another.

Indeed, this window problem is often the cause of an entire room being out of balance and ruining another otherwise charming interior. In the living-room that boasts a fireplace, the mantel is frequently balanced by small windows on either side, where perfectly good wall space is broken.

Thus the homemaker is at a disadvantage in placing tall heavy pieces of furniture in this type of room.

In the accompanying sketch, an average sized living-room, with a wide cosy fireplace, is flanked with small sized windows, placed at an awkward distance from the floor. Here the window sills are a trifle higher than the mantel, thus breaking the wall space at a bad height. How to place the furniture under windows of this type presents a real problem compromise in the form of book-shelves.

As a rule the recessed sections, flanking the average fireplace are about eight inches deep—sufficient space for the regulation book-shelf. The advantage of this built-in type rests in the fact that they are built for a particular space, and may match the rest of the woodwork.

Here the book-shelves are painted the same ivory tone as the woodwork in the room and so afford effective contrast with the cheerful rows of colorful bookbacks. The walls are stippled in a pale French green with an antique effect.

Celanese voile glass curtains in a peach-beige tone afford privacy as well as diffusing a cheerful radiance during the sunlight hours. The overdraperies are of a deeper shade of green taffeta and contrast effectively to the lighter tone of the walls.

The fireplace is noteworthy, its simple character fitting in perfectly with the rest of the room, while the mantel is treated in the same manner as the woodwork, with the lower cement section painted to match the walls.

A colorful landscape is framed in panel-effect above the mantel and adds a decorative note to the central unit that balances the two-side sections of book-shelves.

PLANE TO BRING SCHOOL GIRL FROM ICE-CHAINED FUR SHIP

Marion Swenson, Seattle high school girl, soon is to fly out of the Arctic after eight months on her father's fur ship.

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 9—(AP)—Plucky Marion Swenson may be seeing gay city lights instead of blizzards and the gray vastness of the arctic before she hoped.

She and her father, Captain Olaf Swenson, are to fly from his fur trading ship, the Nanuk, instead of patiently waiting for the ice to break.

Since last June Miss Swenson, Seattle high school student, has been on her father's ship now locked in the ice off Cape North, Siberia. Many weeks of short rations and hours around an oil stove in the cabin waited her.

Then came aviators searching for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, lost flyers. The Nanuk served as a base. Now Marion and her father plan to fly back to civilization on the first plane to leave.

A trip to New York waits as a reward for her help.

Woman's Way Among Savages Smoothed With Tunes On Wax

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP) — A phonograph record is a good letter of introduction to the savage head hunters of the Philippines.

Thus equipped, Mabel Cook Cole, author and explorer who lived 16 months with these tribes, not only came away with her head, but with the most kindly feeling toward the head-hunters.

Her husband, Fay-Cooper Cole, is professor of anthropology in the University of Chicago. To win the confidence of the savages he asked them to sing native music for his phonograph.

They listened in awe when the recorded notes came forth. Word went round that the "white man has a box which speaks our language." From that time on the head hunters were the professor's friends.

"Though we always went armed I was never afraid," says Mrs. Cole. "Though hostile and ruthless toward savage enemy tribes the head hunters' sense of hospitality is strong. The headman of the village gave us his house. When Prof. Cole was away on an exploring trip several warriors sat at the foot of the ladder to my thatched hut guarding me every night."

Mrs. Cole never saw any evidence of head-hunting, but the chief of the tribe invited Prof. Cole to accompany him on one of his expeditions. The professor declined.

She and her husband are the only white persons, with one exception, who have ever been initiated into the head hunters' tribe.

BOBBED HAIR PROBLEM STILL LIVE IN LONDON

LONDON, Feb. 9—(AP)— Hard working stenographers who can't decide even now whether to "let it grow" may be comforted to know that titled heads are in the same anguish.

Hair is still a major problem in feminine circles about London.

The season's edict that only long tresses are proper has resulted in revolt.

West End hairdressers report that every day they clip scores of hard-grown fringes intended to become heavy crowning glories.

Princess Arthur of Connaught, Princess Ingrid of Sweden, and the Infantas Beatrix and Maria Cristina of Spain are among those who keep to shorn locks.

The marchionness of Londonderry, Lady Louis Mountbatten, Lady Inverclyde, the former actress June, and Lady Anne Hunloke have refused to bow to the hairpin.

POLITICS HIDES MASTERPIECE FROM EYES OF FRAULEIN

BERLIN, Feb. 9—(AP)—High politics is keeping Fraulein Erica Mueller, 20, daughter of the German chancellor, Hermann Mueller, from gratifying her heart's desire of seeing Michel Angelo's famous "Moses" in the Church of San Pietro in Vincuil at Rome.

She is studying law at the University of Berlin, and like her father takes to art as an avocation. She'd like to see Italian masterpieces of art, but doesn't dare, as she explains:

"I'd like very much to go to Italy. But I can't. You see, when Mr. Chamberlain went to Italy to see his daughter, he profited by the occasion to have a chat with Mussolini. If I were to go everybody would make political capital out of it. Fascists would cry 'victory' and socialists 'treason.' So I can't see Michel Angelo's 'Moses'."

MILLINERY FOR THE SUMMER SEASON

PARIS, Feb. 10—(AP)—Midsummer is going to see a blossoming of pastel-colored organdy hats for gala afternoon costumes.

Milliners whose word is almost law to hat buyers from New York are selecting Paris summer models, stressing floppy shade hats of organdy.

Rose and ashes of roses are important shades in midsummer millinery. Pale green, blue and corn color are also prominent.

White linen hats of shoulder width, covered with small colored polka dots are offered by an important woman designer.

There are parasols to match some of the shade hats. Other models are too large to go under a parasol.

BOLD PIRATES WIN HEARTS IN LONDON

LONDON, Feb. 10—(AP)—English women prefer pirates.

Nearly two-thirds of audiences at "Treasure Island," now showing here, have been composed of women, while queues for afternoon performances have been almost entirely feminine.

River Traffic Jumps.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Feb. 9—(AP) —Canalization of the Ohio river has stimulated traffic to such an extent that movements of vessels through the locks here in one month nearly doubled.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Imaginary Playmates

Creation of an imaginary playmate which, to many mothers, seems so alarming and abnormal a manifestation is, very usual and, within limits, entirely wholesome.

The imaginary playmate meets the child's needs for a perfect companion in a way that no real playmate ever could. The imaginary playmate plays any game, he is always there when wanted, never fails in sympathy or loyalty. He is everything his creator wants him to be, with no wayward impulses of his own to mar the picture. Almost every imaginative child at one time or another has such a playmate.

Occasionally when a child is deprived of real companions, or when he is otherwise unhappy, this imaginary companion assumes excessive importance in his life. This may be caused by the domination of older brothers and sisters or by the fact that he feels himself inferior to the children among whom he is thrown. It may be that he lacks a satisfactory emotional relationship with his parents.

When the child clings to his imaginary playmate because his real situation is too harsh for him to face we may regard his behavior as a sort of safety valve and warning. It is an indication of his need for understanding and help. The wise parent offers counter attractions which will woo the child from his world of phantasy. Play material, which stimulate vigorous activity, agreeable companions, interesting excursions and a background of affectionate companionship from father and mother cause the imaginary playmate who has become too real and omnipresent gradually to fade out of the picture.

CAPITAL LIKES MUSIC IF FIRST LADY DOES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover's frequent attendance at concerts and interest in music has popularized this entertainment in the capital this winter.

She has attended several concerts given in the Library of Congress by the Friends of Music, entertained a box party at the New York symphony orchestra concert and has been at band concerts at the Pan American union.

Entrance of the first lady, usually with guests and an aide, adds considerable zest to the occasion.

TURKEY'S "NEW WOMEN" TAKE MILKMEN'S JOBS

KONIA, Turkey, Feb. 10—(AP)—Turkey's "new woman" hails a fresh victory with announcement from this Anatolian city that the wave of feminism has swept over the last milkman.

Milkwomen and only milkwomen now are peddling wares from door to door, crying out, "Milk! Sweet Milk! Milk of cow! Milk of goat! Milk of donkey!"

The Blue Bird Washing Machine

is the sturdiest and most efficient ever made in America. Gives excellent service for many years. Can be bought at less cost than any other make.

IRREGULAR RECOVERY REPORTED IN SEVERAL LINES OF INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(P)—Several important lines of industry continued to gain ground during the past week, but the recovery was irregular, and on the whole, conditions remained spotty, although such a phrase is regarded as normal during a period of business recuperation.

Mercantile reports indicated continued faltering in wholesale and retail trade, probably reflecting in a measure severe weather over large areas. This is the season when slack trade is to be expected, although the spring expansion should not be many weeks off.

Among the more encouraging developments of the week, were reductions from 4 1-2 to 4 per cent. in the New York and Chicago federal reserve rediscount rates, making a return to normalcy after nearly two years of credit stringency. The effect upon building and construction should be at once favorable, although considerable difference of opinion exists as to how much business as a whole will be immediately influenced.

The most unsettling developments of the week were abrupt declines in the wheat and cotton markets, carrying futures to the lowest levels of the season, cotton futures have declined during the past three weeks about $12 a bale.

Steel mill activity continued to gain, although not at the rapid rate of late January, when consumers who had permitted stocks to decline to abnormally low levels were faced with shortages and forced suddenly to resume buying. Operations are now estimated at about 77 per cent. of mill capacity, compared to 80 per cent. a year ago. Several motor manufacturers reported increasing production, although for the most part cautious continued to dominate the industry, pending more definite indications of the spring market.

Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended January 25, failed to reflect the improvement in certain of the heavy industries during the past fortnight. A small gain over the previous week, due to larger movement of coal, was shown, but the total remained considerably below the levels of the past two years.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(P)—The Morris & Essex Railway company, subsidiary of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, is offering tomorrow $25,000,000 construction bonds guaranteed by the parent company. Of the total, $15,000,000 is in 4 1-2s, priced at 96 1-2, and the remainder in 5s at 103 1-2. The bonds, maturing Nov. 1, 1955, were originally issued to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western.

One of the first large offerings of capital stock to be placed upon the market since the crash of last fall will be made tomorrow when a syndicate, headed by the National City Co., will offer 140,000 American shares of the General Italian Edison Electric Corp. The stock, which represents ordinary shares of capital stock, will be offered at $44 a share and yielding about 6 per cent. Application is to be made to list the shares on the New York stock exchange.

The American Department Stores Corp., operating 17 retail department stores in various parts of the country, reduced its merchandising inventories 50 per cent. during the fiscal year which closed Jan. 31, 1930.

The Jantzen Knitting Mills has purchased six and one-half acres of land in London, upon which it will establish a factory to supply the European markets with the company's products.

"A moderate recovery is taking place in the steel, automobile, building and other basic industries, but it is too early to say that general business will be back to normal or above in a few weeks," says the business review of the current issue of the American Bankers' Association Journal. "If the recovery is forced there is danger of a secondary reaction," the review adds. "What appears necessary is the avoidance of false starts, and a gradual, but genuine acceleration up to reasonable speed and volume."

WESTERLY

WADDELL RESTAURANT BURNED WITH $2,500 LOSS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 9.—Shortly after midnight, Saturday, a fire was discovered in the restaurant of Fred Waddell, in the one-story frame building owned by James Cafone, adjoining his home, and which was totally destroyed. The firemen kept the flames confined to the building where they started. The fire is supposed to have started inside the restaurant from a cause yet undetermined. The blaze was first seen by the Bradford New Haven railroad towerman, George Shawn, who gave the alarm. The whistle on the mill plant of the Bradford Dyeing Association was blown and word was telephoned to Westerly.

The Ahrens-Fox motor pumper of the Westerly Fire district with a force of firemen and Assistant Engineers Robert Bonner and Columbus Pasetti, made a quick run to Bradford, but the building was a mass of flame and beyond saving when the firemen arrived. Ladders were placed on the roof of the adjoining Cafone residence, in which the stucco construction saved it from being set fire, while firemen cared for a few sparks which fell upon the roof.

Firemen from the Bradford plant laid over a quarter of a mile of hose from a mill hydrant, at the junction of Bowling lane and Main street, on which the restaurant was located, obliquely across the street from the post office, which in first reports to reach Westerly, was said to be in danger. Cold weather delayed the use of the Bradford hydrant and only the booster tank of the Westerly pumper was used. Constable Elmer Lanphear took care of traffic on Main street while the firemen were engaged in fighting the fire.

The restaurant had been refurnished and doing business but a short time. The destruction caused a loss of nearly $3,500. There were reports Sunday that suspicious acting strangers were seen in the neighborhood of the burned building about midnight, the fire having started some time after it had been closed for the night.

HECTOR TURNBULL GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY AND GIFT

A farewell party was tendered Hector Turnbull, an employe of the Canadian National Railway, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and former Main street resident and well known Westerly machinist and plumber, at Caledonian hall, Saturday night. The hosts of the evening were the members of the Westerly Highland Pipe band, in which Mr. Turnbull was a piper. Nealy 50 friends gathered to give him a rousing send-off.

Pipe Major Thomas Broadfoot presided at the festivities which included the serving of refreshments, a program of selections by members of the Pipers' band, a story-tellers' hour and a general good time. Preceding the formal program a fountain pen was presented Mr. Turnbull as a remembrance from his Westerly associates to take to his new Canadian home. To his new home in the Canadian midwest with him will go his mother, Mrs. Annie Turnbull, widow of Peter Turnbull, who has resided at 10 Main street. They plan to be at their new home by the end of the present week. Mr. Turnbull having returned to Westerly to close up business matters here, after being in the Canadian province for nearly a year. He is a member of the Canadian Militia, also of the Canadian National Railways' Pipe band.

Word received by Westerly friends and relatives from John Smith, now on a motor trip with Mr. and Mrs. William H. Goodgeon, to California, and a tour of the Pacific coast, reports the party as in San Antonio, Texas, the past week. So far on the motor trip which began from Westerly several weeks ago much rainy weather has been encountered. While enjoying the trip very much thus far, they are looking forward to delightfully pleasant weather for which they have heard California is famous.

Returned Sunday was a Maxwell coach, owned by William Greig of 193 High street, taken Saturday night from in front of the Industrial school on Union street. It was recovered by the state police of Wickford barracks.

Officer Paul McCarthy received the information Sunday morning that the car was found abandoned on the Tower Hill road. The car was parked on Union street at about 7.15 o'clock Saturday night and was stolen some time between that hour and 10 o'clock. The owner reported his car missing to Lieut. George H. Champlin.

Saturday night Arthur Cody of Anguilla, left his Chrysler coupe on the West Side with the engine running, and when he came out of a store after being gone but a few minutes, found the car missing. Officer A. R. Sheldon reported Sunday that the machine had not been recovered. It carries the registration number Conn. 5002.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The News Is Spread Far and Wide

'Tis strange how fast some news can spread,
Especially that one is dead.
—Blacky the Crow.

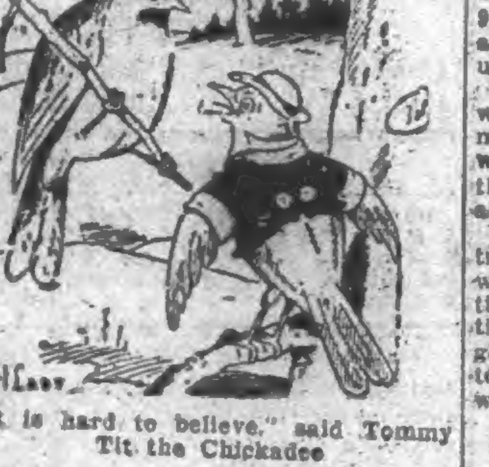
Blacky the Crow was dead. Everybody said so. He had been caught and eaten by Hooty the Owl. Everybody said so. But if you had asked any one of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows—that is, any one but Chatterer the Red Squirrel—you would have been told simply that everybody said Blacky was dead, so it must be so. That is the way that rumor becomes accepted as fact.

It is astonishing how fast such news travels. In no time at all it had spread all through the Green Forest, all through the Old Orchard and all over the Green Meadows. Peter Rabbit heard it over in the dear Old Briar-patch.

Peter shook his head sorrowfully. "We shall miss Blacky," said he.

"Huh!" exclaimed little Mrs. Peter. "It will be a good miss. I never did like that fellow. His eyes were too sharp. He knew too much. He was all the time making trouble for other people."

"That may be so, that may be so," replied Peter, "but just the same he did other people a great many good turns. Many times he gave me warning of an enemy. I guess I have owed my life to Blacky more than once."



"It is hard to believe," said Tommy Tit the Chickadee

"You wouldn't have if you had stayed at home in the dear Old Briar-patch where you belonged," replied little Mrs. Peter rather sharply.

Over in the Old Orchard the feathered folk could think of nothing but the news that Blacky was dead. "It is hard to believe," said Tommy Tit the Chickadee. "It doesn't seem possible that any one as smart as Blacky the Crow could be caught by Hooty the Owl."

"I've heard say that he used to steal eggs from the nests of birds not wise enough to build in holes in trees or in bird-houses," said Yank-Yank the Nuthatch. "I know that Welcome Robin never had any use for him. I've even heard that Blacky was known to take baby birds."

"Well," replied Tommy Tit, "it isn't wise to believe everything you hear. Sometimes I wonder if Blacky wasn't blamed for many things he didn't do. Who saw Blacky killed anyway?"

"I understand it was my cousin Chatterer the Red Squirrel," said Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel. "I heard it myself from Sammy Jay and you know Sammy is Blacky's cousin."

Just then Sammy Jay arrived. "Is it true?" cried Tommy Tit and Yank-Yank and Happy Jack together, "is it true that your cousin Blacky the Crow has been killed and eaten by Hooty the Owl?"

Sammy Jay looked as solemn as it was possible for him to with that pert cap he wears. "I'm afraid it is," said he. "Chatterer the Red Squirrel told me about it and I went over to the tree where Blacky's old nest is. Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty were sitting in that tree, and scattered all around below were black feathers. They were Crow feathers. There was no doubt about that. I am afraid that my cousin Blacky the Crow is no more. He and I didn't get along together very well, but I guess that was my fault as much as his. I shall miss him. I shall, indeed. The Green Forest will not seem quite the same place without my cousin Blacky the Crow. And to think that he should have been caught by Hooty the Owl! Dear me, dear me! It is rather a disgrace, don't you think, to be caught by Hooty the Owl in broad daylight?"

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Little Samaritan

I've entered every gateway,
I've knocked at every door,
I've never found a dog so hard
To give away before!

I've asked at every household,
As kindly as I could:
"Please, don't you want a little dog?
He's ugly, but he's good!"

His tail's a wee bit crooked,
One ear is bitten through,
His legs are short, which should be long,
He's lean and shaggy, too.

They would not let me keep him
Though I begged with all my might;
But if I leave him homeless
I cannot sleep tonight.

No, sir! I am not crying.
The wind is cold today.
But won't you take a little dog?
I'm giving him away!

You've got two dogs already,
But another one might do?
Oh, Mister! Never was a man
So wonderful as you!

Just put him in your wagon
And take him to your farm;
Tonight I'll know he's sleeping
In shelter safe and warm.
—Eleanor Halbrook Zimmerman.
In Our Dumb Animals.

In the Bird-House

There's a bird which wears a blue
Brighter than the skies;
Gold he wears, and crimson, too;—
Like jewels are his eyes.

From what country can he come
And what paradise his home?

No land of which I ever heard
Is gay enough for such a bird;
And earth and heaven alike must rave
Seeing him prisoned in a cage!
—Eleanor Halbrook Zimmerman.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

My Trip to Rocky Point.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was one bright sunny morning in June that we started for Rocky Point about 8 o'clock. We had hired a large bus to take our class of twenty-six. It took about an hour to go. We arrived there at 9 o'clock. We parked the bus under a shady tree in a large field which was used for a parking place for cars.

My first amusement was the "whip" which I enjoyed very much. I went on many such amusements and at last I went to "penny land." At last it was time for dinner. The restaurant was a large pavilion near the water.

After dinner we renewed our task of trying the amusements. We rode and walked and took chances until it was time to start for home. It was a long tiresome drive and we were all glad to get home and have some supper and go to bed. We had a lovely time and I will not forget it for a while.

The Lark's Song.

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide-Awakes enjoy my story.

One day as Mary was going to work she heard somebody singing but didn't know who it was. She looked in front and in back of her, but saw nothing so she kept on walking. Not long after she heard it again and looked everywhere. At last she saw that it was a lark.

When she went home at night she saw it again but it was not singing. It had a broken wing. Mary took it home and nursed until it was well and then let it go. But it was always singing where Mary had first seen it.

In the Meadow

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I was in the meadow. I saw a sparrow in a tree. The sparrow was singing a song. I was picking flowers with my sister. The name of the flowers were daffodils. They smelled nice. So I took them to my mother. My mother liked them.

At Plymouth.

Dear Uncle Jed: One year ago last summer I went to Duxbury with my aunt, uncle and cousin. About every day we went in bathing.

One day we decided to go to Plymouth rock on which the Pilgrims Plymouth bay and it was a long ride.

While I was there I saw the Plymouth rock on which the Pilgrims landed. I saw statues and big boats. We stayed there all day and then we went back to Duxbury. We stayed in Duxbury two weeks. I had a very nice time. We came home on a train. It was the first time I was on one.

My Chickens.

Dear Uncle Jed: This fall when school started the eighth grade in our school subscribed for the Current Events. It costs 25 cents for September to February and 25 cents from February to June. Also we subscribed for the loose leaf Current Events Topics and besides the paper we get maps, tests and covers for the papers.

I will tell you about my chickens. I live on a farm on 16 acres. I have nine chickens and one hen. Last fall my hen went away and I never saw her for two or three days and when I did find her she had 13 eggs under her. I left her alone and she hatched out nine chickens, three roosters and six pullets and I have not lost any.

Sewing in School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing a letter to tell you about our sewing in school. Our teacher gave us two yards of white cloth. We cut out a face shaped like a large egg and drew two eyes, a nose and mouth on it with a pencil. Then we embroidered them with colored thread. We sewed the face to the back made of colored cloth and stuffed them with cotton. The legs were made of stockings and stuffed, then sewed on. These are Humpty Dumpty pillows.

Next we made dish cloths. Our teacher drew a design on them; we hemmed edges and then embroidered the design. They are very attractive.

What We Did at School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you what we did at school for humane and health week. For humane work all classes made different posters of cut or drawn animals and mottoes, such as this, a picture of a horse saying, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," and others of that nature.

For health work all classes made posters on how to keep healthy by eating proper foods and keeping clean. One attractive one was a picture of a basket of fruit with an appropriate motto, another was a boy taking a bath and a girl brushing her teeth, etc. I hope you will like this letter.

On Duty.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was midnight on a very dark windy, scary night that I awoke suddenly and sat up in bed feeling very frightened.

What made me do this I soon found out for going to an open window I heard a noise. I listened more carefully and found out that it was a voice very faint saying, "Help," "help!" and another echo, "Help!" "help!" then died away.

I became very excited and frightened, but thought, perhaps, some one is dying or suffering and needs my aid. If they do I'll help them. So dressing quickly and quietly, I stole downstairs, took a searchlight opened the door and walked out into the night with no house close by.

I did not have to walk far before I say a sight that made me turn around and run home as fast as I could.

What made me do this was because on going to see the injured person I saw a car in the ditch with two men lying beside it. At just glancing at the men I knew they were burglars.

Again I was in the house and found myself telling the cops my story over the telephone.

"They'll be right over," said they.

Soon I was talking to the cops in the road and showing them the men.

"Hm! Hum! they did just as I thought," said a stout cop, "and it's good they did. These rascals have robbed three banks and about five rich

I had just returned home and just completed telling my story to every one in the house when there came a loud knock.

I went to the door and saw the same cop. He handed me a check and said, "Here's your reward."

I thanked him, closed the door and looked at the check which said $500.

Valentine Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time that I am writing to you. I always enjoy reading the stories which other girls and boys write to you. Now all boys and girls are sending valentines to each other. I thought that I would write to you and tell you just what Valentine day means. Valentine day or its right name, St. Valentine's day, is the 14th of February. People send valentines or presents then. One of the first kinds of valentine was a funny colored picture of a man or woman. A few funny verses were written below. More recently the print is of an artistic or sentimental kind and even extends to the form of a book.

St. Valentine was a holy man in Rome about the year 220.

I hope that this letter will be interesting to the Wide-Awake readers and that they will now know the real meaning of Valentine's day.

Our Little Chickens.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about "A Mother Hen With Her Babies."

A few weeks ago my mother set a hen on eggs. Three weeks later on a Sunday my mother said she had a surprise for me and that she would show me later what it was.

I, of course, was greatly wondering what it was. A little while later she showed me what the surprise was. It was baby chicks. As soon as the mother hen had all the chicks hatched out my mother took a big box and as it is too cold for them outdoors she put the mother hen and her babies in the box.

Looking on them was more than I could bear if I didn't touch them. My mother told me not to for the hen would peck me. But I really could not resist not to touch the fluffy little things, but when I touched them what a peck I got from their mother. "I'll surely say I don't want any more pecks like that!"

My mother is not afraid of the hen but I am. Now I am afraid to touch the "fluffies" as I call them and only touch them when my mother lets me hold them (she gives them to me).

I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy reading a "chick" story as much as I enjoy watching them.

MAE METZENDORF, Age 9.

The Cat and the Canary.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a cat. His name is Buttons. When we first had him he tried to catch the canary. My mother caught him at it one day and she slapped him on the nose. He ran for the cellar door. Now he does not do it any more. He sits on a chair and watches the canary eat. When my mother cleans the canary cage the cat runs under the stove because he is afraid he will get hit. My mother does not want to part with either one of them so she has a job watching them.

My Ocean Voyage.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and I hope it will be interesting to the members of the Wide-Awake Circle. I am going to tell you of my "Trip from Europe." I sailed from Greenock, Scotland, at 1 o'clock and at midnight we were in Moville, Ireland. We stopped there a few hours and many Irish passengers came aboard. In the morning I was seasick and could not go up on the deck. On the third day I was better and I went for a walk around the boat. I saw many icebergs and whales away out in the ocean. On the sixth night I saw a steamer away out in the sea and it was all lit up. It was very pretty to see. I was told that it had come from Liverpool. We arrived in New York on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock and at 1 o'clock the other steamer from Liverpool came in so we had won the race. We sailed on a Saturday and landed on a Sunday.

SUSAN LYNAS, Age 11.

Very Unusual.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. Bills and papers were advertising the great circus until the day came. People were rushing here and there, reaching for tickets, spending loosely, buying things and amidst them were little Tommy and his mother looking at different kinds of animals. Tommy's mother was standing near the monkeys when suddenly there came frightful cries from people below. They were rushing, pushing and screaming until the words were heard by Tommy's mother, "the lion is loose!" She turned at once to grab her son but he was gone. She ran here and there looking for him, when suddenly she saw him in the arms of the circus owner a safe distance from the struggling lion who the tamer had captured.

CHARLOTTE SPAULDING, Age 12.

Only a Dream.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you a story about what I call an unusual happening.

One night as I was sitting in the parlor I heard a horn. I went to the window to see who it was. It was my uncle. I went out to the front gate and he asked me if I wanted a ride. I replied, "Yes." I climbed into the car and away we went. After a few minutes he asked me if I was in a hurry. I said, "No." After he asked me if I wanted to drive. I said I would. I drove a few yards when bang and a crash the car bumped into a tree. I fell out and to my astonishment I found it was only a dream.

JOSEPHINE BAGGER, Age 11.

Made Dish Cloths.

Dear Uncle Jed: The teacher bought some dish toweling and we older girls made some dish cloths and embroidered some pretty designs on them. We made some health and humane posters and some of them are very attractive.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Atlantic Coast Fisheries Company, New York City, and Groton, Conn.

In 1927 the Atlantic Coast Fisheries corporation decided to establish a plant for the production of packaged frozen fish on the site of the old Groton Iron Works in Groton.

The fisheries are as old as man, but little was accomplished in the preservation or merchandising of this popular food until the period following the great war.

From a total production of 100,000 pounds of packaged Nordic fillets in 1926 to 20 million pounds of this product in 1929, is the record of a company that has changed the fishing industry from a "round fish" proposition to a "packaged foods" business.

The secret of the success of this company lies in its economic quick freezing methods and in its discovery of the reasons why fish products discolor and lose weight in freezing. The "Taylor" process, which is the basic principle on which this company is now operating, has solved the problem mentioned above, and today, this company ships from Groton, in its own cars, fishery products caught by its own boats and processed in its own plants to 95 cities in 36 states of this country; including every large city on the Pacific coast as well as many of the larger cities in the south.

Connecticut produced fish is successfully competing 3,000 miles away with locally caught products, and the growth of Groton, where capacity has been tripled in two years, attests to the popularity of this packaged foods product.

The present officers are: F. W. Bryce; C. L. Guyman, vice president; Harden F. Taylor, vice president; A. H. Cooke, vice president; John Graham, vice president.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

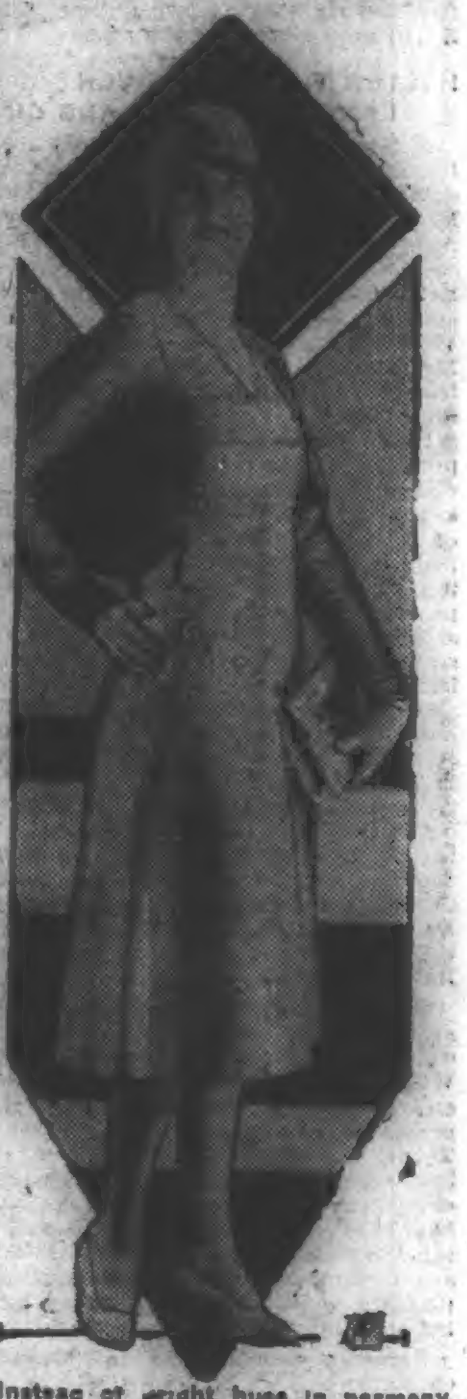
GRAY FOR SPRING



Instead of bright hues in harmony with the coming season, this costume strikes a natural note. Hat, tweed dress and shoes are all in gray.

In the jumble of Pittsburg traffic an excited chap suddenly jumped from his car, which he left blockading everything, and while startled pedestrians stopped to stare ran up to a passing street car and rapped frantically on a window. The man in the car turned his head. "A boy!" the maniac in the street yelled joyfully, trailing the car, indifferent to danger. "Eight pounds and fourteen ounces!"

SAFE-CRACKER AT SCHWARTZ STORE, NEW LONDON, GETS AWAY WITH $1,000

NEW LONDON, Feb. 9.— A safe-cracker operated here early tonight. The store of the Schwartz Furniture company, 131 Bank street, was entered and over $1000 in cash taken from the safe, which was forced by the cracking of the combination. The crook was discovered by the janitor of the building sorting the contents of the safe and leaving the building in the same manner by which he entered, the burglar ran to Bank street, entered the Star Rooming house at 147, where he ascended the first floor, then going out on a roof of an adjoining building whence he dropped to the ground and made his escape by running through Pearl street.

The burglary was committed prior to 7:30 for shortly after that hour, Louis Bernstein, janitor, entered the store for the purpose of attending to the furnace. He surprised the crook selecting the cash that had been taken from the safe. Seizing the money, the thief dashed to a side window and as he was pulling his body through the opening, Bernstein attacked him with a chair, striking the crook across the legs. The thief jumped to the alleyway and then ran to the street and into the rooming house. Bernstein also ran to the street and yelled for the police. Patrolman Carlos Stone was nearby and running to the store, Bernstein told of his discovery of the crook in the store. A telephone message to police headquarters caused Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh, Sergeant Patrick Murphy, Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolmen Lawrence Pardy and Clarence Wells to speed to the store. A search for the crook was not rewarded with success, though the rooming house was searched as were lofts and buildings in the rear of the furniture store and in the neighborhood.

An inspection of the store revealed that the safe had been forced by smashing the combination with a heavy hammer. The boxes were removed, including the one containing the cash and checks. These were taken to midway of the store and the crook being protected by a screen, hastily searched for the cash, as he was doing when Bernstein appeared through the front entrance. The crook had kept open the window which had been forced and he slid through it and made his escape.

The burglar was described by Bernstein as being about five feet, six inches in height, of slight build and wore a gray hat and coat.

In making his escape the crook left the hammer and a heavy screw driver. That he was well acquainted with the layout of the store and his avenue of escape there is not the slightest doubt, for he knew enough to run to the rooming house entrance and continue through the hall to a rear door leading to the roof, where a ladder stands, enabling him to make a fast get-away.

Louis and Joseph Schwartz, proprietors of the business, reached the store soon after the robbery was discovered and made an inspection of the contents of the safe that were strewn about the floor. Checks, money orders, insurance policies, stocks, etc., with the exception of one policy, were accounted for, it being apparent that the crook was after money only.

The officer ascertained the identity of the boys and they were arrested. All of the youths are minors and the boy who did the actual driving of the car was delivered into the custody of his father and will be tried in the juvenile court next week. The attitude of Perry in making a charge against Lyons was the result of the automobiles the men were driving on Bank street, near Tilley colliding, Perry declaring that Lyons speeded away from the site of the accident without stopping to determine the extent of damage caused.

FIND A LITTLE LIQUOR AT BELDEN ST. PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 9—The police conducted a series of liquor raids Saturday afternoon and night but in only one instance were the officers successful in obtaining evidence of violation of the law. Three of the houses visited and from which two out of town stool pigeons declared that they had purchased liquor by the drink, but not by the bottle, did not disclose liquor of any form. These houses are located on Elizabeth and Goshen streets and a thorough search failed utterly, excepting that a partially filled bottle containing beer was revealed in one house. The place visited Saturday night and which resulted in liquor being found is at 44 Belden street, where William Douglass, a laborer, resides. The raiding force, consisting of Automobile Patrol Officers Augustus Ray and Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Walter O'Neill and George McCaskey, found a bottle of whiskey and a case of beer. Douglass was arrested and later released on furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,500. He will be in the police court tomorrow. Douglass has not been arrested before.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

To judge by the throngs that have filled the Palace since "The Bishop Murder Case" opened on Saturday, the film version of this great detective mystery is one of the most exciting and entertaining pictures that has yet been thrown upon the screen. Fresh from the pen of S. S. Van Dine, it introduces the master detective, Philo Vance, to a Norwich audience, along with all the weird thrills and horrors of a great mystery of blood-curdling dimensions.

There is not a prosaic moment in this flesh-creeping tale of murder by Mother Goose rhymes. Here in a nutshell, is the story:

Philo Vance, the scientific detective, is called in when Joseph Cochrane Robin is found dead with an arrow in his heart, and with a note couched in nursery rhyme stuck in the post box of Professor Dillard, signed "The Bishop." Suspected in turn are Sperling, a friend of the family; Arnesson, lover of Belle Dillard and scientific associate of the professor; Drukker, a neighbor, and Pardee, a chess expert.

A second murder occurs shortly. Johnny Sprigg is murdered en route to keep an appointment with Belle, whom he has written that he has an important clue. A black bishop from a chess set is laid in his hands. At about the same time a black bishop is dropped as a warning before the door of Mrs. Drukker, whose sickroom overlooked the archery range where Robin was murdered. Later, Drukker is killed in the park, and Mrs. Drukker dies in her room frm heart failure, after a desk had been ransacked for scientific notes written by her son. In both cases jeering notes and black bishops were left.

Arnesson had a perfect alibi for murder number one, but suspicion begins to fasten on him; also upon Pardee. One night, however, Pardee is found dead over his chess table, with a black bishop perched on a fantastic house of cards.

Just when the chase seems hopeless Philo Vance suddenly makes a hurried trip back to to the Dillard house. In a series of sequences leading to the denouncement the onlooker is carried forward to the final dramatic unveiling of the murderer.

All in all here is an exciting whirl which you would travel far to find an equal for. It is beautifully filmed, in fact thrillingly filmed, and its cast is an exceptional one, including as it does, Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Roland Young, and a dozen other well-known stars of the stage and screen. Whether you have read S. S. Van Dine or not, you cannot afford to miss the experience of seeing this great picture.

Broadway Theatre.

Among the popular slang expressions that have sprung up in the past few years is the word "kibitzer," which has as many popular meanings as a dog has fleas, chief among which, however, is another slang word, "buttinsky." Now Ike Lazarus, modest, retiring (sometimes!), a good neighbor, a canny business man, was a born kibitzer, and the thrilling story of his life and his neighbors, forms the theme of one of the ten best all-talking pictures of the current season, and properly named "The Kibitzer." Harry Green, well known Hebrew dialect comedian, scored heavily with the Saturday and Sunday audiences, in the title role of the picture, and furnished over an hour of hearty laughs, with just an occasional bit of pathos or thrilling drama, to give spice to the comedy. Mary Brian as his daughter. Neil Hamilton, and David Newell head a long cast of favorites in this intensely human story of the little East Side cigar-dealer, who kibitized from morning to night, to the despair but eventual delight of his friends. On the same bill Buster and Johnny West, with a flock of cabaret cuties, offer a hectic side-splitter, "The Dancing Gob," Bobbie Arnst and Peggy Ell have a clever singing, dancing and piano skit, Lang and Healy have a terrible time determining "Who's Who," and Horace Heidt and His Californians present a big orchestra novelty, with 14 clever musicians, everyone also a singer and dancer, and with Lobo, the handsome police dog, leading the capers. The latest Paramount Sound news completes the bill, which is Program "C" in the Broadway's Greater Entertainment month gold award contest. At the request of many patrons, Amos 'n Andy are presented every evening over the Grebe radio through the courtesy of the Hanover-Curland Co.

Breed Theatre.

Marion Davies marches right into new triumphs in her first all-talking feature, "Marianne," which opened Saturday at the Breed theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

Playing her entire role in French and dialect dialogue, the vivacious comedienne negotiates an exceptionally difficult characterization and finds time to sing and dance and clown in the lighter moments of the picture.

Lawrence Gray, who plays the doughboy role opposite Miss Davies, scores with her in the singing love scenes, bringing to the screen a sweetly lyrical voice of surprising charm. Miss Davies' voice is one of natural quality and records splendidly, both in the spoken and song sequences.

Of course Cliff Edwards couldn't be in the picture without his famous uke and he supplies several tuneful and gay numbers in his comedy-relief role.

Tonight and every Monday night hereafter will be known as "personal night." Every lady attending "personal nights" will receive free a piece of "personal beauty ware." By attending regularly every week each lady will soon have a complete set of the beautiful sea-green pearl personal beauty outfit, a sample set of which is now on display in the Terminal restaurant window, at Franklin Square.

DEAD WOMAN APPARENTLY HAD BEEN "TAKEN FOR A RIDE"

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9—(AP)—The body of Mrs. Billie Payne, 33, was found early today on the Long Beach-Los Angeles highway, and police said the woman apparently had been "taken for a ride" by enemies who beat her to death and threw her body from an automobile.

Price E. Payne, a concessionaire of Long Beach, estranged husband of the woman, was arrested for questioning. He told police he had not seen his wife recently. Payne said they were married last August 2 and they separated 17 days later after, he learned of her friendship with a San Francisco man whom he believed to be a rum runner.

An investigation disclosed that parts of the woman's clothing and jewelry had been scattered along the road for a quarter of a mile. One arm had been torn from the body and the skull was fractured.

The woman's father, William T. Key said he believed she had been "taken for a ride" because he was aware his daughter knew of the activities of a group of rum runners.

Airplane passenger travel on the Pacific coast has increased approximately 400 per cent the last three years.

ON WITH THE DANCE

A True Story of the Younger Set

THE Friday evening dancing party was the week's high spot for the young folks of a certain small country club. A four-piece orchestra always supplied the rhythm until older members conceived the idea that mechanical music would serve the youngsters just as well—and cost less.

Accordingly, a music machine was installed. The plan worked once, but the next Friday the little band triumphantly returned to the job.

"What's wrong with your new music box?" a father asked. "Wouldn't you rather dance to Whiteman and Vallee records than to a tin-pan band?"

Junior shook his head:

"Mechanical music is fine at home but it hasn't the right kick for a dance."

What is true of dancing must be equally true of the theatre. Are YOU getting YOUR money's worth in the theatre?

Many of the local unemployed have received work for the past few days through cutting ice. Kramer Brothers have been cutting ice at their Blissville pond, while the Bates Co. has been harvesting ice in its Preston ice shed. Reports are that the ice ranges from 8 to 10 inches in thickness and is clear and free from snow. Many local people journeyed Sunday by trolley to the West Side to see the ice harvesting at the Ford's pond.

Among former resident priests who attended the committal service of Rev. William A. Keefe at Waterbury was Rev. Peter J. Cuney, formerly of St. Patrick's church.

UNERAL SERVICES OF REV. W. A. KEEFE ATTENDED BY THRONG OF MOURNERS

Saturday morning in St. Mary's Memorial church, which was erected under his leadership when pastor of St. Mary's parish, the funeral of Rev. William A. Keefe was held with services of impressive solemnity which were attended by several thousand men, women and children from all walks of life in the city. The church was crowded to capacity, while many who were unable to gain entrance stood outside at the steps at the front and side entrances during the two hours which were occupied by the services. Priests of the Catholic church from Connecticut and adjoining states joined with the city's civic, industrial and fraternal leaders and with Father Keefe's parishoners in twice filling the church for two masses, one at 8 o'clock for the children and the other at 10 o'clock for the adults.

The body of Father Keefe, clad in his purple vestments, had lain in state at the church since 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, when it was borne from the rectory to the church by the faithful workers of the church, John Gahagan, Patrick Sullivan, William Bowen, Daniel Driscoll, John Sullivan, Michael Finnegan and James Murphy. The sorrowful procession passed through several hundred of the children of the parish that lined from the entrance of the rectory to the main entrance of the church. Heading the procession was an acolyte carrying the crucifix with a score of the visiting and local priests of the nearby parishes. As the casket passed through the double line the children followed into the church where they were seated in the centre aisle. They were later allowed to take leave and view their departed pastor and upon their return were led in the saying of the rosary as a unit.

Members of Rev. Daniel Mullen assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, constituted the guard of honor while the body lay in state, serving from 4 o'clock Friday afternoon to 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the following order: 4 to 7 o'clock, Thomas H. Beckley, George H. Dolan, William McKnight, Jeremiah Fitzgerald, William Murphy and Patrick Barry; 7 to 10, Frank R. Murphy, Louis Combies, John Conway, Frank T. Bellerose in chanting the litany of the dead.

Rev. Father McCabe dwelt upon the activities of the deceased pastor as a shepherd of his fold, speaking of the erection of St. Mary's Memorial church, of his eloquence and magnetism as an orator, of his successful pastorates in Voluntown, Plainfield and at St. Mary's church. He closed by expressing the deepest sympathy for the relatives of the deceased pastor and all those whose lives he had touched through his school and college courses here and abroad.

Assisting as altar boys during the mass were Joseph Cummings Jr., and Cornelius Downes. The Missa de Profundis from the vatican edition of the Grandual was rendered by the senior choir of the church composed of 25 voices under the direction of Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, organist. The following was the musical program: Kyrie, Nicholas J. Spellman; offertory, Pie Jesu by Leybach, Edward T. Connelly; Sanctus, chorus; Agnes Dei, Nicholas J. Spellman.

With the conclusion of the mass while the parishioners were taking their final leave of their beloved pastor the choir sang, "Mother Dear, O Pray For Me," a hymn known to be very dear to Father Keefe. Following the mass which was brought to a close about noon the visiting clergy had lunch at the Wauregan hotel, and the members of the immediate family were served at the rectory by the women of the parish.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the funeral cortege, escorted by a squad of state policemen from the Groton barracks, moved out of the city to Waterbury where burial took place at 5 o'clock at the new St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev. Richard P. Morrissey of Union City read the closing prayers for the deceased priest. At the grave there was attendance of Waterbury and Naugatuck friends of Father Keefe, also twelve priests were present at the committal among whom were Rev. Frederick M. To the relatives have come also many spiritual bouquets, that is, pledges from parishioners and friends of arrangements for the offering of the holy sacrifice of the mass for the repose of his soul, in churches, at shrines and in mission stations at various points, so as to keep the revered pastor in affectionate remembrance for almost an unlimited period. Donors of these included among others the parish trustees, collectors and sexton.

FINED IN COURT FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

At the city court session Saturday morning, Stanley Grobofski, of No. 46 Canal street, Jewett City, was fined $200 and costs on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He entered a plea of guilty to the charge. Grobofski and Michael Jennet, 18, also of Jewett City, were riding in Grobofski's machine Friday night when it ran head-on into a trolley car at Taftville. Both were taken to the W. W. Backus hospital immediately after the crash. State Police Officers Whitmarsh and Murphy were raiding a speakeasy near the scene of the crash and went to the accident to conduct an investigation. They learned that the two men had been taken to the hospital.

A jug of alcohol, with cherries, was found in Grobofski's Ford machine, which was badly smashed. Learning of Grobofski's condition while he was driving the machine, the state police arrested him. Jennet, who was also arrested, remained at the hospital over night. The latter was charged with intoxication, entered a plea of guilty and was fined $5 and costs.

BELTON A. COPP'S ESTATE NOT SO LARGE AS CLAIMED

The statement in the New London news during the week that the late Belton A. Copp, of Groton had left an estate of about $2,500,000 was misleading. Mr. Copp's estate was evidently confused with that of another man prominent in New London affairs, who died recently. While he had accumulated a substantial amount for a banking man of New London, it is denied that Mr. Copp left anything like the figure of the estate credited to him.

Later in the evening, new clubrooms were officially opened on the first floor of the Ponemah Community building. F. B. NORWICH TOWN

LINCOLN SUNDAY EXERCISES— PAGEANTS AT M. E. CHURCH

Sunday evening in Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church the Boy Scouts of Troop 2 connected with the church, put on two flag pageants, under the direction of their Scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. The first was "The Story of Old Glory." The pageant opened with the playing of assembly by Bugler Edward Jordan. Beginning with the English flag brought over by the early colonists, all the flags used by the new nation were shown. A scout bearing each flag came to the altar rail where he told briefly the story of his flag. A spirited march was played by the organist, Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, during the pageant. Ralph Smith had charge of the spotlight. The flags were loaned by the Elks' club. The second pageant was "Scouts of the Nations." As the organist played the national anthem of each country, a scout bearing the flag of that country came marching around the church and down the center aisle to the altar where he took his place. He told of the number of Boy Scouts in the country he represented. At the conclusion of the pageant, as Old Glory floated above all other flags, the congregation arose and joined the scouts in singing "The Star Spangled Banner." The following scouts represented the countries named: Earl Robinson, Argentine republic; Robert Brown, Great Britain; Frederick Ross, Belgium; Clayton Rose, France; Edward Manning, (Troop 12), Holland; Edward Eccleston, Poland; Edward Gallagher, Sweden; Harry Turner, (Troop 12) Switzerland; John Laskowski, Italy; Edward Jordan, Germany; Leon Ladd, United States. The pastor gave a brief address on the value of Boy Scout work. The scouts repeated the Boy Scout oath and laws in the opening part of the service and the scout benediction at the close of the service. They stood at salute while Bugler Edward Jordan played Taps. Several stereopticon slides were shown during the service, Ralph Smith operating the machine. There was a large congregation at this service.

At the morning service the pastor spoke on "The American Negro in the Kingdom of God." He took for his text St. Luke 6:20-22. "And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed be ye poor; for yours is the kingdom of God. Blessed are ye that hunger now; for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now; for ye shall laugh. Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake." It being Lincoln Sunday (Race Relations Sunday) the pastor talked of the wonderful advance made by the colored race since the Civil war. The Junior choir, under direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang an anthem. "I Will Extol Him." There was a congregation of 75 at the morning service.

One of the most interesting talks heard in the C. E. this year was given Sunday evening by the leader, Izetta Dilettz on "How to Study the Bible."

At the meeting of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with the M. E. church Friday evening, there was an attendance of 15. Leon Ladd was chosen patrol leader of the Wolf patrol to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Wallace Wagner, who is attending Mt. Hermon school. DRY LAW INDICTMENT OF THE FLEISCHMAN YEAST CO.

Corn Products Refining Company Also Involved—They Are Charged With the Production of Large Quantities of Illicit Sugar Alcohol—In Chicago 155 Persons and 31 Firms Were Indicted For Dry Law Conspiracy—The Indictment Sets Forth 287 Overt Acts In Violation of the Dry Laws.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Fleischman Yeast company and the Corn Products Refining company, two nationally known manufacturing concerns are charged with responsibility for production of large quantities of illicit sugar alcohol, in indictments returned by the federal grand jury here, it was learned today.

In 20 suppressed indictments, which alleged conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, the grand jury has charged the two companies with furnishing large shipments of yeast and corn sugar to illicit distillers in the southern part of the state, District Attorney Walter M. Provine announced.

Far reaching prosecution of other corn products and yeast companies in the mid-west, which are said to have conspired to violate dry laws by the sale of raw materials to distillers, was predicted by the district attorney, who indicated that other suppressed indictments naming Iowa and Indiana corporations have also been returned.

"For the past few years we have heard the cry to get the high-ups," Provine said. "This is our answer. When we are through with this case we will have a precedent for the treatment of firms who are charged with supplying materials for the manufacture of alcohol."

DRY LAW INDICTMENT OF 155 SETS FORTH 287 OVER ACTS

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—(AP)—One hundred and fifty-five persons and 31 firms in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, and numerous other large cities, were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of violating the national prohibition law by means of a conspiracy whose operations extended from coast to coast.

The indictment sets forth 287 overt acts in violation of the dry laws and gave as the basis for the conspiracy the illegal diversion of more than 1,000,000 gallons of government alcohol during the last seven years.

Other cities involved in the ramifications of the accused alcohol syndicate, described as the most extensively operated conspiracy yet uncovered by the government were Cleveland, St. Louis, Philadelphia, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Detroit, North Bergen and Newark, N. J.

All the firms indicted either are now or once were in business requiring the use of alcohol in the manufacture of toilet articles, perfumes, medicines and similar products to which the government gave permits for withdrawing the alcohol.

Others named were officers of the accused firms and persons connected with them.

District Attorney Johnson said 19 of the persons and firms indicted once held permits for withdrawing government alcohol, 14 of them still holding that right. Of these latter, five are located in New York, one in St. Paul and eight in Chicago.

Johnson said the conspiracy originated back in 1923 after Sebren was brought to the United States from Paris by Joubert Cie, a firm of New York perfume importers and manufacturers. The chemist had discovered a means of redistilling substandard alcohol to remove the impurities.

MOVE FOR SENATE PROBE OF VOLSTEAD ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(AP)—While preparations were going ahead for the first congressional hearing on proposals for modification for repeal of the prohibition law, Senator Wheeler of Montana introduced a resolution today for a thoroughgoing investigation of Volsted enforcement.

The house judiciary committee on Wednesday begins what is expected to be a protracted airing of the dry-wet controversy. The outlook is for the appearance of numerous prominent persons to testify with prohibition opponents being heard first. The first witnesses were named today.

Wheeler—who voted dry in Montana ten years ago—declared in the senate there was "a complete breakdown of prohibition enforcement." He was challenged by Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, with a reply that the dry law has been a "gratifying and tremendous success." The Texan sponsored the eighteenth amendment.

The Wheeler resolution, after this brief outburst, was referred to the judiciary committee, which the Montana senator had recommended make the inquiry. Chairman Norris, of this committee, said it would be considered at the regular meeting next Monday. There was no indication of the sentiment in the senate towards the proposal.

Chairman Graham, of the house judiciary committee, has said that all persons who want to appear at the prohibition hearings will be heard.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has named some of its most widely-known members to be called, including W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Samuel Harden Church, of Philadelphia, president of the Carnegie Institute; Pierre S. Dupont, chairman of the board of the E. I. Dupont de Nemours company; Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, Ppresident of the New York Academy of Medicine; Grayson M. P. Murphy, New York financier; Linsly R. Williams, director of the New York Academy of Medicine; and Frederick R. Coudert, New York lawyer. Henry H. Curran, president, and William H. Stayton, chairman of the board for the association, will be among the witnesses.

Other witnesses at the hearings will include Miss Louise Gross, of Harrison, New York, chairman of the Women's Moderation union; C. W. Crooker, of Boston, general counsel for the Liberal Civic league; Dr. F. W. Buck, of the Federal Dispensary and Tax Reduction league; Bernard McCabe, of Providence, Rhode Island; Dr. Frank Adams, of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Karl M. Chworowsky, of Elmhurst, Illinois.

MISSING NEWARK GIRL WAS FOUND IN BOSTON

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Lena Moretti, 16-year-old high school girl, was reported found in Boston late tonight when a telegram to Captain John A. Brady of the night detective bureau was received which read, "Lena Moretti arrested here as runaway."

The message was signed by Michael H. Crowley, superintendent of police, Boston.

The return of the girl, who left home to join a crew of magazine canvassers without the consent of her parents, will bring about an investigation into the workings of organizations who employ young girls in magazine sales work, it was stated tonight by Captain Brady.

Lena left home without telling her parents where she was going, and it was not until ten days later that they heard from her, when a letter postmarked Wheeling, W. Va., stated that she was working for a New York circulation concern.

CHICAGO POLICE TO ARREST AND RE-ARREST HOODLUMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Police cells tonight housed 60 persons of doubtful character of the 917 arrested by police over the week-end in answer to public demand to curb crime.

Of the total 569 were released because of no criminal record, 288 were arraigned in 12 municipal courts and released or taxed small fines on minor charges, 22 were held on continuances for action of the grand jury on charges of carrying concealed weapons, and the 60 still in the cells were being held without charges for further investigation. No gang leaders were arrested.

The police plan to arrest and re-arrest hoodlums until they decide Chicago police are too pestifferous to make residence here desirable—and tonight the "re-arrests" were awaited.

TIE VOTE IN SENATE ON DUTY ON BRICK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—By a tie vote of 36 to 36 the senate today defeated a democratic proposal to retain building brick on the free list. Until further action is taken, this leaves a duty of $1.25 a thousand on brick as carried in the bill.

OPPOSITION HALTS THE CONFIRMATION OF HUGHES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Opposition to the nomination of Charles Evans Hughes to be chief justice was expressed in the senate today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and a vote on confirmation went over until tomorrow after he had read a lengthy statement setting forth his objections.

Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, blocked the vote on confirmation. He later explained that he wanted first to receive a certificate from the physicians of William Howard Taft as to the condition of the former chief justice, whom he has urged be reappointed. Taft is ill abed.

Overwhelming support for Hughes, however, was believed to be indicated in the solid line-up of democrats on the judiciary committee earlier today for a favorable report on the nomination. That committee voted 10 to 2 to report the nomination to the senate, with Chairman Norris and Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, opposing. Six republicans and four democrats on the committee voted for the report.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Jacob H. Walters fas unanimously endorsed for reappointment as United States marshal for Connecticut by the judiciary committee of the senate at its meeting this forenoon.

This means that Walters will be confirmed by the senate at an early date, as no opposition is expected, since both sub-committee and full committee of judiciary recommended his appointment. This is a splendid tribute to Walters and his record as marshal through two administrations as he has served with great credit under Harding, Coolidge, and now will begin a term of service under Hoover, which is a record few marshals can equal.

WOMAN JUMPED FROM 8TH STORY OF BURNING BLDG.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—(AP)—While a crowd estimated at 5,000 looked on, Margaret Paine, 26, one of about 200 employes of seven different firms trapped on the upper floors of a burning building near the loop, leaped from the eighth story and was probably fatally injured late today when she struck the edge of a life net and fell into the street.

All the others escaped without serious injury.

A number of firemen and volunteers were unable to support the net under the impact of her body. Witnesses said her body struck a projection on the facade of the building on its way down. Her skull was fractured. Three men also leaped from the eighth floor into the net and suffered no more than minor bruises. Four men and four women found on the ledges of windows of the seventh floor were rescued by firemen, who had to use scaling ladders because their extension laders reached only to the sixth story.

At a hospital doctors said that Miss Paine, an employe of the Western Film company, probably would die.

SENSATIONAL SERIES OF DRY RAIDS IN KILLINGLY, PLAINFIELD AND THOMPSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 10.—A small battalion of law enforcement officers, including ten state police, ten deputy sheriffs and three constables, staged the most sensational series of raids in Killingly, Plainfield and Thompson early this evening that has ever been witnessed in Windham county since the beginning of the prohibition era ten years ago. Fourteen persons were involved in the raid and the majority of them are in the county jail at Brooklyn tonight in default of the highest bonds ever required in a prohibition case.

The whole jam appears to have been the result of under-cover work by secret agents that have been at work in this territory as has previously been published in the Danielson news within the past few days.

Bench warrants were issued by Judge Booth of the superior court understood to have been based on evidence secured through the state attorney's office, which office was represented in the raids made tonight by County Investigator Rowe Wheeler.

No such amount of bail ever before has been required in cases having to do with violations of the liquor laws. Bail requirements in some cases ran as high as $3,000 and in no case being less than $1,000.

In only a very few cases were any of those arrested able to furnish bail and the majority of them were languishing in the jail at Brooklyn tonight.

The majority of the arrests were made in the town of Killingly. Mr and Mrs. Wilfred LaPalme of Franklin street, Danielson, are both in jail, the husband in default of $2,000 bail and the wife lacking $1,000 to secure her liberty. Ernest Paquin of the Mashentuck district of the town, which is out in the woods, is in jail lacking a $3,000 bond. He is a previous offender. Walter Lis is another of

SUBMARINES THE GREATEST PROBLEM FOR CONFERENCE

At the Plenary Session Today the United States and Great Britain Will Declare For Abolition of the Submersible—France and Japan Will Oppose the Proposal—The U.S. and Great Britain Will Center Their Efforts On a Resolution to "Humanize Submarine Warfare."

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—While preparing to attack the submarine war at tomorrow's plenary session, the five power naval conference today continued "to make progress on all fronts," as Ramsay MacDonald put it.

The British prime minister thus paraphrased a familiar communique of World war days in his declaration to the house of commons on the state of London disarmament negotiations.

He referred for one thing to the progress on an important phase of conference work which for years has been a stumbling block to disarmament. It was practically completed today with a compromise of global and category tonnage theories worked out by committee experts and ready to be turned over to the chief delegates, who expect to receive it at 4:30 p. m., Wednesday.

The question of submarines overshadows all others on the eve of the plenary session wherein Great Britain and the United States will declare for abolition of under water craft. Italy probably will support their argument in principle against France and Japan.

The realization of French and Japanese opposition in the conference, where all decisions must be unanimous, renders tomorrow's efforts for abolition merely academic debate. Great Britain and the United States will center their efforts on a resolution to "humanize" submarine warfare, and Britain, with MacDonald as first spokesman, will have the opening shot in the discussion.

Mr. MacDonald, after opening the meeting as chairman, will give the floor to A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty. Col. Henry L. Stimson, head of the United States delegation, will follow the first lord and is preparing his address on lines of fullest support of the British policy.

France, who first broached the "humanizing" plan in London will add her voice to Britain's and America's on this issue, but at the same time will fight every attempt to eliminate submersibles.

One small cloud has appeared in the blue skies of the Anglo-American conference situation with confirmation of the report that the United States proposes to request the right to build a battleship of the British Rodney type—33,900 tons—in order to make Anglo-American parity a reality.

British naval circles have received the suggestion with anything but enthusiasm.

The American thesis is that the new ship is necessary to make parity in this class of warships a reality, but it is understood that the American proposal is more for the right to build a new capital ship than for any actual intention of laying it down.

The British contend that a battleship of the Rodney type would give the United States big superiority in gunpower with 16-inch weapons.

PRESIDENT HOOVER HAS LANDED SEVEN-FOOT FISH

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—A huge sail fish, seven feet long and weighing 45 pounds, stood to President Hoover's credit in this little fishing camp tonight as a result of his first day of deep sea fishing off the shores of the Florida keys.

Other members of the party who fished were Lawrence Richey, one of the president's secretaries; Dr. Vernon Kellogg, Justice Harlan Stone and Mark Sullivan, newspaperman and writer. They failed to get a strike. The haul for the whole camp totaled five sail fish, in addition to the president's, and two barracudas.

Mr. Hoover's statement made some months ago that all men were alike in the eyes of fish, was somewhat belied by the fact that the biggest fish to be taken off the key today picked out the presidential hook.

The station at Eagleville was reopened this morning and the business of the railway, including that connected with the Mansfield State hospital and training school, will be conducted there for the present. Hills of The Ridges states that the famous Prudence Crandall Philleo, who died in Elks Falls, Kansas, in 1890, at the age of 86 years, was a familiar figure to him during his residence in Kansas prior to the time of her death. Mrs. Philleo was a native of Connecticut and won fame in her younger days for her fight for equality among races. The borough board of assessors, Romildo Gallotto, Parley C. Patten and Bernard Hanley is just completing the annual borough tax list. It has been customary for some time for the borough assessors to follow pretty closely the valuations as given in the lists of the town assessors. This year, however, there is much speculation as to what the figures will be when the borough lists are completed and made public. The board of relief has its first meeting Saturday afternoon next and if the valuations of the town assessors are adhered to the borough board may expect to meet the same conditions as the town board, as there will, no doubt, be a general and emphatic demand for reduction in values. On account of the depression in business in Stafford Springs it is said that a conservative estimate of real estate values in the borough is at least 30 per cent lower than a year ago. AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper figure, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

WOMAN USES HAT-PIN TO RESIST ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 10—It is a tradition among police officers that they had rather, when duty calls, be concerned with the arrest of a dozen men in preference to the necessity of taking one unruly woman into custody. This was illustrated this morning when Mrs. Edith Carr, charged with a statutory offence, attacked State Officer Royal V. Scranton with something less than a lethal weapon, but nevertheless a punishing one.

In a fit of vixenish temper she jammed a hat pin into the officer's wrist while he was escorting her to a police car down in the business section. It was the first hat pin that has figured in the news around this town for many a year. They have been out of common use of late.

The Carr woman had been placed under arrest after the state police department had established what her status was as a resident of Dayville, where she has been living with Louis Auger and represented to be his wife. She pleaded guilty to the charge filed against her in the town court, and Judge W. Fenner Woodward ordered her committed to the state farm for women at Niantic, where she was taken this afternoon. Mrs. Carr is a married woman.

The case against Auger, who is said to be a divorced man, has been continued for a week.

Numbers were eyewitnesses of the Carr woman's attack on State Officer Scranton this morning. Her perversity was of no avail, for the officer gave a highly illuminating demonstration of how to force an unruly person into an automobile without being at all rough about it.

Gets Verdict for $2,500

Judgment for damages of $2,500 is given in a decision handed down by Judge Yeomans of the superior court in a case growing out of the serious injury of Edwin Sugalski, a four year old boy resident on the West Side, when he was run over by a Modern Laundry truck owned by George Gendron of Center street, on a day last summer. The accident happened in the Quebec Square section of the West Side. It was indicated today that attorneys for the insurance company having the liability coverage on the machine that figured in the accident will appeal to the supreme court of the state.

It appears that the child was in the rear of the machine just before being knocked down and just before the driver came out of a house where his business had taken him. When he started to back the machine it struck the child and one of the wheels ran over the little fellow's head. It was at first believed that the child was fatally injured. The claim of the plaintiff, represented by Attorney Harry E. Back, is that the child has not as yet recovered from the effects of the injury.

Danielson motorists who were at North Grosvenordale today, this being only a matter of about 15 miles northerly of Danielson, report practically twice as much snow in this territory as there is here, a situation accounted for by the fact that that area was being snowed upon during last night while it was raining in this section.

There is a better feeling among many investors in Danielson who were caught in the market slump in October and November. Advances in the prices of various better class securities during the past three weeks have enabled them to recoup a considerable percentage of their paper losses and no small amount of their actual losses.

It may be too early to crow about the matter even now, but Killingly has had practically no snow removal costs to date this winter. Each year there is included in the annual budget an item for snow removal. In the current budget that item is $1,000. However, there have been years in the not too distant past when getting ride of the snow that highways might again come into use has cost as high as $7,000, and in some of them much of this expense was accumulated in late February and March.

PUTNAM

MAYOR RICHARD SHOWS A MARKED IMPROVEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 10.—Mayor Charles A. Richard was said by his attending physician today to be making marked gains in strength. An inquiry as to the condition of the city's chief executive brought the following response from Mrs. Margaret Richard, wife of the mayor: "A little better this afternoon and still holding his own." Mrs. Richard's statement was one of the most optimistic since the mayor was stricken last Tuesday evening.

The congestion removed from the lungs Saturday night and today was centered in his head which attendants took as a favorable turning point. Mayor Richard is suffering from pneumonia and is waging a determined battle. He passed another comfortable day today. On Sunday, Mayor Richard received his two brothers, Eric Richard of Baltimore, an educator, who made the long journey from the southern city to his brother's bedside when he learned of his serious condition, and Stephen Richard of Worcester, Mass. Only one visitor, a former city official, whom the mayor inquired of, was admitted to the sick room today. The reports received today were the most encouraging heard since last Thursday and tended to relieve a tense feeling in the community that has existed since Mayor Richard was taken ill last week.

Business men in this city with accounts against William H. Rogers of Fall River, Mass., former Putnam automobile dealer, have been informed by the referee in bankruptcy of the district court of the United States for the district of Massachusetts of Rogers' failure in business which took place in Fall River on January 7. Upon a petition to the courts, Rogers was adjudicated bankrupt. Formal notices of the first meeting of his creditors to be held in the county court house in Fall River on February 12 for the purpose of proving claims, has been given. Until a few years ago Rogers was a dealer in a leading brand of automobiles here. For business purposes he removed his establishment to Fall River to engage in the same pursuits. It was learned through a reliable source this afternoon that Rogers had several creditors in Putnam.

So successful was the enterprise that Mrs. Murray decision to sink another well intending to strike the same water vein, was made for the protection of the many species of horticulture products being cultivated on her beautiful estate nearby.

A review of the week's activities in the various manufacturing plants in the city shows the trend of business conditions in the city on the upward march. While some of the plants hereabouts have partially suspended operations in some of the departments throwing operators out of work—the situation when considered as a whole is encouraging. The greatest relief of last week was the decision of the National Rhea company to resume operations under the management of the receiver of the bankrupt corporation, creating employment for a number who have been idle for the past month. Managers of other manufacturing plants today were optimistic when asked about the outlook for the present month.

TWO WOMEN FINED—VIOLATED LIQUOR LAW

Mary Jurak, pleading guilty to the charges of reputation, and keeping with intent to sell, was fined $50 on the first count and $150 on the second, in the town court Monday morning. During a raid at her premises on Mechanic street Friday evening local police officers, Henry Vegiard and Harvey Maynard, seized several quarts of alcohol and alleged moonshine. Louisa Abugal of Brown avenue, after a trial which lasted an hour and a half, with the court room crowded to the doors, was found guilty on the same two charges, and was fined $50 on each. The seizure at her home was confined to home brew, of which the officers found three cases. Mrs. Abugal was defended by V. P. A. Quinn of Norwich. During his arguments for his client, Attorney Quinn spoke of the well-known 100-proof brand of squirrel whiskey. Besides this, he let the large court attendance in on an entirely new brand, as far as this locality is concerned, which he characterized as Block and Fall. Some little stir was manifested at the disclosure of something which hitherto has not appeared on the local lists. Judge John T. Barry tried the cases, with Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski prosecuting for the state. Mrs. Jurak, through counsel, Attorney Quinn, took an appeal to the court of common pleas and is out under bonds of $300, which were furnished. Mrs. Abugal paid.

BROKERS NOW TEACHING NEW CLASS OF TRADERS

NEW YORK (AP)—Increased numbers of stockholders, reported by many large industries since the October market break, have given brokerage houses the task of instructing thousands of new, inexperienced traders.

Most names added recently to brokers' customers lists are persons who contracted mild cases of speculative fever when they bought odd lots during the recent break and saw prices rise.

A year ago a similar process was taking place. The huge public which participated in the 1929 bull market was being educated then. This group, whose number was estimated as high as 15,000 became old-timers in using all the varied machinery of the stock market.

Thus far, brokers say, the new crowd is interested only in the relatively simple operations of buying and selling for keeps.

BRINGING BYRD HOME

It is with considerable anxiety that the people of this country, and the world for that matter, have followed the progress of Admiral Byrd in his south pole expedition. The interest has been increased because it has been possible to keep in close touch with the party, to learn quickly when it has accomplished its purpose and to be informed when obstacles have been encountered. The radio has made it possible to maintain a close contact that was denied before.

The latest news from the far south comes as a decided relief, when it is disclosed that the City of New York, which has gone to Antartica to bring back the explorers, has been able to make its way through the pack ice in Ross sea and is headed for the headquarters of the expedition to bring the party home.

While it hasn't appeared that the party was in any immediate danger, it has been recognized that if it were not possible to get them this month they would probably be obliged to remain in their camp for another year. Having accomplished the object of their trip, they are not anxious to do that and naturally no one can blame them. But, even if they were required to stay, there was the matter of supplies, for they are not equipped to carry on for another 12 months without replenishment.

With the City of New York getting through the ice pack, the confidence of the Norwegian whalers that such would be possible, has been shown to be well grounded. This doesn't solve the whole problem but it means a good start in that direction. The party and the equipment must be taken from the base, the ease of which depends entirely upon weather conditions, and once that has been accomplished there remains the task of getting back through the ice pack.

It is a case where full advantage must be taken of every opportunity, where delays of unreasonable lengths cannot be tolerated, but where, from present indications, it would appear that the prospects of getting away from the base at this time are much brighter. It will be the hope of those anxiously watching and waiting that the get-away will be accomplished without misfortune.

HOUSING OLD AND YOUNG

What might have happened to the aged inmates of a home for elderly people in Boston, if young men had not been immediately available to aid in their rescue, one shudders to think.

This was another one of those instances where an old building had been employed to house not only old people but men and women over 75 years of age who were suffering from infirmities and unable to help themselves. How the fire started is not known but the lives of the inmates were in grave danger and would probably have been quickly sacrificed had the fire not been discovered by young men who quickly rushed in and succeeded in getting the bedridden people out before part of the building was destroyed.

The building was an old one, but that might not have made it unfit for the purpose for which it was used if it had been a fireproof structure, or if those portions of the building which contain the kitchen or the heating plant had been properly safeguarded against fire. Too often it is the case that old buildings are used for homes for old people. Occasionally it is so in regard to institutions where children are housed, but in every one of these instances there is too often a serious fire hazard which fails to get adequate attention until a tragedy occurs.

For the proper protection of human life, especially in those cases where young children or equally helpless old people are concerned, too much attention cannot be given to the provision of fireproof structures where such a thing is possible. In lieu of that there is always the opportunity to do invaluable work by insisting that the heating plants and the kitchens shall be placed in fireproof rooms. In both places overheating and defective chimneys are the frequent causes of fire. The need is to forestall the disastrous results of such a development rather than waiting for something to happen before getting busy. All too frequently are there fires of similar character to that in Boston, but it is not always so that those involved have the good fortune to escape the fury and torture of the flames as did the old people there. The warning in every one of such cases is clear and distinct.

A WASHINGTON TEST

Probably there is no city in which a greater stir has been made over crime conditions and the lack of enforcement than in the national capital. This has been increased by the manner in which members of congress have participated in the alleged disclosures, a method which may have been resorted to for increased publicity.

Throughout it all the claim has been made that Washington has been painted much blacker than it really was and subsequent developments have gone a long way to support such a contention.

Nevertheless, it is to be expected that Washington will be a city where praiseworthy law enforcement will be insisted upon. That is what the residents there should want and what the rest of the country should desire. Whether Washington ever will be a model is a question. There are many conflicting angles, but as long as there is the law it can be expected that there will be the effort to uphold it. In the test there may be some interesting disclosures as to what public sentiment actually is.

Just at the present time Washington is somewhat upset over the appointment made by President Hoover of General Crosby as the new head of the Washington police department, following his retirement from the army in a short time. Washington imagines it is going to experience the effects of a military dictator and that it is going to receive an administration of its police force that will be unpopular.

Washington has begun to cry before it has been hurt. It must realize that any person selected from the army must direct the police department in accordance with the laws of the city or the district, rather than under military law. On the other hand, it may be right. It may experience a situation similar to that at Philadelphia when General Butler was commissioner of public safety, but there will be an opportunity to find out whether public sentiment in Washington is for an easy-going obedience to the law or for such enforcement that it can be pointed to as a model for other cities and the country. Washington may yet serve as one of the great examples of what can or what cannot be done in the way of law enforcement with particular reference to the dry law.

CROSSING DANGERS INCREASED

Railroad crossings have received much discussion throughout the state and locally of late. This is because of the effort to have the public utilities commission ousted for failure to carry out the requirements of the law, and because Norwich has recently been obliged to take a signal equipment at the Eighth street crossing of the New Haven road where flagmen were previously stationed and where, ever since the signal was erected, it has done about as much in menacing the lives of those using the crossing by false information as it has in giving warnings of the approach of trains.

In New Jersey, a commission has been at work considering the removal of crossings which were regarded as death traps and it has reached some interesting conclusions. It has found that accidents at crossings protected by gates or men were about the same as those where warning signs existed, that the danger today is increased to those riding in railroad trains because of the increasing size of busses and motor trucks with their heavy loads, which makes them veritable battering rams if they strike a train, and that the audible or visible signals announcing the approach of trains frequently fail to accomplish their purpose.

There is special interest to Norwich in the commission's statement that more than 25 per cent of all the accidents last year in New Jersey were at crossings having protection from signalling devices.

This concerns Norwich because the public utilities commission has disregarded the protest of Norwich, removed the flagmen at the dangerous Eighth street crossing and established in place of them one of those signals established at crossings where more than a quarter of grade accidents occurred last year in New Jersey.

But we do not have to rely upon Jersey's experience in judging our own crossing conditions. We have had the signal in operation for about six weeks and in that time it has been the cause of hair-raising escapes, delayed traffic, signals when no trains were approaching and no signals when trains were approaching.

We have gone from bad to worse, not because we wanted to but because the utility commissioners forced the change upon us, and even the protests over the menacing service that the signal system has given have brought no positive relief.

CHICAGO STIRS

Instead of giving orders to the gangsters to get out of Chicago, new tactics have been employed this time to improve crime conditions in that city. In the roundup, something like 1,000 have been hauled from the haunts of the gunmen, crowding the jails and giving the authorities congested conditions equalling those of the street.

Naturally the question is as to whether the move is going to be effective. Will it put the fear of the law into the criminals? That rests with the future to reveal. It will make a difference how serious and how persistent the effort is. It is quite evident that the police knew where to go when they started out on their roundup. It isn't possible that they went to these places on 11th hour information as to their location. That gives the impression that they could have done as much a long time ago if they had wished to and whether there are any good effects from this latest move depends upon how carefully it is followed up. The impression strongly prevails that Chicago has experienced the complained-of conditions because it has done too little to discourage them, and they can be expected to return just as soon as the least laxity prevails.

Norris and Blaine are opposed to Hughes. That will be recognized as a decided credit to Mr. Hughes.

While the Chicago police are promising to rid that city of gangsters, it looks like a case for deeds and not words.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—Senators Bingham and Walcott have had a busy week in the senate looking after Connecticut's interest in the way of tariff amendments. Over in the house, Col. Tilson as floor leader has given most of his time to the official program which is framed by the speaker, the steering committee and Tilson, and in these days it is a pretty difficult problem to frame a program that will not get upset by last moment interruptions, and an effort to bring up matters that do not form a part of the "day's work" as outlined by those responsible for legislation.

Prohibition—for and against modification—held the floor for most of the week, the speeches for the most part being made by those who do not believe the Volstead act is enforceable, and even that it should not be enforced, and, as in the case of Mr. Beck, that the 18th amendment should be revoked and each state make its own prohibition laws.

The house galleries were crowded at each announced speech and the members applauded generously, even though the gallery visitors could not express their sentiments.

Socially, Connecticut has taken an active part in the program of the week. Senator and Mrs. Walcott gave a dinner for Sir Esme and Lady Isabella Howard, as the British ambassador has relinquished his post here and they return to London next week. The Walcotts have also been extensively entertained. Senator and Mrs. Bingham were guests at the white house on the occasion of the dinner given by the president for the British ambassador, which was a farewell dinner and one of much note.

Representative and Mrs. Tilson of New Haven, gave the second of their large dinners on Monday night, and were guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover at the dinner given at the white house in honor of Speaker and Mrs. Longworth.

In addition there have been many other social affairs in the administration and congressional set that have brought out in good numbers members of congress from Connecticut.

At the same time, nothing of great interest to the state has developed in measures passed by congress.

There is talk over in the senate, that the session will adjourn about the 7th of June, and very likely it will, though it is too early to make predictions based on much more than general custom. As this is an election year, and many hot contests are in sight, it is probable congress will adjourn in ample time for senators and members coming up for re-election to go home and take care of their interests.

The drawback usually turns out to be that the south has its primaries much earlier than those of the north, and in southern states safely democratic, the fight is all over, at the primary, so it is quite easy for a coalition to hold back adjournment, and so pester republicans who are in jeopardy. It may be done this year, but indications point to an early June adjournment, as it now looks.

When Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, passed his 68th birthday a short time ago, he gave to the world his theory of what had constituted a happy life. His sons had just celebrated the event by giving him a birthday dinner at the capitol, and some of the news writers asked the senator his views on what constituted happiness.

The tall, sober faced man from Utah, replied that he was "drawing dividends on the life he had lived from boyhood." He added, "I have always worked, eaten good plain food, and loved work. I have wronged nobody; I married as perfect a woman as ever lived; my children have had a marvelous mother, a superb home-maker. Of all the blessings received by me, she was the greatest."

The first American Red Cross flag, made by Miss Clara Barton, of Massachusetts, and founder of the Red Cross has just been presented to the National Red Cross. The ceremony was conducted by officers of the D. A. R. to whom the flag had been given for preservation. It was placed in the hands of the D. A. R. "to see that it was given permanent honor." Assisting Miss Barton in the making of the flag was an ancestor of Mrs. Hibbard, and it was Mrs. Hibbard who now presents it to the D. A. R., to be properly placed as a historic relic.

The presentation was made to the Red Cross by Mrs. Hobart, president general of the D. A. R and the flag accepted by John Barton Payne, in the name of the Red Cross.

In making the presentation, speaking for the D. A. R. Mrs. Hobart said in part, "We feel that this wonderful piece of handiwork of your founder, and of Mrs. Hibbard, should repose among the historic objects associated with the Red Cross." Mrs. Hobart added that the flag was made of material and specifications furnished Miss Barton by the government.

Friends of Clara Barton are especially gratified that the flag is now in possession of the Red Cross, for it will place on indisputable record that that organization recognizes Clara Barton as the actual founder of the Red Cross.

It will be recalled that a few years ago some members of that organization disputed that fact, and attempted to place the honor of having founded elsewhere.

The acceptance of the Barton flag, with its accompanying statement that it was "made by the founder," seems to settle the dispute.

Senator Bingham has received from Dr. Giesecke, former president of the famous old university of Peru, a clipping from a Berlin newspaper in which Dr. Meuller, noted scientist, who has just returned from Peru, states in his belief the construction of Machu Picchu, of which Senator Bingham is now writing, was begun 3,000 or 4,000 years before Christ. The senator's new book on the subject will soon be published and will be a companion book to his famous "Inca Land."

Stories That Recall Others

Back Scratchers.

Sonny Boy, age five, was very much interested in two new gold fish that his aunt had brought home.

"But what do you suppose," Auntie X asked him, "that little piece of Christmas tree is in there for?" meaning a piece of green fern that was supplied with the fish.

"Oh," Sonny Boy, said, "they put that in so when the fishes got an itch on their back they could swim up and scratch it!"

Just As A Favor.

One small Christmas tree was left among the large number that had been for sale at the grocery store. A little boy, Jimmie, had been looking at it longingly for several days. Christmas eve the tree still remained unsold. About 8 o'clock as closing time was approaching, Jimmy gathered up his courage and said to the grocer:

"Say, Mr. G——! lend me that tree out there for one or two days, won't you? I'll promise to bring it back."

Pedigrees and epitaphs are intended to perpetuate ready-made reputations.

GOING UP—GOING DOWN

"Please step back in the car; Infants' wear on the fourth. Kindly call your floors."

The cool, impersonal voice of the pretty blond elevator girl floated back as the car shot upward.

On the main floor the handsome floorwalker watched the car ascend, his shoulders very erect, his dark eyes grave, as usual.

Inwardly the dainty Sally was seething as her car rose to the sixth floor. She glared down at the floorwalker as long as she could see his shining black hair.

"Snippy thing! Conceited-stuck-up!" she said to herself. "Looks like a collar ad and tries to act like a duke. What a name — Clarence Clendenning! Ought to be in the movies. If he comes back at me once more when I'm doing my best to keep this car going smoothly, I'll hand him something back, if I lose my job. He's been here a month and he's never given me a smile or a decent word in that time." Meanwhile the thoughts of the floorwalker were similar.

"Just because she's as lovely as a little Dresden doll she needn't turn her nose up every time I give her a casual order. She has never been really descent to me since the day I slowed down her car."

Five minutes later he frowned as he saw a tall man step and speak to pretty Sally as her elevator waited. Somehow he felt an odd disturbance within him every time a man spoke to the girl. "She's too young and pretty for this job, anyway," he fumed.

"Please don't talk to customers," his tone was low and emphatic in her ear as he stood waiting for her car to fill.

Sally's delicate face flushed hotly.

"Is it my fault if a man asks a civil question about the store, or if the Saturday crowd won't hurry?" she snapped at him, looking prettier than ever in her rage.

"Spoiled beauty," he nodded to himself as he walked away. He couldn't possibly know that she was nothing of the sort—that she turned in every penny she could have to a mother who could no longer work.

"Probably Clarence went to college and he'll never be the same," Sally scoffed inwardly. "What a name! What a snob!" But why did she care what he did? Why did he make every other man in the big store look common and cheap?

How surprised she would have been if she had known that every one called him Bill, even if he had been christened Clarence by a proud mother. And that he had been glad to manage three years of high school, much less college. Any one could see just how handsome he was, but few people knew that he was really shy and modest. The reason he seldom talked to the girls was because he seldom could think of anything to say. You couldn't have made him admit that his favorite dream was of a little house in the country and a flock of fluffy chickens!

By 6 o'clock nerves were stretched tight. Sally's face was white with fatigue, even impatient, bent on last-minute errands. The handsome floorwalker answered a dozen questions a minute.

He stood by Sally's elevator when he chanced to smell smoke. Sniffing anxiously, he watched her car swing up. In a moment she was down again, her car empty. He spoke quickly, stern in his anxiety.

"What's the idea? Fill your car, please." But he stopped as she bent over him, whispering: "A fire! I saw it—back of the toy village! I'm going back. The kid'll be frightened."

Even as he sprang away to give the alarm she was off. Up and down her car flashed, coming down each time loaded with children and mothers. She broke all the rules, but she brought the last frightened child down as the engines and ladders arrived.

A white, shaken little Sally it was who staggered from her elevator straight into the arms of the handsome floorwalker. He held her as though he would never let her go, patting her golden hair tenderly.

"Oh, you brave little thing! You reckless little idiot! I told you to stay down, but you went back up."

Sally half-laughed, half-sobbed. It seemed beautifully natural to rest in his arms.

"All those children, they would have been in a panic—stop being so bossy," she scolded, then closed her eyes as he smiled and nodded understandingly.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—As a chance notion in debate, Senator Copeland of New York was moved to call the roll of his fellow alumni of the University of Michigan now in the senate.

It was rather an imposing showing among 96 senators from 48 states.

Including Dr. Copeland, there were five on the list the others being Vandenberg of Michigan, Ashurst of Arizona, Wheeler of Montana and King of Utah, all democrats except Vandenberg.

Had he explored the house also, the New Yorker could have found another half dozen Michiganders. Nor are they all from Michigan now, by a long shot. They are about as scattered, geographically speaking, as the senators mentioned.

Harvard Ahead

Harvard alone surpasses Michigan, records indicate. There are a full score of men in house or senate with some sort of Harvard background. Yale is about on a parity with Michigan and far away Stanford, President Hoover's alma mater, comes well up on the list with half a dozen graduates on the congressional rolls.

Coming down to those members of senate or house who claim no collegiate background whatever you discover that they total up to more than 200 of the 500 odd it takes to make up the two bodies.

Just how many of these are college men, but fail to mention it in furnishing biographical information for the records, it would take a canvass to establish. The great majority of the 200 make it plain, however, that they are self-made men who have come up from the ranks without benefit of higher education.

You find such phrases as "educated in the common schools," or "attended the public schools in his county" repeated over and over in their autobiographies. And you notice very often that the man who so described his beginnings is the one who has achieved distinction in the law despite such handicap. Some of the men in congress who now have a reputation for general culture and learning are in that group.

Half Lawyers

With congress half lawyers naturally many of the collegiate group are university law school graduates only. Not a few perfected their legal education after coming to Washington, attending nearby law schools. By way of contrast, however, others, like Bingham, attended half a dozen colleges. Representative Short of Missouri has eight listed, at home or abroad.

North Carolina has a unique distinction. Eight of her ten representatives are state university men, while both of her veteran senators, hold honorary degrees from that institution.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hunting And Trapping.

Mr. Editor: We have read with considerable pleasure the letter of "Sportsman" in your paper of Feb. 6th.

While we as an association must of necessity refrain from all personalities, we very heartily endorse the general sentiment expressed therein, and also feel, as does the writer, that there is altogether too much time spent in politics which might be more profitably used in worthwhile occupation, and along the lines of real duty.

The hunter and trapper is spending real money in license fees, far too much of it considering the returns one gets, and as it is considered that the men referred to are supposed to be public servants and are paid salaries from such moneys as may be received directly from the license fees, one cannot help but feel that altogether too much time is spent in lobbying and playing politics.

When such is the case one can perhaps be pardoned for feeling that there is a "Nigger in the woodpile" somewhere.

In reference to the wardens and their deputies, it is the writer's personal pleasure to be intimately acquainted with some of these men, and I state very emphatically that they are men of a very high calibre. They have a duty to perform which is very unpleasant at times, and must uphold a law which in a good many instances they no doubt realize is very unjust, yet, it is the law to them and must be obeyed.

On the other hand there are men in this service on whose head must fall in justice the bitterness of the condemnation in "Sportsman's" letter. Men who seem to have been selected because of their pertiness and inclination toward perversity, and lowness.

The writer is acquainted with one instance where a new warden was appointed to a section where all sorts of crime against good sportsmanship was being perpetrated. There was a wonderful opportunity for this man to perform worthwhile service, and a great fund of real evidence was available. Also a chance for the greatest co-operation from the clean sportsmen in that section.

Let us analyze this man's entrance. He went in to that section with a wonderful display of "jewelry" and with his mouth wide open, and it has been open ever since. His constant query was "Do you know who I am?" The answer to his attitude is this:

He has accomplished nothing worth while, and has received no support or co-operation from the men who could have been a wonderful help to him, but has antagonized every lover of clean support in that section, and is more or less of a joke for the entire community.

Again in reference to "Sportsman's" letter, the advice is excellent; and I want to assure you we are doing things and want your help and that of every clean sportsman in your section.

In Canterbury during the late fall there was organized The Hunters and Trappers' Association, Inc., (and that really means incorporation as we have state papers for same). It is our program to fight these same things tooth and nail, and, if need be, to carry our fight to the very "Gates of the Temple."

This can only be done by the rock-ribbed determination of every hunter and trapper to fight shoulder to shoulder until this game is played fair, and then keep it that way.

We are happy to state that this movement is going forward at an amazing pace. Meetings having been held in Putnam, Jewett City and Moosup, and on Monday, Feb. 17th, at 8 p. m., there is to be an opening meeting at the Shooting club in Lisbon, for the purpose of organization at that point. This meeting is open to all clean sportsmen.

The movement is gaining momentum every day, and very gratifying results are being experienced in the western and central portions of the state, an organizer being located in every county.

We do not advocate the violation of any existing law, but we do advocate the repeal of some laws, especially those in regard to trapping.

We are after these things hard, and are going to stick until the job is done. If the hunters and trappers will all get behind this movement, we will write these things on the sky in letters large enough to see that "He who runs may read!"

Abraham Lincoln

Mr. Editor: The 121st anniversary of the birth of one of the greatest figures in the history of this or any other country will be observed on the 12th day of February, 1930, by all the people. As the years roll by the memory of Lincoln grows if possible more brilliant. Few who remember him are living today, and no figure in the history of this country has ever so completely captured and held its imagination as has this lonely son of the early and troublesome days of Civil war when brother was arrayed against brother. As we look back and think of his lonesome life in the backwoods of Indiana we can in a mental picture see him by the light of a log fire, trying to spell out the words from that old blue-back spelling book as his mother tried to teach him his letters. By the firelight he studied and spelled out sentences from the Statutes of Indiana and out of this training and under the most discouraging conditions, he became one of the most astute and brilliant lawyers of his day and time. He was slowly but surely moving onward to that day and time when he would be needed for this nation's greatest emergency and he had said when he had reached the greatest office in the gift of the people that "I am the servant of all the people without regard to race, creed or color." Is it any wonder the people venerate his name, for it can be said with truth that he was a messenger sent from God to solve a problem that had been for years crying for a solution.

When that fratricidal strife burst upon the country in all its fury he called upon the superb military ability of those great Union generals, Grant, Sherman, McClellan, Hooker, Meade, Rosecrans and Kearney and many others, and with those gallant Boys in Blue they marched on to victory under the good old Stars and Stripes. The genius of the immortal Lincoln was the directing genius of it all. He who was called the lonely man of the white house rose superior to all his surroundings. With a wonderful faith in the justice of his cause and with a confidence and trust in a Supreme Being, and the loyalty of the people, he pushed on to a glorious victory. His name will live for all time and to his memory no tribute could be too great. His boys, those splendid Boys in Blue, love to honor his great name. They called the great president Honest Abe, whose great soul went out to the poor people and the future generations will continue to pay tribute to his memory, for he was a man of the people, a noble statesman, a model of lofty patriotism. Perhaps no contemporary knew the man Lincoln as did John Hay, who had said, "Abraham Lincoln was as just and generous to the rich and well-born as to the poor and humble—a thing rare among politicians today."

Just here, I want to digress for just a moment and tell a story, perhaps not new, but at least it shows that Lincoln as a man had almost prophetic vision. On the evening when he was shot by John Wilkes Booth, he went to Ford's theatre much against his will. The play, as you know, was "Our American Cousin," with Laura Keene in the leading part. Lincoln did not want to go, but his wife had her heart set on going, and as she said, "General and Mrs. Grant, who were to go, have been called away at the last minute and I don't intend to let my husband desert me." Lincoln said: "All right, Mary, I'll go, but if I don't go down in history as the martyr president I miss my guess." He didn't miss his guess but his little joke became a world tragedy. Many stories could be told for he was a wonderful story teller—and they were used mainly to point a moral. His official acts were always tempered with mercy, ever ready to listen to the poor as well as the highest official, for he had said, "I am the servant of all the people." When Lincoln won it was by the power of truth and justice. This may be why no other American statesman has left so deep an impress upon the thought and imagination of the world. Today he stands alone, just as he stood alone with his dignity, honesty, strength of mind and with charity for all. His name will continue until the end of time, a martyr to the land he loved so well, the immortal Lincoln. May I, with your permission, quote from Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, by Harrison D. Mason?

He saw the graves of heroes sleeping,
He saw men's eyes suffused and dim;
A triumph great, a nation weeping,
Found true expression there in him

Not often in a nation's story,
Such words supreme, such manhood fine;
He gave that day our grief and glory
The dignity of things divine.

Brief, so brief—the words were falling
Ere men had time to note and weigh;
As if again the Gods were calling
From some Homeric yesterday.

No impulse this; no actor seeking,
Of thought that came by happy chance;
The man, the place, were God's own seeking:
The words are our inheritance.

A pause, a hush, a wonder growing,
A prophet's vision, understood;
In that strange spell of his bestowing;
They dreamed with him of brotherhood.

Abraham Lincoln will have been dead 65 years the 15th of April, 1930 but each year his memory and his great name is growing brighter and brighter as the stars that gleam like jewels in a cloudless sky.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 8.

With a certain proviso, compensation paid by a state or "political subdivision thereof," such as a county or city, to its officers and employes is not taxable income. The proviso is that the wages of such officers and employes must be rendered in connection with the "essential government functions of the state or political subdivision" as distinguished from its proprietary functions. The salaries of the governor of a state, mayor of a city, councilman, board of aldermen, public-school teachers, and policemen and firemen are not taxable. But the compensation received by employes of waterworks owned and operated by a municipality, or of a municipality owned and operated street railway, is taxable, for the reason that they are engaged in activities which are not governmental.

Fees for special services to a state are taxable, as, for example, compensation paid architects and builders for planning and erecting a state capitol or other state or municipal building. An officer or employe of a state, for the purpose of the income-tax law, is one whose services are continuous and not occasional or temporary.

Agitation In India

LONDON—The British government in India is faced with what may be one of the most delicate situations that have arisen in the history of English rule in Hindustan.

This position has been brought about by the recent demand made by the powerful Indian national congress for "Puran Swaraj," that is, the absolute independence of the Indian Empire from Britain.

First Big Demand

This is the first time that such general demand has been put forward by modern India. Previously there has been agitation for a greater degree of liberty under the crown. There has been talk of "home rule" and "dominion status. But now comes the claim of independence.

At this moment the reins of control over this vast population of more than 300,000,000 people rest in the hands of one frail man—Gandhi, the ascetic dreamer.

This humble John the Baptist, who goes about clad in a loin cloth and preaches to his people, is regarded with awe and reverence. His influence is immense.

Gandhi Powerful

Gandhi's program is theoretically a peaceful one. He himself is opposed to the employment of force, and has always tried to keep a restraining hand on his followers. He hopes to achieve his ends by passive resistance—by boycotting everything British including taxes. This flag of disobedience has already been flung in some places, and the congress hopes to make the movement general.

Either Britain is to enforce her rule in India or she must withdraw. Nobody expects her to withdraw, and the obvious corollary is that she will not tolerate non-payment of taxes and other forms of civil disobedience.

The universal opinion seems to be that economy should begin at somebody else's home.

LAHORE

Lahore, India, where the All India nationalist congress met has a local story. Lahore is the pressbox of north India, but seldom has much to say about itself.

If a glacier breaks in the upper Indus river, releasing a deluge of water that wipes out thousands of native homes, the news is dispatched from Lahore. If Afghan bandits waylay a sufficient number of caravans, Peshawar might get into the date line but more frequently Lahore is the date-line city. Both the Indus river and Afghanistan border are more than 200 miles from Lahore.

"Lahore," according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society, "is a the capital of Punjab state, and one of the important crossroads of India.

"Not many curious travelers are found there, for the city is off the beaten paths of tourist travel. Most tourists visit Calcutta and Bombay and perhaps the interior cities between them, but Lahore, lying about 200 miles northwest of Delhi, is a bit out of the way. Yet trains from important southern Indian cities connect with lines to the city; railroads from the foothills of the western Himalaya mountains touch it; there is a line from Lahore to the Afghan border on the north; and from the west come trains from Karachi, popular landing field for Asia-Europe aviators.

"Lahore is about as old as the Christian era and in some old, walled portions of the city there has not been much change since the city was first built. Some of the streets are so narrow that sightseers who engage elephants for a tour watch the natives scurry into doorways and, as the elephants pass, flatten themselves against the walls of unattractive houses that flank these byways.

"Every house has at least one enclosed balcony or bay window and no two adjoining houses seem to have them protruding from the same floor. And no two balconies are the same size. This feature of Lahore house construction, and the further fact that Lahore's early builders apparently gave no thought to an even building line, make the native thoroughfares a jumble of uneven masonry and wood.

"There are few women on the streets of Lahore but no matter how many windows a house has, nearly all of them frame a bronzed feminine face. Some of the women wear shawls, others adorn themselves with trinkets—stone-encrusted discs pierce the left sides of their nostrils, beads nearly cover the bright waists and bronzed necks of the wearers, and earrings dangle from the ear lobes to the shoulders.

"They look down upon a gayly clad, surging mass of humanity; some men with turbans so large that their wearers appear top heavy, others with skull caps. They see beggars, some mere children of 7 and 8 years, and older ones, who move only when an elephant, a wagon drawn by a shaggy donkey, or a high-wheeled cart, forces them to withdraw their outstretched legs. The beggars' pitiful professional pleading, the yell of the young native ragamuffins whose only playground is in front of their own doorways, and the unmelodious cry of numerous peddlers, echo through the narrow byways.

"At the bazaars, the travelers mingle with a colorful horde who watch crafty merchants drive home sales of hammered metalware and earthen vessels of all shapes and sizes, jewelry, and many other products of local manufacture. Incidentally, a tour of Lahore reveals little manufacturing activity but within the sombre walls flanking some of the city's streets are produced fine carpets, leather goods, pottery and metalware. Cotton and flour mills, mineral water bottling works and soap factories, employ many natives.

"The foreign quarter of Lahore is a bit of Europe out of place. The city's 280,000 inhabitants include many foreign officials, and British soldiers are quartered there. You may hire a European-made automobile and ride through wide boulevards, past fine government buildings and spacious parks. On the promenades, Paris and London fashions predominate, and in the clubs and theaters the Orient is nearly blanked from the foreigners' mind except, perhaps, for the presence of a few high caste natives.

"Wealthy, gayly clad Indians also ride in European automobiles but some use the 'coach and four.' The horses, drivers, footmen and carriages are adorned with bright-colored, gold-tasseled cloth."

FIRST DAY'S REPORT IN CAMPAIGN FOR BOY SCOUT BUDGET SHOWS $2,484

The campaigners in the drive to meet the $5,000 budget of the eastern Connecticut council of Boy Scouts had $2,484 to report when they held an enthusiastic meeting Monday night at the Arcanum club where they had supper.

It was a good start, in the opinion of the leaders, but there can be no let-up, if the goal is to be reached, and the workers will need to "hit them again" in the succeeding days of the drive, as Rev. John J. Reilly of St. Patrick's church told them in his powerful key-note speech for the evening.

The teams are to meet again this (Tuesday) evening for supper and reports and the speaker for the evening will be John Richardson, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

More than 80 men were gathered at the tables for the supper hour at 6 o'clock and the invocation was by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, of the United Congregational church. William G. Park was the song leader with Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano while the men enjoyed the inviting menu provided, and when this had been disposed of President H. D. Larrabee called for the team reports while Scout Executive John L. Sellman placed the figures on a blackboard where all could see how the total was mounting up.

Applause followed applause as one after another of the teams captains reported on the work for the day and the total of approximately $2,500 was reached.

It is the hope and expectation of the leaders that the total for the second day will come close to equalling the Monday figure, so as to bring the fund past the halfway mark in the first two days.

The team reports were made as follows:

Made Powerful Appeal

Rev. Father Reilly, the speaker of the evening, was called upon by President Larrabee after the reports had been made. He gave earnest endorsement of the Boy Scout work and made a ringing appeal to the men of Norwich to rise to their opportunity to do something for the boys of far-reaching and inestimable value. As he brought his eloquent address to a close he was given long-continued applause and the meeting was finally concluded with a verse of the Star Spangled Banner.

In the course of his stirring remarks, Rev. Father Reilly spoke as follows:

I am not an optimist. I am not a pessimist. I try to choose the middle path, the golden mean. I am optimistic when things look optimistic, I am pessimistic when things look pessimistic. For the moment as one looks out upon this gathering and sees the types of men that have come together one could not feel but optimistic and ready to declare that the purpose of our coming together, the success of the financial campaign for the Boy Scouts of Norwich will have a favorable and satisfactory outcome. No thoughtful man will be convinced of this until he hears the proof, no thoughtful man will say the thing unless he had some proof.

You heard exposed a few nights ago in a clear cut convincing manner the aims, the purpose, the progress of this Boy Scout movement and perhaps there was an element of satisfaction, at any rate there must have been a feeling of enjoyment when we found ourselves behind so great a thing, when we found ourselves enrolled in such a worthy effort. For pure unselfish interest I know of few things that can arouse it as this has done. It is a sign to me that underneath the business-like and matter of fact exterior, the professional air you all possess, there lies a sensitive cord alert to higher, spiritual things. It is a sign that you are not blinded by the present things to future needs and future good. We are led by association and experience to look on life as motion or activity of any kind. We see an animal lying motionless in a field. The suspicion grows on us that it is dead. It is its movement that tells us it is alive. Human beings approaching the earthly end are said to be alive or dead in so far as a doctor's instruments can detect a movement in the heart. But, that's a crude, unscientific conception of what life is. A bank of snow hung on a mountain top shows little sign of life yet every one who has been to or read of Switzerland, knows what life, what force, what power an avalanche can produce. It is true of human life. There lies in the hearts of the boys of today a seething volcano of life and power which will burst in the years to come. To all of you it must be strikingly apparent that the boy of today is the man of tomorrow, the weakness of today is the force for good or evil of tomorrow. You have entered into the greatest business deal that has ever occupied your attention—it is the business of human hearts.

You were told that the Boy Scout movement develops character and manliness. That's all we want to know. This claim by Boy Scout workers has been endorsed by leaders in every religious sect so that we need have no pangs of conscience to obstruct our wholehearted effort. That it develops character, that it works upon the soul as well as the body should be enough to recommend it to any thinking man. We live today in what is called "the age of youth"; it is rather "the age of youth's rebellion". Judges, jurists, psychologists and criminal experts become more startled every day, serious men are worried, parents are distracted. We are in hopes that the present storm may be successfully weathered without a too great loss of spiritual and immortal values but it is up to us, the reasonable and interested men of today, to resort to every means that the present dangers which threaten the youth of today may be eliminated and the future made secure forever. Anything that will aid us in this truly noble effort should not be neglected and just as the church employs her various agencies, art and music, education and social service to lift her children's hearts to God, so we too should welcome anything such as the Boy Scout movement that might enable us to sow right here the seeds of virtues which will flourish forever in eternity.

The work that you are called upon to do is not a pleasant task. A Boy Scout drive may be to you, the men of Norwich, synonymous with burden, painful effort and loss of valuable time. With minds that are practical and calculating you may wonder if it is all worth while. The most beautiful rose-colored windows that have ever been produced look drab and patchy when looked at from outside a church; their color, their exquisite tones are revealed only when viewed from the warmth inside the church. To you this Boy Scout work with its necessary financial campaign may be nothing more than a costly experiment, one hardly worth the effort, but with warmth, with faith, with vision and with understanding there are things more beautiful, more eternal which it reveals. Forget the building up of character a Boy Scout gets and the Boy Scout movement is nothing more than a costly fad; forget the spiritual principles that are erected in these boyish hearts and this Boy Scout movement is nothing more than a costly fad; forget the manly influence that is brought to bear upon them, forget the association and the ideals that are held before them and the Boy Scout movement is a costly and a useless, a wasted endeavor. What is there you can leave your boy or the boys of this town when you yourself are but a memory? Money? Why it runs through youthful hands like grains of sand. A name? A title? Social prestige? If you have these take them with you; they will never be disgraced. What is there you can leave after you? If you leave something that will form youthful character, something that will equip these boys with virtues, if you can provide them with the makings of happiness here on earth and blessedness in eternity then, my friends, you are leaving to the world and to the boys of this community something worthwhile—this is a legacy worthy of the name. And this you are surely doing when you gather here to form your plans for putting scouting on a sound financial basis here in Norwich. Our glorious cathedrals are monuments in sweat, and sometimes blood of generations that have passed away. It was in hardship they were erected. It is with hardship and sacrifice that you are assisting in this work, and as the cathedrals of today are the symbols of the faith and perseverance of those hearts of long ago so our faith and zeal and sacrifice will have their monuments, but they will be in the flesh and blood of hearts that today are boys.

Would that I had wit and words and power of speech to spur you on. But I would be a stone if I could stand here and not be stimulated by this sight of men of every creed, of every race, of every thought, meeting on a common ground with a common purpose and ideal to promote the spiritual and mental and physical welfare of the most beautiful thing on earth, the heart of a growing boy. It was a spirit such as this that drove the Crusaders to heroic heights; it was a spirit such as this that pushed the Hebrews under Moses on to the Promised Land; it was a spirit such as this that made heroes out of the Maccabees, this spirit in our hearts and thoughts cannot be but pleasing to a Heavenly Father Who loves us all. It is no plan of mine to moralize or theorize or prophesy here tonight, but if every action has its own reaction then it seems to me this action, this participation in our Boy Scout effort bodes for us a happy, yes, a glorious result. The eyes of the boys of Norwich are upon us; they see gathered here the representatives of every thought; we are here to do them everlasting good. In these boyish hearts then should be broken down forever all prejudice, all bigotry, all misunderstanding and if we have accomplished nothing more than this then we have made a precious contribution to American life.

I hesitate to repeat a thought I gave to a smaller group of interested scout workers. It was this. One of our successful football coaches employs what he calls the shock troop system. No doubt many of you know it from the war. It calls for employment of auxiliary forces that are the first into battle and take the sting of their opponent's punishment. On them hinges the successful outcome of a game or battle. In this campaign you are the shock troops we employ, you are the first to engage in the struggle. On you depends the satisfactory result. Shock troops then, do your duty. The advice of a famous British admiral to his subordinate officers was, "Get the jump on your opponents, hit first, hit hard and keep on hitting." This work for the boys of Norwich was worthy enough to enlist your support, you saw its possibilities, you were won by its lofty and noble character. Give it the best that you can give; you hit first and you hit hard and if there is anything left by then hit it once again.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture yet that's just the kind of a cough that Bronchuline likes to tackle and conquer.

Many times a few doses will stop the hacking and loosen things up and you can depend upon half a bottle to make a two months' cough quit cold and disappear.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any widewake druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion. There's no dope in it—or chloroform, and a couple of teaspoonfuls will usually end any ordinary cough.

NEW LONDON GOOD SAMARITAN AIDS MAN WHO EVEN ROBS CHILD'S BANK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 10.— L. C. Bruce, 102 Howard street, heretofore has been a strong believer in assisting the unfortunate and down-and-outs, but after his experience of Sunday night he entertains a very different idea of human nature and it will be a long time, probably, before he extends the hand of charity and friendship. Bruce was at his home Sunday night about 7 o'clock when Jack Feehan, about 35, and a resident of Hartford, put in an appearance. Feehan had known Bruce many years. The two men spent the evening together and a part of the night, for it was not until about 1 o'clock that Feehan made it known that he would take his departure. At the same time, Feehan imparted the information to Bruce that he had only arrived in New London Saturday and that his funds were getting low because of his inability to obtain work. Bruce then offered Feehan the privilege of occupying a couch for the remainder of the night. Feehan readily accepted and after Bruce had retired he awoke to find Feehan not only awake, but seated in a chair. Feehan explained his failure to occupy the couch, that he would read until tired and then go to the couch. Bruce fell asleep again and it was a costly sleep, for while he slumbered, Feehan arose and entering the bedroom, removed a roll of bills about $300, from the trousers pocket of the owner, also stole a small sum of money belonging to Miss Bruce, and most dishonorable of all, stole the contents of a baby's bank. Bruce discovered his loss when he awoke. When he did not find Feehan on the couch, Bruce became suspicious and examining his clothing found that his money had gone with Feehan. Bruce reported the theft at police headquarters. He described Feehan as being about five feet, 10 inches in height, and having a large nose. He wore a blue overcoat and black suit with white pencil stripe.

CLOTH AROUND BRICK THROWN THROUGH WINDOW

A thief, undoubtedly of the juvenile type, broke into the cobbler shop of Louis Tanner, 446 Bank street, Sunday night. When Tanner opened the establishment for business at 8 o'clock this morning he discovered the break. The proprietor notified Patrolman George McCaskey and it was discovered that the thief smashed a window in the rear and in doing so placed a cloth around a brick so as to make as little noise as possible. Tanner said that as far as he could determine nothing had been removed from the store.

HARD LUCK OF THE SEA RUM RUNNER'S UNDOING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 10.—The fishing boat Notus, New York, was seized off Montauk Point Saturday night and yesterday was brought into port. The craft is a rum-carrier and had been on the suspected list of the coast guard patrol boats for a long time, but it was not until Saturday night and after the Notus had come to grief that she was seized. One hundred sacks of liquor were found on the fisherman and about 200 additional cases were found overboard and increased the number of seized sacks to 300. The capture of the Notus was the result of the fishing boat having grounded on the north shore of Long Island, about two miles west of Montauk Point. When the destroyer Downs came along on a tour of the sea for rum-runners and sighted the Notus fast on a shoal, members of the crew of the government boat boarded the Notus and found the 100 sacks of liquor. The crew was suspicious that the liquor found was not the entire amount of her cargo, so a search of the waters close to where the Notus went ashore was made together with the shore, with the result that the additional 200 cases were found. The Notus was taken in tow after being floated and brought to the state pier here.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kaufman, of Montauk avenue, spent the week end in New York.

Samuel Chertoff, Bank street merchant, is in Washington, D. C., where he is in attendance at the annual convention of the Artistic Lighting and Fixture association.

Miss Alice Peterson has returned to her home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., having visited Miss Frances Packer, of 26 Perry street.

NO EVIDENCE OF A SALE— NOLLE IN DOUGLASS CASE

William Douglass, a laborer, residing at 44 Belden street, was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the liquor law. There was no evidence of a sufficient nature to warrant a conviction, so Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer recommended to the court that a nolle be ordered and this action was taken. Douglass was arrested Saturday night when a raiding squad obtained supposedly bonafide evidence against the occupant of the house and their search was rewarded with finding a bottle of whiskey and a case of beer. Douglass admitted ownership of the whiskey and beer, but declared that it was there for his personal consumption. The raiding officers, Automobile Patrol Officers Augustus Ray and Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolmen George McCaskey and Walter O'Neill gave no credence to Douglass's story and he was taken to police headquarters where he was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,000. When the facts of the case were related to Prosecutor Boyer, and as no sale evidence had been obtained against Douglass, the nolle was asked for.

Clarence Denison, 496 Montauk avenue, was charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in failing to reduce speed at intersecting streets, having been arrested Saturday night by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran. He was fined $5 and costs.

The only other cases tried were for intoxication and all the men were given suspensions of judgment. A Fishers Island fisherman, who failed to appear in court had his bond of $25 declared forfeited. He was arrested on State street Sunday night by Patrolman Carlos Stone.

TIP OF NEW BRITAIN SCHEME IS GIVEN LOCAL POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 10—A couple of Negroes in porter's uniforms, adopted a unique scheme to obtain money in New Britain this afternoon, but the scheme did not work out well, except that it caused the arrest of the men. Evidently the Negroes, who occupied a Ford car were out to obtain easy money, for they visited the factory district, where they offered to provide liquor to responsible purchasers for $72 a case. In offering the alleged liquor for sale, the Negroes informed the factory workers that they had conferred with officials of the company they visited to sell the liquor and that their stock was known to be as represented. When the police grabbed the Negroes it developed that several burlap bags were in the auto and instead of containing liquor they held crates of potatoes. The Negroes are being detained an inquiry has been made of the New London department for knowledge of any transaction that the Negroes might have engaged in in this city. The Negroes are not known here and no such scheme, so far as the police have knowledge of was worked in New London.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Once again the Palace theatre is coming through with a splendid double feature program. Beginning Wednesday this popular playhouse will present Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller in the screaming Vitaphone farce, "The Aviator," and Grant Withers and Billie Dove in the triangle drama, "The Other Tomorrow," also a Vitaphone production. Both pictures are first run all-talking features, and needless to say, either one would be, and in fact, has made a great show by itself. By combining them the Palace gives astounding entertainment value.

"The Other Tomorrow" is the story of a beautiful woman and a madly jealous man. They are married, return from a European honeymoon to their home in a small Georgia town, and there an old sweetheart of the woman, named Carter, is still in love with her. Gossip links their names shamefully, and the husband, driven almost crazy, forbids her to have anything further to do with Carter. She has an automobile accident, is forced to sleep at his house, and, lo, gossip is off again. A divorce action follows. One man sets out with murder in his heart and—but come and see how it ends.

In "The Aviator," Robert Street, a somewhat sickly novelist, is forced, reluctantly to pretend that he is the author of a certain novel about aviation. He is afraid of planes and hates even to ride in an elevator, but his name boosts the sales of the book. Despite the effort of the poor man to slip away, he is pursued, and the crowd insists on making a Lindbergh out of him. The great laughs come when he is forced to fly an airplane in competition with a famous French ace.

Today for the last times the Palace presents that famous mystery thriller, "The Bishop Murder Case," featuring Basil Rathbone in the role of the great Philo Vance. Here is the greatest detective story of the year in a great film. Nobody can afford to say he or she has not seen this splendid picture. It is the thrill of the season.

Breed Theatre.

"Just you—just me. . . ."

You'll be humming that plaintive melody when you walk out of the Breed theatre after beholding Marion Davies in her first feature length talking picture, "Marianne," which closes tonight at the Breed theatre, as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presentation.

A brand-new flock of song hits are in this sparkling romantic comedy in which Miss Davies sings with a captivating charm that is certain to win for her even greater popularity than she now enjoys . . . and that's saying a lot.

In the picture Miss Davies plays the part of a French peasant girl who falls in love with an A. E. F. doughboy but sacrifices her happiness when her former soldier-sweetheart returns blinded from the war.

Included in the supporting cast are Lawrence Gray, Cliff (Ukelele Ike) Edwards, Benny Rubin, Robert Edeson, George Baxter, and others of note. All deserve special praise for the capable and entertaining way in which they present their characterizations.

Broadway Theatre

That lovable meddler, "The Kibitzer," who could tell everyone how to run his affairs, but couldn't quite make the grade in his own business, will tell the world today for the last times at the Broadway in the final showings of the picture of that name, with Harry Green, inimitable Hebrew character artist in the title role.

Tomorrow's program, Program D in the Broadway's Greater Entertainment Month stellar lineup, with cash awards in view for patrons, is amazing in its scope and entertainment value with two big talking pictures on the same bill. The first, "The Song of Love," introduces to picture fans lovely Belle Baker, the darling of vaudeville and credited with the most sympathetic voice on the stage, in a delightful story of three troupers, Dad, Mother and Sonny who are playing the family time vaude circuit. Miss Baker is most convincing as the mother. Ralph Graves has a new and likable character as the father, and Little David Durand, who co-starred with Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris," will again captivate everyone with his clever acting and delightful singing.

The companion picture on the bill presents Ralph Ince and Aileen Pringle in their first talking production "Wall Street," with Ince in the powerful role of Roller Macray, a Wall street giant, who rides rough-shod over enemies and friends alike in his mad struggle for money power. One friend, caught in the panic, kills himself, and Macray, to salve the hurt, buys his friend's home and presents it to his widow. Her hatred for him determines her to crush him in his own game, and with the assistance of other brokers, a bear move against Macray's stocks is started which bids fair to carry out her purpose. Almost too late, the woman finds that love for the giant of finance has supplanted the hatred engendered by her husband's death, and she warns Macray, who in one of the most exciting scenes ever filmed, stages a titanic fight against overwhelming odds on the floor of the exchange.

SENSATIONAL SERIES OF DRY RAIDS IN WINDHAM COUNTY

those over in jail in default of a $1,000 bond.

State Officer John Murphy was over in Meriden tonight and picked up Mrs. Peggy Sullivan, who was locked up at Brooklyn in default of $2,000 bonds.

William Robilliard, who was given a six months' sentence to jail the past week for beating up an alleged spotter and who appealed and was released on bail at the week end, was re-arrested tonight and went back to jail in behalf of $2,000 bail.

Walter W. Murphy, manager of the Dayville hotel, was among those arrested tonight and required to post a bond of $2,500, which he was able to do and was released from custody. Peter Lefevre of uebec square, West Side, was among those who went to jail, in default of bonds of $1,500.

Homer Hubert of Lewis boulevard, Danielson, also was in jail in default of $1,500 bond to answer to a violation of the liquor laws here.

Up in Ballouville, Eugene Riquer was taken in custody by the officers and his bond fixed at $1,000, which he was able to furnish and was released.

Down in Moosup the raiders picked up Adolph Latange, whose bond was fixed at $1,500, which he procured and was released. Also in Moosup, Mrs. Minnie Stevens was arrested by the officers and went to jail in default of bonds of $1,000.

The sole raid in Thompson resulted in the arrest of Victor Perreault, proprietor of the Green Lantern Inn, who was held in $2,000 bail and, being unable to furnish it, was taken over to jail. At this particular place, Marie Sharron as Mr. Perreault's secretary, also was arrested and, being unable to furnish bonds of $1,000, also was locked up in the jail at Brooklyn tonight.

This most sensational series of raids follows closely upon the heels of a vivid law enforcement campaign in Danielson, the operations of undercover men for more than a month past in this territory and the appearance here in Danielson last night at a citizens' mass meeting in the Westfield Congregational church of Commissioner Robert T. Hurley of the state police department.

There was no hint up to the time that the officers went into action that there was to be such a series of raids as this territory never has known since the beginning of the prohibition era. A few of those caught in the net tonight are old-timers in playing around with violations of the liquor laws, but the majority of them are small fry.

The unusual thing is the unusually high bail in which the alleged offenders are held.

Severe Itching Burning Pimples on Shoulders. Healed by Cuticura.

"My trouble was pimples. They broke out on my shoulders and part of my back. They were hard, large and red, and scaled over. Some of them festered. At times the itching and burning were so severe that I had to scratch to obtain relief. Scratching irritated them and caused eruptions.

"I tried other remedies which relieved me for a while and then the trouble would reappear. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Peter C. Giglio, 140 Harwinton Ave., Torrington, Conn.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

WESTERLY

BD. OF ENGINEERS EMPOWERED TO CONTRACT FOR LIGHTS, ETC.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 10.—Moderator Albert G Martin of the Pawcatuck Fire district called the special Fire district meeting to order in the Liberty street fire station Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The clerk, Dr. William A. Hillard, read the call for the meeting to take action relative to relocating the street electric light and fire alarm wires, as affected by the plans to widen West Broad street in Pawcatuck.

Chief Engineer Joseph Purtill explained to the nearly 50 voters present that the Stonington board of selectmen had called on the engineers of the Pawcatuck Fire district to meet with them a month ago in Stonington at which time it was found that the present contract had five years more to go.

The old contract price for the street lights was $90 a year and for the new one the price would be $120. As the selectmen and the board of engineers could not see their way clear to break the present contract, this meeting had been called. The extra expense was approximately $30 per light and estimates on the underground work on West Broad street in Pawcatuck, between the Pawcatuck river bridge and the overhead railroad bridge were $745.

Harold C. Purtill inquired if any action was contemplated relative to installation of new fire hydrants when changes were made. Engineer Purtill said that Supt. Arthur H. Coy of the Westerly Water works had had made to order new "darling" hydrants similar to the large ones used by the Westerly fire district with the exception that in Westerly they had left hand threads, while Pawcatuck wanted right hand ones.

Moderator Martin stated that he had gone over the matter with General Manager Robert Burnett, of the South County Public Service Co., and engineers, relative to street lights on West Broad street, where there were now six large lights, which at $30 per year advance would mean $180. He said that the new ones would be nearer the ground and it might be necessary to have an additional light, and the new pedestal poles were to be fine-looking ones.

Former Chief Engineer Francis J McMahon offered the following: Resolved, that the board of engineers be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered to contract for the district for such improvements as may be necessary in West Broad street, affecting the interests of the Pawcatuck Fire district, in the matter of street lighting and fire alarm system.

Clerk William A. Hilliard asked if there was no appropriation carried and learned that it could not be estimated at this time. The resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The Pawcatuck board of engineers has full authority in the placing of new street lights under the district charter. The meeting adjourned after a ten minutes' session.

Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay for Boys, Arthur Hustwit, master councilor, and Howard McFarland, "Dad," held a business session Monday evening in the Masonic rooms. Following the meeting the officers held a rehearsal for the initiatory degree.

NO APPETITE? MAYBE IT'S WORMS

LOSS OF APPETITE is just one of the symptoms. Worms are much more common than most mothers think. See whether your little one is troubled with: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

COLLECTOR SELLS CLOCK, BUT KEEPS RAT FAMILY

Fred Lake is one who believes in saving things—from a copper tea kettle a couple of hundred years old up to an upright piano. At his home, in the parlor, has stood the oldest and tallest clock in the village. All the works were made by hand. It was sent to the collector of old furniture, Lake from Rerno, thousands of miles across the broad Atlantic. His cousin, Peter Longo, got hold of the old clock about 50 years ago from a neighbor, Billie Pan and Peter shipped it to Mr. Lake about 10 years ago. It has not even a scratch from the long ride on the ocean. The history of the clock was on a long piece of paper like a roll of wall paper, inside the clock. Standing nine feet high and three feet wide, it was made from cedar and has figures of cows cut out with a jacknife; a man on horseback with his whip in the right hand was done with a knife, the blade about 1 1-3 inches long and 3-4 inch wide. This is a beautiful piece of work; even the eyelids of the man are true to life. Every one has heard of the old grandfather clock that stood so many years on the shelf. The hand-made Rerno clock is 225 years old and still runs. Collector Lake is about five feet two inches tall, but he has to stand on a step-ladder to wind it and it runs eight days without winding again. It has been a mystery to all that have seen the clock and over 30,000 people have come from all over the United States to admire it. One car came from California; the owner heard about it from a friend who was touring New England, looking for a place to build a house. This party, Patrick Dunn and family, made the trip especially to see the old clock that is cracking from age and the pretty figures cut with a jackknife. What makes it go, with only a couple of wheels and a big spring? That is being asked all over town. A shelf is inside the clock.

Mr. Dunn said "how much for the old clock?" Mr. Lake replied "well, money cannot buy it! I've had it many years and if I lose the clock it would break my heart! I can sit in a chair that George Washington used when he put on his riding boots and toast my violin cases in front of the fireplace, with my Scott pipe hanging to my knees and holding almost a half-pound of Liberty tobacco and hear that clock tick. If only the clock could talk, what a story Stretch Morrison could get for The Bulletin!" "Well," Mr. Dunn said, "Will $400 take out the grandfather clock?" "No," came back the answer, "well, if you change your mind in the next year or so, here is my card, and that money will stand as the price!"

A week afterward, the house was crowded with people, most of them women, a club named "Do More," women from a small Massachusetts town who help those who have not seen a new hat since the war was over, and children running around in their bare feet, or men still wearing swallow tail coats. This club helps them out until they can do for themselves. The "Do More" club members, 22 in all, come by bus to see the old hand-made clock, talked about almost all over the country. As Mr. Lake was telling the history of the clock, there happened to be a hole in the back of it; and soon out came a rat with six little ones. A parade marched around that room, as the ladies were climbing on top of tables and chairs, screaming "Take them away! Call out the firemen! We are scared!" The mother rat looked up with tears in her eyes, as if to say, we are hungry, ladies! My family hasn't had a cheese sandwich in a long while! We've all been in that clock so long that the ticking of the old clock would put us to sleep! I would steal out at night, trying to get my children something for their stomachs; sometimes I would get a snack but other times get the fisherman's luck—nothing but a rat trap! I got tired in the old clock, so we all came for something to eat. Don't be afraid! keep your seats for we will not hurt anyone!" Owner Lake got the starved visitors a bowl of milk and a bunch of crackers, so the rat and her little ones put in a good feed and when through, wiped off their mouths and seemed to thank the kind man for their eats. so throwing back their ears, forward march! back into the old clock they went. It seemed strange that a rat picked a clock for its home.

The club members were well pleased with their visit and hope to pay the clock owner, Lake, a visit again. Mr. Lake is dry as a herring with his jokes and said, "if any one buys the clock the rat and her family is extra! They don't go with the old clock!" Gee, how the ladies laughed at that one!

The crowds kept coming for a long while. "When over half the world had seen it, I thought it was about time to ship the 225-year-old clock to Mr. Dunn in California!" Mr. Lake said But the rats stayed with me. It would be too long a trip for them. Soon the most talked-of clock in town was bound for the west coast, by rail, over thousands of ties before it reached Mr. Dunn's home. About three weeks afterwards a letter came saying "The clock reached here in fine shape and not a break anywhere; and still it was going! The hands read four o'clock. The whole town here is trying to find out how do those two wheels make the mystery clock go. Many cross-word puzzle sharks are trying to find out how does it run being so old and not a wrinkle and not bald-headed yet! I thank you, Mr. Lake, for selling me one of the oldest clocks in the world today! You can travel by foot or airplane, or auto to find an old clock that stands nine feet and a little over but is no use I came to this small fishing village where 20-pound lobsters are caught or a 14-pound butterfish is caught with a hook and line and found this old-time-piece that the cobwebs were hanging on like grapes on a vine. Where could you find a place like Noank to produce a mystery clock like that? I am the happiest man on the west coast to own a 225-year-old clock that came from Rerno and all done by human hands."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Black Ghost

Sometimes there is a state of mind
That to the truth makes people blind.
—Blacky the Crow.

Two days had passed since Chatterer the Red Squirrel had discovered the black feathers beneath a tree in the Green Forest and up in that tree had seen Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty. He had at once jumped to conclusion that Blacky the Crow had been killed and eaten. The news had spread all through the Green Forest and the Old Orchard and over the Green Meadows. It had spread up through the Old Pasture. Almost every one had believed it. Reddy Fox hadn't. When Reddy first heard the news he had grinned. "What is that black-coated rascal up to now?" he muttered. "I don't believe he is dead any more than I am. When Hooty the Owl catches Blacky the Crow it will be when he is so old that he is too feeble to fly."

But almost everybody else believed the news. And when after two days had passed with no sign or sound of Blacky, even Reddy's doubt was a little shaken. He even went over to the Green Forest and saw the black feathers around the foot of the tree in which Blacky's old nest was. He heard Hooty snapping his bill at him from up above.

"Did you kill Blacky the Crow?" demanded Reddy.

"What business is it of yours?" retorted Hooty. "Do I ask you who you have caught?"

"It is reported everywhere that you killed and ate Blacky," said Reddy. "Personally, I don't believe it. I don't believe you are smart enough."

"How about those feathers down there?" retorted Hooty.

"A few black feathers are no proof," declared Reddy. "Blacky isn't the only Crow. It will take some one smarter than you to catch Blacky."

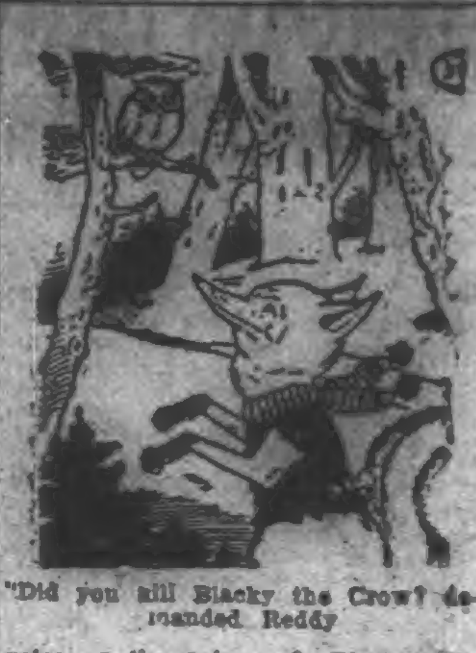
With this Reddy trotted on. However, he wasn't so sure as he pretended to be that Blacky hadn't been caught. Those black feathers around the foot of the tree where Blacky's nest was made it look very much as if it might be that Blacky really was no more.

Over in the Old Orchard Blacky's disappearance was still the chief subject of gossip. It was the third day and no one had seen or heard Blacky. "That proves that it is true," declared Happy Jack Squirrel. "Can any of you remember three days without hearing or seeing Blacky the Crow?"

All shook their heads. None of them could. Strangely enough it didn't pop into one of those little heads that in all those three days they had neither seen nor heard any other Crow. You see, their thoughts were just of Blacky. But it was a fact that not a Crow had been seen or heard for three days.

"Caw, Caw, Caw!" said a harsh voice.

You should have seen those little people scamper! Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel dodged around the trunk of a tree. Yank-Yank the Nuthatch did the same thing. Tommy Tit the Chickadee popped into a bird-house which happened to be near. Peter Rabbit, who had come up from the dear Old Briarpatch, dodged down between the stones of the old stone-wall. If that voice had been the hunting call of Hooty the Owl himself, there couldn't have been a greater fright. You see, every one recognized that voice as the voice of Blacky the Crow.



"Did you kill Blacky the Crow?" demanded Reddy

With frightened eyes they all peered up in the top of an apple-tree. There sat Blacky the Crow. He was just as black as ever. His voice was just as harsh as ever. His eyes were just as bright as ever. But it couldn't be Blacky, because Blacky was dead! It must be Blacky's ghost. Anyway, that is what the little people of the Old Orchard thought.

The Atlas-Ansonia company of 54-62 Grant street, New Haven, was formed on Jan. 1, 1929, by the merger and physical consolidation of The Ansonia Novelty company of Ansonia, Connecticut, and The Atlas Manufacturing company of New Haven. The combined companies occupy a modern factory building on Grant street, New Haven, bordering the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R tracks.

The business of the Atlas Manufacturing company was started about 1896 by the Bradley family of New Haven, the principal products being the manufacture of shelf brackets, coat and hat hooks. The "Bradley" shelf bracket which is known to hardware buyers all over the country was for many years one of their principal products. The business was conducted at the original site on Water street until the latter part of 1928.

The Ansonia Novelty company was incorporated about 1899. The business, started some years before, was principally the manufacturing of thimbles. This company at one time made clocks, scissors, and a number of other items. The business for years was conducted in a five-story stone building in Ansonia, and was moved to New Haven when the physical consolidation with the Atlas Manufacturing company took place in January of 1929.

The products of The Atlas-Ansonia company are light hardware, sewing thimbles, pencil sharpeners, Richard oilers and a number of small miscellaneous items. In addition to these products, the company does a sizeable business in manufacturing metal stampings of all materials, and wire forming to customers' special contracts.

The present officers of the company are: H. L. Wittstein, president and treasurer; E. O'Brien, vice-president; George H. Adams, secretary.

GAINS AND LOSSES ABOUT EVENLY BALANCED IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Speculative enthusiasm waned today and transactions on the stock exchange fell off close to 2,000,000 shares, as professional traders contested undecisively for control of the price movement. Price trends were uncertain throughout most of the day, and at the close, gains and losses were evenly balanced.

The market moved higher during the first hour of trading, under continuation of the short covering which set in late Saturday, renewed liquidation soon appeared, however, and the market turned dull.

Business news and the week end mercantile and industrial reviews indicated that the normal February uncertainty was making itself felt, at levels of activity substantially below this period a year ago. Traders generally were disposed to await signs of the expected spring revival.

Rather unexpectedly, in view of the lower rediscount rates, call money was firmer, renewing again at 4 per cent, but moving up to 4 1-2 before the close. The 4 per cent level evidently failed to attract funds, and banks called about $40,000,000 in loans in preparation for the mid-weekly settlement at the federal reserve. As expected, however, prime commercial paper sagged from 4 3-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. The St. Louis Reserve bank, the only one left on a 5 per cent rediscount rate, cut its rate to 4 1-2.

United States Steel's unfilled tonnage report, as of Jan. 31, showed a gain during the month of 51,517 tons, somewhat less than Wall street estimates, running from 75,000 to 100,000 tons. It was reported that Gulf States Steel would become a part of the Republic group.

Among 1929 earnings reports coming to hand, Goodyear Tire was notable, showing $9.54 per common share, after an appropriation of $1,350,000 for unforeseen contingencies, against $7.81 in 1928. Gillette showed a substantial decline from the previous year, owing to expenses of bringing out its new razor.

Some recent strong spots among the rails ran into profit taking. Canadian Pacific and Lackawanna, lost about 3 and Atchison and Union Pacific 1 point. Several other carriers stocks were in good demand, however, notably Alleghany Corp., Rock Island, Frisco, Nickel Plate and New Haven.

Radio moved up a couple of points in a large turnover, and it was rumored in Wall St. that that stock was again under accumulation by a British group which liquidated a large block just before the market crashed last October. Columbia Graphophone showed sympathetic strength. Aviation shares gave the best performance in weeks, the Curtiss Wright issues gaining about 2 points. General Foods moved up as much, reflecting reports that a profitable contract with Swift & Co., for use of the former's meat freezing process was being negotiated. Auburn Auto gained 7 points, Curtiss Publishing 5 and International Harvester, American Power and Light, Electric Storage Battery and a few others, 3 points or more.

Several of the tobacco shares encountered profit taking, as the expected increase in wholesale prices still failed to appear. The American Tobacco shares B lost 2 and 3 points. Fox Film A slipped back a couple of points in nervous selling in anticipation of the reappearance of the receivership case in federal court tomorrow. Mail order shares were heavy, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck losing a couple of points each. Johns Manville lost 3 points, and U. S. Steel 1.

The commodity markets displayed a somewhat better tone. Wheat futures mounted a cent and more, reflecting reports of crop damage in Texas and colder weather in Europe.

Corn futures gained 1-2 cent and more on reports of crop damage in Illinois. Cotton rallied $1.50 to $2 a bale in further short covering.

Foreign exchanges were featured by heaviness of leading European currencies, in belated response to the lower bank rates abroad. Sterling cables sagged 3-16 to a new low for the year at $4.86 1-4.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Prices on the New York curb exchange were churned about in a rather erratic manner today but the main trend was again upward, with the active public utilities in the forefront of the advance. Several inactive specialties dropped to new low levels for the year, and there were sharp declines in a couple of high priced utilities which ordinarily change hands in small lots. Trading was only moderately heavy in volume.

Allied Power & Light moved up more than 3 points, and retained most of its gain, on buying influenced by stockholders approval of the merger terms recently proposed by Commonwealth & Southern, warrants of which also sold at a new high price. American Gas & Electric, Italian Superpower, Long Island Lighting and Penn-Ohio Edison advanced 3 to 4 1-2 points. Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower gained nearly a point each. But Associated Gas & Electric A was heavy. Duke Power broke 14 points and American Light & Traction 9 on a few sales.

Humble Oil responded to the publication of an excellent 1929 report, showing net income of about $32,000,000 as against less than $20,000,000 last year, by moving up more than 3 points to a new 1930 high at 97 1-2, and closing within a fraction of the top. Standard Oil of Kentucky advanced 1 3-8 and Gulf 1, the other petroleum issues showing little change.

Renewal of selling pressure against Fox Theatres, which closed a point lower, was based on unconfirmed rumors that the new recapitalization plan for Fox Film, to be submitted at a federal court hearing tomorrow involves heavy new financing, and would prove unacceptable to William Fox, increasing the possibility of a receivership.

Recent strength of Aluminum Co of America, which advanced 3 points in light trading today, is attributed to reports that the company was perfecting a new colored aluminum. Dubilier Radio up 1, and Western Air Express, up 1 7-8, were the features of the radio and aviation groups. A sudden spurt of buying in Fageol Motors carried that stock up 1 1-4 points to 3½ a share.

Investment trusts displayed a firm undertone, with Interstate Equities and Ungerleider Financial advancing about a point each. Pennroad was active around the year's high of 16 1-2.

Hartman Tobacco and McMarr Stores were among the sprinkling of issues to fall into new low ground.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Production of standard cotton cloths during January, according to the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, amounted to 323,287,000 yards, or at the rate of 64,657,000 yards per week. Shipments totaled 331,181,000 yards, or 103.5 per cent of production; sales were 292,034,000 yards, or 90.3 per cent of production, and stocks on hand at the end of the month amounted to 462,819,000 yards, a decrease of 1.8 per cent during the month. Unfilled orders on Jan. 31, totaled 391,571,000 yards, a decrease of 9.2 per cent during the month.

Buying of copper was reported today as being in somewhat better volume than a few weeks ago. Indications are, it was said, that buying will increase on domestic account for the remainder of the month, with sales volume developing possibly in March.

Plans for the simplification of the corporate structure of the Commonwealth & Southern System, large public utility holding organization, were given their first formal approval today when stockholders of several of the constituent companies, namely the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, Allied Power & Light Corp., and the Penn-Ohio Edison Co., assented to consolidation of those companies with the Commonwealth Power Corporation and the Southeastern Power & Light Co. The next step will be to obtain approval of the stockholders of the Commonwealth Power Corp and the Southeastern Power & Light Co., which companies are incorporated in Maine, and which will hold meetings for this purpose later in the week.

Directors of the American Woolen Co. have voted to retire $500,000 principal amount of Shawsheen mills (a subsidiary) 7 per cent notes of October, 1931. The company now has retired $1,000,000 of the original $5,500,000 issue.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Seasoned investment bonds lost some of their recent momentum in today's market, which saw decline of more than $3,000,000 in the volume of trading from last Friday's total. Prime rails and United States governments made small changes on diminished turnovers. Domestic industrial and convertible rails showed a little progress, but the average for thirty representative bonds was unchanged.

New Haven convertible 6s moved up 3 1-2 points on the strength of the shares. The issue closed at 133 1-8 for a net gain of 3 1-8. Atchison 4 1-2s advanced half a point to 140, while Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s rose a point. Chicago & North Western 4 3-4s, the liveliest stock feature rail, was up 1-4.

Fractional improvement in Canadian National 4 1-2s, 1968, New York Central 5s, Virginian 5s and Southern Railway 5s was matched by small downward movements in other high grade carrier obligations, notably Union Pacific first 4s, Southern Railway General 4s, Reading General 4 1-2s and Lake Shore 3 1-2s. Louisville & Nashville (Southern "Monon") 4s gained a point, and Missouri, Kansas & Texas prior lien "B" 4s rose 2. Small sales of Morris & Essex 3 1-2s, coincident with the over-subscription of the same road's $25,000,000 offering of 5s and 4 1-2s, were made at a concession of 3 1-2 points.

Trading in the industrials was not particularly brisk, but it carried Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s and Lackawanna Steel 5s up more than a point and lifted rubber company bonds to slightly higher levels.

The utilities rested. American Telephone 5s of 1965 held just above 101 but were noticeably less active. The same company's convertible 4 1-2s lost 7-8 on the day while International Telephone's share privilege 4 1-2 gained 1. Public Service Electric & Gas 4 1-2s, when issued, moved in some volume at around 95 1-2.

In the foreign section, Cuba Republic 5 1-2s lost a point to 99 1-4 on announcement of a $40,000,000 offering of fifteen-year public works bonds bearing the same coupon rate. The loan is to be sold tomorrow at 96. Changes in leading European government obligations were of a minor nature. The French 7 1-2s and 7s each eased 3-8. Australian 5s and 4 1-2s and New South Wales 5s of 1958 improved on the statement issued by Australia's commissioner general in New York in denial of London reports that the commonwealth might postpone interest payments on overseas loans. The statement, issued last Saturday, also said that Australia could take care of internal loan maturities without having recourse to foreign markets, as had been rumored.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—(AP)—Announcement of a much greater decrease of the United States wheat visible supply than was looked for helped give decided strength to wheat values today.

For the last week the shrinkage of domestic stocks of wheat in sight proved to be 1,510,000 bushels in excess of the falling off a year ago and this circumstance led to a lively outburst of buying. Persistent slackness of export business in North American wheat today was virtually ignored.

Wheat quotations in Chicago closed firm, 3-4c to 7-8c advanced, oats 1-4c to 3-8c up, and provisions 5c to 12c down.

Adding to the upward impetus today of wheat values here were European advices telling of anxiety because of widespread freezing temperatures threatening crop damages especially in France. Largely in this connection the Liverpool market was higher, and wheat in France showed a jump of 3 3-4 francs a bushel since Saturday, a rise of 9 3-4 francs since Thursday.

Meanwhile domestic winter wheat prospects were also reported as less promising, with numerous complaints at hand from parts of Ohio and Indiana as well as Illinois and Missouri territory adjacent to St. Louis.

Highest prices of the day in the Chicago wheat market were reached during the last few minutes of trading, but at no time did setbacks today go more than a trifle below Saturday's finish. In some quarters, the general upward trend of values was associated with steps which the federal farm board is taking to establish a grain trade stabilization body.

Word that a charter for such a stabilization corporation has been filed at Wilmington, Del., was not received in Chicago, however, until after today's wheat trading was at an end. Earlier, considerable notice was given to statements made public here by a large Chicago grain company that President Hoover's attention had been called to his message of April 16 containing these words: "No governmental agency should engage in the buying and selling and price fixing of products, for such courses can only lead to bureaucracy and domination."

Corn and oats prices tightened up in response to wheat market strength. Besides, reports indicated that the corn crop movement will not be as heavy as in general was expected a short while ago.

Provisions acted slightly easier on account of commission house selling of lard.

Closing bids and offers: Wheat—Mar. 118 1-8; 119 1-2; May 120 1-2 to 5-8, 123 3-4 to 7-8; July 121 1-8 to 5-8, 124 3-4 to 7-8; Sept. 123 1-2, 127. Corn—Mar. 4bids 88 5-8; May 92 3-8, 93 1-2 to 1-2a5-8; July 94 1-8, 95 1-4 to 3-8.

ARMY-NOTRE DAME GAME TO BE PLAYED AT CHICAGO NEXT FALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—The Army-Notre Dame football game, one of the high spots of the gridiron season is to be played at Soldiers field, Chicago, this year.

At the request of Notre Dame officials, headed by the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president, representatives of the United States Military academy today agreed to transfer the battle to Chicago for the 1930 season only. The 1931 and 1932 games, already contracted for, are to be played in New York as usual.

In a statement announcing the transfer, Father O'Donnell said the change had been made solely because Notre Dame had insisted upon it in an effort to lighten the Indiana team's arduous schedule for 1930. Under the original schedule Notre Dame would have come to New York to meet the Army Nov. 29 and then would have been forced to entrain immediately for the west coast to meet Southern California at Los Angeles Dec. 6. Players on the team would have had to miss more than two weeks of classes.

With the game transferred to Chicago the South Bend players will miss no classes for the Army game. Father O'Donnell said the Saturday the game is played will be declared a school holiday at Notre Dame.

Army officials were reluctant to transfer the game to Chicago because it has become a New York fixture and the climax of the Cadets' schedule. They made clear that they agreed to the change only because Father O'Donnell asked for it. Pres. O'Donnell said all other possible solutions to Notre Dame's difficulties had been investigated. It was suggested, for instance, that the Southern California game be moved back to Dec. 13, if the Cardinals were agreeable, but this was rejected on the score that it would have involved a post-season game, in violation of western conference rules, under which Notre Dame operates. The later date also would involve an even longer loss of time from classes because of the incidence of the Christmas holidays, beginning about Dec. 18.

When these facts had been laid before Army officials they reluctantly agreed to the change.

Answering possible questions as to why the game was transferred to Chicago and not to the new Notre Dame stadium, President O'Donnell said that "West Point belongs to the nation," and that, when the Cadets play, "the largest number possible should have an opportunity to see the game." Soldiers field will accommodate about 75,000 more persons than does the Notre Dame stadium.

A short time after the last Army-Notre Dame game last November, some unpleasantness developed over the alleged failure of New York police to provide a sufficient escort for the Cadet football team on its way to the Yankee stadium the day of the game. Police Commissioner Grover Whalen denied this but there were some threats that the game would be removed from New York. There were intimations that dissatisfaction over the allotment of tickets had created some ill feeling. There was no hint today, however, that the transfer of the game was for any other reason than that outlined in President O'Donnell's statement. In fact, representatives of both institutions were emphatic in the statement that the game was transferred only to lighten Notre Dame's football burden.

LOMBARD WINS FIRST LAP OF 90-MILE DOG DERBY

LACONIA, N. H., Feb. 10—(AP)—Roland Lombard, young musher from Raymond, Me., today gave sled-dog enthusiasts something to wonder about, when he drove his "four-an-a-quarter dog" hitch over a rugged 30-mile course in the best net time made on the first leg of the 90-mile New England sled dog club championship event. This race, a three day event, is a handicap affair, something never before attempted in the sport.

The Maine boy drove four Eskimo huskies and the quarter dog was his gritty "Buckie," a tiny collie, the first of his breed to participate in such an important race. This hitch action appeared as odd as four elephants being paced by an under-sized zebra. Frequently on the rough going, Lombard carried "Buckie" in his arms to save his stamina.

Lombard had a 33 minute start on Emile St. Goddard, of The Pas, Man., recent winner of the 33 mile Ottawa sweepstakes and one of the best mushers now racing, who was the scratch man. St. Goddard mushed over the snowy hills and dales in two hours, 25 minutes and 30 seconds, the best actual time of the first leg, which gave him fourth place in the net standing.

The Maine boy's net time was two hours, nine minutes and 21 seconds, more than seven minutes faster than that of Georges Chevrette, of Quebec, who drove the six hitch greyhound team of R. C. Marquis, of Quebec.

CLAIMS SHYMA MANAGER IS WAITING FOR BOARD TO ACT

SPORTS ED:—The manager of the Shyma club must lie awake thinking of excuses to offer in a vain attempt to elude the challenge I have so openly flung at him and his array of basketball luminaries. Judging from the contents of his letters I gather this much, that the board of strategy have not reached the decision on the matter and Mgr. Sullivan is standing by waiting for the final word to act, in the meanwhile busying himself thinking up any conceivable alibi to make the fans think he is the "BOSS."

Mgr. Sullivan says he would like to know "who is this board of strategy." Well, he ought to know if anybody does as he is taking orders from them and ought to be well acquainted with every one of them.

As I stated before, if the Shyma club wishes to accept the challenge they can readily get in touch with me through this paper. So now, Mgr. Sullivan, either accept and let the outcome of the game on the basketball court determine the better team, or reject and let the fans in this section be well aware of the fact that the Shyma club are afflicted with a serious case of cold feet and that they play a good game on the sports page of The Norwich Bulletin.

What do you say, Mgr. Sullivan, try and take some of the conceit out of my team of world beaters and so-called state champs.

Mgr. of the Army-Navy B. B. Team.

Pauthus Sold to Eagles

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 10—(AP)—Roland Pauthus, former captain and defense man with the Rhode Island Reds, was sold this afternoon to the New Haven Eagles, according to announcement by Jean Dubuc, president of the Reds. He left here today for Philadelphia, where the Eagles play tomorrow night.

A Challenge

The Danielson Radio Five wishes to issue a challenge for basketball games with Eastern Connecticut semi-pro teams to be played out of town. Acceptances may be addressed to Edward Mitchell, Center St., Danielson, or Tel. 83-2.

A youngster don't have to be very old before he gets that gang spirit and courage.

Great is the courage of the boy when he has his gang with him but it suddenly vanishes when he is alone.

I had an instance of this brought right to my doorstep yesterday afternoon. And it was really laughable in a way.

I was reading when I heard a pounding up the back stairs and a small plaintive voice calling my name. And there was a note of terror in it too.

Going to the back door I found a youngster about eight years old pounding madly on the door. On the stairs a few steps down was two more youngsters of the same age and at the foot were half a dozen others.

As soon as the youngster at the door saw me he turns to the others and throwing out his chest says "All right, you kids if you want to fight come on here and I'll show you."

There was no takers of his challenge. Turning to see if I was still there he again hurls his defy at the gang. Then one youngster yells "Why don't you come down here and we'll fight."

"Yeah," comes back my new friend, "I come down and all youse guys will jump on me. I know youse. You come up here and I'll fight you one at a time." But he'd made sure I was still in back of him before he issued his challenge.

"I'd come up only I got my books with me" pipes one of the gang. "Put 'em down" says the youngster. "I can't it's all muddy down here," says the boy on the ground.

"You're a bunch of 'fraid cats" says the youngster and his tones fairly dripped scorn. "You're a 'fraid cat yourself or you wouldn't be up there with a woman," is the answer from the youngster at the foot of the stairs.

Finally after a few gestures intended to reflect upon the character of the youngsters the gang departed. After a few minutes the youngster turns to me and says "Gee, I could lick any one of them guys alone but they would all jump on me."

Young America in the making. But just the same it was a mighty event for the youngster.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE ?

(Second of a number of articles on local baseball of other years).

Do you remember Ira Plank?

Ira pitched one of his great games on Sunday, August 11, 1907, the details of which are herewith shown. Ira stopped the Springfield club in a Connecticut league game that day, allowing eight hits but keeping them well scattered.

Springfield scored its lone run in the first on two singles and a stolen base but in the third Norwich took the lead and was never headed, by scoring two runs. Curtiss fumbled and then threw badly on Plank's easy grounder and singles by Pastor and Duffy followed. Result, two big runs. The last run came in the fifth on two singles and a sacrifice. Sensational catches of flies were contributed by Rising and Waite.

An Explanation

Sport Editor:—Would you be kind enough to allow me some valuable space in your sport column to straighten out the misunderstanding brought about by the articles that have lately appeared in The Bulletin concerning the Army-Navy Shyma B. B. teams. Some were led to believe that Army-Navy club was meant and that a hostile feeling existed between both clubs. It is quite contrary as a good spirit of fellowship reigns and that the team in question is so-called for reasons of their own.

An Interested Member of Both Clubs.

FAST PRELIMINARY FOR SHYMA CARD

Perhaps the only bout that will be productive of scientific boxing on the Shyma club boxing card for next Friday evening at Parish hall will be the six round preliminary. The other four bouts on the card which includes three eight round star attractions and a four round opener will be pure and simple slugging contests.

This six round preliminary brings together Romeo Dubois of New Haven and Rene Peloquin of Danielson. In Dubois the fans will see one smart little boxer who knows all the tricks of the ring. Although he does not hit with any great power he is very interesting to watch and is throwing gloves in his opponent's face every minute. Rene Peloquin, well known to local fans, is another clever boxer but packs a harder punch than the New Haven boy. Peloquin will be remembered when he fought here several winters ago in the amateurs with great success. Since entering the pro ranks he has been going good and should give a good account of himself Friday night.

This preliminary will give the fans the necessary appetite for the three eight-round slugging matches that will follow. Little real science can be expected in any of the star bouts but there will be plenty of action to satisfy the most blood-thirsty fan.

The opening bout between Young Guoin of Taftville and Young Westphal of New London should be one of those bouts where anything can happen. The bout marks the Taftville lad's first appearance in the ring while Young Westphal has had very little professional experience. Guoin is a hard hitter and has been training faithfully for the past few weeks.

SLATTERY BEATS SCOZZA TO BECOME WORLD'S CHAMPION IN N. Y. STATE

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUDITORIUM, Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 10—(AP)—Debonair Jimmy Slattery, Irish pride of Buffalo's famous Ward One, rallied from the verge of a knockout tonight to win a brilliant fifteen-round victory over Lou Scozza, his home town enemy, and with it the recognition of the New York state athletic commission as the new light-heavyweight champion of the world.

Beaten once by Tommy Loughran, the retired champion, in a title test, the dancing Irishman came into his own as 11,000 of the Buffalo faithful, one of the largest crowds ever to see a boxing match here, cheered him out of the valley of almost certain defeat in the thirteenth round and on to a victory that was clean and decisive. Although one judge voted the match a draw, Referee Jim Crowley and the second judge gave Slattery a decisive margin. In the opinion of newspapermen, Slattery won nine rounds, Scozza five and one was even.

The battered Scozza, a strong, awkward Italian youth whose fame is mostly local, gave a splendid display of courage in the thirteenth session. With one eye completely closed, the other badly cut and blood dripping from a wound in his forehead, Scozza suddenly changed his tactics, leaped frantically upon Slattery with wild overhand swings and in a twinkling changed the aspect of the battle entirely.

One right thudded on the startled Slattery's cheek and a left flashed clean to his chin. Jimmy's eyes closed and he reeled backward into the ropes, his arms helpless at his sides. Scozza tore into him with both arms flailing and Slattery topple toward the floor.

As Jimmy went down, one arm slipped over the middle rope and his body fell over the strand. He hung there like a dummy tossed over a fence while the referee tried to keep Scozza from him and the timekeeper tried to count. Jimmy came back at the count of four but was in bad shape.

With the utmost difficulty, Slattery managed to clinch and wobble through the remainder of the round. It appeared as though the youthful Scozza, wild and over anxious, could have finished the slender veteran with one solid punch but Lou refused to hold his fire long enough to take careful aim. Instead he poured leather on the tottering Jimmy, and not only missed the vulnerable spots but also his sole chance of winning the championship.

Slattery had a difficult time of it in the fourteenth session until the cob webs left in his brain by the beating of the previous round cleared. Once Jimmy regained a grip on himself, however, he took every advantage of Scozza's wildness, shooting punches through wide openings and tying up the Italian youngster in frequent clinches.

Until the wild scramble of the thirteenth round, there was none too much action and excitement. Slattery, the dancing wraith of the ring, flitted about the inexperienced Scozza, shooting long lefts in a steady stream to Lou's head. In close, where Scozza likes best to battle, Jimmy managed to block most of Lou's shots but did take enough punches to leave his left side a huge crimson blot.

Slattery's punches, not heavy but frequent, started a cut under Scozza's left eye as early as the third round, a cut that widened steadily. A round or two later a "mouse" grew under the other eye and a stream of blood started down from Scozza's cut forehead.

After weathering Scozza's main blast in the fourteenth, Slattery made a splendid rally in the fifteenth round, carrying the fight to the played-out youngster, and left Scozza at the close in a battered condition. The decision was popular with the crowd that paid $58,000 to see the milling. Slattery weighed 166 3-5; Scozza 169 1-2.

KILLINGLY HIGH PLAYS PUTNAM QUINTET TODAY

This afternoon the Killingly high school basketball team will go to Putnam to play their second game with the State Trade quintet. In the first game earlier in the season Killingly had little trouble in defeating the State Trade five, by the score of 64 to 2.

Playing this game on the opponents' floor may make quite a big difference to the Killingly team but they will play hard to win although they will enter the game a big favorite. With a win over Tourtellotte on Friday Killingly ended the first half of their season with seven victories and three defeats and will attempt to start the second half off with a win over the State Trade school team.

Killingly will start Slowik and Szafranski or Young at forwards; F. Dascoll at center; Wood and Young or Szafranski at guards; while the Trade School will probably call on H. Young and Welsh for forwards; Rudowsky, center; Ryzewski and Dodge for guards. The game starts at 3:00 o'clock in the Putnam gymnasium.

On Friday afternoon Killingly will play Millis high school of Millis, Mass., in the Killingly gymnasium at 3:30 o'clock.

HUNTER REACHES FINALS IN CASINO TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Frank Hunter, newly crowned national indoor tennis singles champion, advanced to the final round of the Heights Casino Invitation tournament today, defeating J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., in the semi-final round, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3. Hunter will clash in the finals with the winner of the Fritz Mercur-Harry Brunie match scheduled for tomorrow. The finals will be held Wednesday.

Only one match was played in doubles today, Berrine Rockafellow and Merrit Cutler, of New York, national champions, eliminating Ned Herdron and Watson Washburn in the third round, 6-1, 6-4.

YALE BATTERY CANDIDATES HOLD THEIR FIRST WORKOUT

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 10—(AP)—Battery candidates for the Yale nine held their first workout in the Cox field gymnasium here today, with Coach Joe Wood to instruct them.

Not all those expected appeared today, including Tom Taylor, sophomore left hander, and three of the best candidates for the behind-the-bat berth, Fred Linehan, last year's first string sub, Joe Maine and Harry Jones. Among the pitching candidates Wendell Thompson, Ned Jennison and Ogden Miller, were absent. They are all expected out later.

Candidates for other positions will come out in two weeks.

WILSON TO APPEAR AS DEFENDANT IN $20,000 SUIT

CHICAGO, Feb. 10—(AP)—Hack Wilson, the pugnacious Cub outfielder, entered Chicago peacefully today only to be reminded by the law that one of his fistic outbursts may cost him $20,000 or almost as much as he is expected to get for knocking out home runs next season.

He was ordered to appear in superior court tomorrow morning to answer the $20,000 damage suit filed by Edward Young, a milkman, whom he attacked at Wrigley field in 1928 for making "insulting remarks" to him and his ability as a baseball player.

SANDWINA KAYOES HANSEN IN THE FIRST ROUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Ted Sandwina, a two-handed heavyweight puncher from Sioux City, stopped Knute Hansen's New York come-back tonight with a sensational one-round knockout at the St. Nicholas arena. It was Hansen's first appearance in a New York ring since his one round knockout of Phil Scott nearly a year ago.

Hansen lacking everything but a game heart, hit the floor six times for varied counts before he finally took the count in 1:49. The Racine, Wis., heavyweight, who has been frequently mentioned as a worthy opponent for Primo Carnera was on the floor just 15 seconds of the time he spent trying to evade Sandwina's hard swinging rights and powerful left hooks.

DOZEN PLAYERS HAVE NOT SIGNED NEW YORK CONTRACTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—Just one dozen of the 75 players on the rosters of the two New York baseball clubs remain unsigned to 1930 contracts.

E. G. Barrow, the sphinx like secretary of the Yankees, today broke a long silence to say that "all but four" of the Yankees are in the baseball fold. The identity of two of the recalcitrants remains in mystery. Babe Ruth is on record with his refusal to sign and Ken Williams, recently acquired from the Boston Red Sox, has not yet had time to receive his contract in far away Grant's Pass, Ore., and return it to New York.

Barrow said Waite Hoyt's holdout was very much exaggerated as the pitcher signed a contract "a week ago." It was suggested that perhaps the other two might be Tom Zachary, North Carolina farmer, who won 12 games without a loss last season, and Earle Combs, the Kentucky Colonel, a fleet outfielder.

James J. Tierney, secretary of the Giants, announced that Melvin Ott, the boy wonder from Louisiana, and Bill Walker, left handed pitcher of East St. Louis, Ills., had signed contracts, leaving eight Giants unsigned. The players remaining to be heard from include Larry Benton, and Jack Scott, pitchers, Bob O'Farrell, catcher; Bill Terry, Fred Lindstrom and Travis Jackson, infielders, and Ed Roush and Fred Leach, outfielders.

GOVERNORS NAME TENTATIVE DATES FOR HOCKEY PLAYOFFS

NEW YORK, Feb. 10—(AP)—The board of governors of the National Hockey league set tentative dates for the playoffs for the league championship and for the Stanley cup, emblem of the world's professional championship, today, after the New York Americans and Detroit Cougars withdrew their protests of games played here.

The dates chosen for the league championship playoff, consisting of the best three out of five games between the teams finishing first in the two groups are March 20, 22, 25, 27 and 29 and 30. The first two games will be played on the home ice of the International group winner.

The second place teams of the two divisions will meet in a series of two games, total goals to count, on March 20 and 22 or 25. The third place teams will meet in a similar series on the same dates. The alternate dates for these two series were set because of the probability that Montreal's two teams, the Maroons and Les Canadiens, will finish in the money. They both use the Montreal forum for their home games and provision had to be made for possible conflicts in dates.

The winners of the second and third place playoffs are scheduled to meet in a series of the best two out of three games on March 25, 27 and 29 or 30 for the right to enter the finals for the Stanley cup against the winner of the first place series.

The final playoff to decide the world's championship is scheduled for April 1, 3 and 5 or 6.

The board rejected a proposal to increase the waiting team's share in the gate receipts and left over an application from the Canadian Professional league, a four club circuit consisting of Galt, Guelph, Brantford and Kitchener, for affiliation with the major league to be acted upon at the next meeting.

SHYMAS VS. DUDLEY A. C. TONIGHT

The fans that journey to the Parish hall, Taftville, will without doubt witness the best game of the season when the Dudleys of Webster, Mass., come to town to clash with the local Shymas tonight. The Webster boys are reputed to be about the fastest club in Massachusetts and the local boys are meeting their hardest test when they meet this fast aggregation of basketball players, who are well known to local fans as they played here a few seasons ago representing the St. Joseph A. C. of Webster. In a letter received during the week by the local mentor the manager of the Webster boys was willing to bring his team on a win or lose basis so that it is plainly seen that the locals are in for a busy evening. The visitors will send the following boys into the fray: F. Pizzetti, J. Twardzik, W. Grzyb, F. Iglowski, W. Twardzik, and the Kujawski brothers. The manager also stated that their center man for this game will probably be a deaf and dumb basketball player who is without a doubt rated as one of the best in that section of the state.

The Shymas have been hard at practice during the past week and are in perfect shape for this game when they take the floor in the following order: Rabbit Gauthier will be at left forward with Lefty Dugas as his running mate. These two boys are fast turning out to be one of the best scoring combinations in amateur basketball. Pete Finn will be at the toss-up position while the backcourt will be taken care of by Lemieux, and Jim Murphy, S. Finn, Peltier and Labarre.

For the preliminary the Shyma Juniors will stack up against Tate Pepin's All Stars in what should prove to be an interesting game.

NORWICH INN IS PROGRESSING WELL, 35 GUEST ROOMS NEARLY COMPLETE

During the past week there were but two permits granted by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft, both permits being granted to Meyer Simon of 469 Hamilton avenue for a garage and the addition of a veranda to his home at that address. The permits were as follows:

To Meyer Simon to erect and construct a one-car garage 18x20 feet at 469 Hamilton avenue. The estimated cost is $40.

To Meyer Simon to add a veranda to present frame house at 469 Hamilton avenue. The veranda will be 4x38 feet. The estimated cost is $25.

Although the weather was not the best for building activities during the week local contractors made considerable progress on buildings now in the process of construction. The majority of the local builders have plenty of work ahead and during the slack period caused by inclement weather are making alterations to present buildings as well as doing considerable interior work.

At the Norwich Inn, Peck-McWilliams Co., contractors, are bringing the work along at an exceptionally favorable pace. Thirty-five of the guest rooms at the inn are ready for the wood trim which will be started today. The plasterers have completed work on the dining porch and are now working on the first floor. The hung ceiling is practically complete. Plasterers are putting on the rough plaster on the third floor and next week will start the hard finish work. The doors are in the building and the trim is being run in the shop of the contractors.

The forms for the foundation of the Norton Memorial gymnasium have been set in place and the work of pouring the cement will start this week by Contractor W. S. Spencer, who has the contract.

On Fanning avenue, the house being erected by P. F. Sweeney, contractor, is fast nearing completion, the plasterers having finished work last week. There are several other buildings on the avenue that are nearly completed.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were six sales of real estate in Norwich, one less than during the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $52,970 and $46,169.

In New London during the past week there were five sales of real estate, a decrease of four sales from the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $53,770 and $45,878.

NEW LONDON

That local building is in a decided slump was indicated this week when only four building permits were applied for and granted at the regular meeting of the city council Monday. Of these only one was for a new house, Isadore Sarinsky being given permission to erect a one family house 28x32 feet with a breakfast nook six by eight feet, in Plant street.

The other three permits provided permission for the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company to erect a bill board of steel frame construction at 286 Bank street, John Szeiglewski to rebuild the building at 15 Atlantic street and Anthony Benvenuti to erect a frame addition of small dimensions to property in Smith street.

Since the last council meeting Building Inspector Gunn has received no new applications showing that little if any building is contemplated in the city at the present time.

Local contractors accept the situation as the usual winter slump, however, and are optimistic in looking forward to early spring building activities.

The H. Wales Lines company made steady progress this week despite the poor weather on the construction of the children's annex to the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals in Ocean avenue. The walls are now all up and the roof is being enclosed. The new addition is 47 by 98 feet of concrete, steel and brick construction and will be three stories high above the ground floor. Its design will harmonize in detail with the main hospital building and balance the maternity ward on the other side of the main building.

Work has been started on a new residence being built for E. W. Rice, Jr., at Fishers Island. The new house will be U-shaped, 23 by 62 feet in the center and with wings 24 by 48 feet and 22 by 24 feet respectively. The left wing will contain three chambers and an inclosed porch and the right wing, or servant's wing, will have the garage on the first floor and two chambers and bath on the second floor. In the central portion there will be the main living quarters including the living room, dining room, reception hall, chambers, etc. The house will be of frame construction with a shingled exterior and roof. The baths will have rubber tiled floors and the heating will be by steam.

Favorable progress was noted this week on the construction of the administration building being built by the H. Wales Lines company for the Connecticut college on the college campus about where the old tennis courts were located. The new building is being constructed of concrete, steel and granite. Its interior will be divided into offices and class rooms.

ROCKVILLE

The permit has been issued subject to approval by the public works committee of the city council for the erection of a store by John Bonan between the Rockville Diner, of which he is the proprietor, and the Lavin Block. The proposed building will be 8-20 feet, one story high.

The contract has been awarded for the erection of a three-story brick addition to the American Mill for the Hockanum Mills Co. of this city. The enlargement will be of mill construction, with I-beams, steel sash and slag roof.

WESTERLY

During the first week in February Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits:

Feb. 5. Joseph Kessler, Benson avenue, Misquamicut. Erect bungalow, 24 feet by 30 feet.

Feb. 4. Frank Vitallino, Joseph street, Central Park. Build two-car garage on Joseph street, 18 feet by 32 feet.

Feb. 4. River Bend Cemetery Co. house, Beach street. Reshingle house with asbestos shingles.

Feb. 4. Frank J. Coon, Potter Hill road. Erect garage, 12 feet by 18 feet on Potter Hill road.

Feb. 4. Guiseppe Bovacque, 145 Canal street. Construct baywindow in front of Canal street house and change location of front door.

Feb. 4. Miss Effie Means, 186 High street. Install interior bathroom.

GRAVEL DRIVES RESIST STORM DAMAGE BEST

Many a home owner has promised himself that, instead of connecting the garage with the street with twin strips of concrete, he would beautify his place with a "musical driveway." By that he meant a rolled driveway of earth and stone with a top covering of screened traprock. It makes a handsome and durable drive, but it has one drawback; torrential rains frequently cause them to wash down literally to bedrock. That means resurfacing and resurfacing costs money.

There is, however, a way of safeguarding such drives again washing and of overcoming the element of flying dust—another objection raised against these "musical driveways." This is done by clearing the surface completely of weeds, rolling it level, and then by applying a special oil-like preparation which, when dried and hardened, forms a surface virtually as durable as concrete. Before the special preparation is allowed to set, however, the surface is covered with sufficient fine gravel or screened traprock to cover the binder preparation. Then, when it hardens, the roadway will be as hard and permanent as one would wish and a torrent of surface water could not make the least inroads on it.

It is not an expensive process and is so simple that it can be done in a single day. The only implements necessary are a coarse brush, a roller and a can with a prepared spout for pouring on the anchoring preparation. In many cities roofing contractors have added this type of work to their list of activities and have so simplified the process as to reduce the cost to a minimum.

MODELS USED TO HELP HOUSEWIFE ARRANGE KITCHEN

If the average women were asked to design a kitchen to fit her exact needs just what would she put in it? That sounds like a vain question because many would say that it is next to impossible to get exactly what one wants in the way of kitchens, due to structural requirements and all that sort of thing.

Perhaps that is so, but then again perhaps it isn't. At least, modern conditions make it possible for a woman to outfit her kitchen with exactly the combination of kitchen cabinets she most desires, and it doesn't mean tearing the house apart to do it, nor does it mean a great deal of special cabinet construction. Cabinets are made today in a variety of sizes and they are made in these many sizes so that any woman with a kitchen to equip may pick and choose, fit and refit, until she has exactly the combination she desires.

One firm at least has outfitted its agents with an ingenious little miniature kitchen in cardboard, together with thick cardboard patterns of its entire list of cabinets. It is possible to lay out the miniature kitchen in accordance with any measurements and any set of circumstances. One can place sink, stove or refrigerator wherever these essentials may chance to be placed in one's kitchen, establish the exact location of doorways and windows, scale the whole thing with mathematical accuracy, and then fit the remaining spaces with model cabinets of one type or another until the desired combination has been achieved. After that it is only necessary to order the cabinets, wait for delivery and then install them.

This system applies even with odd-shaped kitchens, the object of the plan being to impress housewives with the fact that it is not necessary to reconstruct a kitchen completely to take advantage of cabinet equipped.

FBERUARY GOOD MONTH TO MODERNIZE BATHROOM

February is an ideal time for the modernizing of the bathroom or the installation of additional bathroom facilities because at this time of the year plumbing contractors are not yet busy with the work of estimating on new construction which will get under way in the spring.

It is well worth while to modernize the bathroom in old, well-built and well-located houses. Not only will such modernizing add immeasurably to the comfort and convenience of the occupants of the house, but it will considerably increase the resale value of the building.

The typical bathroom of the Rooseveltian era has a tub on legs, a wall-hung lavatory, and a closet with a high tank. In most cases the home-owner is spending money to keep the antiquated toilet in working order. The housewife finds it extremely difficult to clean under the tub. Many lavatories which have given valiant service for 10 or 15 years are chipped, their nickel plated fittings are tarnished, they have worked loose from the wall, and their rubber stoppers are covered with germs.

The usual procedure is to modernize such a bathroom by the installation of a built-in tub with a shower-bath, a pedestal lavatory and a modern syphon jet noiseless toilet either with a low tank or a flush valve. Usually a medicine cabinet with a venetian mirror is installed as well as a recessed toilet paper holder with a recessed soap holder over the tub. Grab bars are frequently installed at the tub.

Not infrequently the home-owner in modernizing his bathroom will have the radiator placed behind a grill in the wall. This is especially desirable if the bathroom is small, say 5 by 5 or 5 by 6. Most of the older bathrooms, however, are not small because years ago the tendency was to make all rooms larger than they are being built at present. The home-owner who has a bathroom which measures 8 by 10, or 10 by 10, is fortunate because a bathroom of this generous size can have a built-in wardrobe. A bathroom is very convenient as a dressing room. The use of the bathroom as a dressing room has followed naturally from the unwillingness of people to dress in cool bedrooms in the morning. Hence, the evolution of the little white bathroom stool into a full-fledged chair or chaise-longue.

Whether white fixtures or colored fixtures are to be installed is purely a matter of personal taste. There is about 20 per cent difference in price. Some home-owners prefer colored fixtures with harmonizing or contrasting floors and wall treatments, while others prefer to use white fixtures and get their others in the wall decorations. Still others use colored accessories only.

TREES HAVE EFFECT ON REALTY VALUES

Joseph P. Day, nationally known real estate operator, in a recent letter to the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories, said: "To sum up my feelings about trees from the viewpoint of one with a good many years of real estate experience, I would give this advice to every prospective purchaser of residential property. If possible, buy property with good trees on it and do not be afraid to spend money to plant trees and to repair and preserve the trees already on the place. As long as you live in such a home, your life will be happier for the presence of trees, and if you ever wish to sell, the trees are going to make it easier for you to find a purchaser."

CONVENIENT LAYOUT FOR A SEWING ROOM

Modern kitchens are not the only rooms in which wall cabinets can be employed to particular advantage. The House Beautiful, in its Christmas number, offers plans for a sewing room which should solve virtually all problems concerning the storage of blankets, sheets, towels and the like, as well as the temporary storage of soiled linen and clothing until the next washday rolls around. The magazine's household expert has worked it out quite as systematically as those firms which specialize in the manufacture of numerous wall kitchen cabinet arrangements.

Beginning with the floor level, there are shelved compartments for the heavier articles such as blanket, pillows and puffs, while above these is an open shelf for folding or the convenient handling of linen. Over this shelf are other cabinets for the smaller lighter articles, while at the very top are convenient spaces for miscellaneous storage.

On the opposite wall is a similar arrangement for sewing materials, articles calling for mending, wrapping paper, the cardboard boxes which 9 out of 100 women save from Christmas against possible needs.

At the window end of the room is th sewing machine, while flanking the windows are smaller drawer cabinets for sewing materials, conveniently arranged to invite order among materials which without some such arrangement naturally invite disorder. All this, of course, is merely a suggested layout. The plan can be altered to meet any need, or to fit any space which lends itself development as a sewing room.

RECOMMEND USE OF CHINESE ELM

The Chinese elm is becoming widely used as a street and ornamental tree according to scientists at the Bartlett Tree Research laboratories, Stamford, Ct. This elm is a hardy tree and has proven itself able to withstand extremes of soil and climatic conditions. Dr. Gates of the Kansas Agricultural college recently declared the Chinese elm excellently adapted to the prairie regions where the climate is too severe and droughty for the successful growth of our well known American elm.

The Chinese believed that cups made of rhinoceros horn were poison-proof, because it was thought that the rhinoceros ate poisonous plants and was immunized against the toxic effects.

ENGLISH ARCHITECTURE PREDOMINATES

This English cottage is distinguished in its low roof lines and central chimney. The square design allows for the most economical type of construction and provides a maximum amount of area in relation to the exterior walls.

Particularly desirable is the accessibility of various rooms from the hallways. On the second floor, each of the three bedrooms and the bath open directly on a hall, which occupies a minimum of space. On the first floor, the kitchen and living room are reached from the front hall, while the dining room can be entered from either room.

Stairs to the basement are from the kitchen, which is large, conveniently arranged and provided with cross ventilation, as are most of the other rooms.

For a combination of economical construction, inviting appearance and enjoyable living arrangement, this home is most practical. Rooms are large, pleasant and restful.

Brick or variegated stone is recommended for exterior walls with gray-weathered wood for the front door. The center terrace in the rear may be open or closed.

Construction costs will vary according to prevailing wage scale and grade of materials. An average estimate for cities of medium size is $7,000, including heating and plumbing. It is lower in smaller cities.

SHADE TREES OFTEN ALLOWED TO STARVE

Slow starvation is the doom of many shade or lawn trees which lack moisture and proper minerals in the soil around the roots, according to F. W. Dean, extension forester for the Ohio State university.

Shade trees need attention the year 'round, especially in the spring and fall. In the spring the mulch Mr. Dean points out, should be spaded into the soil and the ground under the tree, kept well cultivated during the growing season.

"Commercial fertilizers high in nitrogen and phosphorus should be applied under the trees in the early spring," he says. "Tree diseases and inability to resist insect pests come directly from impaired vigor of trees suffering from lack of proper soil conditions during the growing season. If the leaves colored up and fell from the tree early last fall, it means that the tree needs rejuvenation."

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION

Money spent for fertilizer should be considered a business investment. Like other investments, however, it should be wisely made.

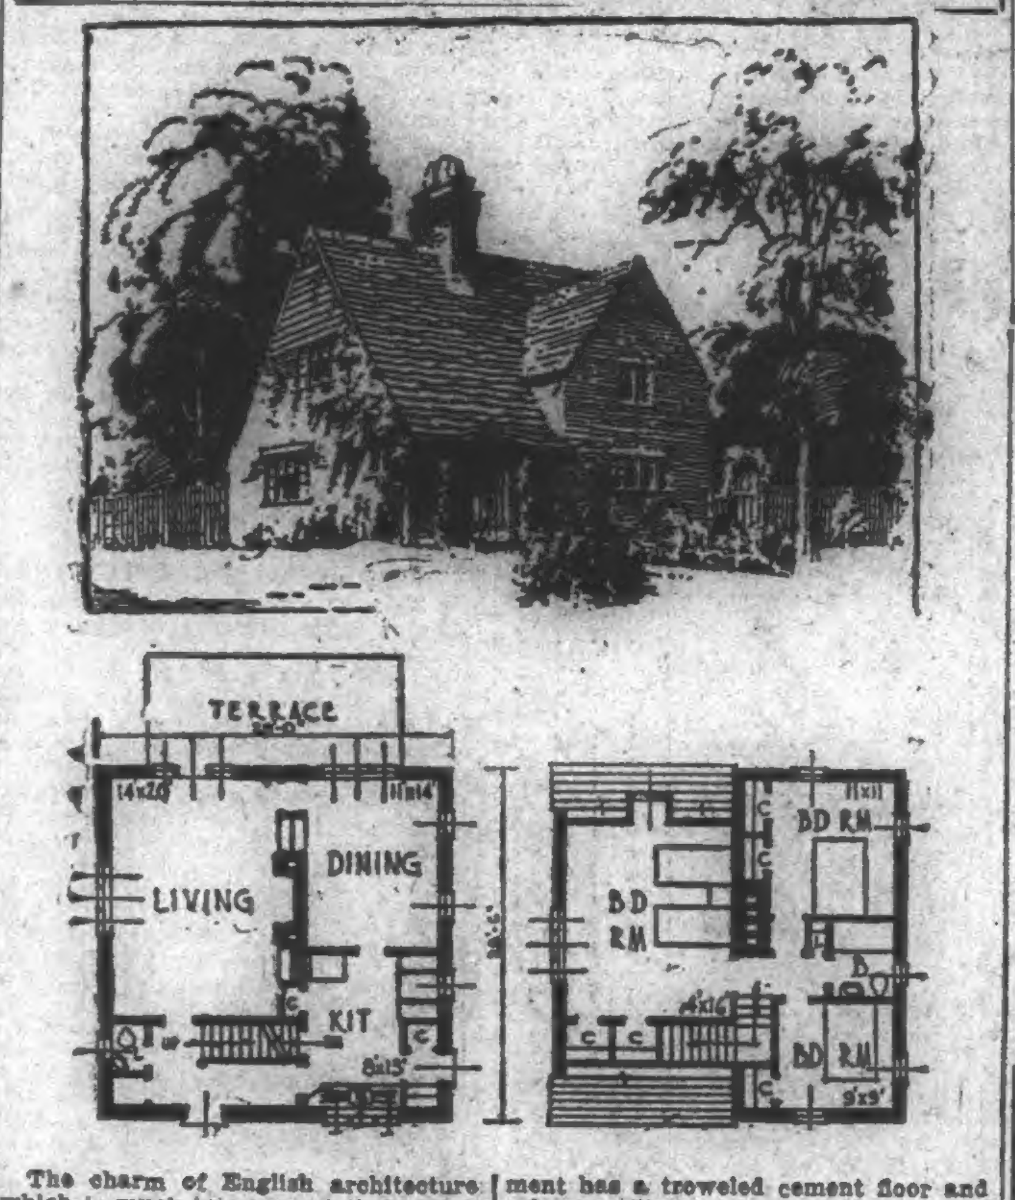
PAINT, NOT BRONZE, BEST FOR RADIATORS

Exhaustive tests have shown that, for real heating efficiency, radiators of domestic heating plants should be painted rather than bronzed. Painting over a surface already bronzed has the same effect as painting over new surfaces. The radiator enamels should always be put on while the radiator is cold in order to produce a more even distribution of the paint and improve the general appearance of the finished job. Radiator enamels should always be thinned with turpentine instead of oil, when they are found to be too thick for application.

KEEPING NICKEL BRIGHT

The nickel plating on plumbing fixtures may be kept clean with silver polish. Fittings that are plated with chromium may be cleaned with a damp rag and polished with a dry one; no polish is necessary.

Hallways Make For Ease Of Passage



The charm of English architecture which is much in vogue at the present time, is very pleasingly expressed in the new home of Ellis H. Thayer on Harland road, built by Peck-McWilliams Co., contractors. The house is on a large lot well back from the street and with the landscaping planned will make one of the prettiest homes in that rapidly growing section of the town.

The first story of the house is of brick veneer while the second story is of stucco and half timbers. The windows are all set in steel casements and the doors carry out the English motive. On the first floor is the vestibule, English entrance hall, dining room, living room, sun porch, breakfast nook, kitchen and lavatory. The floors are all of oak and the trim is also of oak, while the natural birch doors pleasingly contrast. In the living room is a large stone log-burning fireplace, the reproduction of the old English manor fireplaces.

On the second floor is the master bedroom with green tile bath adjoining. There are three other bedrooms and a black and white tile guest bathroom. These rooms are all in the oak finish.

In the basement is the laundry and work room as well as the furnace room. The house is heated by steam and the piping is of brass. The basement has a troweled cement floor and celotex ceiling.

The electrical fixtures throughout the house are in keeping with the English design with several wrought-iron lamps at the entrances.

There is a two-car garage of brick in harmony with the house.

$80,000,000
in Special Taxes

You Share in This Bill

The buyers of insurance in the United States indirectly but actually contribute a vast sum—approximately $80,000,000 annually—through taxes additional to the regular taxes paid by insurance companies in common with other lines of industry. This money is a burden upon the premium of the policyholder, notwithstanding it is collected from the company.

The original purpose of special taxes upon insurance was to maintain state supervision of the business, but such supervision uses but four cents of each dollar, and the balance—about $77,000,000—goes into the general funds of the states.

These special taxes of the state and the taxes which insurance companies pay in common with all other business concerns, and owners of property, as well as their substantial taxes to the Federal Government, are factors in the cost of fire insurance.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has adopted the following resolution:

"..... Special State Taxes now levied on Policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision ...."

The Stock Fire Insurance companies, which transact by far the greater portion of the fire insurance business of the country, want you to realise this condition and its effect upon the cost of your fire insurance.

POETRY

New Horizons

Never was there path our childhood used to roam
So long it led not in the evening home;

Nor could the magic of the unknown track
Prevail against the hearth that called me back.

Over the same hilltops, wild rose or gray,
Our evenings and our twilights always lay;

And when the night fell all the unknown stars
Grew homely shining through our window bars

Now we have fared to the country o'er the hill,
And unknown journeys lie beyond us still—

Ways unadventured, countless paths to roam,
But none that leads us in the evening home.

Onward, not homeward, some adventure calls
With every dawn, and every evening falls.

Over new horizons, wild rose or gray,
And old stars shining on the unknown way

Strange look and far, not those we saw of old
Safe moored in haven skies above our fold.

—S. R. Lysaught.

The Tactful Man

He daily goes his quiet way,
As if with diffidence,
But always knowing what to say
And never give offense.

He's very chary of his speech
If called to stop a fight,
But tacitly convinces each
Contestant he is right.

He never by a word or act
Gets mixed up in a row,
Escaping by consummate tact,
As only he knows now.

From morning till the day is done
Apparently sincere,
He tries to say to every one
What each one wants to hear.

From saying anything is so
Instinctively he shrinks;
Whate'er he says we all may know,
But never what he thinks.

And so he goes his quiet way—
But some prefer, no doubt,
The man, with this or that to say,
Who frankly blurts it out.

—Somerville Journal.

RARE LINCOLN PICTURES EXHIBITED ON EVE OF EMANCIPATOR'S BIRTHDAY

In the large show window of the Gilbert Furniture company on Broadway there is a memorial view and exhibition in honor and praise of the president and martyr, Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday anniversary is on Wednesday of this week.

At the time of the assassination and death of President Lincoln, on April 14, 1865, there was not in existence a full-length engraved portrait of him. To meet that want, a distinguished artist and line engraver at once produced, with his pencil and genius, an excellent full-length portrait of the departed president. In the 65 years since that full-length portrait was made in steel the plate has decayed from age and wear and the number of good impressions that were made from it were consumed, worn out and became scarce; so that now a good copy of the same is not to be had at all.

An excellent copy, however, of the full-length picture is to be seen now in the Gilbert window exhibit. Along with it there are shown a large and excellent steel portrait of Lincoln, the saviour of the Union and the constitution, and a large lithographed portrait of Daniel Webster, the greatest orator, master, expounder and defender of the constitution and the Union of the United States.

All these notable portrait exhibits are loaned from the library of William H. Shields, who is the owner of the rare pictures mentioned.

A Tip to the Farmer

A WELL known farm journal says that an increasing number of its readers write for information and do not get it simply because they fail to sign their names to their letters. We quote from the article:

"We are proud of our correspondents, and we welcome an opportunity to give them helpful information when we can. But by omitting name or postoffice address or both from their letters our correspondents frequently make it impossible for the editors to reply."

We take that as a TIP TO THE PRINTER. We've suggested it before and we suggest it again to our farmer friends. Let us print you some neat letterheads and envelopes with your name and address on them.

How a warm room and "B.O." (Body Odor) cost her another admirer

LAST NIGHT when they skated together in the park, she had seemed so attractive. But here in the close, warm room her charm completely vanished.

She felt his coolness. The same old story. Why did she always attract men—but never hold them? It had happened so often.

But not now! Today she makes friends and keeps them. For she discovered her fault and the simple way to correct it. Let her tell you how.

"I could have cried when my uncle, who is a physician, warned me in an indirect way about 'B.O.'—body odor. For I thought I had been so careful.

"But, as he explained, our pores are constantly giving off odor-causing waste—as much as a quart daily. We're so used to this familiar odor that we don't notice it in ourselves. But others do—especially in an overheated room with windows closed. And it always offends.

"So now I've adopted this simple precaution. I wash and bathe with Lifebuoy—and I love it! Lifebuoy makes me feel so gloriously fresh and clean—so safe. For its rich, creamy antiseptic lather purifies pores—banishes every trace of 'B.O.' "

LINER MUENCHEN WRECKED BY EXPLOSIONS AND FIRE

The North German Lloyd Steamer Was Tied to Pier 42 In the Hudson River—Explosions Occurred Just After Her 349 Passengers Had Been Landed—Damage Is Estimated At From $3,000,000 to $6,000,000—The Most Disastrous Marine Fire In New York Harbor In 30 Years—Two Lives Were Lost and Several Persons Were Injured—Firemen Attribute the Blaze to Spontaneous Combustion In Highly Inflammable Cargo.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)— Raked by a fierce fire which followed a series of explosions in her hold just after her 349 passengers had been discharged, the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen tonight lay wrecked at her pier.

Her stern, buried in the mud of the river, proved dangerously close to the Hudson river tubes leading to New Jersey, causing the closing of the tunnels to traffic and forcing thousands of commuters to wend their way Jerseyward by devious routes.

The Muenchen was tied to Pier 42 in the Hudson river at the foot of Morton street when the fire, of as yet undetermined origin, was discovered in the aft hold No. 6 in which was stored nitrate of potash and varnish.

The blaze, the most disastrous marine fire in the harbor in 30 years, claimed two lives and injured seven persons. Damage to ship and cargo was estimated at from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000, by officials of the line.

Firemen fought the flames with caution owing to the danger of additional explosions in the cargo of nitrate of potash and varnish stored in the liner's hold.

Spontaneous combustion was blamed by firemen for the blaze and the highly inflammable and explosive cargo, also, was blamed for the terrific blasts which ripped up the Muenchen's deck plates, twisted her railings and funnels and littered her decks with debris.

The second of the blasts, which followed in rapid succession, blew several of the crew of the firetug Thomas Willett into the river, resulting in the drowning of John Harvey, 48, pilot of the tug. The other firemen were saved but four were taken to the hospital suffering from submersion.

The Thomas Willett's water towers were put out of commission by the force of the explosion, and the Lackawanna tug Newton which also was playing a stream into the burning liner, had the cabins and deck wrecked.

Windows were broken for blocks around. Explosions shook the entire waterfront. Black smoke belched from the Muenchen's hatches as members of two land fire companies ran to the safety of the pier, beating by inches the shower of missiles sent up by the third explosion.

Two firemen were burned about the face and hands and one had a finger torn off.

When the liner started listing toward the pier she was cut loose from her moorings and floated several yards away from the dock where her stern soon settled to the bottom in the low tide.

Firemen had all been ordered off the ship and they played streams of water on her from the pier decks. Later the entire pier was cleared of all except a skeleton crew of firemen as the flames licked forward to where another quantity of nitrate was reported stored. A few minutes later a dull explosion occurred within the liner's hull.

With her stern resting in the mud near the Hudson river transit tunnels, fire inspectors feared that an explosion within the ship might rip open the tubes and service between Manhattan and New Jersey was suspended.

Docking at 9:20 a. m. from Bremen with 349 passengers, the Muenchen was found ablaze two hours later.

All but a few of the ship's third class passengers were off and most of them had passed through the customs inspection.

Members of the crew rallied at the fire call but dense volumes of smoke drove them to the decks and a fire alarm was turned in, bringing fireboats and land apparatus to the pier.

The third class passengers, mostly German immigrants, were led to the safety of the pier and customs inspectors worked at top speed to clear the baggage, all of which had been removed from the ship.

None of the passengers was injured.

Several members of the liner's crew were overcome by smoke in fighting the fire. One was taken to the hospital after firemen ordered everyone from the ship. Captain Feodore Dreuesings, commander, was the last to leave and said everyone was off.

Later, in checking up the crew, it was reported that an electrician, named Franke, had been trapped in the hold and burned to death.

Most of the crew escaped with only the clothing they wore, their other effects burning in the ship. They jumped to safety to lighters which drew alongside of the vessel following the first blast.

The Muenchen was built in Germany in 1922 and was the first German vessel to enter the New York harbor following the World war. Officials of the North German Lloyd liner said it would take $6,000,000 to replace the liner.

In addition the ship's $500,000 cargo nearly all was lost. All of her interior was burned and her plates were twisted by the terrific heat which peeled the paint off her sides in streets.

Fire apparatus responding to the five alarms including 41 land pieces and six tugs. Railroad tugs and other harbor craft also aided in combating the blaze which it was at first feared might spread to the waterfront if the burning liner toppled over onto her pier.

With fire still burning in her bow, the Muenchen tonight heeled over until her boat deck rested against the pier. She was resting lightly, but it was high tide, with the prospect of greatly added pressure as the tide went down. The pier is steel reinforced, but fire officials said its capacity to withstand the full weight of the vessel at low tide was debatable.

Deputy Fire Chief Waldron as dusk approached, ordered flood lights placed on the pier and the two adjoining piers to furnish light for the long battle still before the firemen. Waldron said every effort was being made to keep the flames from working into hatches 1 and 2, since they contained materials that might cause further explosions and further spread of the fire.

Suspension of traffic through the Hudson-Manhattan tube caused unusually heavy traffic through the Holland tunnel the tunnel commissior reported. From 1,300 to 1,500 vehicles an hour passed through each tube of the tunnel.

Officials of the United States lines announced that the liner America, scheduled to sail tomorrow morning had been ordered to postpone sailing until Thursday noon in order to accommodate the 137 passengers who had booked passage for channel ports and Bremen aboard the Muenchen. These passengers will be taken by the America to Hamburg for debarkation.

$10,000 DAYLIGHT BANK ROBBERY IN NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 11.—(AP)— Working with smoothness and celerity four daylight bandits today held up a branch of the New Jersey National Bank and Trust company and escaped with from $10,000 to $12,000 in cash.

A few minutes later the robbers' car with a fifth man at the wheel, crashed into a taxi a mile and a half from the bank but before their auto had stopped slithering across the street, the five bandits were out of the machine.

Two of them disappeared in the crowd which collected and two others, supporting a third who apparently was unhurt but too frightened to stand, hailed another car and, as police later learned, were driven to the Hudson tube station.

The robbers operated within a few feet of a traffic post at West Market and Norfolk streets and while two keepers in the county jail sat in an adjoining ice cream parlor.

The quartet of unmasked bandits entered the bank just a few minutes before closing time and took three officials and two customers by surprise. While three of them with guns herded the five men in a rear room, the fourth entered the teller's cage and scooped up all of the cash in sight.

CONVICTED SLAYER WEDS GIRL WHO STUCK BY HIM

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Charles McCoy, self-confessed slayer about to begin a ten-year prison term, today married the girl "who stuck by me," so she might have his pension because he doesn't believe he'll live out his sentence.

The bride, Mary Hale of Pikeville, Ky., left for home after the ceremony in the Kanawha county jail here.

McCoy, a World war veteran, said when he came home to Williamson four years ago from a hospital, "still very sick, Mary took care of me, stuck by me. After I got into trouble she was the only person in the world who lifted a hand to help me. I don't suppose I'll last the ten years up there. I have made application for a government pension. If I die I want her to have it."

McCoy pleaded guilty to killing Houston Branham in a local hotel. He will be taken to the state's prison at Moundsville shortly.

McCoy is a member of the family of McCoys from McDowell county, noted for their feuds with the Hatfield family. He told authorities that he served seven months in France during the World war.

YOUNG COUPLE PERFORMED OWN MARRIAGE CEREMONY

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A young couple "married themselves" in the office of a Media lawyer yesterday by shaking hands and saying, "We consider ourselves married," it became known today.

The principals in the unusual ceremony were John Hugo Klaren, Jr., who gave his occupation as "philosopher," his address as Philadelphia and St. Johnsbury, Vt., and his age 22, and Miss Elisbeth Katzenberg, 20, of Jenkintown, Pa.

The couple applied for a marriage license at the Delaware county court house here and all went well until the clerk asked who would marry them.

"Nobody will marry us," Klaren said. "We will just marry ourselves. We want the license merely as a matter of record. We do not believe in elaborate ceremonies." The clerk held up the license for a while, but finally issued it when Miss Katzenberg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Katzenberg, appeared to give their consent.

The couple then went to an attorney's office where the attorney and another man acted as witnesses to the handshake and statement that they considered themselves married.

J. M. Colley, Garmon's friend, who had driven him to Mrs. French's apartment and waited in an automobile while he was shot to death, told police the woman had broken into Garmon's apartment last Thursday and taken a packet of letters. Garmon, he said, was seeking to recover them when he was killed.

HARTFORD JURY EXPANDS RUM RING INVESTIGATION

HARTFORD, Feb. 11.—(AP)—It became evident today that the grand jury investigating the operations of a liquor ring in Hartford county, would reach into other parts of the state to secure evidence concerning the ramifications of the group which has been disposing of liquor carried in and out of this city.

This was assured with the appearance at the county building of Clifford N. Gorgas, former state police lieutenant, in answer to subpoenas that had been left at his home in Bridgeport. Gorgas will be a witness when the jury meets again next Monday. He is the first to be summoned from outside the county and the conclusion was drawn that he will be questioned on what he knows about the extension of the local liquor ring into Fairfield county.

Continue Arrest Of Hoodlums In Chicago

Total Since Clean-U[illegible]tarted Saturday Expec[illegible]each 2,000 By T[illegible]

CHICAGO, Ill[illegible]11.—(AP)—Chicago showed [illegible] it meant business against[illegible]

The Cook[illegible] grand jury swung into action [illegible]ck up the sweeping drives cond[illegible] by city and county authorities and laid a heavy hand on nearly a score of known gunmen brought before it today. Indictments were reported to have been returned against 19 men alleged to live by pistol and machine gun and bond on each was fixed at $10,000.

Meanwhile, spurred on by public indignation at the recent outburst of murder and bombings, police continued to comb the half-world and by sunset had ferreted out another 800 hoodlums and gangsters.

The total enmeshed in police toils and brought to the bureau of identification since the city-wide cleanup started Saturday is expected to reach 2,000 by tomorrow and with another week of strenuous activity on the part of police, Commissioner William F. Russell hopes to have broken the back of hoodlum lawlessness in Chicago.

Col. Robert Isham Randolph, head of the secret "Committee of Seven" representing the allied business interests of Chicago arrayed against crime, today reported to State's Attorney John A. Swanson that unlimited financial support had been pledged his investigators and the work of the latter was meeting with "gratifying results."

Several of Chicago's most powerful industrial heads were lending full cooperation, he said, and had even postponed business trips and vacations to devote their entire time to the cause. He intimated that the committee might spend as much as a half million dollars to help eradicate terrorism here.

Those against whom true bills were reported to have been voted today were: William Williams, Able De Boekan, Nick Rosko, Salvatore Espinosa, George Mootz, Albert Carter, Harvey Grandes, William O'Connor, Harry Jenks, Carl Hansen, James Riley, Andrew Taylor, Herbert Allen, Joseph Honsik, Jerry Van Kura, Charles De Voto, Joseph Maciong, Able Rudsky and Woodward Clardy.

State's Attorney Swanson declared that he would seek speedy trials for all gunmen seized in the cleanup.

Lincoln's Spirit

I dreamed that Lincoln's spirit rose and passed
Through city streets to smite the hearts of men,
So that their souls might stir to nobler deeds,
And cleansed be of their pettey schemes, and small Ambitions, o'er in jealous moods conceived; and as
He glanced, and saw the aftermath of war—,
The starving hosts by pestilence harassed,
Despairing hearts, because of broken faith,
The naked child to wind and frost a prey,
Suspicions rife, and songs of hate yet sung!
Then slowly turned he to the Gate Beyond,
And, in my dream, I saw the Great Man weep.

O Lincoln, you who know the way of brotherhood,
Awake and teach us how the wound to heal—
How minister to suffering and weak,
And pave the way to lasting harmony.
Awake and lead us as you led of yore,
A world by hatred torn, and weary of the strife,
Into the heart of every man implant the song—
"With malice unto none, and charity
For all." . . . 'O Lincoln, wake, and smite the hearts of men,
So that our souls might stir to nobler needs.
Scourge us with fire, or with gentle tongue,
But rouse our souls that we may keep your faith.

TOLSON'S PLAN TO CELEBRATE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. — Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut has introduced a new method of celebrating Washington's birthday, so far as its observance in the House is concerned. The custom has been to invite a republican one year and a democrat the following year to have the honor of being the reader. But Col. Tilson has decided that instead of reading the farewell address, the program will consist of an outline of the great celebration which will be held to commemorate the 200 anniversary of the birth of Washington; several brief address depicting the varous stages in Washington's career.

Col. Tilson is a member of the commission appointed by the president to frame and carry out a suitable program for the celebration.

Two men are scheduled to go on trial Monday in Utica charged with having participated in the holdup.

To Curb Ruthless Submarine Warfare

Agreement Reached At Plenary Session of London Naval Conference.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Although the Anglo-American effort to abolish submarines from the high seas was thwarted today by the opposition of France and Japan, the five nations represented at the London naval conference, sitting in formal plenary session, voiced complete agreement to outlaw barbarous activity.

They launched a definite conference program toward this which the delegates hope will be the beginning of the end of the war-time horror and peace-time death trap of the oceans. Briefly, the sea powers declared their stand on submarines as follows:

Italy supported abolition in principle, contingent upon drastic reduction in other classes of warships.

Great Britain, through A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, boldly proposed abolition in the general interests of humanity, based on the war-time terror of the submarine and its peace-time calamities.

Col. Henry L. Stimson of the United States delegation supported Mr. Alexander and later presented a constructive proposal for restricting submarine warfare. The most tensely dramatic moment of the session came when Secretary Stimson declared: "The use of the submarine in the World war revolted the conscience of the world, and the threat of its unrestricted use against merchant ships was what finally determined the entry of my own country into the conflict."

France frankly maintained that the lesser naval powers could not do without submarines; that the submarine was only a death-dealing instrument like all other warships, but, like other warships, could and should be regulated and limited.

Admiral Takarabe for Japan, maintained that the submarine had its legitimate uses as a medium of defense, as a scout and in warding off the enemy in a nation's home waters.

Japan viewed the submarine as a convenient and adequate means providing for national defense but is "emphatically opposed to unlimited submarine warfare as witnessed during the World war."

The British dominion spokesman echoed the stand of the mother country, but Charles Tewater, in a cryptic statement which neither he nor the British spokesman would interpret, seemed to indicate dissension on the part of South Africa regarding abolition. This was unofficially interpreted as being the natural disposition of a small country to cling to the submarine as a means of defense.

The whole mind of the conference seemingly was united toward an effort to humanize submarine warfare.

GRAIN STABILIZATION CORP. BUYS CASH WHEAT IN MARKET

CLEVELAND CITY HALL WAS STORMED BY UNEMPLOYED

About 1,200 Men and Women Had Been Incited By Communistic Agitators—Twenty of the Crowd and Two Policemen Were Injured As the Mob Was Driven Back By 200 Policemen—Four Women Jumped On Police Chief—One of Them Then Shouted "The Police Are Clubbing Us"—Riot Ensued.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 11—(AP)—A mob of 1200 men and women, gathered together by communistic agitators and incited by alarmists, stormed the city hall today and were beaten back by police after injury to 20 of their number and two police officers.

Two men were treated for serious injuries at Lakeside hospital and two other men were held by police.

The riot started about 3 o'clock and lasted about 20 minutes. Most of the fighting occurred in Little Nuclei around each of the 200 policemen on the steps of the hall and in Lakeside avenue in front.

Trouble started after all but 300 of the mob had been held outside the chamber of the city council, where the council welfare committee had under consideration a petition for jobs which was presented last week by the newly formed "council of the unemployed" last week.

The rioters had gathered earlier in the afternoon around the stone "soap box" in public square, where speakers shouted "We want work or wages, one or the two or we'll fight."

Gathering recruits they walked doggedly behind police escort to the city hall, determined to be present at the committee meeting. Arriving at the hall those who were ahead of the line were permitted to enter the council chamber.

The remainder of the crowd lined up on the front steps, or were herded on the sidewalks across the hall on Lakeside avenue. Some men in the crowd were shouting and ready for trouble.

Inside the hall four women had pounced on Jacob Graul, chief of police, and as other policemen endeavored to protect him, one of the women rushed out and shouted "the police are clubbing us."

This was the signal for tumult.

Those across Lakeside rushed to the hall steps, while those on the steps pounced against the guard at the doors.

Four men jumped on Police Inspector George Matowitz and bore him to the pavement, another group downed Lieutenant Oliver Torrence, then other policemen were attacked, each one a center of a little riot of his own.

There were 20 rioters and policemen rolling and fighting on the sidewalks and pavements at once, showing signs of injuries and bruises. The policemen used their riot sticks freely.

Some of the 50 women in the crowd scratched and screamed at the policemen and tore at their hair and coats.

There was an element of the grotesque. Matowitz, seeing one of the men who had struck him, arose almost breathless and chased him down the street. Another man tore off the tail of Lieutenant Torrence's coat, and shouting, waved it in the air.

Before the riot had subsided about 200 policemen from all parts of the city had been called in by Director of Safety Edwin L. Barry. Several fire squads had arrived and attached their hose, ready to cool off the mob if the police could not.

When the rioters were quieted, they were escorted back to Public square by a police guard, almost as peaceably as they had come. At the square, speakers mounted the pedestal beneath the statue of the benevolent Tom Johnson, former mayor of Cleveland, and continued to harangue the crowd until dusk.

The orators announced a mass meeting at Public square at 8 p. m. tomorrow as a protest against "the brutality of the Cleveland police department."

SON OF EX-DICTATOR OF SPAIN PRINCIPAL IN FIST FIGHT

MADRID, Feb. 11— (AP) —Miguel Primo de Rivera today championed the honor of his house and of his father, the resigned dictator, with his fists.

Seeking out General Queipo de Llano in one of the most fashionable cafes in Madrid, Miguel boxed his ears for having sent what he considered an insulting letter to his father. The former dictator refused to defend himself on the field of honor while premier, and since resigning has apologized to one challenger.

General Queipo de Llano, who was dismissed from the army by Primo, expressed his resentment in a letter recently. As the ex-dictator is away from Spain for a vacation, the letter was opened by his son Miguel, who sought out the writer and demanded retraction.

General Queipo de Llano refused to take back anything, whereupon Miguel immediately boxed his ears. A fist fight followed, lasting until the manager of the cafe got the police. Both the boxers were arrested.

The fight was the talk of the town tonight, and many expect it to lead to a duel.

HOTEL AND RESTAURANT RAIDED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Twenty-four hours after raiding the Hotel Manager, federal prohibition agents tonight descended on the Cornish Arms hotel, in 23rd street, and the nearby Cavanaugh's restaurant, one of the oldest and best known dining places in the city.

Four prohibition agents who had been living in the Cornish Arms since Jan. 1 swore out ten warrants before United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill and nine agents and three federal marshals went to the hotel with the warrants.

At the same time, nine other agents, not armed with warrants, raided Cavanaugh's.

Nine of the ten warrants for persons in the Cornish Arms were served tonight. The tenth warrant was for John P. Murray, described by Major Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for the New York district, as receiver for the hotel, which is in bankruptcy.

TWO CHINESE HELD IN NEW YORK FOR MURDER

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Two stoical Chinese were held in jail today, charged with the murder of another in the Grand street theatre last night, while police and plainclothes men patrolled the winding streets of Chinatown, fearful of another tong war.

The men held are Ching Foo, 24-year-old grocery clerk of 76 Mulberry street, Newark, N. J., and Ching Chong, 50, of New York. They are charged with shooting to death Ching Hong, who died, six bullet wounds in his body, just as the notes of a Chinese flute ending a performance at the theatre faded away.

Although tong leaders disclaimed any knowledge of the shooting to police, circular letters in Chinese script were distributed today to the members of the Hip Sing tong, reading:

"Dear sir and brother: Ching Hong, a member, has been shot and killed in the Chinese theatre. As yet we know not why. Keep off the streets. Watch your step."

90 DOGS BURNED TO DEATH IN KENNELS AT CHICAGO

Apparently authorities said, the fire was of incendiary origin, as it started in three places in the isolated kennels.

SENATE VOTES TO CUT TARIFF ON WINDOW GLASS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Democrats and republican independents continued their rate slashing drive in the senate tariff contest today by cutting to the level of the 1922 law the duties on window and plate glass proclaimed under the flexible provisions.

By a vote of 41 to 40, approval was given part of an amendment by senator Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, to cut the window glass rates. Then, without a roll call, the remainder of the reductions were adopted.

The plate glass reduction amendment was offered by Senator McMaster, republican independent, South Dakota, and carried, 43 to 36. McMaster asserted there never had been "a more deliberate misuse of official power" than in the proclamation of these increases.

Twelve republicans and 29 democrats combined to put over the Barkley cuts, while 36 republicans and four democrats opposed them.

Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, one of several speakers who opposed the cuts, asked reconsideration of the viva voce vote by which approval was given the remaining Barkley amendments on the ground that he had requested a roll call vote and was not herd by Vice President Curtis. Senator Barkley objected.

OPPOSITION IN SENATE TO CONFIRMATION OF HUGHES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—(AP)—Severe condemnation of the views of Charles Evans Hughes rang forth in the senate today as unexpected opposition to his nomination as chief justice of the United States developed and forced over until tomorrow a vote on his confirmation.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, and Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, assailed the attitude on public questions of the nominee. They stirred up a debate which brought two democrats—Wagner and Copeland, of New York—and the veteran Senator Gillett, republican, Massachusetts, to feet in praise of the nominee.

The opposition to Hughes, centered principally in the group of western republican independents. Leaders were confident tonight that Hughes nomination would be confirmed tomorrow by a decisive majority.

The nomination was left as the order of business for the senate tomorrow. The opposition made it clear they had no intention of blocking a vote but asked only for full debate.

NO WARRANTS AGAINST PURCHASERS OF LIQUOR

BOSTON, Feb. 11.—(AP) — United States Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney will issue no warrants against purchasers of liquor, he said today, until it is decided whether or not buyers may be prosecuted or until he receives orders from higher authorities to grant such warrants.

The commissioner refused to issue warrants for the arrest of two prohibition agents who testified that they had bought liquor from Thomas Frietas, of Boston. Matthew L. McGrath, counsel for Thomas, and Albert Freitas, charged with selling, had sought the arrest of the agents upon the ground that there was nothing in the national prohibition law that safeguarded a government agent from prosecution as a buyer.

OPEN HEARING ON THE PROHIBITION QUESTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Legislative doors to the whole prohibition question will be thrown wide open tomorrow when the house judiciary committee opens hearings on measures to repeal or modify the prohibition laws.

With the aid of prominent advocates of their cause, the wets have prepared a plan of procedure which they hope will result in modification and ultimate repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Once they have had their say the drys will be heard.

DRY LAW VIOLATORS PLEAD NOT GUILTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Wheeler, unanimously pleaded not guilty when arraigned in superior court here this forenoon. From two to as many as 13 counts, involving actual sales and keeping with intent to sell, were charged in the bench warrants, the reading of which was waived today by counsel for the accused. Several are represented by Attorney Irving T. Myron of Putnam and Joseph R. Smith of Moosup, while County Defender Harry Back of Danielson appeared for the remainder.

Those arraigned, with a record of past offenses and number of counts charged, follow: Victor Perreault, proprietor of the Green Lantern Inn, Thompson, second offense, 11 counts; Marie Sharon, waitress at the same inn, first offense, eight counts; Wilfred Lapalme of Danielson, second offense, six counts; Mrs. Wilfred Lapalme, first offense, 13 counts; Peter Lefevre of Brooklyn, first offense, two counts; Ernest Paquin of South Killingly, second offense, 12 counts; Eugene Riquier of Ballouville, first offense, seven counts; Omer Hubert of Danielson, first offense, four counts; Minnie Stevens, proprietor of the Glenn Inn at Moosup, first offense, 16 counts; Adolph Lantagne of Moosup, third offense, six counts; William Robillard of Danielson, second offense, five counts; Walter Lis, 30, of Danielson, first offense, two counts; Walter Murphy, proprietor of the Dayville Inn, second offense, six counts; Della Sullivan of Danielson, who was apprehended in Meriden, first offense, five counts.

But three of the 14 were able to secure bonds Monday night or today. They were: Eugene Riquier, $1,500; Walter Murphy, $2,500, and Adolph Lantagne, $1,500. This afternoon, State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford recommended the reduction of bonds in the following cases: Victor Perreault, reduced to $2,000; Eugene Riquier, to $1,000, Omer Hubert, to $400, and Della Sullivan, to $600.

In default of bonds all but Riquier, Murphy and Lantagne were taken to the county jail at Brooklyn this afternoon, where they had spent Monday night following arrest. It was rumored that a number of the accused are now planning to appear before the court later this week to enter pleas of guilty.

Today's session of court was convened at 10:10 o'clock by Judge Booth. The trial list for assignment was called for. Two court cases were assigned for Feb. 19 at Putnam and three other court cases, including that of Clarence W. McLean versus John J. Hagarty, for that city the following day. The cases of Peter Stabeck, [illegible], versus Rene St. Savior and Joseph Weaver versus Harold Wheeler were assigned to jury trial at Putnam, Feb. 18.

During the short calendar Judge Booth granted a motion that the plaintiff concern recover $241.27 in the case of the Danielson Garage, Inc., vs. Eugene St. Germaine. The divorce action of Gertrude Chamberlin Chappell vs. Elton Chappell was reopened. Judge Frank H. Foss was appointed guardian ad litem for the defendant on motion of Attorney Harry E. Gaucher. Judgment by default was declared in the case of Everett E. Beckwith vs. Joseph P. Collins.

Decrees were granted in two uncontested divorces. The cases were: Hoebe Maloney of Plainfield vs. Joseph Maloney on the ground of desertion, and Susanna Bibeault of Putnam vs. Albert Bibeault for habitual intemperance. Each plaintiff was awarded the custody of a minor child.

At the close of the short calendar the case of the Willimantic Savings Institute vs. Michael Zenowitz, administrator, et al., was taken up, Attorney A. T. Kelley representing the plaintiff. The suit is to determine to whom a deposit of $4,616.55 shall be paid, the deposit having been made at the bank by the late Katie Zenowitz. The amount is claimed by Mrs. [illegible] Gregory, daughter of the deceased, and resident of Colchester. Judge Booth took the papers and reserved his decision. J. Raymond Smith appeared for the bank.

An adjustment was announced in the case of Fred Freiman versus Mattie [illegible].

Testimony in a re-hearing of the case of Benjamin Prague versus Herman Prag, et al., both of this city, was then begun. This case was not completed when court adjourned at 5 o'clock and will be resumed at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The case is based on a claim by the plaintiff for an award of some $4,[illegible] alleged to be due as the result of a transfer of property at one time jointly controlled by the defendant, Herman Prag, and Max Lehrman. Raymond L. Carmody of Winsted and C. E. Macfarlane of this city, members of the arbitration board in the case, were the first witnesses called. They were followed by Benjamin Prague and Max Lehrman. Property, including a shoe store in the city, is involved in the transfer.

BIG FOREIGN STATIONS WORRY GERMAN FANS

STUTTGART—(AP)—German radio fans are alarmed over the plans of Germany's neighbors for erecting larger broadcasting stations.

The Stuttgart station has been regarded as one of the best in Germany. Its wavelength is so close to the stronger London station, and even in Wurttemberg, of which Stuttgart is the metropolis, the programs of the German station are drowned out.

Listeners have appealed to the German postal ministry, which holds the monopoly on broadcasting, to hasten the construction of stations which can compete successfully with those of other countries.

"A fraction more than 44 messages per hour were sent back and forth through the air," said young Hoover. "This record compares favorably with any of the various railroad systems using wires to control transportation."

LOWEST-PRICED EIGHT IN THE WORLD

The fact that the new De Soto Straight Eight is the lowest-priced Eight in the world does not mean that one iota of quality has been sacrificed.

From every standpoint—this newest Chrysler-engineered creation achieves a quality exceeding that of any other car in its price class, and of many that list well above it.

The features briefly described below are highlights of its quality construction.

AND UP—F. O. B. DETROIT

Unitized Construction of Chassis and Body—A new and radical departure. 18 points of superiority over existing practice . . . Body and chassis designed as a unit, eliminating body sills and all other wooden parts.

Down-Draft Carburetion—Employing a principle which permits gravity to assist in conducting the vaporized gasoline mixture into the cylinders. This type of carburetion results in a substantial increase in power.

Hydraulic Four-Wheel Brakes—The only type of brake in which equalization is inherent, automatic and permanent. The braking pressure exerted is always identical on all four wheels. Simple, rapid, smooth and quiet.

Full-Pressure Engine Lubrication—Oil is supplied to all bearings by positive, pump circulation through drilled passages. Cored passages are not used because of roughness and hazard of stoppage.

Rubber-Cushioned Spring Shackles—All shackles mounted in vulcanized rubber—no metal-to-metal contact—no need for lubrication.

In addition to these outstanding quality features of the new De Soto Straight Eight, there are many others worthy of mention, and generally found only on motor cars of much higher price.

BUILT TO OUT-PERFORM

. . . the vital reason why BUICK outsells every other fine car by 2 to 1

Keep in mind, when you buy your car, that you are buying miles—and that you will get more and better miles in a Buick, as more than 2,400,000 owners have proved.

Buick builds so thoroughly—builds such extra strength and stamina into the Buick Valve-in-Head engine and sealed chassis—that many Buicks, five, ten or fifteen years of age, are still in service . . . and the speedometers of many of these cars register 100,000 miles and more.

You reap the full benefit of Buick's extra mileage whether you drive your Buick 10,000—50,000—or 100,000 miles. You enjoy finer, more faithful performance, day after day and mile after mile. You obtain greater motoring satisfaction all the way through—greater power, greater stamina, greater value.

Buick is built to out-perform. This, together with the beauty and comfort of Buick's Bodies by Fisher, explains why America is driving 700,000 more Buicks than any other car in Buick's price class . . . and why Buick today wins from two to five times as many buyers as any other car priced above $1800.

Come, see Buick's wide range of body types. Then take the wheel! A single drive will convince you that Buick is the big motor car value of the day.

DANIELSON

ESCAPED CONVICT PICKED UP NEAR EAST KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 11—Investigating as to who was responsible for robbing the home of Kneeland Eldridge, a place just over the Connecticut line in Rhode Island and near East Killingly, state officers of the Danielson barracks have come upon an escaped convict who has been making his home in this town since last August.

This man has been living near East Killingly under the name of Joseph Greenwood. His real name is believed to be Victor Velandry, but he has operated in Canada and various New England states under such a number of aliases that it is difficult to determine just what name he started out in life with, or how many times he has since changed it.

However, as the result of finger printing him at the Danielson state police barracks, it was established today that he has served terms in state prisons in Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont; that he also has been imprisoned in Montreal and in Worcester, Mass., and that last June while serving a sentence of from 3 1-2 to 10 years in the Vermont state prison he escaped.

He has been living in this town the greater part of the time since then, meanwhile having no visible means of support, and indulging himself, it now develops, in two trips to Canada, for what purpose is not known. At the present time he is in the custody of Rhode Island state troopers, he having been turned over to Trooper Kavanaugh of the North Scituate barracks after questioning here by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and by Trooper Kavanaugh. Velandry claims to be 36 years of age.

Velandry's known criminal record in New England dates back to 1918, when he escaped from the Rhode Island state prison at Cranston while serving a sentence of two years for breaking and entering and larceny. In 1922 he was released from the New Hampshire state prison at Concord after serving a three year sentence for felonious assault. This release was on parole. Two months later he again was in the toils of the law, this time on a robbery charge and for carrying concealed weapons, in Vermont, and was sentenced to serve the 3 1-2 to 10 years he was doing when he managed to escape last June. Little is known here as to why he was imprisoned in Montreal and in Worcester county.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart after a conference with Captain Harwood of the North Scituate barracks of the Rhode Island state police department said today that Velandry likely will be returned to Vermont to serve out his unexpired term and such additional time as he will be penalized for escaping.

The robbery of the Eldridge place, which enmeshed him, though he has persistently denied responsibility, resulted in the theft of only $19. The robbery took place Jan. 31, and was reported to the state police here the following day. A joint investigation was undertaken by Connecticut and Rhode Island state officers. Suspicion finally fell upon Velandry, known to everyone in the vicinity where he has been living with a widow, Mrs. Laura Smith, as Greenwood. Last Friday he was taken into custody for quizzing and held at the barracks on North Main street until Saturday, when, though he denied knowing anything about the break, he was turned over to Rhode Island officers. Meanwhile his finger prints taken here have been compared with criminal files, with the result that his identity was established today. The Smith woman, who was also held in custody for a time, has been released, it appearing she was wholly unaware of Velandry's criminal record or that she knew anything about the Eldridge break. Velandry, it appears, has made a practice of carrying a loaded revolver, which was taken from a shelf by a state officer when he was arrested at what has been his home.

A report of the Christmas Seal fund effort here at holiday time shows that $449.56 was the gross amount received. Of this sum $49 came from stores and banks, $89 from schools and $78 from bills. Booths established at Dowe's, the postoffice and health station brought in $43.50. The mail sale amounted to $193.50. Of the total received here 15 per cent., or $68.25, went to the state organization. Expenses amounted to $27.41, leaving a net total of $354.20 for use here.

Miss Miriam Boomhower, visiting nurse, went through a busy month in January, making a total of 112 nursing visits, 37 social service visits and spending four half-days in schools. Seventeen cases were carried over from December and 11 new cases came to the attention of the service during January. Of all the patients only one died, while nine were discharged. At the opening of the present month 18 patients were under care. During January there were 11 paying patients and 17 free patients. The paying patients paid in $24.30, and $1 also was received for rental of a wheel chair. During the past month there were 21 medical patients, one surgical, three obstetrical and three tuberculosis patients. The relief given included the distribution of 126 garments, 17 pairs of shoes, five hats and a blanket. Contributions received included clothing from Mrs. A. P. Burns and the Killingly Woman's club. A chair and toys were received from Mrs. John M. Dowe.

Chief John McFarland had the rather unusual experience this morning of listening to the depressing tale of a man who claimed to be a drug addict and who pleaded with the chief to be put somewhere in security against himself and his deplorable habit. He told the chief that his home is in Hartford, that he is married and has children, but when advised by Chief McFarland to return to them, he disconsolately said that his wife had told him to go away and never return until he had overcome the weakness that was wrecking his life and her's.

Last night this man, whose name is Leon Bailey, stayed at a local hotel. This afternoon after Chief McFarland had explained the situation to court officials Bailey was brought into court (he had not previously been placed under arrest) and was sentenced by Judge W. Fenner Woodward to serve 90 days in jail on a vagrancy charge. Bailey, far from the type one would expect to find in such a predicament, appeared to be gratified with his sentence.

ELEVEN LIQUOR VIOLATORS UNABLE TO RAISE BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 11—Seven men and four women who were caught last night in the state police-deputy-sheriff-constable dragnet that was swept over a section of eastern Windham county in search of liquor law violators were having supper this evening at the Windham county jail in Brooklyn—and that means that they had been unable to raise the high bonds required for their release, although in some cases the amount required for bail had been reduced. The accused, as told in more detail in the Willimantic news this morning, pleaded not guilty when they were arraigned in the superior court, before Judge Booth, in Willimantic this morning. Up to after nightfall tonight there was no change in the list of those held in default of bail, as told in a news story out of Danielson last night, yet there were several with relatives and friends working to obtain their release under bond and with good prospects of being successful. Those who fail of release under bond must remain at the jail until their cases are called for trial in the superior court at Putnam during the last week of this month.

His great many friends, learning of it, will congratulate A. E. Shoales, one of Wauregan's older young men, on reaching his 78th birthday on Lincoln's birthday. He has been a resident of the town of Plainfield a great many years, and is one of its best known and liked citizens.

Miss Katherine D. Aylward, chief operator of the Danielson central office, was in New London today attending a periodical conference of eastern district chief operators and their superiors.

In a very general way, members of patriotic organizations were wishing today that Lincoln's birthday, on Wednesday, should be very much of a Flag day in Danielson.

Temperature down to 14 degrees in Danielson this morning, a matter of far less interest to the average person than it might have been before the ice crop was harvested.

Rudy Vallee, talking and singing in the Vagabond Lover at the Orpheum theater this afternoon, lived up to his reputation of being a magnet that draws women. The sex practically submerged the few men that managed to get in to see the picture.

DAYVILLE

The members of the Catholic Women's council this (Wednesday) evening at seven o'clock, are to be entertained at the Dayville Inn, at a turkey supper. Following the supper the members will assemble at the Council hall to listen to a program of music and to play whist.

The Dayville Pioneers went to Danielson Monday evening for their weekly game in the Interchurch Basketball league. The schedule called for a contest with the Methodist All-Stars, but the All-Stars were simply not all there, so the game was forfeited to the Pioneers. Speculation is rife at present as to whether the local boys can duplicate their last year's achievement of winning the cup. The next two games will decide the issue. We wish them luck.

Miss Jeanette Nicholson, who has been ill with grip, is able to be out.

Mrs. Kenneth Michie and Mrs. John Parkin, members of the Treble Clef, attended a rehearsal Monday evening. Plans are under way for a concert at an early date.

Misses Julia and Mary O'Neil and John O'Neil were in Boston on Monday, attending the funeral of their aunt.

PUTNAM

PETITIONS COURT TO SELL PROPERTY AT AUCTION SALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 11—It was learned today that Lewis A. Waterman, receiver for the National Rhea company, bankrupt rayon manufacturing concern, in a petition to the superior courts of this state and Rhode Island, is praying for a decree to sell the property now in his charge at auction sale with no restrictions as to an acceptable price. Rumors were current yesterday that the courts had taken action and issued the decree. These stories were unfounded, it was learned, from a reliable source today.

It is thought that another hearing will be held in superior court here about February 17. All stockholders will be given notification of the hearing and will be expected to be present. In all probability the receiver will be authorized to carry on negotiations for sale of the property in a lot or in part, depending upon which source nets the greatest return. The matter of an upset price, which was $147,500 as the lowest acceptable figure, under the terms of the first court order, will be excluded from the forthcoming order.

Hope was expressed today that, as soon as new terms of sales have been agreed upon the present predicament concerning the Rhea company will be settled and the matter of selling the property will be expedited. The plant is now operating in a small way turning out a small order. As soon as a settlement has been reached, it is believed that efforts will be made immediately for a re-organization of the company which incidentally will be followed by resumption of operations in the plant in its entirety.

A meeting of the directors of the Putnam chamber of commerce was held last evening at the Putnam Inn at which time routine business was transacted and an informal discussion concerning the organization's efforts to secure a partial restoration of mail and train service on the Norwich and Worcester branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad was held. The absence of Attorney A. Macdonald, Jr., chairman of the special committee on this enterprise from this meeting, prevented the taking up of any definite action on the subject.

PERREAULT, ALLEGED LIQUOR VIOLATOR, WILL FIGHT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 11—Victor Perreault, proprietor of the "Green Lantern" Inn on the Thompson road, arrested Tuesday evening in wholesale liquor raids conducted by a squad of state and county officers is intending to fight his case to the last straw, according to his counsel, Attorney Irving H. Miron of this city, who will also represent eight other alleged liquor sellers when cases come to trial in this city on Tuesday, Feb. 25, before Judge J. Rufus Booth in superior court. In superior court in Willimantic today Perreault entered a plea of not guilty to 11 counts of alleged liquor sales. A detailed account of the proceedings will be found in the Willimantic column of The Bulletin this morning. It was learned today from an authoritive source that evidence of liquor sales against Perreault and his associate, Miss Marie Charron of Thompson, also under arrest, were procured by Ernest Holland, a resident of Willimantic and George Kilby, whose address is unknown. Both men are under-cover agents or more commonly known as "stool pigeons" in the service of the law enforcing delegations who have been operating on an extensive scale in that section of the county for the past few weeks. Proof of this statement is contained in statements of both men that they visited the "Green Lantern" on 12 different occasions to secure quantities of liquor from Perreault and Miss Charron, which constituted evidence that brought about their arrest last evening.

There was a large attendance at the annual past exalted rulers' night exercises which were held Tuesday evening at the Elks' home on Main street. The executive session was preceded by a dinner served in the banquet room at 7:30 o'clock. Exalted Ruler Lionel H. Charron was host to the past officials of the lodge. The roster of past exalted rulers is comprised of the following members: Byron D. Bugbee, Archibald Macdonald, Sr., Andrew V. Frost, James B. Tatem, John B. Byrne, George H. Bradley, Ralph E. Thurston, Prosper Vegiard, George Lewis, Jr., Charles E. Dean, Edward W. Mullan, Lucius P. Merriam, John J. McGarry, Archibald Macdonald, Jr., A. Graydon Sharpe, James E. Murray, John H. Bulger and Keyren H. Cotter.

The annual inspection of the headquarters company 43rd Div., C. N. G., local military unit, by state and federal officers was held Monday evening at the drill shed in the state armory on Harris street. Major H. B. Kayser, of Natick, Mass., attached to the first corps area, regular army, observed the soldiery tactics of the company in the interests of the federal government, while Major E. L. Darbie, of Danielson, commanding the special troops of the 43rd division, inspected for the state. Lieut. Paddock of Hartford, witnessed the exercises. Captain J. J. McGarry, commanding officer of the local company, said this morning that the company brought high praise from the visiting officers who were well pleased with the maneuvering.

Miss Bridget Joy of Grove street was in Lenox, Mass., today where she attended the ceremonies taking place this morning at the Jesuit seminary at Shadowbrook when a group of religious young men took their first vows in the order of Jesuit brothers. Thomas J. Howarth, formerly of this city, was numbered among the candidates.

Continued improvement was noted again today in the condition of Mayor Charles A. Richard who is ill at his home on Main street suffering from pneumonia. Reports late this afternoon from the mayor's sick room were to the effect that he had passed a comfortable night Monday and rested frequently during the day.

A flying squadron of dry law enforcement officers comprised of state policemen and deputy sheriffs and operating under the leadership of Rowe H. Wheeler, county detective failed to make any startling exposures in this city Monday evening when they conducted liquor raids on a wholesale scale in various communities surrounding Putnam. The most sensational catch in the county-wide onslaught was the arrest of Victor Perreault, proprietor of the "Green Lantern" Inn in Thompson. Perreault's arrest last evening is the second time within six months that he has fallen into the toils of the law for alleged violations of the Volstead act.

Although six months remain before local political parties will meet to select their candidates for representatives to represent this town in the 1931 session of the state legislature, whisperings of prospective candidates are already seeping out at this ultra early date. In the race two years ago it will be remembered that the seats in the legislature reserved for Putnam representatives were conceded to the democratic candidates. Rumor has it that the republicans who bitterly resented the sensational political upheaval of 1928, are shaping plans to regain their old standing in the political gardens of northern Windham county, lost in the last campaign.

Members of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., selected as delegates to the 39th Continental congress of the society to be held in Washington on April 14 are Mrs. Mary A. Hopkins, regent; Mrs. E. L. Kelley and Mrs. Emily Butler; alternates, Mrs. William H. Mansfield, Mrs. Marion Hawkins, Mrs. Wendell Witter, Mrs. Alfred Briggs, Mrs. George Nichols, Mrs. Arthur C. Pease. The alternates are: Miss Gertrude Perry, Miss Ellen M. Wheelock, Mrs. Louis A. Law, Mrs. Lillian May, Mrs. Newton A. Ballard and Miss Sarah C. Crosby.

The local chapter has contributed in a financial way toward the fund which is being raised to defray the expenses of a visit to be made here on Thursday evening, Feb. 20 by Dean Brown of Yale university who will speak at the Congregational church.

The birthday of the great emancipator—Abraham Lincoln will be observed in a fitting manner Wednesday in this city. Business transactions in the city's banking institutions will be suspended for the day and appropriate exercises will be held in all of the schools. In past years it was customary to close schools a half day on February 12, but due to the fact that the eight week system of sessions is effective this practice is no longer followed. Schools will close for a week on Friday Feb. 21 and will re-open on Monday March 3.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Newton Ballard of South Main street will leave this city soon for St. Petersburg, Florida, for a several weeks' stay in the southern metropolis. Several local people are now wintering in Florida.

MOST SHOE IMPORTATIONS ARE PURCHASED BY WOMEN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Women bought approximately 90 per cent of the shoes imported into the United States during 1929.

The commerce department says Czecho-Slovakia supplied more than three-fourths of the total. Austria, France, Switzerland and Germany follow in that order.

The total shoe imports during the first 11 months, both men's and women's, were 7,540,544, says the department.

PEDESTRIANS SHOULD PROTECT SELVES

Attention is frequently called to those highway accidents where pedestrians are injured or killed when struck by automobiles. It is an unfortunate situation where, with good roads and plenty of room, it is impossible for the pedestrian to make his way from one point to another without being in danger of being killed. And yet, while there are too many instances where the motorist is to blame, such is not always the case.

In the daytime there is slight, if any, excuse for such fatalities. Either the driver of a motor vehicle or the pedestrian should be able to prevent any such trouble. Yet drivers have come to know that there are those highway walkers who are quite as unwilling to protect themselves as there are drivers who are not disposed to respect their rights. There are those walkers who actually invite accidents and who refuse to budge when they know that they and an auto cannot occupy the same space at the same time. Children often aggravate motorists by actually tempting the drivers to hit them.

At night, for the protection of themselves and for the warning of others, drivers are required to carry lights both on the front and rear of their cars. The headlights are quite important for the proper guidance of the car. They also serve to indicate to others just where other machines are. Thus the lights are for the good of all who use the roads, and even reflectors are required on commercial cars for double protection.

Still there are most pedestrians, traveling at night, who fail to protect themselves or give warning to others by carrying a light or wearing reflectors. Their right to use the road isn't questioned but they do nothing to protect themselves. They leave it entirely to the motorist and there are many instances, when taking all precautions, that a person walking in the dark is not discovered until too late. This is especially true when persons are wearing dark clothes.

With pedestrians carrying a light or wearing a reflector, motorists are aware of some sort of an obstruction, and it will be noted that it is not such persons that are numbered in the highway fatalities. Self-preservation is one of the first laws of nature.

DETROIT'S TEN-YEAR TEST

Detroit is one of those cities where much objection was raised to the private operation of trolley roads, where increased fares were opposed and where the city finally purchased the lines and has since been operating them as a municipal enterprise.

With a great flourish of trumpets city ownership was inaugurated and the impression was conveyed that it would not be long before it would be a great source of revenue and the people would have the benefit of cheap transportation.

Detroit has carried on for ten years. It still owns the lines, but such lines! Like private corporations, it was necessary to raise the rate of fares to six cents some time ago. That simply showed that there was justification for the increases asked in other places, but now it has gotten to the point where another raise is needed. Instead of being prepared to reduce fares under municipal operation there must be another increase of a cent a ride.

The reason for this is that the street railway is in a bad financial condition. The city has been taking everything out of it and putting nothing back. It has been running the lines as a municipal proposition and failing to maintain the system as would be done by a private corporation serving the public and still running it as a successful business proposition.

In all cities it is expected that street railways will maintain the pavement between the tracks and at various distances outside the rails. In Detroit the question is being raised that this burden ought no longer to be placed on the municipal railway but should be shifted to the general taxpayers. The idea is to try to help it keep its head up at the expense of all the people, not simply those who ride.

The municipal experiment of Detroit has come in for much condemnation. It is headed in the wrong direction. It has been under a ten-year test and is in a worse situation today than when started. With a poorer service, the streets not maintained, fares increased and added taxes threatened, it is certainly not a good impression that is created by the Detroit indulgence in city ownership of its street railway system.

OPERATING PRISONS

More than one state is interested at the present time in correcting conditions which have been disclosed in connection with the operation of their penal institutions.

In the state of New York there is a demand for decided changes and yet the warden of its largest prison is firm in the belief that greater advantages should be provided for the prisoners and that there should be an extension of the policies which he has long advocated. This is not a new position for him to take but it comes after the second serious outbreak in the Auburn penitentiary where it has been declared that the great trouble in that institution was the leniency that was permitted.

In this connection it is an interesting statement which is made concerning prison government by J. C. Groome, warden of Pennsylvania's eastern penitentiary for a number of years. In the Saturday Evening Post he declares that a properly built and equipped prison with 2,400 prisoners can be handled as easily as a boys' school, but he would not be so certain of it unless theorists, welfare societies and penologists were kept away. In other words, he is convinced that they are responsible to a large degree for the leniency that prevails and that is responsible for so much of the trouble that is encountered in prisons.

Perhaps Mr. Groome, like those who urge leniency, places too much confidence in his own particular method. But during his service as warden he had no riots or other disturbances. He did not create the impression that a prison was a club room and he did not stand for the idea that those unable to govern themselves under the laws of this country should be put at the head of a prison government for the guidance of others, as is done in the case of the self-governing prison organizations. Upon this particular point Mr. Groome believes that a man who is unable to control himself and falls afoul of the law lacks the qualifications to govern a prison. He is an advocate of military discipline in prisons and presents his own record in the Pennsylvanian institution as evidence in support of its effectiveness.

MEXICAN WORKERS

One of the reasons for seeking an immigration quota for Mexicans coming into this country has been that many undesirables have come across the line to make this country their home when persons of a similar character are deprived of an entrance through coastal ports of entry.

Objection to restricting immigration from Mexico has been raised because of the belief that it would have an undesirable effect upon the relations between the United States and Mexico, which have been brought to a most satisfactory stage after a long period of disruption. The belief has been that this is not an auspicious time for making such a move.

What amounts to substantial opposition to any such action is furnished by Chairman Legge of the farm board, who has pointed out that the states of the southwest are greatly in need of the labor that is obtained from Mexico. It is impossible to get the help to work under the climatic conditions except from the country to the south that the farmers of that region are dependent upon. Their only alternative is to switch crops, but Chairman Legge points out that to do that would simply mean an increase in the grain crops which are already raised to excess in this country.

The suggestion that the farm board head makes that the situation be most carefully considered was augmented by the idea that restrictions on this Mexican labor coming into this country might be provided through the issuance of permits which would take care of their stay in the southwest during the season when they are needed for caring for the fruit and truck garden crops. It is apparently a situation where we must proceed with such caution that we do not injure while trying to aid ourselves.

PROTECTING THE CONSUMER

Protecting the consumer is a task that calls for constant attention. No sooner is one thing accomplished than need for action is discovered in another direction. The consumer is considered the target for perpetual assault.

Not so many years ago it was found necessary to provide protection by the enactment of the food and drug act, whereby those who had been gouging the public were made to give an account of themselves and declare the amount and the ingredients in the various containers. The consumer was entitled to know whether he was getting a pound, several ounces less or some more, and in the interest of purity he had a right to know what he was actually buying. It was a good thing. The same with weights and measures.

Out in Nebraska the practice has grown up of putting into trade bottles of such a size as to create the impression that a much larger amount of the liquid contained therein was being secured than was actually the case. It was one of those instances of buying a large and weighty bottle but one that held a surprisingly small amount. Such a type of container is familiar to most people, but the practice has been carried to the point in the middle west where the wool was being pulled over the eyes of the buyers to such an extent that a halt has been called. Restrictions have been issued on fluid containers. Those that give the appearance of holding twice what they actually do have had the ban placed on them. It is a case of insisting upon giving the consumer a square deal, and in so doing there is being provided that degree of protection which the people of that, or any other state, have a right to expect from the authorities which are named to look after such matters.

Deceiving the consumer is an old game and it creates nothing but joy when those engaged in it are made to toe the mark. Deception and short weight are all in the same dishonest class.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Lincoln day, and a good time to participate by putting out the flag.

The man on the corner says: Bills get much wear but the big ones maintain an attractive freshness.

Lincoln's birthday gives you the chance to recall the life of one of the country's great men whose influence is still powerful.

With one of the six weeks gone that are supposed to be under the control of the groundhog, it will not be so bad if the rest are no worse.

AN AIRY INCIDENT

"Oh!" cried Rosemary distractedly as a sudden gust of fresh wind caught her hat and whirled it along Michigan avenue, closer and closer to the curb, until at last, with a saucy bounce, it cavorted to the driveway, where it was threatened with instant demolition.

"Oh!" she lamented again, running a few futile steps in the direction of her dancing headgear. "My new hat! It's gone!" But suddenly from the vicinity of a taxicab a stalwart leather-clad individual began tacking in and out among the passing motors in pursuit of the hat. Rosemary watched him excitedly.

"I do hope it isn't hurt," she exclaimed anxiously as the intrepid one approached, carefully brushing the dust from the smart bit of straw in his hands. "Thank you a thousand times," she went on brightly, recalling her manners. "You really shouldn't have been so reckless, you know, but"—pulling the hat over her smooth, black hair at exactly the right angle—"I can't tell you how glad I am to have my hat back."

"It's a doggy lid, all right. I'm glad I was able to rescue it."

If Rosemary's usual buoyant self-confidence received a jolt when she saw the expression of amusement mingled with admiration in the blue eyes of the strikingly good-looking young man looking down at her she gave no hint of it.

"You may drive me home, please," she said carelessly. "Is this your cab right here?"

The man hesitated for one second, then, cap in hand, opened the door of the cab with a certain charm of manner that his fare found vaguely disturbing during the ride along the drive.

"Keep it, please," said Rosemary, extending her hand with a $5 bill after the four-mile drive had ended.

"If I only could!" was the astounding reply as Rosemary found her hand, bill and all, grasped steadily for one instant by a lean, tanned hand, whose owner's blue eyes gazed steadily into her brown ones until her long lashes swept her cheeks protectingly. "You see," he explained in a matter-of-fact tone as he climbed back to the driver's seat, "the meter's not been running, so I really can't tell what the charge is."

"But," cried Rosemary, "I know exactly—" A brown hand waved to her as the cab drew away from the curb. In one of Rosemary's tightly clenched fists remained a crumpled $5 bill.

"Ho-ha!" laughed Rosemary's father as, taking advantage of her mother's absence from the breakfast table, he perused unchided his favorite newspaper. "That's great. That's the sort of young daredevil I like. There's something compelling about a young chap who practices 'all for love and the world well lost.'"

"Who is he, dad?" asked Rosemary, suppressing a yawn. "I thought the young Lochinvar type was extinct."

"Judge for yourself, my dear," said her parent, handing over the newspaper and applying himself to his iced orange juice. Two gay eyes looked out at her from the paper—looked out from under a leather cap, which, fastened under his chin, she recognized as an aviator's helmet. Rosemary paled as she glanced hurriedly down the page, then flushed as she took in the full meaning of the story.

"How'd you like a young gallant like that?" asked her father. "Risked his life to save his lady's hat, then risked his liberty by commandeering a cab to whisk her away. A chevalier of old could have done no more."

"Maybe he was just some stranger," suggested a small voice behind the sheltering newspaper.

"Hugh! He'd be apt to drive straight to headquarters and pay the chauffeur the full value of the cab just for the pleasure of having driven a strange girl home, wouldn't he?"

"Do—do you think he'll be prosecuted?" asked Rosemary anxiously.

"Prosecute Phil Ahimer, the famous aviator? Not on your life! Turn to the next page and you'll see that the police sergeant accepted his invitation to go up in his plane this afternoon. But they haven't discovered who the girl was. Ahimer absolutely refuses to tell and it seems no one passed at the time who recognized her."

At 4 o'clock that afternoon a smart roadster pulled up in the vicinity of the aviation field. A brown-eyed vision in a straw hat glanced about.

"I hoped you'd come," said the leather-clad person who had been watching eagerly for the last hour.

"Of course," declared Rosemary gayly. "I had to look you up since I owe you some money."

"How about driving me to town to square things up?" suggested Phil.

"They'll not be squared up unless you come home with me and let my dad see his favorite daredevil face to face," said Rosemary, stepping on the gas.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—"To me he typifies more than any other other senator the picture we are apt to have of the old Roman, toga-clad senator—dignified, courtly, courteous. He represents by his very countenance the set type of an American senator of our age.

"Visitors to the gallery point him out as a man of distinguished bearing. And he has not only looked the part, he has acted it. Every senator loves and esteems him as a friend, and a good fighter, too."

Do you recognize that word picture. Surely, if you read newspapers you have long known him by name. He has spent almost three decades in the senate. Yet he is still the junior senator from the Old North State, Lee Slater Overman of Salisbury, North Carolina.

Fine Gesture

Walsh of Massachusetts drew this kindly sketch of Overman when big, burly, genial Jim Watson of Indiana made one of those fine gestures across the political aisle that he loves.

It was his tribute to the twin grand old men of North Carolina, Senators Simmons and Overman, on the seventy-sixth anniversary of their birth. In age they are separated by only 17 days and in senate service by only two years.

Looking back across nearly three score years this is what Simmons sees as he told it to the senate in giving thanks for himself and his colleague for the affectionate tributes poured out upon him:

"There has been a remarkable parallel in the lives, especially the political lives, of my colleague and myself. We were born in the same month of the same year. When we were in our teens we went to the same college at the same time, and both of us entered the law. When we had grown to manhood we both entered public life. We came to the senate only two years apart.

"Our friendship in college was warm and intimate, and during more than a quarter of a century we have served here together our relations have been marked by feelings of sympathetic and warm friendship.

"There has never been a clash between us. There have been differences, of course, but only such as must come to men of independent thought and action."

Together

There is no man now in the senate who was there when Simmons first entered it in 1903. There is but one man there who equals Overman's length of service, Smoot of Utah.

"We took the oath of office together," Smoot said, looking a little sadly perhaps, across at Overman, now snowy of hair and weighed down a little with age. "And we were both in the very prime of life."

NEW BOOKS

Autobiography of the Museum Man. By Charles Q. Eldredge. Cloth, 205 pages. Illustrated. Published by Hamilton Printing Co., Albany. Price $2.50.

The author has long been known because of his unusual collection of curios and when he presents the story of his life it is inevitable that he should term himself "the museum man." This volume is an amplification of The Story of a Connecticut Life, written a decade ago, and it deals with those always interesting school days, his trip to Virginia in the early war days while still a youngster and subsequently his location in Wisconsin where he was for a considerable period employed in the lumber camps with varied and exciting experiences.

From an adventure standpoint his days spent rafting down the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers will never be forgotten. Later he turned his attention to farming and afterwards he located at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., where for a considerable period he was engaged in the operation of a flour mill, a knit goods factory and as a merchant.

During all these years there were times when trips were made to various parts of the world and all of them were interesting and educational. Having started his career in Mystic, or Old Mystic, he completes the circle of events by returning there for his home and the establishment of his museum which has brought him no end of fame.

Mr. Eldredge tells the story of his life in a fascinating manner, recalling details that most people would have forgotten and making his book quite as attractive for those who never had the pleasure of his acquaintance as for those who have traveled along life's highway as his contemporaries. His volume, A History of Curios, written four years ago, deals particularly with his museum collection.

Beginnings of Telephony. By Frederick Leland Rhodes. Cloth, 261 pages, illustrated. Published by Harper & Bros., New York. Price $4.

This volume has been compiled in such a manner as to give the present day workers in the field of telephony, and students of the history of electrical communication, an opportunity to become familiar with some of the problems that vexed the pioneers in the telephonic art. Naturally there are several chapters devoted to Alexander Graham Bell and his patents for they play a vital part in this scientific development and the author indicates the close study which he has given to and broad knowledge which he has of his subject. The aim has not been to include development to the present stage, which would require an additional volume, but is restricted to the early and struggling days.

In compact and readable form the author has given the essentials of court decisions in that remarkable group of telephone cases, which were characterized by Justice Brewer as the most important and most protracted litigation which had arisen under the patent system in this country. It is a volume that should be of especial interest, not only to those connected with the telephone business in any capacity, but to inventors, lawyers, and students of our patent system, for in no other publication is there to be found the history of the great legal controversies which raged about the invention of the telephone. Never before has the claim of an inventor been subjected to such exhaustive litigation and judicial scrutiny, and never before did an inventor receive such a complete and dramatic vindication.

The value of the book is enhanced by copious references to original and authentic sources, the existence of which would otherwise be difficult to discover. It is a well illustrated and well printed volume with careful index.

The Long Harpoon. True Whaling Stories. By Arthur C. Watson. Cloth, illustrated, 165 pages. Published by Reynolds Printing, New Bedford. Price $2.

This is a collection of whaling anecdotes by the assistant curator of Old Dartmouth Historical society, one certainly in a position to make valuable contributions to whaling lore, not only because of his close relationship with, but because of his lifelong residence in the very center of that industry.

He has presented a story that is the result of years of study of log books, contact with whalers themselves and the experiences that have been related by those who lived the life of a whaler. He has brought together a group of daring exploits by those who were expert in the throwing of the "long harpoon."

The log books from which Mr. Watson got his inspiration for his book were sketchy accounts from which he got the foundation for colorful stories of the actual life of a whaler, told in an interesting manner by one who is as adept with the pen as the mate boasted of being with the long harpoon. Such chapters as A Cruise of Troubles in the Barclay, The Loss of a Great Arctic Fleet, the Triton Tragedy, The Narrow Squeak of the Pocahontas, give an idea of adventurous tales that are pictured in The Long Harpoon.

Here are narratives out of the ordinary and those that are certain to be fascinating for those who have a love of the briny and who have been more or less in touch with those whose ancestors or localities were closely concerned with the whaling industry.

It is an entertaining volume and the author has not only presented new and different narratives but has rendered a valuable service in collecting and preserving this group of whaling stories.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No School Children Attended

Mr. Editor: As the officiating clergyman, may I correct what, to me, seems a rather serious error in the funeral report of Miss Mildred Bjork? No school children attended. There were many beautiful floral tributes from friends and school mates, but under the circumstances, only the immediate family and close relatives actually attended.

I feel this statement should be made for the sake of the Bjork family, those who had charge of the funeral arrangements, and the community at large.

Funeral Fun

Jack's mother told him to go to grandmother's and spend the afternoon and to tell her that mother was going to a funeral.

"Let me go with you, mother. I never have had any funeral fun," said the pleading four year old.

She Knew

From Sunday's dinner mother served a mixture that evening that tasted good.

"What's this?" dad asked.

"That's goulash," mother answered.

"Oh," said little Hatty. "I know what that is. I wear one on each foot when it rains."

YOUR HEALTH

A Way To Save Life

By Maurice O. Magid, M. D., Bronx, New York.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Childbirth, whether it is spontaneous or is aided by the use of instruments, results in injury to the neck of the womb in about 35 per cent of mothers. The injury, be it slight or severe, is not of itself dangerous. The element of danger is the infection which may take place in these cases. The presence of infection in the neck of the womb results in a certain amount of crippling of the oviducts and ovaries, but the greatest danger lies in the development of cancer.

Cancer may also be developed in the neck of womb in women who have never been pregnant. In these cases there usually was present a chronic or slow form of inflammation. The symptoms are low backache, discharge, pain in the lower abdomen on one or both sides, disturbance in regularity and in amount of menstrual flow and disturbance in urination. There may also be pain in various joints of the body, or fatigue and general weakness.

The use of douches as treatment for such cases seldom if ever reaches the source of infection, so that any medicine or salt used in the water is largely ineffective, and the practice only permits the disease to continue until the condition becomes serious. For the treatment of this infection, and for the protection against the development of serious disease and possibly cancer women should consult the family physician for a periodic examination. By regular inspection and proper treatment when necessary, many women will be spared chronic invalidism and may be saved from the scourge of cancer.

Those women who are unable to pay a private physician may visit the Clinics for Women at the hospitals and dispensaries. There they will receive first class care and attention from the attending staff.

ALL WOMEN—rich or poor, young or old—SHOULD HAVE A PERIODIC EXAMINATION.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 9

Two of the terms used in the income tax law, namely, "gross income" and "net income," should be noted particularly, inasmuch as they are vitally important to the whole subject of the income tax.

All income derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law, should be included in gross income. The gross income of the usual merchandising of mercantile business consists of the total sales, less the cost of goods sold, plus any income from investments and incidental or outside operations or sources. Subtractions should not be made for selling expenses, depreciation, losses, or other items not ordinarily used in computing the cost of goods sold.

For example if the gross sales were $50,000, the cost of goods sold $35,000, and the business expenses, etc., $12,000, the statutory gross income is $15,000 and the net income is $3,000. In this case, if the taxpayer was married and living with his wife, he would be required to file a return, although his net income is only $3,000. The return must show the gross sales, purchases, and cost of goods sold. To reflect income correctly, inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each taxable year.

A lawyer, doctor, architect, author, clergyman, or other professional man must include in gross income all fees, salaries and compensation for professional services.

The revenue act provides that certain items shall be excluded from gross income and shall not be subject to the income tax. Among such items are proceeds from life-insurance policies, gifts, bequests and devises, interest from municipal bonds, etc., damages recovered from personal injuries or sickness, World war compensation payments, pensions for the services of the beneficiary or another, interest or dividends of not over $300 from a building and loan association, and rental value of a gospel minister's dwelling. Other items to be excluded from gross income are alimony, notary fees, city jury fees, salary credited to an employee but not actually or constructively received by him, or an insurance policy covering the death of a business partner.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Automatic Machine Company, Bridgeport.

The Automatic Machine company was established in 1896 by James Coulter, vice president and chief engineer of the company today. The first shop was a single story wooden building having approximately 3200 square feet of floor space, and the original equipment was valued at $800.

The first products were automatic wire forming machines. In 1900 the business had increased to the extent that two stories had to be added to the original building together with a two story addition in the rear. In 1904 an automatic threading lathe was designed by Mr. Coulter and added to the shops' production.

In 1908 the company was incorporated under the laws of the state of Connecticut with an authorized capital of two million dollars. Increased business made it necessary to find a larger plant, and in 1909 the corporation moved to the present location at 118 E. Washington avenue, where the already famous "automatic engine" was developed and marketed. This engine was first used for marine work only, but a subsequent design was put on the market for stationary work.

In 1913 the well-known Coulter openside shaper-planer was added to the line. This combination tool is used extensively throughout the metal working industry. In 1916 the Coulter hob thread milling machine was introduced and met with singular success. In 1920 another Coulter product was given to a waiting market—the Coulter automatic profiler used extensively in the automotive industry for profiling internal combustion engine cylinder heads.

In 1926 Mr. Coulter designed and presented to industry the famous Coulter diamond tool boring machine, the only really successful design for the use of diamonds as cutting tools.

The present plant has approximately 120,000 square feet of floor space, operates its own pattern shop, foundry, machine shop, assembly and engineering departments. The company's products are sold direct and through dealers throughout the United States and in the principal foreign countries.

The present officers are: William R. Webster, president; James Coulter, vice president; F. D. Dorman, treasurer and general manager; A. J. Porter, secretary.

COWS BEHIND STATE FENCE CHORTLE AT HUNGRY TICKS

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—It's a long time between jumps for the Texas tick.

He has eight legs, but can cover only 10 feet a year under his own steam and seldom lives more than eight months, anyway, says Dr. E. P. Flower of the Louisiana Livestock sanitary board.

And that's why Mississippi cows are sitting pretty behind their $75,000 barbed wire barrier, stretching 60 miles with 15 feet of "dead space" between its double rows.

Mississippi built the fence to keep out tick-infested Louisiana cattle. Patrolmen shoo the cows off and where the fence ends the Mississippi and Pearl rivers begin.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

TO "POINT-UP" APPETITE JUST STIMULATE BOWELS

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts: food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengths bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no no dollar preparation could do better work.

GURDON MILLER MAKING RECOVERY IN HOSPITAL

Norwich friends of Gurdon Miller, son of Mrs. Frelove Miller of 20 Penobscot street, will be glad to learn of his continuing improvement at Grace hospital, New Haven, where he has been a patient since Sept. 11, although progress is necessarily slow from the severe electrical burns he received on face, ears, neck, hand, knee and ankle when he was struck by a high voltage wire in the Cedar Hill yards of the New Haven railroad.

Mrs. Miller visited her son on Monday and found that he was able to be up and around the hospital and that considerable improvement had been experienced from a recent operation to overcome the effect of burns around his mouth. A minor operation is soon to be performed which will result, it is believed, in restoring the use of his hand.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGNERS TO MAKE ADVANCE ALL ALONG THE FRONT

The Boy Scouts campaigners for the budget of the Eastern Connecticut council came in with reports of $1,047.50, when they had their campaign supper Tuesday night at the Arcanum club, and a telegram was received from Stafford Springs pledging to raise $500 there. These two amounts, with the $2,484 raised Monday, boosted the total to $4,031.50, which is just over the half-way mark towards the goal of $8,000.

From now on Campaign Manager H. D Larrabee is calling for a general advance along the whole front, with every division head, with every team captain and every member of every team concentrating on the work so that there shall be a 100 per cent meeting when the next reports are turned in on Thursday night. The effort will be to have every team member on hand for the reports Thursday night and ready to report on every card that has been put into his hands. The goal of $8,000 has been set for Thursday night. There will be no reports this (Wednesday) evening.

It is further proposed that Friday afternoon be made a special time for a final drive by an automobile campaign and that all team workers endeavor to be released from their employment for that afternoon so that the drive can be pushed to completion with the co-operation of automobile owners, who will have their machines assemble in Union square from where they will all start out at once in a cavalcade to finish up the job

William G. Park led in the singing of America as the meeting opened Tuesday evening with Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano and the invocation was offered by Rev. P. A. Kilmister of the First Baptist church.

The menu served was as follows:

Consomme, saltines, olives, meat loaf, potatoes, rolls, string beans, cold slaw, apple pie, cheese, coffee.

After the reports of the day's work had been made, Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce made a stirring address to the workers, declaring his confidence in the successful outcome of the campaign and calling upon the workers to give Campaign Manager Larrabee enthusiastic support. "We can see that some teams are getting results," he said, "and if all teams will get to work there will be even better results." He called upon every worker to see at least six men on Wednesday and six more on Thursday, not being satisfied with the first allotment of cards, but getting more cards as fresh material to work on so that the whole field might be covered.

The mail campaign had brought in $83 by Tuesday. It is hoped that the total secured by this means will be at least $1,000.

It is proposed to place barrels at the theatre entrances where the general public may make their contributions if they are not reached in any other way.

The accompanying table shows the results of the campaign to date:

BIRTH CONTROL EVIL CONDEMNED BY FR. GALVIN

Incidental to his sermon in continuation of his series on the holy eucharist, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preaching Sunday at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church to a congregation of probably 1,400, considered the proper preparation of the soul to receive holy communion. In his previous sermon he had considered the preparation of the body. The holy eucharist is the food of the soul. The first and an indispensable condition for receiving it worthily, is freedom from mortal sin—the soul should be in a state of grace.

Since it is a sacrilege to receive communion when in a state of mortal sin, the preacher compared the act of those who thus desecrate the body and blood, soul and divinity of Jesus Christ, quoting the Holy Father, to the sin of Judas, who betrayed his Lord. The Catholic who goes to communion from ignoble motives, such as pride, or some similar sin, received his censure; married people guilty of what is referred to as birth control, who cannot practice self-control, who nullify one of God's greatest prerogatives, the increase of the human race, who are guilty of deception in confession, or who blame the other party, who promise reform, yet continue to repeat their sin, they are committing a sacrilege by receiving God into a soul tainted with the worst sin that can be imagined. "God have mercy on such souls!" exclaimed the preacher.

Rev. Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly in administering the sacrament to many hundreds, so numerous had been the confessions the day before. Preceding the consecration, the junior choir, directed by Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist, sang the beautiful Hymn to St. Therese. At the conclusion of the mass, when Father Reilly gave Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the children sang Pange Lingua and Divine Praises according to the new Justine Ward method.

NORWICH MAN SUES OVER SILVER SLIPPER DEAL

A triple action lawsuit was started in New Britain by Isadore J. Gagnon of Norwich against Willis J. Gengrass and Joseph L. Dissell, claiming damages of $700 and the cancellation of an agreement on the grounds of false representation.

The case revolves about a roadhouse on the Plainville-Farmington road known as the Silver Slipper, formerly the Black Kitten, which the plaintiff purchased from the defendants. Not acquainted with the business in question the plaintiff alleges that the former owners of the place misrepresented the facts to indicate that from $650 to $750 was earned during one week and that each patron spent on the average of $7. Gagnon claims the defendants argued that the property was worth $12,000 when he bought it. November 4, 1929. At that time he gave the men $1,000 in cash and two days later $3,000 more. He executed a mortgage deed on the property for $6,765 to the defendants and agreed to pay $1,000 in sixty days and the balance in three-month installments of $720.

The writ is returnable in the superior court at Hartford.

FOUR JUDGMENTS ENTERED AGAINST JOSEPH SIGAL

Four judgments of $2,193.75 each were awarded the Atlas Realty corporation of Hartford against Joseph Sigal of New London and four parcels of land involved in the foreclosure suit brought against Sigal and the Commodore Realty Co. of New London were ordered sold on April 19 at a regular session of the superior court there Tuesday morning before Judge Christopher L. Avery.

The four cases were withdrawn from the jury docket in the morning and the judgment and order of sale were entered after Attorney Samuel Gruskin for the defendant and Attorney L. H. Katz for the plaintiff had submitted their claims.

By agreement the Commodore Realty company was withdrawn as a co-defendant in the cases and the judgments entered were against Sigal only.

The land involved is located at 115-123 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach. Thomas S. McGinley was appointed a committee on sale and Sidney H. Miner, James R. May and Joseph Perrone were appointed appraisers.

CLAIM TAX EXEMPTION FOR FOREST IN LEBANON

(Special to The Bulletin)

LEBANON, Conn., Feb. 11.—The first hearing in Connecticut to result from the classification of forest land under chapter 179, public acts of 1929, was conducted by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett before a capacity audience in the town hall here this morning. This hearing was on account of an appeal made by Mr. and Mrs. David Walsh, from the doings of the Lebanon assessors.

From the testimony given under oath by the appellant and the various officials, it appeared that the Walshes had purchased their farm and moved to Lebanon shortly before the general property revaluation of ten years ago. This farm included one of the few Connecticut woodlots that had never been cut clean, but was well covered with trees, in some cases nearly 100 years old. The assessors therefore proceeded to improve their opportunity by valuing the newly purchased lot at $75 per acre for the entire 26 acres.

The onerous taxation resulting from such valuation was borne by the Walshes until last August, when their attention was directed to chapter 179, public acts of 1929, purporting to exempt growing timber from taxation. In accordance with this chapter, application was filed with the state forester, who proceeded to examine the woodlot and issue the necessary certificate classifying it as forest land.

John Clark, member of the board of assessors for the past 18 years, told Commissioner Blodgett that the board had received a copy of the classification certificate from the state forester, and had consulted the town's legal adviser regarding it. In accordance with advice so received, the board had valued the Walsh woodlot at $12 per acre for the land, and added a separate item of $63 per acre for the trees. Mr. Clark expressed the personal opinion that said law contemplated the exemption of the trees from taxation, and that view was supported by State Forester Hawes, and C. M. Gallup of North Stonington, chairman of the forestry committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce.

Commissioner Blodgett in closing the hearing ruled that the value of $12 per acre for the land was not disproportionate, and left it with the Lebanon board of relief to make the contemplated exemption of the tree growth.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT BROUGHT FOR $15,000

The $15,000 damage suit of Leslie Wilson of this city against Henry Christenson of Marlborough, which was scheduled to be tried Tuesday before Judge C. L. Avery and a jury in the superior court at New London was settled out of court.

Wilson claims that on June 20, 1928, he was employed as service manager at the Norwich branch of the Mack Motor Co. here, and on that day went to Mansfield to make repairs to a truck owned by John Adamo of Westerly, R. I. By agreement with Adamo, the defendant Christensen was to bring Wilson back to this city.

Wilson complained in his suit that Christensen drove so heedlessly while passing through the town of Franklin that he drove completely off the roadway into a parked machine on the side of the road. The Christensen car then continued, by going through a railing fence, down a steep embankment, coming to a stop against an apple tree.

The complaint recited that Wilson was seriously injured and as a result he will be obliged to walk with a slight limp or lameness.

GAVE LINCOLN SERMON AT MCKINLEY AVE. CHURCH

Sunday evening at McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church, the pastor, Rev. E. W. Gantt, delivered a Lincoln sermon, speaking of the "Great Emancipator" and some of his contemporaries. His text was "Persecuted, but not forgotten; cast down, but not destroyed."

In part the pastor spoke as follows:

On February 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Kentucky, was born, in a lowly log cabin, a son that was destined to be one of the greatest Americans, if not the greatest, that this country has ever produced. Certainly he was the greatest so far as the Negro race is concerned. He, like our blessed Lord and Master, was not born of a kingly or aristocratic ancestry, in a palace or mansion, but as Jesus was born in a lowly crib or in a lime-stone cave, so was Lincoln born in a little unpretentious log cabin in the hills of the "Blue Grass State." It was very fitting that some society had the vision to preserve the memories of this historic little cabin, by purchasing the land upon which it stood, and erecting over it a building that would do honor to that great soul, who as a boy roamed over its broad fields.

Like the cabin in which he was born, Lincoln was modest and unassuming. And like this rough unpretentious little cabin, which is now in the heart of a beautiful and magnificent building, Lincoln, who was truly "a diamond in the rough," is now, and forever shall be deeply buried into the hearts of not only the Negro race, not only America, the proud country of his noble birth, but of the whole universe.

Again, like the little cabin, which is greater than the beautiful mansion which covers it, Lincoln is greater than all the good things that have been said about him, or the poems which have been written about him, or the magnificent monuments which have been erected and dedicated to his sacred memory.

The heart of man, or of anything, is always the greatest thing about the man or the thing. Let us look into the great heart of Abraham Lincoln. His was a noble heart—a great big sympathetic heart. You remember reading of his trip down south when he saw some ruffians abusing a young colored boy, by brutally beating him, and how his great heart went out in sympathy for that individual, and to all the members of that oppressed race of which he was a member. He said then and there, "If I ever get a chance at slavery, I am going to hit it, and hit it hard!" Thank God he did get a chance at it, and he hit it, and hit it hard. I know it has been said that Lincoln would have preserved the Union by having half of it free, but absolute freedom was foremost in the mind of this great Emancipator. For he said, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free." Lincoln was not half-hearted in his agitation against this cursed institution, he was in it whole heart and soul. "That this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

In conclusion, Pastor Gantt referred to Harriet Beecher Stowe, the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," William Lloyd Garrison, the abolitionist, Frederick Douglass and Harriet Tubbman.

Of Douglass he said: He was a member of our own race of whom we are very proud. Douglass like Lincoln, had much difficulty in securing an education. He was an escaped slave from Maryland, who after learning to read became a great asset to the cause of liberty. He became a journalist and statesman. Through his employment by the Anti-Slavery society, and his publication of the New National Era, in the A. M. E. Zion church, at Rochester, N. Y., much was accomplished for the cause.

Harriet Tubbman. Very little—too little is known of this great colored woman who risked her life so many times that her race might enjoy the blessings of liberty that God intended for all mankind. She played a great part as a worker in the "Underground railroad," a method through which many a hunted slave escaped to friends and liberty. She was called the "Moses of her race," and truly she was. Many nights this faithful woman spent in the swamps of the southland guiding some poor sad soul to, as she termed it, "the promised land."

A monument for the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, and his great contemporaries should be forever erected in our hearts, as a perpetual reminder of the heroic deeds which they did for an oppressed race.

Customs Change In Medicine, Too

Whole Trend of Modern Medical Practice Is Away From Needless "Dosing"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for colds and almost every human ailment. Then Lunsford Richardson, a North Carolina pharmacist, originated Vicks VapoRub—the better method of treating colds externally.

From the very first, Vicks has been appreciated, especially by mothers of young children, because it checks colds without the risk of upsetting delicate stomachs. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing," and millions of families in more than 60 countries use Vicks for all cold troubles. Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vick slogan. Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 25 Million Jars Used Yearly."

ELUSIVE RUM-BOAT GANDER GIVEN UP TO N. LONDON OFFICIALS BY COUNSEL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 11—The speed launch Gander, home port, Bridgeport, Capt. Arthur Rowland master, a boat that has been known to traffic in rum through Long Island sound a long time and which has been sought by the United States Coast Guard since the boat was fired upon—off this port early last Friday morning, was delivered to the New London customs house authorities this afternoon. The delivery of the boat, which could not be found after the rain of gun fire upon her was, at the instigation of Attorney Louis Halley, New York, who is counsel for practically all of the members of crews of rum-boats that are brought to this port. Halley communicated with the local customs house officials and made it known that the Gander would be delivered in port if such action were desired. When informed that the boat was wanted, the trip to New London harbor was started and the Gander, under Capt. Arthur Rowland, entered the harbor shortly after 2 o'clock and was docked at the customs house pier. The coast guard officials have made three charges against Rowland— operating a boat on the high seas without lights, trafficking in liquor and failing to stop when ordered to do so by an authorized representative of the United States government. The case was continued a week, when Rowland was brought before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran. Rowland was given into the custody of his attorney and the boat was held as a surety for the master's appearance when the case will be heard Tuesday next.

The Gander, it is claimed, was sighted by one of several patrol boats, proceeding westward through Long Island sound, between 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock last Friday morning. At the time, the Gander, long known as a rum-runner, was without lights and was headed westward. When at a point between Bartlett's Reef lightship and Goshen Point, the master of the Gander was ordered to bring the launch to a stop, but the order was ignored. A one-pound shot was fired across the Gander's bow and two or three others, but still the boat continued to speed away. When the Gander was observed to be gradually getting away from the patrol boat an order was given to turn machine gun fire on the fleeing boat and this was done, but the Gander was successful in getting away. Nothing more was heard as to the whereabouts of the boat until this afternoon when the launch entered port, after Attorney Halley had assured the customs house authorities that the rum-runner would be brought here.

Rowland was convicted of rum-running several months ago and was fined $500 and costs by United States Commissioner Corcoran.

Mrs. Anna Rupert, of 225 Ledyard street; Miss Elizabeth Huey, Hadlyme; Miss Barbara Thompson, 93 Lincoln avenue; Mrs. Gwendolyn McRae, 11 Shapley street; Paul Zimmerman, Mystic, and Miss Eleanor Hamilton, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

LOCAL OFFICERS START TO BRING BACK WILLIAMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 11—In order to strengthen the case of Linwood, ("Peanuts.") Farrell, 17 and colored, a prisoner at the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of murder in the first degree in slaying Jacob Waheman, of 25 Shapley street, a Lithuanian, Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh and County Detective William Lewis today arrested William, "Rattlesnake Pete," Franklin and Ernest Johnson, both colored and residing on Hill street, charged with being material witnesses. Both men were locked up in default of $3,000 bonds each. Tomorrow they will be presented in the police court when they will be committed to jail, providing they do not obtain sureties on their bonds and this is not probable. The state is desirous of having Franklin and Johnson in court when the murder case is called at the next criminal term of the superior court in May and to assure their presence as witnesses it was decided to apprehend the Negroes. Franklin, Johnson, Farrell and Charles Williams, the last named also colored and a bargehand, were in the Main street restaurant the morning of Jan. 12, when Waheman appeared there. Yesterday Williams showed up in his home town, Norfolk, Va., where he has a police record. He was taken into custody and this afternoon Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Edward Riordan left for Norfolk to bring the prisoner back to New London. As Williams has waived extradition, he should be returned to this city by the latter part of the week.

Groton Gaming Case Comes Up

In the Groton town court yesterday, Sergi Belonoff, of the Portland Trawling company, was charged with carrying a dangerous weapon and was fined $50 and costs, the latter amounting to $30.05. He could not pay, so was committed to jail. The cases of Lee Perry, Elsie Rathbun, his housekeeper and Thomas Nickerson, the last named also employed on a boat of the fishing company, charged with breach of the peace, were continued two weeks, because of inability of their counsel to attend court. The three men and woman were arrested at Perry's home several nights ago by state police. During the playing of the popular indoor game of poker a dispute arose as to the ownership of a quarter and this produced a fight. Belonoff pulled his jackknife and started to use it, doing so with partial success for he cut the Rathbun woman on the wrist and side. When Perry made complaint to the state police the entire gang was arrested and Perry and the woman were also charged with conducting a gaming house.

Joseph Dembinski, of Salem, was arrested last night in that town charged with breach of the peace and will be tried in the justice court there. He was arrested by State Police Officers William Elmer MacKenzie and Charles Hill and locked up at New London police headquarters.

SCHWARTZ STOLEN PAPER MAY TRAP WILY BURGLAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 11—The police are absolutely without any tangible clue that might lead to the arrest of the safe-cracker who burglarized the furniture store of the Schwartz Furniture store, 131 Bank street, Sunday night when the safe was cracked and about $700 stolen. Numerous clues have been obtained, but they are not of a nature that bring results and as a consequence the investigating officers, Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith are working in the dark. That the crook knew his business there is not the slightest doubt as he made his successful get-away. The crook possesses a solitary negotiable paper, which he may attempt to convert into cash, and if he does there is a remote possibility that a clue will be revealed. Otherwise the police are working entirely in the dark, for all that he obtained in the way of loot was collateral and he will never be apprehended for passing legitimate United States currency.

CAPTURE OF FEEHAN A QUESTION OF TIME

The police are equally in the dark as regards clues to the thief who robbed L. W. Bruce, 108 Howard street, of about $108, Saturday night or Sunday morning. The police in this case know who the thief is and by waiting until he turns up in his usual haunts they will affect his capture. He is Jack Feehan, of Hartford, with a police record in that city and with a home there. He obtained the $300 and in time will return to Hartford, there is not the slightest doubt and when he does he will be apprehended for the crime. The Hartford police have already declared that Feehan was seen at the bus station here at midnight Sunday, although Bruce declares that he was in his home at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning and with those discrepancies as to Feehan's whereabouts Sunday it is a certainty that one or the other is in error, and Bruce should know whether he did or did not see Feehan in his home as late as when he says he was sitting at a table reading, which was 3:30 a. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Boy Scout Movement and Its Record

3,000,000 boys have been Boy Scouts since 1910, which is one-seventh of the total boy population in that period. Two-fifths of our college students in 30 colleges studied are former Scouts. The enrollment of the Boy Scout movement in July 1928 was 813,518 boys and men. This includes over 2,000 men serving as volunteers in this movement.

Scouting is organized in 40 countries with national associations which send delegates to the International Jamboree held quadrennially. There are Scout troops in more than 50 countries. Scouting is therefore a world brotherhood. One-half of the Boy Scouts of the world are in America and more than one-half of the volunteer leaders.

The majority of Scout troops are in churches; 53 per cent of our Scout troops are denominational; nearly 5,000 community troops are, for the most part, located in churches; approximately 90 per cent of the strength of the Boy Scout movement is traceable to the interest and support and leadership of men affiliated with the churches of America.

A very attractive feature of the Boy Scout program is its universal application to boys of all religions and all nations in a world brotherhood. Scouting crosses all lines of cleavage and makes no distinction of classes. It is building up a reserve of good will, mutual respect, comraderie, friendship, understanding and cooperation among boys of our own country and between boys of all nations represented in the International Association of Boy Scouts.

Compare With Record in Crime

The peak crime age is 19 years. Boys who go wrong at 19 are reaping the whirlwind of wild oats sowed in their early teens. America beats all records in proportion to the sum that it spends on its school system. It spends 9c per boy on free time guidance and $450 per boy on juvenile crime. Sixty thousand murders were committed in America in a seven-year period, which exceeds by 10,000 the number of American soldiers killed in all battles of the World war. America's annual crime bill is appalling. One square mile in a large American city contains 69,000 population. A downtown section of a large American city having 7,000 boys and one boys' club has ready access to 445 dance halls, 482 pool rooms, 887 picture shows. Jane Adams said, "America will never be safe until her pleasures are made more atractive than her vices."

The Boy Scouts of America in its program is attempting to make pleasures, the hike through woods, the swim, the games, more attractive to boys than the vices of the city.

Breed Theatre

If anyone ever doubted that modern science is fascinatingly interesting they have but to view "Spies," the great German mystery-crook play produced by UFA and released in this country by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which will open at the Breed theatre today for three days.

The story deals with a master criminal, his plot to control the earth and his losing battle with a brilliant young secret service man, who receives valuable aid from the criminal's chief lieutenant, a beautiful young woman, who falls in love with the detective. The story was directed by Fritz Lang, the great German director, from an original story by his wife, Thea von Harbou. An exceptional cast has been assembled, including names prominent both in German films and on the German stage. Lang will be remembered for his sensational film success, "Metropolis."

Profit is not without honor in any country, but it is often dishonorably obtained.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Show value unprecedented is again offered Broadway patrons in the big double feature program opening today. Two features, either of them big enough to be featured singly, are combined in a most unusual program, and each picture marks the talking debut of a famous silent performer. In the first, Belle Baker, favorite of vaudeville audiences, is starred in "The Song of Love," her first picture appearance, a drama of backstage specially written for this clever and appealing artist. The story, simply told, is of a small-time vaudeville team, "The Three Gibsons," Tom, Anna and their youngster Buddy. Ralph Graves is an upstanding father who, with Miss Baker tries hard to carve a niche for the boy, that he may not have to face the hardships of vaude life. The boy is played by little David Durand, who shared the famous Chevalier's honors in "Innocents of Paris." Not only has the boy a remarkable singing voice, but he is a consummate actor as well, and as his mother's "echo" singing to her from a stage box scores heavily in putting the numerous songs across. "The Song of Love," while thrilling to a degree, is essentially a picture for the family.

Powerful dramatic fare is served up in "Wall Street," the companion picture, starring Ralph Ince in his talking picture debut with Aileen Pringle. The plot centers about "Roller McCray," self-made financier, who by a policy of ruthless selfishness has forced his way to the top of the financial world. McCray, who had started life as a steel mill worker, is crude and uneducated— but has a heart of gold. Without meaning to, he drives "Walter Tabor," a rival financier, to suicide. McCray's efforts to make amends to Tabor's widow, "Anne," for whom he has conceived an intense admiration, supply action for the drama. Ralph Ince, who impersonates McCray, gives a splendid performance. Ince plays his role realistically—his efforts to win the love and respect of Anne Tabor, interpreted by Aileen Pringle, are tinged with pathos. Miss Pringle gives a finished performance with dignity, charm and poise. The Fox movietone news completes a well balanced program which is number "D" in the Broadway greater entertainment month schedule.

A New Hardware Store

Dunning, who has had several years experience in the hardware business, having been associated with his father in Westerly and previous to that with Chandler and Barber in Boston.

Palace Theatre.

Two hot-blooded southerners in a desperate fued over a lovely woman, threats of vengeance, protestations of love, despicable accusations and scandalous gossip. These are the part and parcel of one of the great screen dramas which open on the Palace theatre's double feature program today. They are the substance of that flaming epic of the southland, "The Other Tomorrow," in which Billie Dove and Grant Withers are starred.

As a marvelous complementary attraction the Palace presents also "The Aviator," starring Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller in a glorious comedy. These two pictures make up a first-run all talking program of laughs and tense drama that simply cannot be duplicated in town. Once again the Palace has scored and given another fulfillment of the promise made by its management some months ago when Warner Brothers came to town to take over this popular playhouse.

In "The Aviator," Mr. Street, a well known and successful novelist, is persuaded by a publisher to pretend he was the author of a sensational aviation book. This, of course, is to boost the sales. Street consents and then departs for a rest in a summer resort. Imagine his horror when the inhabitants, including a lot of charming young women come around to get his autograph and to ask when he will perform some of the great stunts described in the book.

Street is no coward, but the sight of an airplane makes him glad he is on the ground. In fact it makes him dizzy even to ride in an elevator, and as for taking a plane off the ground, he would sooner light a cigarette in a powder mill. But after a while he finds that he has really put his foot into it, and if he is to get away with the bluff, he will have to fly an airplane. Secretly he sends for a man to coach him, but when that fellow arrives, he turns out to be an oversized mechanic who scarcely knows the propeller from the wings, and Street is again up in the air. How he solves his difficulty and gets away with it, makes a great story, and a story which fits in very nicely with the hot-blooded and passionate feature which shares the program with it. Either picture would be a knock-out alone. Together they are irresistible.

BOSTON CHINESE PHYSICIAN TOO SPEEDY FOR THIS STATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 11.—Before Judge William A. Wilcox Tuesday morning in Stonington town court, Dr. David H Kiang, 37, Chinese physician of 56 Tyler street, Boston, was charged with the operation recklessly of an automobile on the Boston Post road Sunday. He pleaded guilty. Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher informed the court that he was apprehended when he cut in and out of traffic on the West Broad street incline in Pawcatuck, while he was en route from New York to Boston. Just before this, Officer Brown, of Groton barracks, had reported him as passing through Groton at an estimated rate of 55 miles. The accused testified that he had left New York at 2 a. m. and wanted to keep an appointment in Boston at 5 p. m. He added that he had never driven that way before and as a practicing physician, had a clean record for five years. He was fined $25 and costs which he paid.

Had Wrong Auto Plates

Elwin Spicer Tryon, 24, of Noank, was charged Feb. 1st, with operating a Maxwell auto on which was the No. 71,141 Conn. plate issued for a Studebaker auto. He pleaded guilty. Mr. Hammacher stated that he was apprehended by Officer Arthur Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks. The accused claimed that he was recovering from a broken back, had come to Stonington to do an errand for a Groton man and that he could only pick up a dollar now and then by doing odd jobs and was not even able to pay doctors' bills. On the prosecutor's recommendation a light fine of $10 and costs was imposed, when the maximum penalty carried a $100 fine.

Husband Must Support Family

William T. Barker, 22, of 37 Morgan street, Pawcatuck, was brought before the court by Pawcatuck Police Patrolman George L. Seidel, charged with neglect to support wife and child. He was represented in court by Attorney John Ferguson, who waived the reading of the complaint and had a plea of guilty entered. The prosecutor said that he was married about Jan. 8, 1928, but had never lived with his wife, and visited her but occasionally. The wife was about to give birth to a second child. The husband's average wage did not come up to $25 with the prospect of its being less, as he was employed at the plant of the Lorraine Manufacturing Co., in Pawcatuck, about to close. Through agreement of attorneys in which counsel for the defense stated that all obligations were intended to be met, an agreed weekly sum had been fixed upon with a change to more if the employment bettered. Judge Wilcox ordered him to pay $5 weekly beginning Friday and a bond, with his mother as surety, in the sum of $500 was accepted. Failure to live up to agreement will mean three months' sentence in New London county jail.

HAS A CAT NINE LIVES? "MEAT BALL" PROVES HE HAS

West Beitzel has a cat named "Meat Ball" which has proved that he has nine lives. Master Beitzel tells the story as well as Billie Sunday talking to 25,000 people in New York. Meat Ball is a funny cat. He knows when the clock strikes 12—time to put on the feed bag. He is around the featherweight class. Well, the nine lives are as follows:

One day down at the North dock, some boys were trying to sink a bottle with rocks but could not. Meat Ball was out looking for his best girl to take to the movies or tell a bed-time story to, on the dock. The cat went along and those boys wanted to have some fun, so threw Meat Ball in the February icy water. But the cat used the English crawl stroke and made the shore all right and kept away from the boys.

West was trying out his new lawn mower and of course Meat Ball had to see how it worked out, backed up too close and lost half of his tail. West fixed up the poor tail, so his cat with nine lives could live them all out.

One day when traffic was heavy, the famous cat was out to grab the air and got in front of an auto that tossed him about ten feet in the air. The owner of the machine stopped and thought the poor cat was going to get some flowers but not smell them. The pussy was lying there with no signs of life. When the news reached his master that his trained cat, Meat Ball, got run over by an auto it scared him. He had to catch his fourth wind. Taking a market basket in his left hand, he set off to get the cat. But Puss proved that he could live after a new Ford car had hit him in the rear. Picking up Meat Ball, light as an ice cream cone, his master put him in the basket and rushed home and was able to bring back to life his side kick, Meat Ball. The stove was hot and laying out the hurt animal near the stove, in a day Meat Ball was all right again.

His master said in a sweet voice that could not break an egg. "Now Meat Ball, don't leave the house, for you know how unlucky you are! You sure worry me so much I will have heart trouble!"

The cat went up a ladder about ten feet and fell to the ground, but was not hurt at all. One day he was called over to a neighbor's house so the children could play with Meat Ball, gentle as Mary's little lamb. In some way, the house caught fire and the cat got the children out, by crying for help, but he somehow got trapped in the flames, had to jump in the firemen's net from the second-story window, so was not hurt.

Some boys were trying out a new Daisy air rifle; they did not have anything to shoot at, so picked on Mr. Meat Ball, the lead shots going all around him. Two hit him and he got one shot in the left eye. His master again nursed the hard luck cat back in shape, also saved the eye, but it will always be a little blood-shot.

Meat Ball is a black cat, not a bit of white on him. A painter was doing a painting job and if that cat did not fall in the paint and would have drowned were it not for the painter. A black cat turning white in a few hours—if that would not make a man lose his head! Keeping track of Meat Ball was like keeping Babe Ruth's home run record when he had his name in all the newspapers with 61.

But that is not all, for the cat was out in the woods chasing a rabbit and trying to get a silver fox without a gun and got his foot caught in a bear trap. It looked as if Mr. Meat Ball was all done for. He kept crying so some kind hunter or farmer could hear him. It was no use; he had to stay in the steel trap all night. The next morning a reward of $10 was offered by Owner Beitzel to anyone who would find his trained cat. Ira Stock ran across Meat Ball, in a weak condition. He sure had a sore foot—looked as if he would lose it. Getting a bowl of milk with Front street crackers and a can of salmon, his master soon had him in shape again, after losing two and one-half pounds in a day and a night in the trap. The foot had to be done up for a few days and Meat Ball was put to bed, under the doctor's orders, not to get up for a few days. "What you need is rest." The days seemed long; but when the trained cat got hold of a funny paper, you could see a smile come on his face, it was so funny, although he could not read. Soon Meat Ball was all right again, ready for some more hard luck, as his master expected. The cat next fell down a well about 50 feet deep and landed in the water bucket. Who pulled poor Pussy out of the well? Walter Willis, with his strong right arm, saved the cat again. He has all the help to bring him to safety, but he thought his ninth time had come when a German police dog got hold of him and shook him so hard a bone cracked in his left leg. But the mean dog was chased away and the trained cat was taken to his owner's home, West Beitzel's, and had his leg set by a cat doctor from West Mystic. He was laid up a long while.

Master Beitzel claims Meat Ball could do some tricks—jump rope, climb a ladder, sing, count with his head as high as 24. He will say, "Get me my pipe and a match to go with it." He sits up for his meals, almost asks for a knife and fork. "It took me a long while to teach him those tricks," his owner says, "But I would miss this cat, which proves that this nine lives talk is the truth and a cat can live through them, all right. I've been offered as high as $125 for the trained cat but I will not sell, for I think he will stay with us until he is called away for good. He's better than an alarm clock—will cry when the hands on the clock read 6, and gets me out of bed ready for work. Also he's good as a watch dog—if a footstep is heard he will come and let me know."

So the trained cat Meat Ball knows his stuff and lives after having nine chances to die.

UNCASVILLE

REV. DR. SHIPHERD GIVES FINE ADDRESS AT M. E. CHURCH

There was a good audience at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning at the dedication of the new altar. The pastor, Rev. Charles Smith spoke upon the dedication of the "Material and the Spiritual." The dedication of churches was an ancient custom, and has been continued. Is a dedicated building any different from one not thus dedicated? He claimed that no mystical element entered the wood and bricks of a church when dedicated. It is different to us because of the sense of sacredness that comes to us. We feel differently when we enter a church, to what we do when we enter a hall or place of amusement. We should dedicate self to God. Following the address, were the prayers of dedication. The holy communion was celebrated for the first time at the new altar. In the afternoon at the vesper service, Rev. T. M. Shipherd, D. D., of Park Congregational church, Norwich, gave a splendid and timely address on "Values." Miss Brooks and Mrs. Aston, rendered pleasing solos. Robert French was at the organ.

To enable medical students to observe surgical operations more satisfactorily, a periscopelike apparatus has been invented, which enlarges and projects the scene on a screen in the adjoining room.

A Tip to the Farmer

A WELL known farm journal says that an increasing number of its readers write for information and do not get it simply because they fail to sign their names to their letters. We quote from the article:

"We are proud of our correspondents, and we welcome an opportunity to give them helpful information when we can. But by omitting name or postoffice address or both from their letters our correspondents frequently make it impossible for the editors to reply."

We take that as a TIP TO THE PRINTER. We've suggested it before and we suggest it again to our farmer friends. Let us print you some neat letterheads and envelopes with your name and address on them.

LOTS OF ACTION EXPECTED IN ROSSI-BROUILLARD MATCH AT TAFTVILLE

Jimmy Rossi's Westerly fans have an idea that he will put Lou Brouillard of Danielson to sleep or at least gain the decision in their bout at Taftville next Friday evening under the auspices of the Shyma club. They are not only tooting their horns, but are backing their sentiment with that which does not talk, the long green. His followers have been going the rounds and have amassed a small fortune to wager on him.

So much have they talked and discussed the merits of Rossi and his chances for a victory that they have interested a large number in the Rhode Island city. The tickets placed in that city have been sold out as a result, and fans were clamoring for more. In order to be sure of a seat at the show. A second batch of tickets have been sent to them and are being sold like hot cakes. A number of Westerly men have been so blazen as to say that Brouillard will have to take the count in the first round.

This is to be seen at the show Friday night. There is one thing that is sure to happen when these boys throw punches and that is plenty of action, as the bout brings together two tough and ready to mix boys. The fight will not be of the scientific variety, but will lean decidedly toward a slugging fest. Both boxers have a nice record to their credit, that of Brouillard appearing to be the better.

The Danielson boxer has won the last five fights in which he has participated and four of these were by the knockout route, one of which was chalked up at previous Shyma club card. The other two goes were won by a decision. Rossi, who has been patiently training for this bout, has been meeting a bunch of tough customers in Boston, in which bouts he has gleaned a wealth of valuable pointers that are to be used on Brouillard.

There are also two other star bouts, Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Joe Marchado of Fall River, and "Shiek" Leonard vs. Joe Russo of Westerly, besides a six rounded and a preliminary that will provide plenty of thrills.

NORWICH-NEW LONDON BATTLE ONCE AGAIN

Last year around this time, the Y Seniors were preparing for their two out of three game series with the New London Y that was to eliminate one from the chances of winning the state Y league championship. The series came and went and with it also went the Seniors' chances, for they lost the first two games, the second in an overtime affair.

To accomplish the trick, however, the Whalers, acting the role of defending champions in the Y circuit, recruited two full teams, one the Sub Base and the other the Coast Guards, and the service units, when combined, proved too powerful for any one team in the state and went on to win the championship.

While the Seniors were losing to the Base-Guards team, last year, local fans were heard to remark often that, taking the teams apart, the locals could beat the Base or Guards separately any night in the week. We'll, two weeks ago, they had their first chance during the current campaign, when the Sub Base came to town with a record free of blemish, leading the New London City league and having in their midst the leading scorer of that circuit, Jack Reeves. The final score, after a five-minute overtime period, was Seniors 36, Sub Base 33, and the victory was all the more sweet because it broke a two-game losing streak for the Yers that saw them drop two important state league games.

A return game in New London on Friday is sure to draw a capacity crowd and the Seniors on that occasion intend to make their margin of victory more decisive, but the sailors hope to have something to say about that and uphold New London's athletic honor against the Rose City.

MARTIN KNOCKED OUT BY CARNERA IN SECOND ROUND

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Primo Carnera ended his fourth fistic encounter in America in one round and 50 seconds tonight, when he knocked out Buster Martin, Tulsa, Okla., policeman, in the second stanza of their scheduled 10 round fight.

It was Carnera's fourth fistic encounter in an American ring and he made nearly as short work of the Oklahoma officer as he did of his other opponents.

Martin, who scaled 203 pounds to 270 for Carnera, crossed a right to the big boy's jaw in the first, which the Italian passed unnoticed. Carnera came out of his corner slowly and led with a left to the jaw, only to have Martin grab him with both hands and hang on. The gondola pusher wrestled his way out and followed the policeman around the ring, shooting a left jab that rocked Buster's head.

Carnera was short with three rights to the jaw just before the round closed.

The mauler made short work of the cop in the second round, landing a right to the head that sent Martin down for the count.

King Tut, Minneapolis lightweight slugger, needed only 66 seconds to finish Russie Leroy, of Fargo, N. D. Tut weighed 139, Leroy 144.

There was one other knockout, Schwake, 210, St. Louis, kayoed Buck Weaver, 205, Kansas City, Kan., in the fifth round.

YANKEES ANGLING FOR BIG ED MORRIS OF RED SOX

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A trade whereby the New York Yankees would obtain big Ed Morris from the Boston Red Sox is being considered, Bob Shawkey, manager of the New York club, announced on his return here today from New York. The deal would send four Yankee players to the Boston club in return for Morris, considered one of the best pitchers in the American league, Shawkey said.

The New York players who will figure in the trade, if it goes through, are Van Pelt, pitcher; Lefty Heimach, pitcher; McEvoy and Foster Edwards, youngsters. It is expected word will be received from Boston in a few days, the new manager of the Yankees added.

LOMBARD NOW LEADING DRIVERS BY 9 MINUTES

LACONIA, N. H., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Roland Lombard, 18-year-old Raymond, Me., musher, increased his lead to nine minutes over the other 12 drivers today on the second 30-mile leg of the annual New England Sled Dog clubs handicap race.

This school boy's 33-minute daily advantage again enabled him to share the day's honors with Emile St. Goddard, of The Pas, Manitoba, who pushed his hitch of seven greyhound huskies over the rugged countryside in two hours and 16 minutes, the fastest time so far. St. Goddard, thrice winner of the famous Quebec international sweepstakes and the victor in last week's Ottawa 99-mile event, is the scratch driver. His performance today practically clinched the $500 best time prize but the handicapping has made it almost an impossibility for his well-trained huskies to win better than a third place for their net time performance.

The battle for the $500 net time award appears to involve only Lombard and Georges Chevrette, the clever French-Canadian, who is driving for R. C. Marquis, of Quebec. Lombard, aided by his handicap, set out this morning with a seven-minute lead on the Quebec team of six cross-danes and greyhounds but the youth pushed his four huskies and their tiny collie leader, a hitch that rivals count as "four and a quarter dogs," two minutes faster than Chevrette, who has but a 12-minute daily handicap.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE TO PLAY AGGIES TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Feb. 11.—The Connecticut Aggie basketball five will meet the quintet from St. Michael's college, Winooski, Vt., on the Hawley Armory court Wednesday night, Feb. 12, at 8 p. m. St. Michael's comes to Storrs fresh from victory over the University of Vermont by a 28-15 score, and with an excellent basketball record to date this season. This game will not be broadcast over station WCAC since it was scheduled just before the season began and too late for the station officials to make the necessary arrangements.

The probable starting line-up for the Aggies is Captain Ryan and Lamoureux or Darrow, forwards; Chubbuck, center; Duffy and Flydal, guards. The Connecticut team was nosed out 24-21 by the University of New Hampshire, at Durham, in the last game. The back injury suffered by Ray Ryan in the Holy Cross game was not as serious as first thought but has given the Aggie flash considerable trouble. Dan Chubbuck also received a minor back injury which bothered him somewhat. Although neither of these men has entirely recovered from the results of the injuries they took part in shooting practice here today.

"MULE" HAAS' ALL STARS FROM CEDAR GROVE, N. J., OPPOSE PLAINFIELD PROS

Dissinger, lg	lg, Phil Federici
Bernot, rg	rg, Butch Scinski

A team from Cedar Grove, N. J., "Mule" Haas All Stars, by name, does battle with the Plainfield Pros tonight at the Community house, Plainfield, marking the first appearance of that team in this vicinity. The team is made up of an array of basketball tossers that have gained an enviable reputation in New Jersey and is out to take the scalps of the Pros. It is expected to be a tough battle, as this team has won 19 of the 22 games so far this season, and has played with the best of them.

From reports that come from the manager of the team, who is none other than a former local boy, Harry Mills, at one time one of the flashiest athletes to perform in this section of the state, the Pros are to have a hard time to eke out a victory. Manager Mills is very confident that his team will take the Plainfield team and without the least bit of trouble. Manager Salisbury, however, is equally confident, and why not, for his boys have trimmed the best teams in the country this season, these including the Boston Whirlwinds, the Seneca Indians and others of like calibre.

Manager Mills sends in a few salient facts about his cohorts, as follows, which shows that they have had no little experience on the court:

Phil Federici, left guard, the jumping fool, all state guard on the St. Benedict team, 1927, captain of the Panzer College of Physical Education team, 1929, and guard on Prof. Blood's Wonder team. Butch Scinski, right guard, member of the Peterson Crescents, playing in the American league. Peter Rizzolo, left forward, coach on Newark, N. J., Prep school, captain of Newark Eagles and an all-round athlete.

Jim Myiod, right forward, captain of Montclair K. of C. team, and played with the best teams in New Jersey, including the Newark A. C. Jim Lennon, center, who is rated as one of the best centers around Grove City, N. J. Carl Hottersly, substitute, center, well known as a star player and an active member of the Newark Turn Verein. "Mule" Haas, member of the Philadelphia Athletics, is slated to play the right forward position. If he is as good a basketball player as he is a baseball performer there is no need for additional comment.

In addition to the main attraction there will be a fast preliminary game at 7:45 o'clock. The big game will start at 9 o'clock, after which there will be dancing.

BACON ACADEMY STAGES RALLY TO BEAT WOODSTOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Feb. 11. — Bacon academy basketball team defeated the fast Woodstock academy quintet in one of the closest and most exciting games of the season in New Park hall here tonight by a score of 16 to 14. The Woodstock team held a small lead at the end of the first half but the Bacon outfit rallied in the latter half. D. Horwitz and Levine featured for Bacon academy with nine and five points, respectively, while Wetherell and Tourtellotte starred for the opposition with seven and five points, respectively. Assistant Coach Howell, of the Bacon team, was master of ceremonies in the absence of Coach Goodrich, who is confined to his home by illness. The Bacon boys feel elated over their victory as they were defeated by the Woodstock team, 18 to 4, in a game at Woodstock, Jan. 10.

In the preliminary game tonight, the Woodstock academy girls defeated the Bacon academy girls, 28 to 10. The Misses Childs and Foskett featured for Woodstock with 11 and ten points, respectively, while Miss Ewafoe was high scorer for Bacon with four points. The Woodstock girls held the lead throughout the entire game.

Mame and the girl friend spent a quiet evening at Mame's house the other night listening to the radio.

"Hey Mame, for the love of Mike choke off that barroom tenor and get something snappy. Them weepy tenors give me the willies."

"What's that, you love tenors? Say, don't be sappy, Mame, you can't tell what kind of a guy a feller is by just hearing his voice over a radio. There's many a little tin god with an 18 carat voice."

"Gosh, Mame, I don't see how a good sensible girl can go bats over some guy she never saw just because she likes to hear him sing over the radio. You can't tell by what comes out of the radio what's on the other end."

"Now, when you hear some guy singing with a deep, rumbling bass you just picture him as a great big he-man of the great open spaces. But the chances are that if you could see him he'd be some little 110 pounder that has to carry lead in his pockets when he goes out in a breeze."

"Then, when you hear a nice sweet and clear tenor and you say to yourself, 'Gee, but I'd like to meet that guy, he must be a peach.' And then when you see his picture you find he's one of these birds with about as much form as a sack of grain and just about as much pep."

"Now take these crooning singers that are making such a hit nowdays. They sound like they'd feed you on peaches and cream, do the dishes, and buy you fur coats and diamonds. But the chances are that they're being sued for back alimony."

"No, Mame, getting goofy over radio singers is like taking out a marriage license to marry the man in the moon. It don't get you no flat and Japanese kimona."

"Girls what get all hot and bothered over a weepy tenor always end up by marrying somebody outa the foundry. And what's more, they are happy and have a coupla youngsters and a nice garden."

"Now take Amos and Andy. You don't hear no girls remarking on the lovely voice of either one of them. And I'll bet they don't get no mash notes. Maybe they get a lotta letters telling how good they are but the notes don't end up with 'You are my ideal.'"

"And those two boys probably drag down more shekels per night than any ten crooning tenors on the air. No, Mame, don't get starry-eyed listening to radio singers. It don't get you nothing but a earache."

"Hey, Mame, let that radio alone, that guy sure can sing them sweetheart songs."

"What, it's Rudy Vallee singing?"

"Oh, Lord."

GAVE POOL EXHIBITIONS AT BILLIARD PARLORS

Carl Vaughn, former national amateur pocket billiard champion, appeared in exhibition before Norwich gatherings Tuesday afternoon and evening at local billiard parlors. He was at the Recreation rooms at 2.30 and at 8 p. m. and at the Etna alleys at 9 p. m. Mr. Vaughan exhibited his old time form and expertness and skill with the cues to the delight of his audience.

In a match at the Recreation rooms with Mr. Benson he easily won by a 125 to 73 score, having a high run of 37 against his opponent's 23. As an added attraction he balanced billiard balls at the ends of cues and played a number of difficult shots, including the 15 ball billiard shot, a "masse" shot the length of the table. Mr. Vaughan also showed how it was possible to pick up 12 balls in one hand.

At the Aetna alleys in the evening Mr. Vaughan repeated this performance and also played Mr. Benson again, defeating him by a 125 to 26 score.

He will be at the two billiard rooms again this afternoon and evening at the same hours.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE ?

(Another in a number of articles on Norwich baseball of other years.)

Perhaps the greatest thrill Norwich baseball fans ever got was on the day that Danny Murphy, their star second baseman in the Connecticut league, reported to the Philadelphia Athletics and proceeded to hammer out six hits in that many times at bat and set the world on fire. This happened on Tuesday, July 8, 1902.

Every paper in the country featured Danny's work the following day and here is what the Boston Herald said of it:

"The feature of the day was the debut with Connie Mack's Athletics of young Murphy, the second baseman, who played in some games with the New Yorks last year and this season has been with Norwich. He simply did wonders with the stick, batting in the cleanest possible fashion. He also handled 12 chances cleanly afield.

"He drove the ball safely in his six turns at bat and made a home run off Cy Young with three men on bases. Such a batting feat is one seldom seen on a ball field. Attention has been called again and again to the great work this young man has been doing at Norwich and it remained for Connie to go after him and it looks like he has one of the greatest [illegible] players in the country."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Ghost is Hungry

No ghost has ever need of meat,
You ne'er will see one that can eat.
—Blacky the Crow.

There was a ghost in the Old Orchard—a black ghost. Any one of the little people there would have told you that Blacky was dead; that he had been killed and eaten three days before by Hooty the Owl. Yet, sitting on one of the topmost branches of an apple-tree there in the Old Orchard was the living image of Blacky the Crow. Of course, it couldn't be Blacky, so it must be his ghost. At least that is what Peter Rabbit thought as he peeped out from the old stone wall, and Happy Jack Squirrel thought as he peered around the trunk of another tree, and Tommy Tit the Chickadee thought as he looked out of a bird-house, and Yank-Yank the Nuthatch and Drummer the Woodpecker thought, as they clung to the trunks of two other trees.

"Caw, Caw, Caw! said the big, black fellow in the top of the apple-tree. "Caw, Caw Caw!" Then he looked this way and looked that way and looked the other way, just as they had all seen Blacky the Crow do so many times. After this he flew down and began to pick up some pieces of bread that Mother Brown had thrown out a little while before. Each time he picked up a bit of bread and swallowed it, he paused to look around to be sure that all was well. The way that bread disappeared was proof enough that the black ghost was hungry.

Watching him eat, Peter Rabbit began to have doubts. Yes, sir, Peter began to have doubts. He poked his head out a little farther. Presently he climbed out and hopped along over the old stone wall to where Blacky the Crow was eating.

"Are you real?" asked Peter politely.

The black ghost nearly choked on a piece of bread. "What?" he asked.

"Are you real?" repeated Peter in his most polite manner.

A funny expression appeared on the face of the black ghost. "Are you real yourself?" he inquired.

"Of course I am real!" retorted Peter. "What a silly question!"

"No more silly than yours," replied the black ghost, reaching for another piece of bread.

"But you're not Blacky the Crow, while I am Peter the Rabbit," said Peter.

"If I'm not Blacky the Crow, who am I?" came the prompt retort.

"That's what I should like to know," replied Peter. "You see, Blacky the Crow is dead and eaten."

"Caw, Caw, Caw!" cried the black ghost. "I want to know! This is news indeed! Well, well, well, so I'm dead and eaten. Pray tell me when I died and who ate me. What is the matter with you, Peter Rabbit?"

Peter blinked. He blinked and blinked. A funny look came over his face. "I—I do believe you are Blacky," said he. "Where have you been for the last three days?"

"A long way from here," replied Blacky. "Mrs. Blacky and I and all our friends have been away down to Big River for a few days."

"Then whose feathers did Chatterer the Red Squirrel find under the tree where your old nest is?" demanded Peter.

"Oh," replied Blacky, "those were the feathers of a foolish young Crow who didn't have sense enough not to go to close to Hooty the Owl. There were two of the foolish young Crows who thought they knew it all. Hooty caught one and Mrs. Hooty caught the other. So you thought they caught me, did you? Well, well, well! I thought you had a better opinion of my smartness than that."

And so it was that the black ghost proved to be no ghost at all, but was really Blacky the Crow himself.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Connecticut College Concert.

One of the Caucasian Sketches which Mr. Sokoloff has programed for his evening concert with the Cleveland orchestra in the New London armory Thursday evening is The March of the Sardar, by Ippolitoff. This number depicts the approach and arrival in the village of the Sardar, or tribal chief, in all his barbaric pomp and splendor. Banners are flying, the scene is a riot of gorgeous splendor, as the chief, magnificently robed and attended by servants clad in every imaginable color, passes by the houses of his subjects. Sokoloff and his musicians with superb ability will make the scene vivid to all who hear the music.

Quite in contrast to the above, but equally vivid is The March of the Little Lead Soldiers by Pierne which Mr. Ringwall will play for the young folks in the afternoon. This is an attractive piece of musical make believe. It begins with a bugle call on trumpets muted to sound like toys. Then the roll of the drum is heard on plucked strings; the flute strikes up a stirring tune and the soldiers come marching into view. They are led soldiers and naturally a bit stiff. And they are toy soldiers, so of course they can only take short steps. Up and down they go, marching and counter marching. Then the music grows fainter—the soldiers are gone. And just at the end there is a chord. Could it be the box lid closing as the little boy puts them away?

UTILITIES AND SOME INDUSTRIALS ADVANCE IN MODERATE TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The bull faction regained control of the price movement in the stock market today through aggressive operations for the advance in the utility shares and a selected assortment of industrials and specialties.

The upturn was not uniform, however, as pre-holiday liquidation depressed the list in spots, particularly in the rails. Trading was of moderate proportions, sales totalling 3,321,710 shares, and was dominated by professionals. Bears who had gone short of the market in anticipation of a pre-holiday decline were taken by surprise, and hasty covering was undoubtedly a sizeable factor in the advance.

Business news not particularly susceptible to bullish interpretation. The best reports came from the steel industry, but even here conditions were somewhat spotty. Iron Age pointed out that steel demand, after its sharp rebound in late January, had not only held its gains, but in the aggregate, had gained further. Production is now around 79 per cent of national capacity, against 77 last week. The most recent advances, however, were primarily at Chicago. Production is practically unchanged at Pittsburgh, and has declined a little in the Youngstown area.

Reports regarding the oil industry were unfavorable. Early estimates indicate that production of crude took a substantial jump last week, cancelling some of the progress toward control of Texas have met strong opposition. Standard of New York cut gasoline prices in New York and New England.

Credit conditions were easier. An influx of funds for employment over the holiday reduced the call loan rate to 4 per cent once more, and some funds were available as low as 3 1-2. Report that the treasury considers conditions favorable for an early offer of $50,000,000 in bills was reassuring.

Some of the shares with which the name of Cyrus Eaton has recently been connected were notably strong. Goodyear Tire shot up more than 9 points and closed near the top. Gulf States Steel gained about 3 points.

Other strong features were American Can and Westinghouse Electric, selling up about 5 and 7 points respectively. It is rumored that plans to split-up these shares sometime this year are under consideration. Western Union also rose about 5 points in response to talk of a split-up, although President Carlton announced after the close of the market that no such proposal was considered at the meeting of directors today, and that he did not anticipate any such action for some time. U. S. Steel was well supported, closing 2 points higher.

American Water Works was a strong spot in the utilities, gaining about 6 points. Consolidated Gas, Engineers Public Service, North American, Public Service of N. J., and Standard Gas mounted 2 to 3 points.

The selling of the rails appeared to be largely profit-taking on their recent advance, inspired by expectations that the January earnings reports, soon to appear, will be unimpressive. Union Pacific dropped about 9 points, then regained some of its loss. Delaware and Hudson, Chesapeake and Ohio and Canadian Pacific lost 3 to 4 points.

Commodities generally continued to rally. Wheat futures mounted more than a cent, reflecting formation of the $10,000,000 stabilization concern. Cotton closed about 75 cents a bale higher after wide and erratic fluctuations. Corn was barely steady, under the influence of bearish weather.

Foreign exchanges generally eased further, with the exception of sterling, which held at $4.86 1-4 for cables.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 — (AP) — Treasury receipts for Feb. 1 were: $4,703,643.34; expenditures $14,047,123.35; balance $51,581,412.42.

Arrangements have been completed for the sale of a seat on the New York Stock exchange for $390,000, an increase of $1,000 over the previously recorded sale.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—Active bidding for the public utility issues, many of which reached new high ground for the year, imparted a firm undertone to today's curb market, despite the pre-holiday profit-taking of professional traders. While the advance was by no means uniform, scores of active issues were marked up 1 to 5 points, and a few high-priced shares jumped 5 to nearly 12 points on odd lot transactions.

American Superpower, American & Foreign Power warrants, Central States Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Long Island Lighting and United Corporation warrants all closed with net gains of a point or more, while Commonwealth Edison jumped 9 points and Duke Power 11 3-4.

Fox Theatres dropped as low as 6 3-8 in the early trading in reflection of an opening break in Fox Film on the "big board" but closed at 7 1-2 for a small fractional gain. Aluminum Co. of America and Deere & Co., which ordinarily change hands in small lots, each soared 11 points.

Oils moved irregularly higher despite the increase in crude oil production last week and the cutting of gasoline prices in New York and New England. The Cosden issues, Indian Territory Oil and Illinois Pipe Line showed net gains of 1 1-2 to 3 1-2 points but Humble dropped 1 5-8 on profit-taking following the publication of an excellent 1929 report.

There was a fairly good demand all day for the investment trust, trading and holding corporation issues, although some of the early gains were reduced to fractions by the late realizing movement. Atlantic Securities corporation touched a new high at 20 1-2 and Prudential Investors at 18 7-8. National Steel and Republic Steel each advanced a point. Newmont Mining dropped 1 1-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—(AP)—Increased confidence in higher prices showed itself among wheat traders today, largely as a result of expected doings of the newly organized wheat stabilization corporation. There was an evident general reluctance to press the selling side of the market, and much notice was taken of 3,368,000 bu. decrease of world stocks of wheat for the week, with the total now only about 36,000,000 bu. more than at this time last year. Besides, figures showing that domestic visible supplies have been curtailed much more rapidly than last year tended also to promote upturns in wheat values.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 1-8c to 1 3-4c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-8c off to 1-8c up, oats 1-4c to 3-8c advanced, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 7c.

Right from the outset, wheat prices in Chicago took an upward course today, indications being plain that the new emergency ally of the federal farm board would soon be on a substantial working basis. Meanwhile, Liverpool wheat values were higher than expected, and word was quickly at hand that the farm board had at once given its formal approval to the stabilization body. Adding further impetus to the rise of the market were scattering unfavorable crop advices from domestic winter wheat territory, Kansas official reports in particular telling of considerable damage from recent freezing and also emphasizing need of rain to prevent soil drifting.

Tightening up of wheat prices today received considerable aid from attention given to the fact that since Nov. 1 domestic supplies of wheat in sight have decreased 36,000,000 bu. against 10,000,000 bu. shrinkage during the same period a year ago. In this connection, talk was current that the decrease would be more rapid the remainder of the crop year, especially should exports increase, which seems probable. Futhermore, widely circulated assertions that stocks of wheat in Great Britain are equal to ten week's supply were ridiculed as absurd on the ground that the total would have to be 50,000,000 bu. instead of actually less than 15,000,000. On the other hand, export business in North American wheat today amounted to only 300,000 bu., largely Canadian.

Corn and oats prices averaged a little higher, responsive to strength shown by the wheat market. Country offerings of corn remained small.

Provisions developed firmness, influenced by an upward trend of hog values.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 11—(AP)—The bond market was without decided change in today's pre-holiday session. Prices edged narrowly up and down and although a few of the prime rails made net variations of a point either way, most of the closing prices were within small fractions of Monday's final figures.

Thirty-day time loans firmed, but the other maturities eased off to 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent. United States Governments sagged on the announcement of another treasury bill flotation later in the week. Dealings in this group were exceptionally light.

Convertible rails lost much of yesterday's gain. New Haven 6s dropped 1 1-8 and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s declined a point. Atchison 4 1-2s and Chicago Northwestern 4 3-4s each sagged 1-2. The feature of the stock privilege group, however, was a rise of 3 3-4 points in Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron 6s on the largest turnover shown by this issue in some time. Colon Oil 6s advanced a point but held only half of the gain. The two telephone convertibles were firm.

Wickwire Spencer Steel listings rallied briskly on a report that the federal court master would recommend settlement of foreclosure action by March 1. The First Mortgage 7 per cent certificates rose 4 points.

High grade rails were rather thin. Santa Fe General 4s and Baltimore & Ohio Refunding 5s declined a point, while New Haven Debenture 4s and Northern Pacific General 3s advanced to about the same extent. Losses of 1-4 to 1-2 in Canadian National 5s, Rock Island 4s, Illinois Central 4 3-4s and Southern Pacific Refunding 4s indicated the listless nature of the day's trading in investment issues.

Utilities were firm. American Telephone 5s of 1965 turned over in some bulk, losing 1-8 net. Columbia Gas & Electric 5s (May maturity), New Orleans Public Service "A" 5s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s and North American Edison 5 1-2s changed hands at slight advances. Utah Power & Light First 5s were steady on the flotation of the new $4,000,000 issue.

Humble Oil 5 1-2s International Match 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s, United States Rubber 6s and Goodyear Tire 5s moved with fair activity on a rising trend. Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s and Lorillard 5s turned heavy, losing more than a point.

Australian 5s of 1955 moved up half a point on good buying, while Cuba 5 1-2s rose 3-4 in the face of a $40,000,000 offering of 15-year bonds of the same coupon. French 7 1-2s lost 7-8, finishing 5 1-2 points below their recent record high. The 7s were steady. British 5 1-2s were freely bought at around 104.

GULF REFINING COMPANY

No. 202 February 12, 1930

Frederick B. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, Ohio, who returned today from a conference of the European representatives in Berlin, said that the company's foreign business for January would show a gain of about 40 per cent over the same month last year. Increased business in Germany he said, has necessitated the construction of a new plant in that country.

"Thankful? What have I got to be thankful for? I can't pay my bills."

"Then, man alive, be thankful you are not one of your creditors."—Royal Arcanum Bulletin.

So that her dead husband may "rest better," an unidentified woman is paying Mrs. Evelyn Ford, of Seattle, through small weekly payments for forty chickens her husband took twenty years ago. A mysterious letter was found by Mrs. Ford in her mail box. It was addressed in the scrawling hand of an aged person and read: "Mrs Ford—A long time ago my man took chickens three times from your place. Now he is gone and the children and I think he might rest better if you got some pay for them. Just a little each week maybe." Each week one, two or three crisp $1 bills have reached the Ford home by mail.

Stockholders of the Midland Steel Products Co., have approved the proposed recapitalization plan, which provides for the retirement of the present participating preferred stock and common stock and the issuance in lieu thereof of three new classes of stock.

JEWETT CITY

EAGLE AND WILD CAT STIR UP MOUNT MISERY

According to reports from Mt. Misery, now included in the area owned by the state in the south part of the town, its reputation as a haunt of the wild, is being kept up to-date.

Recently, a great bald eagle has put in his appearance which has caused the farmers in that wild section to worry about the young lambs which will be coming along pretty soon. Also, says the letter, the largest wild cats ever seen have been roaming around there lately.

It is said that last week, Mr. Bronson and Mr. Hull, civil engineers on duty there, and their assistant Mr. Tanner, were up the mountain on a surveying job when out from the underbrush there sprang a great bobcat, and treed the trio for three hours. The letter further states that Game Warden Lloyd Congdon, keeper of the preserve, while scanning the mountain-side with his field glasses, discovered the three men in the tree-top.

"Doc" Wallace is doing a plumbing job there for the state, in connection with the trout hatchery. He and Mr. Congdon set out to the rescue, armed with heavy rifles. Rushing up the mountain-side, their hot lead cut the bushes around the great cat. The men clambered down while the game made off in the rapidly gathering darkness, that being the only thing that saved his pelt. Mr. Bronson, who was once a tropical hunter for big game, decalred the lynx would weigh 65 pounds. It is said that Joe Pike is to head a party of hunters to run the big cat to his den. James Congdon, one of the leading Ekonk fox hunters, and Fred Condle from the borough, enjoyed a great run last week with the former's crack team of fox hounds. Henry Wallace, who has been doing the trout-hatchery plumbing for the state, has the job about completed. Game Warden Charles B. Palmer has purchased a fine saddle horse to be used in the service.

Misses Emma Dearnley and Ruth Ballou attended the ice carnival at Hanover, N. H.

The public schools are to be closed all day today, (Wednesday) and St. Mary's school for the afternoon. The stores will close during the afternoon. The post office hours will be open as usual. The banks and library will be closed.

The Junior Epworth league of the Methodist church holds its meeting today, (Wednesday) at 3:30, in the vestry. At the mid-week service this (Wednesday) evening there will be a Lincoln day stereopticon lecture by Rev. J. W. Carter, on The Negro in the Rural South. 45 slides will be exhibited. The Willing Workers' class is rehearsing for a gypsy concert.

Local icemen are feeling fine these times for they have literally snatched a harvest from the melting.

Twenty-five years ago this month marked the death of four of the older residents of Griswold. Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton was born in 1824, and her husband was 79; their funeral services were held at the same time. Israel Mathewson died on his 80th birthday, and the Hon. Joseph Roide was 71.

Tuesday was Junior Stafford's fifth birthday. He gave a little party, with a lunch of sandwiches, cookies, fruit, cake and punch. The guests included Dolly Symington, Verne and Betty Lou Thornton, Richard and Elizabeth Peterson, Mac and Mildred Ferguson, George, Dickie and Bobby L'Heureux, Shirley Peterson, Barbara Ann Stafford, Alice Abramony, Henry Robinson and Bobbie Stafford. POETRY

New England's Home Call

O children, my children, where'er you may be,
From your far-scattered dwellings come home once to me!
If you live upon mountains where valor was born,
Do they catch the first glimpse of America's morn?
If you delve in the prairie's horizon-fenced field,
Has it comelier fruits than my valleys can yield?
If pictures of splendor your cities have wrought,
Have not their strong frames from the hillsides been brought?
If you search in the mines for the wealth that is dear,
The precious gold-dust of your kindred is here!
If temples of learning loom fair on your view,
The little old schoolhouse is waiting for you.
With motherly pride still the children I greet,
As they rush from the door in their coverless feet.

Which one of her own can a mother forget?
My heart is not granite; I long for you yet.
Come back to the past! there are still at my feet
The honest delights that make memory sweet;
The asters and goldenrod stay with their bloom,
The roses are breathing their gentle perfume;
The thistle yet blushes are flying its seed,
The clematis clings—gleaming snow-drift of weed,
The wild cherries ripen; the sumac-tree turns,
Like emeralds in air swing the maiden-hair ferns.

Come back to the fireside! come back to the groves!
To woods in which Memory is lost as she roves!
Bring back the old songs that so linger you near,
You sing them in accents no other can hear;
Bring back the quaint stories of hill-side and glen,
That laugh themselves over again and again;
Bring back the rude legends of struggle and woe;
Bring back all the joys of the sweet long ago!
My heart is not granite; I love you to see;
O children, my children, come home once to me!

—By Will Carleton.

Sap And Song

South swerves the sun
On shortened arc;
Late comes the light;
So soon the dark.

On naked boughs
The sparrows trill;
Earth, at the pause
Waits winter's will.

On willow twigs
The buds show red
As if spring came
In winter's stead.

In yellow's buds
And bird's thin chime
Faith lives, hope swells;
They bide their time.

The Boss—Mr. Lapp, you're late this morning!

Mr. Lapp—Yes, sir; we've got a new baby at our house.

The Boss—Um—er—well, don't let it occur again.

She—Which would you rather be—a writer, a doctor, or a lawyer?

He—They're all about the same. One dissects your emotions; one your body, and the other your pocketbook.

Father—What do you think of a man that throws a banana skin on the footpath?

Son—I don't know. What do you think of a banana skin that throws a man on the footpath?—Montreal Star.

"I am a son of the soil!" shouted the grimy campaign speaker.

"Yes, and I'm sorry for you," exclaimed one in the audience, "for I see you have your father on your hands."—Toronto Globe.

A portly woman of very elusive beauty was adressing a meeting on temperance reform.

"My friends," she said, "I had a husband who was addicted to the bottle. He was a great trial to me, but one day I persuaded him to take the pledge. He did so, and my joy was so great, so overwhelming, that I flung my arms around his neck and kissed him."

"And served him jolly well right!" added a voice from the crowd.

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

HEARING GIVEN OPPONENTS OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

Walter W. Liggett, a Magazine Writer, Told the House Judiciary Committee That He Is Willing to Furnish Proof of Corruption and Hypocrisy Among Officials of Various Cities—Representative Graham Asked the Committee to Reason Together, But Not With Fanatics Who Are Foes of "Religious As Well As Individual Liberty"—Large Audience Was Rebuked For Cheering Demand For Repeal of the Dry Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The large audience which attended the house judiciary committee session today for the first congressional hearing on the merits of prohibition in the decade since enactment of the Volstead act cheered a demand for repeal of the dry amendment.

Representative Graham of Pennsylvania, now chairman of the group which formulated the prohibitory law, had denounced conditions under it and said the results were not satisfactory. He deplored the "train of consequences most depressing to every patriot" which he said had been brought about by enforcement of the dry law.

The one witness heard, Walter W. Liggett, a magazine writer, charged that corruption and hypocrisy was to be found among officials in various cities. Committee members rebuked the audience for applauding various of his remarks.

The committee was hearing opponents of the prohibition laws first on measures to repeal or modify the 18th amendment and laws under it. Representative Sabath, democrat, Illinois, author of a repeal measure, demanded that congress take such action.

Liggett's charges involved the governor of Michigan at a "wild party, at Detroit, Nov. 5, 1929, and a former governor of Massachusetts, judges and city, customs and other officials." He said enforcement was lax in Massachusetts, Kansas, Minnesota and Michigan, as well as in Boston, Minneapolis, Detroit, Topeka and Wichita, Kansas and the nation's capital.

Liggett explained that he had been assigned by the magazine "Plain Talk" to investigate conditions and declared he was "no snooper or informer." He said he would be willing to appear before any grand jury to expose the dereliction of any public officials.

The magazine writer testified he had told a grand jury in Boston of conditions he found there and predicted numerous indictments would result. He offered to go to Detroit to tell of the "wild party" of Nov. 5, 1929, when asked by Representative Michener, republican, Michigan.

Liggett recently appeared before a grand jury here after charges by Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, of a "Wall street liquor party" being given three years ago for members of congress.

Held in the huge caucus room in the house office building to accommodate the large audience, the hearing got under way after Graham announced that both the wets and drys would be given an equal opportunity to present their views. Pleading the purpose of the hearings, the chairman said that when "we add corruption, bribery, demoralization of the citizenry, disrespect for law, bootlegging and kindred offenses, does not such a picture call for the fair, dispassionate judgment of men and women to come together and reason over what remedy can be devised to abate this sad condition?"

Chairman Graham explained that seven resolutions before the committee had been referred to it to determine whether they should be reported back to the house for action. He said the hearing would not interfere with work of the Hoover law enforcement commission but would aid it.

The Pennsylvanian asked for the committee to reason together but "not with fanatics." These, he said, are foes "of religious as well as individual liberty."

"How can law ever be enforced that is destructive of right and individual liberty?" he exclaimed. "What opportunity has there been for the conscientious opponents of prohibition to be heard? These hearings will open the doors to let them present their side of the question fully."

In his testimony Liggett said that there were 700 speak-easies in Washington, D. C., and not less than 4,000 bootleggers, and that he had come to the conclusion that there were not less than 1,600,000 gallons of hard liquor consumed here each year. He added that arrests for drunkenness in Washington had trebled during the prohibition decade, even considering the increas of population.

Asserting that he had made a painstaking investigation of Boston, he said there were at least 4,000 open speakeasies there while there were 15,000 people who purveyed booze illegally in that city.

"I want to say," he said, "that the police of Boston and the state police of Massachusetts are very largely corrupted as a result of this prohibition act. I have positive evidence in affidavit form, and affidavits substantiated by several persons in each case, that not only are the police corrupted but even ex-governors and their secretaries and commissioners of public safety have been illegally selling con-

DEMOCRAT ELECTED BY MASS. 2D. CONG. DISTRICT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 12—(AP)—The second congressional district has chosen a democrat, William J. Granfield, to sit in congress for the first time since it was laid out in 1893.

In an overwhelming victory in special election, the democratic nominee defeated Frederick D. Griggs, republican, and will succeed the late Congressman W. Kirk Kaynor at Washington. The vote was: Granfield, 31,150; Griggs, 24,749. Both live in Springfield.

Two candidates running on "bone dry" platforms received a scattering vote. Attorney Whitefield Reid polled 1,081 votes and former Mayor William H. Feiker of Northampton received 87. The total vote of the district, 57,067, was large.

Conflicting issues marked the campaign. Granfield, an avowed "wet," was aided by the plea of Senator Davivd I. Walsh last Saturday for a democrtic victory to protest what he termed the failure of the administration to acknowledge the unemployment situation. He demanded consideration for New England industry in tariff making.

Notice was given today that a new trial would be sought.

SMALL PRICES FOR LETTERS SIGNED BY BERNARD SHAW

LONDON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Letters signed by Bernard Shaw have been tumbling in value like speculative shares lately. Several auctioned at Sotheby's brought only 10 shillings ($2.40) apiece.

Apparently news of the sale of various Shaw items at good prices not long ago resulted in a flood of offerings. The same explanation, however, would not apply to the Robert Burns waistcoat which sold for only £6 ($30) regardless of the fact that the heart of the Scottish bard beat under its buttons for years.

Increase Reported In Auto Production

[illegible]ederal Reserve Board Reports Growth of Activity In Several Lines of Industry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Production of automobiles, which in December was the smallest of any month in seven years, increased in the last few weeks, the federal reserve board said today.

Large production of automobiles in the earlier part of last year was sufficient to meet the latter demand, with a consequent falling off in the last quarter.

The board said the decline in general production of the country, which began in the third quarter of 1929 and continued to the end of the year, appeared to have been considerably greater in extent than that of 1927.

Since the turn of the year, there has been an increase in activity in several lines of industry, the review said, "but it is too early to determine whether this increase has been general throughout the various lines of industry."

"A decrease from November to December in the number of employes was found in almost all manufacturing industries. In several of the important industries the number of employes in the middle of December, 1929, was as low as or lower than at the lowest point in 1927. This was true of industries producing iron and steel, automobiles and rubber tires and a considerable group of other industries."

The board added that in the machinery, chemical, refined petroleum, paper and printing industries, the employment was considerably above the lowest level of 1927. The general level of wholesale prices showed little change in December.

SEVEN-DAY WEEK IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The information service of the research department of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in an issue released today says that 26.9 per cent of the men employed in the steel industry in the United States are still working the seven-day week.

The report, based upon data gathered from 158 plants in sections of Alabama, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Ohio and Illinois, says that 46.6 per cent of the men work 10 hours a day; 2.1 per cent 11 hours, and 6.7 per cent, 12 hours. The remainder work eight hours.

The plants studied employ nearly a quarter of a million men.

Wages for common labor in the plants range from 24 cents to 56 cents per hour, the report said. The age limit for new employes in 42 plants ranged from 45 to 60 years and the average limit 45 years.

Investigators were refused information in 21 factories owned by four large steel companies, the report concluded

PROGRESS MADE BY LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Feb. 12.— (AP) —Moving slowly like a ship in a sea infested with submarines, the London naval conference in its voyage toward disarmament today reached the danger zone of tonnage figures.

Appropriately, the most significant accomplishment of the five-power delegations today was making a start toward limitation of submarine activities in war time or their "humanisation," as provided for in American and French resolutions presented at yesterday's plenary session.

A sub-committee of experts with legal knowledge will take the resolutions by Henry L. Stimson and George Leygues in hand tomorrow morning and beginning necessary adjustments to make them fit into the London disarmament treaty.

The other outstanding accomplishment of the conference today was acceptance of the experts' report for a compromise tonnage plan combining the global and category fleet measurement systems.

PRESIDENT HOOVER TAKES NEWSPAPER MEN FISHING

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—President Hoover today gave newspapermen accompanying his party a lesson in deep sea fishing.

The chief executive departed from his precedent of taking only a few close friends with him on his angling tours as he filled one of the smaller boats of the party with writers for an afternoon of fishing in the Atlantic ocean with him.

Mr. Hoover, deeply burned by the blazing sun yesterday, appeared rested as he stopped at the dock today. Until this morning, when he looked over the first batch of mail to come to him since he left Washington, the chief executive has put cares of office almost completely behind him.

Members of the party, however, have kept in touch with the white house offices daily over special long distance telephone.

TO BURN 500,000 POUNDS OF VIRGINIA TOBACCO

COLOGNE, Feb. 12.— (AP) —Attempts by the public to salvage part of 500,000 pounds of confiscated tobacco the revenue officials were burning here led to clashes between tobacco lovers and officials.

Following upon the inability of a local firm of importers to pay the revenue tax on 5,000 cases of 100 pounds each of Virginia tobacco, the entire consignment was confiscated and stored. It soon became mouldy. It was then decided to burn the tobacco on a suburban field.

Residents of the vicinity tried to rescue at least a personal supply of the weed and were opposed by the officials. A free-for-all fight ensued, resulting in a number of arrests.

LINER MUENCHEN CAN BE RAISED AND REFITTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The North German Lloyd liner Muenchen, wrecked by a fire which swept through her palatial interior after she docked yesterday from Bremen, can be raised from the mud of the Hudson river and refitted, officials of the line today predicted.

SENATE TO VOTE TODAY ON CONFIRMATION OF HUGHES

Republican Leader Watson Has Given Notice That the Senate Will Remain In Session Until a Vote Is Obtained—Senators Borah and Norris Are Opposing the Hughes Nomination — Some Democrats Joined the Western Independents In Their Assault On Hughes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.— (AP) —Claiming additional votes every hour, senators opposing Charles Evans Hughes' nomination to be chief justice of the United States waked an all day attack upon his confirmation today which began to provoke speculation tonight over the final outcome.

Western republican independents who opened the suprise assault on Hughes in the senate were joined today by some democrats in debate. Further severe denunciation of the economic views of the former supreme court jurist and former presidential candidate was made.

Unsuccessful in an effort for a night session to force a final vote, Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, gave notice he would keep the senate in session tomorrow until a vote is obtained and added that he had the votes to do it.

Opponents of Hughes were obviously encouraged after a day of informal conferences on the floor. Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Norris, of Nebraska, leaders of the fight against him, announced they would be ready for a vote by tomorrow night. They are making no public claims but the foes of Hughes believe there are from 25 to 30 votes against him.

No one predicted rejection of Hughes' nomination but republican leaders conceded there might be 22 votes against confirmation.

Senator Glenn, republican, Illinois, alone went out to champion Hughes druing the day of a blunt discussion of the supreme court and of a nominee as has been heard in the senate in many years.

Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, opened the assault contending the attitude of Hughes was "dangerous to the common people" and condemning the view of the supreme court itself in utility valuation decisions.

Senators Brookhart, republican, Iowa; Connally, democrat, Texas; Wheeler, democrat, Montana; and Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, joined in the appeal for defeat of Hughes' nomination.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, announced in the midst of the fight that he would vote for confirmation of Mr. Hughes. He said he would not "prejudge my future course by withholding my vote for confirmation."

Senator Bratton, democrat, New Mexico, objected to an agreement that the senate should vote tomorrow before adjournment but Senators Borah and Norris both expressed the view in response to Senator Watson's proposal that a vote could be taken by tomorrow night.

Senator Dill was among the most outspoken in the day of debate, which was marked by almost constant informal conferences among doubtful members on the floor.

"Here is a man who was decisively defeated by the American people for president because of his economic views," said Dill. "Is the will of the people not to be considered at all?"

"I intend by this vote to do what I can to put a stop to what I believe is one of the greatest dangers to this country, the placing of men on the supreme court who will permit the picking of pockets of the common people by the great corporations."

Senator Glenn directed a personal reply to Senator Norris, asserting that Norris had run for congress while on the Nebraska state court. One of the complaints against Hughes in the debate has been that he resigned from the supreme court to run for the presidency. However, Norris has said he had no complaint with that, although he was opposed to Mr. Hughes returning to the bench after he had been defeated in politics.

Replying to the objections of Senator Borah to the economic views of Mr. Hughes, the Illinois senator contended that every senator was bound to have some opposition to some views of any man nominated for the supreme court. He added that if Senator Borah were nominated, he believed Senator Norris would object.

Glenn said he was not alarmed at the growing number of mergers and combinations in business and insisted that there was a greater prosperity today than at any time as a result. He said there was no oppression of the "common people."

As for Mr. Hughes' record, he cited his work as counsel for the United States Mine Workers and in behalf of other public cases. He recalled his investigation of the insurance companies in New York, which, he contended, made Mr. Hughes "the greatest investigator of his day."

LINCOLN, LOVER OF PEACE, CONTRASTED WITH BISMARCK

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—(AP)—Speaking at the 44th annual Lincoln dinner of the National Republican club tonight, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, former ambassador to Germany and former envoy to China, declared that "wherever men struggle for human freedom and the right to govern themselves, the name of Lincoln is engraved on their hearts if not visibly inscribed upon their banners."

Describing conditions as he found them in China, Dr. Schurman said that the ideals of America and of Lincoln were the original inspiration of that republic.

Dr. Schurman contrasted Lincoln and Bismarck—the one a lover of peace, although his administration was filled with war, and the other "the inexorable champion of 'blood and iron'"—of war as an instrument of national policy.

"Lincoln's doctrine of government of the people, by the people and for the people," Dr. Schurman continued, "is the only safe foundation for states. Germany has become a republic. Lincoln has triumphed over Bismarck."

DEADLOCK PREVAILS IN PORTO RICAN SENATE

VEAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 12—(AP)—A deadlock has developed in the senate of Porto Rico over the presidency of that body. It was precipitated Monday when Antonio R. Barcelo, who had been president of the upper house for 13 years, resigned.

The fifth annual ballot for a successor was cast today and it showed the candidates of the Alianza party and of a coalition tied at 8 votes each. Senator Barcelo and two of his followers cast blank ballots.

Barcelo's resignation resulted from a break with Jose Tous Soto, speaker of the house, who also resigned Monday. The two men organized the dominant Alianza party six years ago and were firm political allies until last summer when they quarrelled over both personal and political questions. Since then Senator Barcelo has reorganized the unionist party of which he was leader previous to 1924.

He was released under $500 bond.

David A. Hart, assistant United States attorney in charge of prohibition enforcement in police court, said he did not order the charge booked against Carley but that he was prepared to try him under the national prohibition laws.

Two persons were injured and numerous others were driven from their homes by the explosions, which brought the total for the new year to 13. A laundry was wrecked and part of a residence torn away.

Commissioner of Police William Russell, in charge of the drive which since Sunday has resulted in the arrest of nearly 2,000 petty hoodlums and gunmen, intimated that both blasts were the work of racketeers, the peculiar tactics of whom Col. (Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 12—The badly tangled action of Benjamin Prague versus his brother, Herman Prag, both of this city, which was started in the Windham county superior court here Tuesday, was resumed today. The testimony was not completed until 4:30 o'clock this afternoon when Judge John Rufus Booth ordered the attorneys to file briefs, giving the evidence and claims in chronological order. The plaintiff counsel were given two weeks in which to file papers and the defense an additional week. The allegation is made that an arbitration committee including Attorney Raymond L. Carmody of Winsted and C. E. Macfarlane of this city awarded $5,712.80 to the plaintiff. The defendants deny such an award was made. Eli Nirenstein, of Hartford, was the other member of the committee. The plaintiff is seeking an adjustment of about $4,600.

Prague of Hartford, brother of the two litigants; Abraham A. Goldstein, of Dorchester, Mass. a nephew of the litigants, who was formerly employed by them and Attorney Morris Stone of Boston, Mass. TOWN SCHOOL COMMITTEE GUESTS OF DR. GUILD

The dinner was in connection with the regular February meeting of the board. A report on the completion of repairs to the Oaks grammar school, which was damaged by two fires several weeks ago, was filed by the properties committee. The report showed that the work was done for $1,625, but $30 over the amount of the insurance adjustment, and that the results were most satisfactory. While an endeavor was made to confine the repairs to such damage as was caused by the fires, it was necessary to repaint the interior, giving the rooms a much improved appearance.

In a letter from First Selectman William A. Buck, Hayden field, off Mountain street, was turned over to the school board by the selectmen for use as a school athletic field. The field was purchased by the town for this specific purpose and has since been enclosed in wire fencing. A committee of the school board is to cause the field to be put to proper grade for use during the high school football season next fall. Secretary Egbert A. Case of the board stated that the condition of the field would not permit its use for baseball this spring.

The architect's plans for the proposed additional room to the Windham high school were approved and bids will be advertised for in the near future. The room is to be built on the third story of the building and will provide study desks for 60 pupils. ARROW BUS LINE DRIVER DISREGARDED THE LAWS

Alfred Burt of Worcester, was fined $15 and costs by Judge Heald in the borough court Tuesday after pleading guilty to the charge of operating a public service motor vehicle without having it properly registered, also without having obtained a motor bus operator's license. Mr. Burt was driving a jitney for the Arrow bus line which runs between Haverhill, Mass., and New York. This jitney passes through Stafford daily and has been operating since December 22nd. Few people in this town were aware that such a line was in operation, as there was nothing on the cars to indicate that they were public service cars. The cars bore pleasure car markers. A competing line between Hartford and Worcester recently got wise to the situation and put the local state police on the trail of the Arrow line, with the result that their driver was arrested and penalized.

CHICKEN PIE SUPPER AT NEWENT WELL ATTENDED

There was an attendance of over 200 at the Lincoln chicken pie supper held at Newent Community hall, Tuesday. The large patronage proved ample evidence of the excellence of these home-cooked, splendidly served country suppers. The place favors were red candy hearts. At one table five young women gave one man their hearts. The valentine table decorations, runners, napkins, mats and Jerusalem cherries were very attractive. Beechnut coffee was served and Beechnut mints were at each place. The 160 who remained for the program were delighted with the five numbers and their encores.

Herbert Rich gave as a violin solo an air from La Tosca; Mrs. Manning's story of Sambo's interpretation of the parable of the Good Samaritan was amazingly droll; Charles Heiboldt played a number of violin selections from The Vagabond King; Miss Doris M. Myott, formerly solo contralto at United Congregational church, Norwich, who never fails to please, sang Pale Moon and My Hour. She was accompanied by Mrs. Walter L. Benjamin. A number not on the bill, but one by which the pleasing program appreciably benefited, was two solos, Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes and All Through the Night, by Frederick J. Maples, solo tenor at the Central Baptist church, Norwich. He was in the audience and generously consented to contribute a number. Mrs. Jesse Phillips accompanied Mr. Maples and the violin soloists. The supper was served under the direction of Miss Helen Hull, with the able assistance of Mrs. Harry L. Hull, Mrs. Burr Smith, Mrs. Frank Ray, Miss S. K. Adams, Mrs. Will Phillips.

The waitresses, in charge of Mrs Albert Rist, were Jean Burleson, Ella Church, Harriett McCluggage, Sadie Goldberg, Ruth Allen, Mrs. Jesse Phillips and Mrs. Scott Rood. Newell Rist received tickets at the door. The program was arranged by Mrs. George Helmboldt and Mrs. Jesse Phillips.

Tells How Fat Men Can Lose Half a Pound a Day

Here's a simple way to get rid of that corporation and quickly feel in both body and mind the joy of living.

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

It's the safe way, too—for every day you continue this easy method of losing unwanted and unneeded flesh you'll gain in energy, vigor and endurance.

Nine times in ten obesity means inactivity—it means that your blood is starving for the six vital salts your internal organs need to keep you youthful, active, ambitious and keen in mind

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts every morning in a glass of hot or cold water you get these six vital salts which modern foods and cooking do not supply.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

The urge for activity will be so marked that even at the end of a hard day's work you'll feel ready for any social activity or recreation—you can play as hard as you work.

And after two weeks your excess flesh starts to go—you'll know it—feel it—see it—the scales will tell the story.

As one, once corpulent man remarked— "I feel so energetic that I want to get up with the lark and I'm just as lively as a cricket."

Kruschen Salts is not a purgative or a cathartic, but a real system conditioner and for those who are the victims of constipation or toxemia its daily use soon means blissful regularity.

Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—last 4 weeks—at Lee and Osgood or any druggist in the world.

DANIELSON

FATALLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHING CATCHES FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Lillian Viola Fiske, 70, lost her life today when her clothing burst into flame as she was working about the stove in the kitchen of her home over in West Glocester, R. I., about five miles east of East Killingly.

It was understood that she was engaged with her household duties while her daughter was busy elsewhere about the premises. The exact manner in which her clothing caught afire is not known, but she rushed out of doors and rolled in the snow in a futile effort to extinguish the blaze. She lived only a short time after the accident. The Fiske farm, where Mrs. Fiske lived with her daughter, is in an isolated section, the nearest house being about half a mile away. Miss Fiske did everything possible to assist her mother, who died before a physician could be summoned. The body was viewed by Dr. Randall, medical examiner, of North Scituate.

Mrs. Fiske was born in Foster, Nov. 18, 1859, a daughter of Albert R. and Mary E. Hopkins Saunders. She was the widow of John Fiske. In addition to her daughter, Miss Grace Fiske, she leaves two sisters, Mrs. Marshall Hopkins of East Killingly, and Mrs. Mary E. Pierce of Hopkins Mills.

Old-time fiddlers from various sections of Rhode Island and eastern Connecticut are to congregate here Sunday afternoon in St. John's hall, and they are going to bring their fiddles with them. The gathering, such as is held periodically and at different places, is under the auspices of the Old-Time Fiddlers' club. Some of the members are residents of this town.

Many of the old tunes played in the manner of ye olden tymes will be heard during the course of the afternoon.

Danielson taxi fares are to be advanced, effective next Monday. It was made known today that the Lewis Taxi Service and the Danielson Taxi Service, both operating fleets, and Aldore Langevin, who also maintains a service, have agreed to advance the present charge of 15 cents to 20 cents on what are called "local" calls, for one or two passengers, while the charge for extreme "cross-town" trips is to be 25 cents. In behalf of the operators mentioned it was given out today that the advance in rates is made with the sanction of the public utilities commission.

The advance in price is found necessary if the operators are to make a reasonable profit on the service they are maintaining. It has been demonstrated that keeping the fare at 15 cents does not permit of sufficient margin of profit.

Incident to the change to be made in the taxi fare one taxi operator said this morning that there is good reason to believe that some persons within the town are doing a public service car business—carrying passengers for fare—in cars carrying private registration markers. Doing such a thing is a violation of the law, and it also cuts into the business of the persons operating public service cars legitimately and paying the extra charges to the state and for insurance that is required under the motor vehicle law.

Isabelle Abbott, D. Philip Whitman, Ruth C. Albro, Helen E. Schroll, W. Eldridge Parker, Jr., Andreas J. Haveles, Gerard F. Gorman, Jacqueline Gardner and A. Morrison Ennis make up the cast that is to present the Junior play, Queen of Kingdom Corners, at the high school auditorium this week.

One tough hombre who had it out with state officers from the Danielson barracks in a liquor raid at the Howard Bullard place in Putnam last night was a sorry sight, but without sight himself, at the state police barracks on North Main street today, while Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart was engaging in an effort to establish the man's true identity. The man claims to be George Ford, but he is believed to be George Beecher, formerly of Springfield. He is of the burly, brutish type, a truly powerful specimen, which may be illustrated by mentioning that the strength of five rugged state officers was required to hold him while a physician worked over him last night. Ford absolutely refuses to talk about himself. His brandishing of a gun when officers raided the Bullard place, as told in the Putnam news this morning, and his subsequent attitude toward the officers resulted in his being tear-gassed into submission. His eyes were closed today. He is a man about 38 to 40 years of age. Ford was intoxicated when he pulled a gun on the state officers.

Daniel Sullivan, a cousin of Mrs. L. E. Kennedy of Danielson, died today at his ancestral home on a farm in the town of Plainfield. He had been ill about a year. For many years up to the time that his health began to fail he was in the street railway service in Worcester. He was a native of Plainfield, born on the farm where he died. He leaves two brothers, Simon of Plainfield and James of Worcester, and a sister, Miss Margaret Sullivan, a teacher in the schools of Plainfield. He was 54 years of age. He never married.

Though more than a year has elapsed since Walter Levanson, who was a resident on what is known as the Hill farm on the Green Hollow road, disappeared not a trace of him ever has been found. With his mother, Mrs. William Zuranski, Levanson went to New York to bring back some money understood to have come from the sale of some property. On the night of the day that he obtained the funds he went out to visit with old friends for a while and never has been heard from since. It also is a matter of doubt as to whether he is living.

This evening in the Girls' club rooms a whist and dance was given under the auspices of the local chapter of the Telephone Employees' association. Whist was played during the early part of the evening and was followed by dancing, music being by Polly and Her Pals. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served. There was attendance from Norwich, Putnam and other places in this vicinity. The committee of arrangements was made up of Mrs. Abby Hopkins, Miss Elizabeth Dunn, Miss Blanche Gauthier, Miss Agnes Payne and William Sargent.

A representative of the state fish and game commission has made known to local men the willingness of the state to take leases from property owners through whose properties Blackwell's brook flows and stock it after the manner of various state-leased streams in Connecticut. Fish for stocking heavily will be available for the coming fishing season if the arrangements for leasing can be made. It was understood today that the matter is to be placed before the various organizations in the territory that are especially interested in fishing and aid of the members solicited for an attempt to carry out the plan. Blackwell's is one of the finest trout streams in eastern Connecticut. It is a very considerable number of miles in length flowing through the towns of Pomfret, Brooklyn and Plainfield, into the Quinebaug river. It is a natural and ideal trout brook, yielding fine fish each season from time out of memory. If the leasing arrangements can be made the state, in addition to stocking the stream, will provide the usual step-overs at walls and fences and notices of regulations for fishing found along state-leased streams.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at L. E. Kennedy's funeral home services for Mrs. Abby Fletcher were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in the Mason cemetery at East Killingly. Friends acted as bearers.

The curiosity of numbers here was aroused today by the announcement from radio station WEAN at Providence, that a Danielson couple were observing their 55th wedding anniversary today, but did not include the name, nor were news writers here able to ferret the matter out up to late this afternoon.

Mrs. Odelle Doyle, wife of Jeremiah Doyle of Moosup, formerly of Danielson, died today at St. Joseph's hospital, at Willimantic. She was 32 years of age. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Doyle, a daughter of Mrs. Odelle Dion, of Moosup, was a native of Stafford Springs.

PUTNAM

BULLARD GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE ON LIQUOR CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 12—Getting away to a flying start in their crusade to break up eastern Windham county's illicit liquor traffic by their series of liquor raids Monday evening, state officers of Danielson barracks continued their work Tuesday night when the officers under the direction of Sergt. George L. Gardner invaded Putnam and swooped down upon the speakeasy at the home of Howard L. Bullard on Killingly avenue, seizing liquor consisting of 25 cases of home brew beer, five gallons of corn whiskey, a varied assortment of wines and a quantity of hard cider. Bullard was placed under arrest and charged with keeping with intent to sell and actual sale of intoxicating liquors. In the city court here today before Judge M. H. Geissler Bullard was found guilty, fined $100 and costs and sentenced to the county jail for a term of thirty days.

Raiding the Bullard homestead proved to be no easy task for Sergt. Gardner's squadron. Bullard is known far and wide through the county. Tuesday evening he had as his guest a man who gave his name as George Ford. Ford was searched by the officers and was found to be carrying a 35 calibre automatic pistol of the German luger type. His arrest was ordered on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, but before submitting to arrest he attempted to stage a rough and tumble bout with the officers. His attempt failed, when he received the worst end of the encounter and this morning his arraignment in court was continued until Thursday morning when it was reported that Ford was indisposed. Ford is facing charges of carrying concealed weapons, breach of peace and assault upon an officer.

State officers comprising the liquor detail were Royal V. Scranton, James P. Carmody and H. Theodore Strand.

TWO-HOUR PARKING MEETS WITH GENERAL FAVOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 12—Opinions of business men, members of the common council and citizens interested in the solution of the city's present parking problems, show that matters would be satisfactorily adjusted if a system of two hour parking on the principal streets and in the business section were adopted. Accordingly Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, chairman of the rules and ordinance committee of the council will recommend at the next meeting of the council the adoption of a two hour time limit parking schedule.

The informal meeting held last night was highly successful in its endeavor. All persons in the least way interested were given an opportunity to express their views of how automobiles should park in Putnam, to what extent and where. Alderman Chadwick's original proposition of one hour parking did not meet with general approval. Little consideration was given to the matter of three hour parking, but when the advantages of two hour time limit were pointed out opinions were unanimous. Alderman Chadwick shared the opinion of others present and when asked to comment on the outcome of the gathering this morning he said, "I think the parking controversy is ended." In continuing he intimated that the rules and ordinance committee will recommend that the city government institute a schedule whereby vehicles on the main streets may be parked for intervals of two hours.

Mr. Chadwick said this morning that sentiment was expressed against the proposition of enacting ordinances to make Livery and Canal streets one way streets. In following the attitude of the citizens, the committee of which he is chairman will not entertain this matter any further, Mr. Chadwick said.

Alderman Chadwick, acted as chairman of the citizens meeting in the absence of Mayor Charles A. Richard who was unable to be present, because of illness.

COMMISSIONER RETRACTS SOME CRITICISM OF COUNTY HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 12—A statement to local newspapers and to the board of county commissioners, made after he had made a tour of inspection of the county home in the Sawyer district in which he obtained an insight as to conditions, policy and management of the institution, Kenneth L. Messenger, state commissioner of the bureau of child welfare, tends to correct impressions which he expressed recently at a meeting at which he spoke at Willimantic. County Commissioner Arthur C. Keith of this city, who shared the indignation of other members of the commission following the publication of Commissioner Messenger's criticism of conditions at the home, said this morning that the breach had been closed with Mr. Messenger's statement. While Messenger made an effort to retract his statements he failed to submit to the county commission any plans whereby conditions said by him to be existing at the home could be relieved, Mr. Keith said. Every possible measure of precaution to safeguard the inmates of the home from the danger of fire is exercised by the board of management. Matrons watch over the sleeping wards throughout the night and are on duty in the building during the day. "In regards to the education of the children," said Mr. Keith, "the commission schools its charges until they are of age and is making a noble effort to instill the need of further education in order that the boys and girls may be inspired to continue their study in the higher institutions of learning. Several of the boys of the home are attending trade school, fitting themselves for a place in life. What more can we do?" the commissioner asked.

In discussing Mr. Messenger's remarks relative to the policy of the home in committing inmates to the care of outsiders, Mr. Keith asserted that the commission carefully investigates the case before any action is taken in order to ascertain that the child is being placed in a home where the right environment prevails, in order to insure the rearing that will make them useful citizens.

Recently the county commissioners were hosts to Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers of New London and staff of state officials. Following a visit to the home, the deputy chief executive expressed high praise to the management of the home for the manner in which it was being conducted. Mr. Keith intimated this morning that Mr. Messenger seemed to share the same views following his personal visit there.

"Lincoln the Citizen" was the subject of an address delivered by James F. Duffy of Providence lodge, No. 14, before an assemblage of Elks at the annual past exalted rulers' night exercises held last evening in the Elks home on Main street. In his talk Mr. Duffy brought out the excellent ideals of the man who threw off the yoke of slavery and maintained the unity of the nation. Terming Lincoln as America's most illustrious statesman, Mr. Duffy stressed the importance of the grand lodge of B. P. O. E., taking steps to insert in their ritual, lines suitable to commemorate the great American. Mr. Duffy was eloquent and inspiring and at the conclusion of his talk was accorded a rising vote of thanks. The past exalted rulers who officiated at the executive session of the lodge Tuesday evening were: John J. McGarry, exalted ruler; A. Macdonald Jr., esteemed leading knight; A. Graydon Sharpe, esteemed loyal knight; John H. Bulger, esteemed lecturing knight; George Lewis Jr., secretary; A. Macdonald Sr., treasurer; Lucius P. Merriam, esquire; Andrew V. Frost, chaplain; Ralph E. Thurston, organist. The past officers were guests of the lodge at a turkey supper which was served in the grill rooms preceding the ritualistic ceremonies. Visiting Elks present were James P. Duffy, past grand esteemed leading knight of Providence lodge; Frank H. Murphy, Charles M. Thompson, Duncan Mackenzie, James F. Daugherty of Providence and George Vosper and Victor Clouthier of Norwich lodge No. 430.

Special Deputy Commissioner Chauncey E. Genung of the state department of domestic animals stated this afternoon that an outbreak of rabies among dogs in this section has been thwarted by the quick action of officials in the town of Thompson. Officer Genung said this afternoon that a dog suspected of suffering from rabies was found dead on the farm of Philip Morse in the Brandy hill section of the town. The head of the animal was forwarded to the department in Hartford with the result that a positive case was found. Investigations conducted in the town in search of other animals, resulted in four other dogs being quarantined. A check-up of the town of Woodstock and Pomfret by Officer Genung found the town to be free of any dog victims. Before leaving tonight the domestic animal department official assured local dog wardens that a recurrence of last year's outbreak of rabies among dogs is not likely to occur.

DR. GARCIA OF MOOSUP PATIENT AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 12—Dr. Alphonse Garcia of Moosup was conveyed to the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon in the hospital ambulance. Dr. Garcia, according to a late report from the hospital this afternoon, is seriously ill, although hospital officials declined to state the nature of his illness today. Many who saw the ambulance make its swift run from Plainfield were alarmed, their anxiety being the cause for numerous phone calls being received at local newspaper offices here.

An Investment that does not fluctuate in value—

Life Insurance

OWNERS of life insurance have had occasion recently to compare the stability of this form of investment with that of even the highest grade securities.

A chart of the market price averages of leading stocks for twenty years shows an irregular line that rises and dips, sometimes vertically, with "peaks and valleys".

There are no "depressions" in the investment values of life insurance policies. They do not fluctuate with business cycles. From year to year, the 44 million Metropolitan Life Insurance policies show a steady increase in values to policy-holders.

The man who regularly invests part of his earnings in life insurance can go to sleep each night with the knowledge that he is building an estate of the greatest security and with a sure investment return for every dollar paid in.

Life insurance is an investment whose value constantly increases the longer it is kept in force.

ABOLISHING SUBMARINES

Before the opening of the London conference there was no encouragement that there would be an agreement to abolish the submarines. It had been proposed and the sentiment of the several countries sounded, but the responses were not favorable.

During the conference there has been nothing more to indicate that such an agreement as is reached will include the abandonment of the underwater boat. The United States and Great Britain have indicated their willingness to do away with these warships. As at the Washington conference, France has absolutely opposed it, Japan has not favored giving them up, though it would limit their use, while Italy would be willing to if the others will, knowing of course that France and Japan are not favorably inclined.

Thus even though the banning of submarines is looked upon as a desirable thing there is no prospect that it will result at this conference. There is a willingness on the the part of the chief objector, France, to concur in an international agreement regulating their use. That amounts to something and it is the idea of Premier Tardieu that a humanizing influence can be thrown about them.

There is nothing to be feared from submarines or any other warships for the most part except in case of war. The humanized regulations would apply to war and would require subs to refrain from attacking merchantmen except under certain conditions and then only after all possible protection had been thrown about the crew. Of course, that sounds like a real concession when all nations are friends, but there's no telling what will happen when nations are driven to ruthless conduct. Rules of war are admirably respected during days of peace. There is not time enough to give them much thought during days of strife. It is then a case of winning at any cost.

It will be possible for the nations to agree upon limitations for the underwater boats that will restrict their sphere of operations and control their size but when it comes to conduct in time of war it will all depend upon circumstances and the attitude of the governments they represent. Through abandonment all uncertainty would end.

COMMISSIONER MEREDITH

Dr. A. B. Meredith has been commissioner of education in Connecticut a sufficient number of years to make it apparent that he has a thorough understanding of public education. He was brought here from New Jersey because of his accomplishments in that state and since coming here his services have been frequently sought elsewhere. Connecticut has continued to retain his services until the time came when he decided that he had had enough of such work. His purpose now is to teach and no doubt New York university is appreciative of the chance to obtain his services.

Dr. Meredith's work in Connecticut has covered an important period. It cannot be said that he has accomplished all that he wanted to, or that he was sustained in all his proposals. There were times when it appeared that he wanted Connecticut to show greater speed than it was willing. Certain of his plans calling for legislative action failed to receive endorsement. This was not because there was not merit in them but because they failed to impress those concerned as being necessary. He supported changes which did not coincide with Connecticut sentiment and they were not made. Whether the time will ever come when they will be adopted is a question.

In his determination to give up the commissionership and go to other fields there is no doubt of the high valuation which this state places upon his ability. It means that Connecticut has an important office to fill and is making the effort to obtain a successor from within the state it is apparently the purpose to secure a commissioner who is familiar with Connecticut conditions. That is bound to be of much assistance to anyone in that office, when combined, of course, with the other necessary qualifications.

THE SECOND MASSACHUSETTS

There has been an election in the second congressional district in Massachusetts made necessary because Congressman Kaynor was killed in an airplane accident. The election was to fill out the unexpired term and another will be required for the succeeding term in a few months.

It was a contest in which there were four candidates; one, the democratic candidate, W. J. Granfield, was sopping wet, one had agreed to abide by the expressed sentiment of the district though personally dry, and two were bone dry. It was the republican candidate, F. D. Griggs, who recognized the wet sentiment of the district and was willing to be guided by it. The result was an overwhelming victory for the democratic candidate, the first member of his party ever to be elected in that district. He won by a plurality of 6,421 where the democratic candidate had lost by 3,433 a year and a half ago. The bone dry candidates secured a total of 1,169 votes out of a total of more than 57,000 votes cast.

In this contest there was an effort made to drag in national politics and attribute the unemployment at the present time to the administration. That this had little effect upon the voters of the district is the belief of the Springfield Union, which credits the voters with knowing better. Neither does it attribute the result to better qualities or better qualifications on the part of the successful candidate.

What the Union does say is that: "It is a reasonable assumption that nothing has occurred in the last 18 months to change the opinion expressed by the voters of this congressional district when they voted nearly two to one in favor of the repeal of the 18th amendment. On the other hand, there is reason to believe that this sentiment has intensified. If the election of yesterday is to be measured by public dissatisfaction, it relates to prohibition."

From all indications the support of the drys was for the most part thrown to the republican candidate, who is personally dry but knows and recognizes that the district is wet and declared he would respect that view at Washington. The vote was a large one for a special election and if there was any failure on the part of dry republicans to accord him the support he had reason to expect as a republican they must now reflect that they had a hand in assuring the district a sopping wet democrat, which seems to have been the pivot on which the election swung.

THE MUENCHEN'S FIRE

Although there was no loss of life and no injuries except among those who were fighting the fire, it is inevitable that the question should rise as to what the result might have been had the explosion on the North German Lloyd liner Muenchen occurred while it was in mid-ocean.

The ship's crew would have done such fire fighting as would be possible under the circumstances and wireless would doubtless have informed any other vessels in the vicinity of the plight of the Muenchen, but when it was impossible to keep the ship afloat or prevent explosions while the ship was tied at her wharf it can be appreciated that its position would have been vastly worse in mid-ocean. Weather conditions might have determined to a large extent any rescue work.

From all accounts, the fire was the result of spontaneous combustion in the cargo of chemicals and varnish. There was not only the right kind of materials for explosions but fuel for a disastrous fire.

That the fire will be the cause for more than one investigation is to be expected and when such inquiries get underway there will be reason enough for ascertaining whether adequate safeguards were thrown about those 348 passengers, to say nothing of the crew, by loading such a dangerous cargo.

To the average ocean traveler little is known as to the character of the freight cargo which is carried by the ship which gets them from one side of the Atlantic to the other. For the most part it makes little difference so long as they are safely landed. The passengers of the Muenchen were safely delivered but it was by a narrow margin. They will have no claim against the steamship company, lest it be for baggage which hadn't been removed, but it is impossible to overlook the need of guarding against any such development in the future on any and all passenger-carrying craft. The loss to the steamship company would appear to be sufficient to call for the clearing up of all details in connection with the explosions and fire.

HURTING ITS PROSPECTS

While Russia is trying to obtain recognition from other governments there are times when it doesn't appear that it is doing all that it can to help its position by its conduct toward those which have recognized it.

Because of changed political conditions and a desire to get a bigger share of the trade, the British have resumed diplomatic relations after having had an experience on a previous occasion which resulted in the throwing out of the soviet representatives. The hope is that nothing of the kind will occur again. Possibly the hope will be realised; but the British cannot fail to note what is being said by the semi-official organ of the French government, Le Temps, in connection with the disappearance of General Koutiepoff, a leader of white Russia who, it is believed, has been lured away by representatives of the soviet government. This French paper indicates that there is more than rumor to the part played by the Moscow agents and declares there can be "no diplomatic immunity for a band of soviet operatives who corrupt our workers, indulge in espionage and even resort to criminal acts."

Such an appraisal of Russian policy is not far away from that which others have made in view of the declared revolutionary purposes of that government and the intention to stir up discord elsewhere. Just how any government can expect to obtain and retain confidence under such conditions is difficult to understand. It makes all other countries stronger in their determination to refrain from diplomatic relations, but more than that it makes them hesitate to entertain any promises that such agreements as it makes will be respected.

LADIES' CHOICE

"Now, that young man you call Ernest," began the visiting grandmother who had made every one of her seventy-two years count up to the last second. "It doesn't seem to me that you are treating him right, Cinnamonia!"

"What!" exclaimed her fragile and beautiful granddaughter, pausing in the act of plastering down her hair. "How can you say that when I let him waste two solid hours of my time last night when I might have been far better employed dancing at the Rushing Rabbit? Gayety always cheers me up and I could have telephoned either Harold or Claude, who gladly would have taken me where I really wanted to go. I think Ernest got beautifully treated."

"You yawned at him," her grandmother pointed out conversationally. "Right when he was looking at you, too. He must be very much in love with you, otherwise he would have picked up his hat and departed. In my day no matter how much we suffered no young lady would admit it. She might be bored to distraction, but she maintained an attitude of bright attention."

"Hideous," decided the beautiful granddaughter. "No wonder the men wore pompous whiskers and were looked up to and were kind toward women and other dumb animals. It's lots easier for them these days—they know right where they stand. If a man deserves to be yawned at he gets what he deserves and I don't think Ernest rated a chaplet of orchids and lilies just because he could tell me correctly and in detail about the cooking customs in Senegambia.

"Unless it was a roundabout way of informing me that he wanted me to preside in the kitchen of a lake-front apartment, artificial ice and electricity furnished free. Some men approach a subject from a considerable distance and the more I think of it the more I begin to feel that Ernest is trying to become a prospect of mine. What do you think about it, dearie?"

"H'm," said the visiting grandmother. "If so, for a serious-minded young man, he shows the usual acumen of his sort. If a man has spent fifteen years of his life digging up ruins in some desert he always comes back home and marries an 18-year-older, who holds a dancing marathon record, and then wonders at the tint of indigo in the atmosphere. This Ernest is an extremely intelligent young man interested in science, philosophy and mathematics, and any girl might well be proud of him.

"No doubt he will be asked many times to address grave societies at their annual banquets and his wife alpers, too, seated on his left, trying to look girlish and unconscious. The only chance she'd ever have of making the front page if she married one of your Harolds or Claudes would be when her divorce suit was called. I don't see why you are so scornful of Ernest!"

"Well, I don't suppose Harold has nearly so much intelligence as Ernest," agreed the beautiful granddaughter, tipping her ears with perfume, "but he is lots livelier. If I'm tired it is lots more entertaining to have him turn on a radio jazz concert than to be obliged to say yes or no at the right times during a discourse on Byzantine art. Harold is so sympathetic. He never would expect a wife to cook dinner after she had spent the afternoon at a bridge party with refreshments, and I do believe he'd get up and make the breakfast coffee.

"Ernest wouldn't. He would require a beaming wife with neatly smoothed hair and a crisp morning gown with little rosebuds on it, seated behind the coffee urn, sugar tongs poised in the air. Harold doesn't make much money, to be sure, but he'd never ask an accounting of the last 50 cents he gave his wife.

"It would be all right with him if she started out to buy two chops and came home with a pretty string of glass beads she had met on the way. Harold is—well, you might say Harold would make a flexible husband instead of one of the rock-ribbed, granite sort. So, this morning over the telephone, grandmother, I told him I'd marry him. I definitely passed up Ernest."

"Well, well!" stuttered the visiting grandmother, greatly excited. "Did you, indeed! Well, that's exactly what I did at your age, too. Most women do!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—They seem to have a bent toward mixing politics and poetry down in Mississippi.

Lots of folks in Washington remember the days when John Sharp Williams was democratic leader in the house and used to flavor debates now and then with delightfully whimsical bits of rhymed satire.

Now Mississippi has a new candidate for political poet-laureate honors in the house in the person of Representative Ross A. Collins.

Out Loud

Collins is a member of the appropriations subcommittee that handles army bills. Also, he has dark suspicions about all this army activity in schools, colleges and other civilian walks of life. He says so right out loud.

Having charge for the minority of debate on the army appropriation bill, he started off by yielding himself "as much time as I shall need" to express his sentiments.

Then he took up some seven or eight pages of the Congressional Record to expound the theme that the size of the bill was "a great surprise and a tragic disappointment" in view of President Hoover's urge for scaling down military costs.

There were a lot of things Representative Collins didn't like, it developed.

He was particularly sarcastic about this business of naming honorary majors and colonels of Reserve Officers Training Corps units from among the prettiest girls at the schools.

"I brings back the romance to military service which was so greatly damaged by experience of that generation which saw the mud of the trenches in the World war," Collins said.

War Song

Taking up Major General Amos Fries' idea about organizing girl battalions in the schools, Mr. Collins found himself unable to do the subject justice in prose. He contributed a bit of what he said was poetry entitled: "The Amazons, or The Petticoat Brigade," suggesting that General Fries adopt it as a campaign song. Here is a sample:

"I've traded my horse and sold my cow;
"I'm through with a farmer's life, and how!
"For I'm going to be a soldier now
"With women in the army.

Chorus:

"Oh, it's fun to be a soldier, boys,
"And with the women stand
"In uniform at drill boys,
"And hold each other's hand"

"What is the purpose of having these little boys playing around with army men?" Representative Ross demanded. "Does it make us any safer? This should be done away with entirely."

YOUR HEALTH

The Cancer Fight

By Harry H. Kerr, M. D., Washington.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The death rate from cancer has increased 50 per cent in the last 27 years, and has engaged the attention alike of the medical profession the law givers, and the laity. There are numerous institutes for cancer research. There are numerous national societies for the dissemination of knowledge of this dread disease, and recently the government has made a large appropriation to aid in the solution of the problem.

We cannot afford to stand idly by and await the tedious researches of our laboratories to check this appalling mortality. It behooves us to take active steps to improve conditions, for it is equally foolish to be careless or hopeless. Something can be done, and certain facts will help us. These may be set down in this way: a. Cancer begins as a local disease, and unless it is destroyed while it is a local disease, the patient inevitably dies; b. Cancers that are recognized are most amenable to treatment; c. No matter where situated, every cancer produces certain symptoms; d. If every cancer was completely destroyed when it was a local disease, death would not occur; e. Untreated cancer is always fatal.

Unfortunately, certain other facts handicap us: 1. Pain is not one of the early symptoms of cancer; 2. In the early stages it does not produce disability; 3. Certain cancers cannot be detected at this stage and malignancy of many organs does not manifest itself symptomatically until the disease is well advanced. For these reasons, the victims of cancer in the early stages seldom consult their physicians. They are, therefore, robbed of the only opportunity they have to be saved from certain death.

If the layman was as well versed in the early symptoms of cancer as the physician, many more sufferers could be treated at an operable stage and the deaths from cancer materially reduced. There are two great measures to be taken in the fight against cancer:

1. Every adult, and especially every adult over 40 should be thoroughly conversant with the first danger signals. The American Society for the Control of Cancer issues a pamphlet, "What Everyone Should Know About Cancer." This pamphlet should have a wider circulation and deserves careful study by us all. The pamphlet can be obtained by writing the American Society for the Control of Cancer at 24 W. 43rd St., New York City. If one thinks he recognizes a first symptom, immediate consultation with a competent physician will determine the presence or absence of malignancy of any lesion. If malignant, it may be destroyed by surgery or radio-therapy and the patient saved.

2. Every person should form the habit of getting an annual physical examination. This would detect most symptoms of trouble. Even though we do not know a great deal about cancer, we do know enough to help most of the sufferers if they will give us a fair chance.

To sum up: The greatest health problem of the day is cancer. The only hope is early destruction, and early destruction depends on early recognition. It is necessary that the laity as well as the medical profession be given the means of early recognition. Through early destruction and only through early destruction can lives be saved.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Secret Is Discovered

Some things 'tis best we should not know.
You'll find that all through life 'tis so.
—Blacky the Crow.

It was still winter. The Green Forest was covered with snow. The Green Meadows were white. It was a white world everywhere. It didn't seem as if spring were one bit nearer. Sammy Jay was thankful enough that he had a good warm undercoat of feathers. There were some days when Sammy almost wished that he had gone South with Welcome Robin and Welcome Bluebird and most of the other feathered folk. Sammy only almost wished this. You see, he is a hardy fellow and he likes to be active and flying about here and there. Thus he keeps warm. Still, winter does get a little tiresome, and Sammy was beginning to look ahead and dream of nesting time.

"It will be good to see some sign that spring is on the way," said Sammy when he saw Jumper the Hare in the Green Forest. "I don't suppose we shall see one, however, for a long time yet."

"No," said Jumper the Hare. "I don't suppose we shall. I have looked for skunk cabbage around the open springs, but I haven't found one yet. That usually is the first sign."

"Well," replied Sammy, "I must be on my way. I suppose it is foolish to even think of spring in such cold weather as this. What's the news?"

"None," replied Jumper the Hare "unless it is news that Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty seem to be living over where Blacky the Crow lived last spring. I'm keeping away from that part of the Green Forest myself."

This reminded Sammy that it was under that very tree that Chatterer the Red Squirrel had found the black feathers which every one had supposed were the feathers of Blacky the Crow. "I believe I'll have a look at that nest," thought Sammy, as he spread his wings. Chatterer may have hidden some nuts there. Nothing would please me better than to find some nuts or acorns hidden by Chatterer."

So Sammy flew straight for the tree that Blacky the Crow and Mrs. Blacky had built their nest in the year before and had raised a family of young Crows. Sammy remembered what Jumper had said about Hooty and Mrs Hooty, so he kept a sharp watch for them. He didn't see them. So at last he came to the tree in which was Blacky's old nest. Sammy alighted in the top of the next tree. He could look over to that nest. Somehow the nest didn't look just familiar. Sammy looked long and hard.

"It seems to me that that nest is bigger than it used to be," thought Sammy. "It was a good nest, but I don't remember that it was as big as that nest looks to be now. I do believe Chatterer has been using it for a storehouse and has made it bigger for this purpose. We'll soon find out about that.

Once more Sammy spread his wings and this time he flew right straight across and alighted in the tree where the nest was. He was silent. He turned his head this way and turned his head that way to make sure that nobody was watching him. Then he flew up to the edge of the nest and looked in. What Sammy saw made him almost lose his balance. Yes, sir, he almost lost his balance! He just saved himself from falling backward off the edge of that nest. What he saw was an egg! It was a big egg. It was a dull white. At the very first glance Sammy couldn't believe that it really was an egg. He thought it must be a little ball of snow. But after the first good look there was no doubt in Sammy's mind. He knew that he had discovered a secret and he knew that that was no place for him to be. You should have seen how hastily he looked around and in what a hurry he flew away from there. He felt that he couldn't get away from there too quickly. You see, that was a dangerous secret.

YOUR INCOME TAX

The term "net income" means gross income less the deductions allowed under the statute. Such deductions include business and professional expenses, pensions to employees, taxes, losses, interest paid, bad debts, depreciation, depletion, contributions, etc.

Having arrived at the net income, the next step is to deduct the personal exemption—$3,500 for married persons living together and heads of families, or $1,500 for a single person, plus the $400 credit for each dependent; etc. The normal tax is computed on the remainder at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent on the first $4,000, 2 per cent on the next $4,000, and 4 per cent on the balance. Failure to understand the distinction between deductions against gross income and credits against net income has resulted in numerous errors on the part of taxpayers.

Business expenses form a large item in the return of many taxpayers. Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, telephone, property insurance, and delivery expenses. The expenses of a manufacturing business include labor, raw materials, supplies, repairs, light and heat, power, selling cost, administration, and other similar charges.

A professional man, such as a lawyer, doctor, architect, dentist, etc., may deduct the cost of supplies used in his practice, expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to professional societies, subscriptions to professional journals, office rent, cost of light, fuel, water, and telephone used in his office and the hire of office assistants.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Gave Only Permanent Relief

As everybody knows, the market is flooded with cathartics, pills and patent compounds for the relief of constipation. At best, whatever results are obtained are temporary. Besides, there is the danger in certain drugs and the habit-forming menace.

Mr. P. M. Fisher, 517 Olive Street, Scranton, Pa., has something to say on this subject which will be interesting to all constipation sufferers. He says:

"For many years I suffered from constipation and used, for relief, all kinds of laxatives. After a few days' treatment, I would only find my condition the same as before and at times worse.

"Some time ago I started to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly, once a day as directed. Since doing this, I have found that I do not need any other medicine to procure the desired result, and it keeps me in a very healthful condition."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or the purchase price will be refunded.

In addition, it adds needed iron to the diet. You will like its delicious flavor. There are many delightful ways to eat it. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

BACKUS HOSPITAL REPORT SHOWS CONSTANTLY ENLARGING WORK IN YEAR

An increase of 11.8 per cent in the number of patients at the W. W. Backus hospital, an increase of 20.5 per cent in the maternity service, and an increase of 4 patients in the daily average for the year, but a decrease from $5.33 to $5.14 in the daily per capita cost are items noted in the annual report of the hospital superintendent, Miss Lucy B. Abbott, which is given with the 36th annual report of the hospital.

Some of the special needs which she outlines in her report are a new elevator, an enlarged kitchen and laundry, improvement in the employes' living quarters and more room for the operating department.

Report by Superintendent

Miss Abbot gives her report as follows:

The year just closed has shown a gratifying increase in the number of patients cared for, and many improvements in the care given to these patients. There has been an increase of 247 patients, or 11.8 per cent. Fifty-one of these patients were maternity cases making an increase of 20.5 per cent in our maternity service. The hospital days for 1929 were 28,906 against 27,386 of last year, an increase of 1,520 or 5 1-2 per cent. The daily average for this year is 79 patients; last year it was 75. The daily per capita cost is $5.14 as compared with $5.33 of last year.

This year we have been most fortunate in having two gifts of $10,000 for free bed funds. One was given by Mr. Gilbert D. Lamb, of New York city and Franklin, in memory of his father and mother, Gilbert and Elizabeth Dimock Lamb, for the use of the residents of the town of Franklin. The second fund was given by Mrs. Leonard O. Smith and daughters in memory of Leonard O. Smith for the use of persons designated by the United Workers. These two beds have already been greatly appreciated by those who needed hospital care but could not afford to pay for it. We now have a total of eight permanent free bed funds and three annual free beds.

During the summer the men's ward was thoroughly renovated, cleaned, painted, and old plumbing fixtures replaced by new. Curtains on wires replace the old wooden bed screens these being given to the hospital by the graduating class of nurses. Other improvements included building a partition in the nursing school office that the directress of the school of nursing might have an office alone. We also put up a partition in one end of the corridor that the doctors might have a library and meeting place. One of the most apreciated improvements made during the past year was the building of the new driveway making it wider, thus safer, and resurfacing it, making it more comfortable for patients as well as well people to ride over.

One department that we have been scrutinizing rather carefully this year is the isolation department. Does the number of patients cared for justify the expense of maintaining it? During the year we cared for only 39 patients having communicable diseases, this being 21 less than last year. This may be due to the toxin-antitoxin given to the school children by the school physicians and nurses. Because we are used to the convenience of having an isolation department maintained by the hospital the city has little idea either of the expense or the advantages of having one until we have smallpox cases or something similar to take care of. The past spring we cared for four smallpox patients and isolated two persons who had been in contact with the disease. At the same time we were caring for other communicable diseases. The nurses deserve much credit for the technique they maintained during this and other epidemics. But is the expense of maintaining a separate building justified?

The social hygiene clinic continues to function through the cooperation of the town, public health nurses of the United Workers, and the hospital, caring for a group of patients that very much need this care.

This year we recognized hospital day on two different days, having the Lions club and Contact club one day, and the Rotary club another day at the hospital for luncheon and to inspect the hospital afterward.

There have been few changes in the staff the past year. Dr. Ferguson, who was resident pathologist from April 1, 1928, until Nov. 1, accepted a position at Harvard Medical school, continuing to supervise our laboratory and doing our pathology over the week ends. Dr. Wener has been with us during the entire year.

Each year our indebtedness to our loyal and hard working women's auxiliary grows. This year among the things they have given the hospital are a diathermy machine, an alpine light, a cassette changer, 5 wheel chairs and new dishes. The alpine light has not only been used for hospital patients but has been exceedingly helpful for a number of children from the United Workers well baby clinic. The cassette changer is almost indispensable in taking x-ray pictures of the chest.

During the past three years we have concentrated our attention and available funds on giving the patients good care, better education to the nurses, and in making improvements in the buildings that have been accumulating for a number of years when the funds to devote to these things were quite limited. To maintain the standard we have set for ourselves it is necessary to use all of our present income. In spite of the lack of money the time has come when it is absolutely necessary to make major changes in the buildings. We need a new elevator in the main building. The present one is constantly out of repair and it does not go to the basement. Our kitchen, which was adequate to care for 100 people, is not adequate to provide for 150 to 175 persons. The laundry is the most serious problem of all. There is insufficient space, light, and ventilation. We have insufficient equipment and much that we have is decrepid and dangerous to the workers. There should be something done immediately to improve the employes' living quarters. At the present time the demands on our one operating room has increased to such an extent that it will be absolutely necessary to provide more room in this department within two or three years. Procuring the money to carry out these improvements is our greatest problem for the coming year.

We wish to take this opportunity to gratefully acknowledge the gifts and the interest in the welfare of the hospital shown not only by the executive board, the women's auxiliary, medical staff, nursing staff and employes, but of the general public as well. Each one has made their individual contribution to the improvement and growth of the hospital.

Statistical Report

Remaining in hospital, Sept. 30, 1928, 74; admitted during the year, males 1045, females 1375, 2320; discharged, 2320; remaining in hospital, Sept. 30, 1929, 74; discharged: recovered, 1275; improved, 340; not improved 61; out patients, 198; new borns, 267; deaths: institutional 101, within 48 hours 78, 179; total 2320. Largest number of patients any one day, July 31, 106; smallest number of patients any one day, Dec. 29, 52, daily average, 79.18; hospital days, 28,906; ambulance calls during the year, 336; average patient's stay, 12.07 days; per capital cost, $5.14.

The operating expenses amounted to $148,523.

School of Nursing Report

The report for the school of nursing by Miss Grace E. Anslow, directress, was in part as follows:

The year closes with the following staff of graduate and student nurses: Directress of nurses 1, assistant to directress 1, instructors 2, theoretical 1, practical 1, supervisors day 2, operating room 1, obstetrical 1, supervisors night, 2, charge nurses 5, graduate general duty 5, student nurses 84, students in preliminary class 19.

Twelve students have entered during the year—twelve have graduated and one has withdrawn. The school does not show a decided development in growth this year due undoubtedly to the fact that our pre-educational requirements have been raised to a minimum of three years of high school work. We hope this coming year to again raise our standards of preliminary education to a full high school course. We feel the young women of our vicinity are realizing more and more the importance of full high school education as preliminary work for education in schools of nursing—this is being evidenced by the increasing numbers of high school graduates making application to this school.

The total number of sick days for the past year were 182, considerably less than previously, with a daily average of 27.8 student enrollment, a gain over last year.

During the year ten student nurses affiliated for pediatrics at the Yale school of nursing and ten students affiliated at the New Haven Visiting Nurse association for instruction in public health work. That these affiliations have definitely proven their value to the student is manifested in many ways. It has been very gratifying to have organizations throughout the state offering positions to graduates from this school who have had these two affiliations.

An interesting experiment, and one which we hope will be permanent is being tried in our obstetrical department—eight hour duty with three distinct shifts. The experiment is being tried in order to give the student the best possible experience and at the same time to improve the care of the patient. While it has added financially to the cost of nursing in this department we feel the additional cost is justified at the present time and our hope for the future is that this same experiment may be carried into the main building.

There have been added to the curriculum two courses, one in psychology, which is being given by the theoretical instructor, and one in emergency nursing and first aid. The latter course is being given by Dr. William V. Wener, who was especially appointed by the American Red Cross as instructor in senior first aid. The students who successfully complete this course receive a certificate to that effect from the Red Cross.

We now have five graduate nurses on our general duty staff. With the ever increasing demands of education upon the student nurse, and with the necessary nursing care of patients ever on our minds, we have felt that our nursing force was inadequate to meet these demands, and so three graduate nurses were added to this staff.

Laboratory And Radiologist

The laboratory report of Dr. John A. Ferguson shows many examinations and tests and includes 33 autopsies.

Dr. Edward B. Perkins, radiologist reported 452 X-rays taken during the year. The growth of this department in the past year is largely due to the splendid addition in equipment made possible by the Women's auxiliary. This department moved to their new quarters in October, 1928. The vast improvement in working conditions, this change has made, is greatly appreciated by those connected with the department.

Farm and Grounds.

Income—Milk, 17,792 quarts at 12 cents, $2,135.04; live stock sold $932.00; vegetables raised $1,146.60; total $4,212.64.

Expenses — Supplies, hay, grain, seeds, etc. $1,151.83; repairs, material only $212.06; live stock bought $375.00; outside labor, filling silo, ploughing, etc. $318.74; labor $1,341.00; spraying trees $104.50; veterinary $23.72; lawn mower and corn planter $37.35; total $3,594.70; profit $617.94.

Nativity of Patients.

Albania 1, Assyria 1, Austria 7, Azores 2, Bavaria 2, Canada 88, Denmark 1, East Indies 2, England 24, Finland 1, France 5, Germany 21, Greece 8, Hungary 1, Ireland 20, Italy 11, Lithuania 12, Nova Scotia 5, Poland 33, Portugal 3, Russia 47, Scotland 15, Sweden 12, Switzerland 2, Syria 1, United States 1,945—total 2,083.

Woman's Auxiliary

The report for the Woman's auxiliary by Miss Ruby E. Vaughn, secretary, is in part as follows:

These different groups of women have tried to keep up the morale of patients and nurses as far as lay in their power. Another task of the auxiliary and a very important one too, is that of filling the linen cupboard and of making surgical dressings. There is no end or limit to the need of old linen and soft cotton cloth. Mrs. Charles Saxton and her committee have been zealous in gathering all that they could secure in order that the hospital might be saved the expense of buying material for bandaging, packaging for wipes and the many uses that old cloth, after being sterilized can be put to. Besides the linen the hospital has need of surgical dressings. In old days, this was the task of the nurses, but now it is the work of the auxiliary's production committee. While fine work has been done in the past, a new venture tried this year has proved most successful, making it possible to double and then redouble the output of dressings made last year and at the same time to extend the interest in the hospital. The women of the different churches have been enlisted and a plan made whereby every church in the city has devoted two days a year to help this work. The Central Baptist church has generously provided a large, pleasant room in their parish house where each Thursday from 10:30 to 4:30, groups of enthusiastic women have met to make surgical dressings. The interest has been so great that many women have brought their lunches and stayed all day. The experiment has justified itself, for the chairman of the committee, Miss Mary Paddock, reported the making of 20,226 surgical dressings and that 355 articles, such as pillow slips and towels have been sewed at home. There has been a great quickening of interest in the work by this new method. A motor corps is a necessary adjunct to this department to bring the baskets of linen to the room and to carry the great packages of finished work back to the hospital. Mrs. Albert H. Reise is the chairman of this committee which works also in conjunction with other committees.

There are three important days this week: Lincoln's Birthday, St. Valentine's Day and Dollar Day. Abraham Lincoln was once a merchant in a little town in Illinois and dealt in general merchandise in a log cabin store which he had helped to build. We do not know whether they had "Dollar Days" then or not, but Lincoln was out after the customers, and so are the merchants today. We are offering 20 per cent discount for cash on all Hardware, Radio and Electric Items on Saturday, Feb. 15.

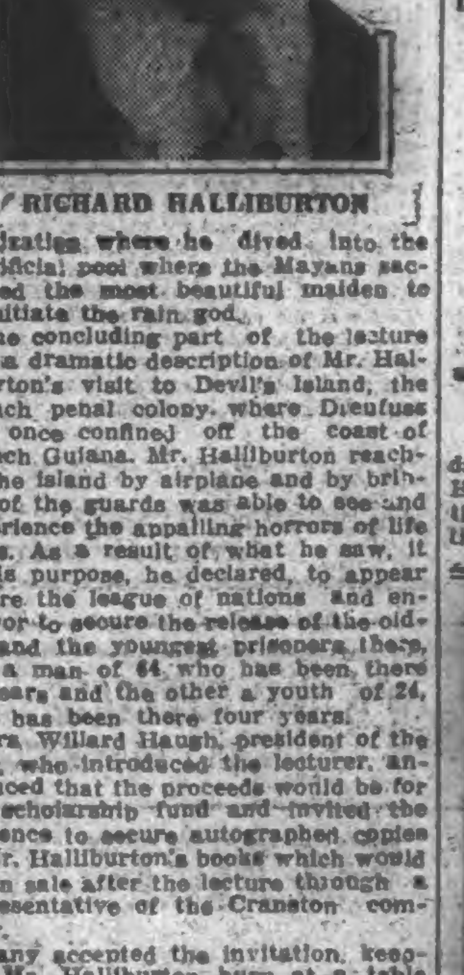
LECTURE BY HALLIBURTON CHARMS NORWICH AUDIENCE

Richard Halliburton, adventurer and author, charmed an audience of 700 that filled Slater hall Wednesday evening when he lectured under the auspices of the Norwich College club.

Mr. Halliburton lectured in the racy and absorbing style in which he writes his tales of adventure, weaving into his recital his delightful sense of humor, painting vivid pictures of the wonders he has seen, and handling with deft touch the dramatic and tragic elements that he incorporated in his story.

He opened with an amusing recital of an episode in Buenos Aires where he bought a monkey and a handorgan, as well as the moustache and bandana handkerchief of the organ grinder, with which he had an entertaining time until he and the monkey and the organ all landed in the calaboose after a clash with the constabulary. Influential friends secured his release but the monkey and handorgan combination, with its resulting rain of pesos financed his way on the railroad to Rio Janeiro, and was not ended until the monkey died of acute gastritis on board a boat for Yucatan and was given an ocean burial, along with the handorgan.

This brought the lecturer up to the vivid recital of his adventures in visiting one of the lost cities of the Maya civilization where he dived into the sacrificial pool where the Mayans sacrificed the most beautiful maiden to propitiate the rain god.



RICHARD HALLIBURTON

The concluding part of the lecture was a dramatic description of Mr. Halliburton's visit to Devil's Island, the French penal colony, where Dreyfuss was once confined off the coast of French Guiana. Mr. Halliburton reached the island by airplane and by bribery of the guards was able to see and experience the appalling horrors of life there. As a result of what he saw, it is his purpose, he declared, to appear before the league of nations and endeavor to secure the release of the oldest and the youngest prisoners there, one a man of 64 who has been there 34 years and the other a youth of 24, who has been there four years.

Mrs. Willard Haugh, president of the club, who introduced the lecturer, announced that the proceeds would be for the scholarship fund and invited the audience to secure autographed copies of Mr. Halliburton's books which would be on sale after the lecture through a representative of the Cranston company.

Many accepted the invitation, keeping Mr. Halliburton busy at a table on the stage for a considerable time in autographing the books.

The heat in the hall caused one of the women in the audience to faint, but she revived when she was assisted outside by her friends.

end to CORNS between toes

Those terribly mean corns between the toes that seem to defy all treatment—they're as easily removable as any other with Freezone! A few drops of Freezone instantly put the corn to sleep. Pain is deadened at once, and soon the corn becomes so loose that you can actually lift it right out with your fingers. Hard corns or soft corns—all yield to Freezone. Why suffer when your druggist sells Freezone?

PUBLIC INTEREST IN NEW LONDON IN SURRENDERED CRAFT GANDER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 12—A large number of curiosity seekers went to the United States customs house wharf today and inspected the alleged rumrunner Gander, which was brought into port yesterday afternoon and delivered to the customs authorities by Capt. Arthur Rowland, of Bridgeport, after the master had consulted his attorney, and found that the coast guard officials desired the boat. Many took snapshot pictures of the 60-footer, which is being held as surety for Capt. Rowland's appearance before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran next Tuesday. The Gander, it is claimed, was proceeding through Long Island sound last Friday morning and when a signal was given her master to stop by the chief boatswain's mate of a patrol boat, the order was unheeded. Even one-pound shots fired across the Gander's bow failed to bring the boat to a stop and machine gun fire was no more effectual in carrying out the command of the boatswain's mate. The Gander got away and not until yesterday were the coast guard or the customs authorities aware of the whereabouts of the boat. Attorney Louis Halley, counsel for Rowland, conferred with the customs officials and as the result of the conference Halley had Capt. Rowland bring the Gander into port.

Fourth Degree Knights Banquet

The annual banquet of Rev. George Deshon council, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus was held tonight at the Hotel Mohican and was attended by a large number of members. The exercises proved highly interesting and the speakers held the attention of their listeners throughout. Following the feasting and exercises a musical and vaudeville entertainment was provided.

Great clouds of smoke were observed from the vicinity of Fishers Island this noon and observers from the southern part of the city were given the opinion that a serious fire was in progress. Inquiry revealed that the fire was among undergrowth and that there was no danger of the blaze spreading to buildings.

Temporary repairs have been made to the highway of Montauk avenue, which had been full of ruts and depressions, between Willetts avenue and Bank street, causing much annoyance to autoists because of the danger of tires being damaged and springs being sprung. The city officials have caused quantities of tar and blue stone to be spread in the depressions, relieving the danger, but between the rails of the Connecticut company the same dangerous condition exists and no attempt has been made to remedy this element of danger to autoists.

MOUNTAIN AVE. BURGLARY PROVES PURE IMAGINATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 12—Mrs. Joseph Scripelleti, 77 Mountain avenue, reported at police headquarters tonight that during her absence from home she believed the house had been entered by a thief. Patrolmen Cornelius Moriarty and Carlos Stone went to the house and although the officers discovered two windows open they could not obtain any evidence that a thief had visited the house, for a crook did not need two open windows to enter when one would suffice. Even dust on the window sill showed that no one had passed through the opening. Mrs. Scripelleti made a search of the house, but could not determine that any of her personal effects had been removed.

Today, although a legal holiday, there was little observance in New London or celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The only evidence of a suspension of business was at the banking institutions and the municipal building. Even the postoffice force maintained customary hours, the carriers making their daily two deliveries. During the early forenoon there were but few American flags displayed, but before the day was over especially in front of business houses on State street, many Shenandoah flags were in the customary sockets close to the curb, space provided for several years ago by city ordinance, so that whenever a holiday or a celebration occurs flags can be inserted in the sidewalk and the display of Old Glory be uniform.

Joseph A. Longo, 41 Shaw street, was arrested tonight charged with reckless driving, upon complaint of Deputy Fire Chief Calvin Edmunds. Longo will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

POETRY

February

They cheated February when the days were given out,
They gave her less than other months,
beyond the slightest doubt,
They cut her two days shorter than the shortest of the others,
And fully three days briefer than the longest of her brothers.
Of course, when each fourth year comes 'round they give her one more day,
But that is insufficient, yet, to constitute fair play;
And so this month stands outraged by the portioner of days—
Dishonored in the presence of the Aprils and the Mays.

They favored February when the days were handed 'round!
For in no other single month are half the honors found.
There's "ground-hog day," the Nation's joke that none may e'er forget;
St. Valentine's, a merry time to drive away our fret;
And then the birthdays of the two who past all doubt shall stand
Forever as the patron saints of the beloved land—
George Washington, the father of this country that we love;
And Lincoln, that no other early name

They cheated February in the number of her days,
But she is compensated in the most resplendent ways!

—Strickland Gillilan, in Farm Life.

Little Children

Little children, how I love them
Whether jet or golden hair,
Little lisps and gurgling laughter
Climbing up on every chair.

Full of mischief, faith and fancy,
See them dartin here and there
How I love to hear their chatter
Just pretending everywhere.

And we grown-ups, how they touch us
With their qualms of foolish fears,
Running towards us, hugging, close up
For protection from ideas.

Close our eyes and we can see them
With a drum or dolly car
Keep them happy, Dad in Heaven
You who made them what they are.

A move to change the name of the Seine, one of Europe's most famous rivers, is now under way. Professor Pierre Larue, member of the Paris Faculty of Sciences, asserts it should be called the Yonne. After many years of researches, Professor Larue has discovered that at Montereau the Seine loses itself in the Yonne which he contends is superior both in depth and width at this junction. He adds that salmon, just up from Havre always select the Yonne as the more imposing water-way for their annual excursions. He therefore concludes that the Seine should derive its name from the more powerful estuary.

Only Medicine That Does What It Claims
says Nicholas J. Jansen

You folks who have tried medicine after medicine without benefit, take heart. Read this letter of Mr. N. J. Jansen and then let your conscience be your guide.

"Before starting Tanlac," said Mr. Jansen, "I was very rundown and suffered terrible agony from pains in every bone in my body. My back hurt until I felt it was pulling in two. My appetite was very poor and gas would form on my stomach and I would bloat until I thought I would burst. I couldn't sleep and didn't care whether I worked or not. I tried medicine after medicine and none gave me relief until I started taking Tanlac and this is the only medicine that does what it claims. Now I feel fine in every way. Pains no longer trouble me, my appetite is good, I sleep good and get up in the morning feeling like a new person."

Neuritis and Stomach Gas Ended For This Lady

You may think because you have been suffering so long and terribly that nothing will help you now.

But you cannot read this letter of Mrs. Margaret Wallace without believing that there is hope for you, too, in Tanlac. "All the good things I could say about Tanlac would not express my true sentiments. For 13 years I suffered stomach troubles worse than anybody it seems to me. Gases filled and smothered me causing a pain around the heart and the pain would extend to my back and shoulders and then turn into neuritis. I suffered awfully. Whatever I ate resulted in heartburn. Tanlac is the only medicine that could cope with such severe troubles as mine. It relieved me fully, my stomach is in best condition in 13 years, no longer causing acid, gases and heartburn."

After Many Failures He Discovered A Real Pile Remedy

For years he suffered with itching piles. Now and then he'd get a little relief from some salve or other—but nothing much to speak of.

Finally someone told him of Peterson's Ointment—of its powerful healing qualities which had brought such swift, blessed relief to thousands of pile sufferers.

Somewhat doubtful, he bought a box—the first application absolutely convinced him that this was the most marvelous Ointment in the world.

Why, man alive! That agonizing soreness went right out of those piles—the tortuous itching stopped—before he knew it his piles were gone.

Every enterprising druggist in America knows of the mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment—he knows it ends piles—one 35c box will prove it.

Would you be willing to use, "As is," this recipe for Rhubarb Pie?

Cut rhubarb into inch lengths to make a quart, and place in the lower crust in the pie tin. Sprinkle a mixture of 2 tablespoonfuls cornstarch and pinch of salt over the rhubarb. Cover with a top crust and bake at 450° for about 15 minutes. Finish at 350°.

RHUBARB PIE without sugar! Imagine it. Yet you would have such a pie, in all its sourness, if you used this recipe. Two cups of sugar are needed.

Many meals served today in countless homes are unpalatable and lacking in enjoyment because sugar has been left out. Vegetables are flat, fruits are sour and cereals tasteless. Try a dash of sugar on these most essential foods and see how much better they taste.

Sugar on protective foods makes them a pleasing carrier of the roughage, mineral salts and vitamins they contain. It does not change in any way their delicate, valuable elements.

Think of this as you plan your meals. Make meals not only nourishing, but pleasant, with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

The Food That Fights Fat

It's a gland food, now used to correct the known cause of so much excess fat. Doctors now employ it the world over. And now, without starvation, multitudes are gaining new youth and beauty, vim and vigor. You see the results wherever you look. Fat is the exception now.

Marmola prescription tablets embody this modern method. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Some of your own friends, doubtless, can show you what they do.

Let them bring you what they have brought to so many. The results will delight and amaze you. A book in the box explains the effects. Go now and ask your druggist for a $1 box of Marmola. You owe that to yourself.

CIGARETTES

"SHALL SHAPE AND SHADOW OVERFLOW"

[John Greenleaf Whittier, 1807-1892]

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper figure, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before: Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

INCREASE IN STAMP TAXES COLLECTED, SHOWN BY INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—An increase of $23,936,369 in stamp taxes collected by the government in 1929 as compared with the previous year, was shown today in an internal revenue bureau statement.

A total of $78,593,369, was collected from this source in the 12 months. The largest gain in the stamp taxes was from capital stock sales and transfers, which rolled up an aggregate of $47,340,630 in 1929 as compared with $30,327,690 the previous year.

The tax on bonds of indebtedness, capital stock issues, etc., totalled $21,799,213, a gain of approximately $6,000,000 over the previous year. Sales of produce paid $2,765,755 and the playing card tax, $5,187,511.

New York state led in the amount paid into the treasury on stamp taxes, turning in $56,652,905. Of this, $42,609,799 was from the tax on capital stock issues or transfers, a gain of approximately $15,400,000 over the previous year, which caused that state to pay all except $5,200,000 of the total tax collected from that source. The tax on bonds of indebtedness, capital stock issues, etc., in New York increased during the year by approximately $4,000,000 to $12,763,068.

Ohio, as usual, led the states in the tax on playing cards paying $3,219,277, which was approximately $200,000 less than paid in 1928.

GAVE LINCOLN ADDRESS TO ROTARY CLUB

Lincoln's Birthday was noted at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon with a very inspiring address on the Life of Lincoln by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown. As an added feature of the meeting the club was the host to the members of the Rotary Boys band which gave a very pleasing concert during the meeting. The program was arranged by Charles A. Saxton, in charge of the program for February.

In his address Mr. Brown said that Lincoln's life from the time of his humble birth to his tragic death was more like that of the Great Master than the life of any other figure in history. He said that Lincoln could be taken as the ideal and inspiration of the youth of today. Lincoln showed that ambition and purpose could overcome lowly birth and that no obstacle was too great to overcome. In closing Mr. Brown gave the immortal address of Lincoln at Gettysburg. Mr. Brown's talk was highly inspiring and the speaker was given a very hearty vote of appreciation.

The Boys' band, including about 25 boys of ages of 8 to 16 years, under the direction of John M. Swahn, veteran bandmaster, gave a very pleasing concert. Their playing of popular band music and a medley of southern airs reflected no small amount of credit upon the leadership of Mr. Swahn who has been instructing the young musicians only a little over two months. In appreciation of his work with the boys Mr. Swahn was made an honorary member of the Rotary club. Mr. Swahn in accepting membership in the club said that he hoped he would be able to live up to the honor conferred upon him and thanked the club for the assistance given him in the organization of the boys band.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and John Richardson was the song-leader. A presentation of beautiful gifts was made to Jack Savard and Jack Morley (The Pair of Jacks) was made by Charles A. Saxton.

The usual subscription to the Boy Scout drive was voted by the club.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

GLASGO MAN FINED IN COURT AT PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 12—Pleading guilty in the United States district court here this week, William Smead of Glasgo, Conn., was fined $100 by Judge Ira Lloyd Letts on a charge of illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor.

Smead was arrested by Rhode Island state troopers on Aug. 24, at which time they seized about 24 gallons of "moonshine." The state troopers turned Smead over to the government authorities.

In court Monday Smead's attorney told Judge Letts that the liquor found by the state troopers in Smead's car was intended for a private club at Glasgo. David Donovan and John McCloskey, both of Glasgo, who were riding with Smead when he was arrested, pleaded not guilty and were each held in $1,000 bail. Assistant United States Attorney Edward F. McElroy requested Judge Letts to set their bail at $2,-$1,000 bail each is sufficient for the "$1,000 bail each in sufficient for the set of facts in this case."

MRS. HOMER BROOKE TELLS OF LOS ANGELES' CHARMS

A former Norwich resident when she was instructor in calisthenics and phonics at Broadway school, Mrs. Homer Brooke (M. Isaphene Ives), now residing in Los Angeles, Cal., had in a recent issue of a Stamford, N. Y. newspaper a most interesting communication. Mrs. Brooke sums up in an entertaining way the numerous changes and evidences of progressiveness which she noted in her trip to California from the east, in contrast to a similar trip eight years before. Also the marvelous improvements and changes evident in Los Angeles.

She speaks of the marked advance in methods of railroad travel, the smooth roadbed and comforts of modern expresses, the luxuries provided tourists, et al., which made her journey on the Santa Fe a pleasure, instead of the former period of travel which left a passenger fatigued at the end of a journey.

In Los Angeles, she writes: The thing that has appealed to me most is the wonderful climate. All that has been said about the continuous sunshine has not been an exaggeration in the least; it has not rained for weeks.

I am delighted with the wonderful boulevards, most of which are 70 to 100 feet wide and have interesting scenery on all sides. The Pacific Palisades boulevard is a charming example, with the ocean on one side and the foothills on the other. It forces me to exclaim, "How wonderful are the works of God!"

On one of our rides we went to Long Beach. We had prepared a light lunch, which we spread in the park, which abounds in palm trees and flowers. We were interested in the sea gulls flying overhead. They had been attracted by our display of food and were quite adept in catching bits of food tossed to them while on the wing. I remarked that even the sea gulls were on the alert here and had caught the spirit of progress.

A word about the unusual public markets, of which there are many scattered throughout the city. Each market is divided into sections where fruits, vegetables, meats, groceries, bakery goods, and so on, are most enticingly exhibited. And, best of all, prices are most reasonable.

The homes are most attractive, much individuality being shown in the buildings. Very few are alike and all have yards abloom with shrubs and beautiful flowers.

The public schools all have wonderful, spacious buildings and large recreation grounds, with beautiful gardens. I shall take great pleasure in investigating the methods of teaching.

Last but not least, I will speak of the beautiful church edifices, many, and of all denominations. Some of them have an immense seating capacity. I can see that since my last visit to Los Angeles, eight years ago, the churches have kept astride with the general progress of the city.

Trusting that this letter will be enjoyed by many friends who have visited this city and can appreciate my enthusiasm, I am,

Very truly yours,
M. ISAPHENE BROOKE.
1352 So. Dunsmuir Ave.,
Los Angeles.

Mrs. Brooke is a woman of many gifts and of most interesting personality. She was engaged in teaching in New London when she came to Norwich and during her term of residence in this city her home for a time was with Mrs. Hyde and the late Burrill W. Hyde, the latter a prominent banking man of Norwich. She had long been interested in the study of phonetics, as a means of improving the reading and pronunciation of pupils, and developed this in the 12 years she taught physical and vocal culture in the New London schools. After writing a book on the method which she taught in New London and Norwich schools she went to New York, and following the publication of her book had the honor of having it speedily adopted and placed on the list of the New York city public schools as a reference book for teachers. Meantime, she was called upon to instruct many of the New York teachers in her method.

Some time later she met the noted inventor, Homer Brooke, who had brought to the glass industry a wonderful mechanical device. His flowing glass invention did away with hand gathering for making commercial glassware and, although it took years to convince the trade of its merits, he eventually triumphed and his idea in time brought him a fortune. For 12 delightful years Mr. and Mrs. Brooke traveled and found congenial happiness in their life together, following their marriage, April 4, 1916, in New London. Their home was in Mt. Vernon, 14 miles from New York city, and they had a summer home at Stamford, in the Catskills.

Mr. Brooke came to this country from England when 7 years old. As a mere boy he went to work in his father's glass factory in Jersey City, N. J. He made many improvements in the green glass as well as in the flint glass industry, devised a machine for making the glass insulators used on telephone poles, invented a special type of draught control for furnaces used in the glass industry, glass presses and devices which won awards from the U. S. Centennial commission, et al.

He answered Abraham Lincoln's call in the Civil war, volunteering and joining Company A, 37th New Jersey regiment. Early in May, 1927, Mr. and Mrs. Brooke were returning north, having spent the winter at their home in Miami, and planning when Richmond was reached to visit the old battlefield at Petersburg, Va., where Mr. Brooke had fought. They stopped on the way at Southern Pines, N. C., where Mr. Brooke celebrated his 85th birthday. While on the train to Richmond, Va., Mr. Brooke became seriously ill from bronchial pneumonia and died four days after, on May 7, at the Richmond hotel. Following funeral services at Mt. Vernon, burial was in Jersey City with Masonic and G. A. R. ceremonies. Mr. Brooke had visited Norwich occasionally with his wife and had impressed all by his evident ability and his agreeable personality.

It is not Mrs. Brooke's intention to waste her talents in her leisure in the Golden state, but to continue her work as elocutionist and author and along other lines. She is a native of East Albany, N. Y., a daughter of Henry Romanta and Sarah Deming Ives; her father, a native of Fayette, O., was a skilled engineer in his time. Through her mother she is descended from Lord Dudley of England. Her maternal grandfather, Dudley Deming, of Greenbush, N. Y., was master of sailing ships on the Hudson, between Albany and New York city, before the invention of the steamship.

CATHOLIC RESIDENTS RECALL FINE SPIRIT OF REV. W. A. KEEFE

A large number of parishioners assembled at the Sacred Heart church Monday morning at 7:30 to assist at a requiem high mass celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn, for the repose of the soul of Rev. William A. Keefe. The choir was assisted by Mrs. Morgan Cronin who sang the solos in the mass, also sang Pie Jesu at the offertory. Father Quinn said that Father Keefe was noted for his unselfishness and humility; that he always stood ready to help those less fortunate. Referring to the terrible fire that destroyed the local parish church several years ago, Rev. Father Quinn said that Father Keefe was the first one to come forward and offer his aid; also that he was the one who started the drive to obtain the necessary funds to rebuild the edifice. In gratitude to Father Keefe members of this parish should always remember him in their prayers.

"The Wesley Foundations"

Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church the February stereopticon lecture is to be delivered by the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, subject, "The Wesley Foundations." It tells the story of the developments in the work among Methodist students at state supported and private institutions. During the lecture 56 beautiful hand-colored slides will be shown. Ralph Smith will operate the stereopticon. John Richardson, the new secretary of the chamber of commerce, is to be the soloist of the evening. The lecture service is at 7:30 and is public.

Cubs Divided Into Dens

At the meeting Wednesday afternoon of the Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts connected with the M. E. church, the pack was divided into two Dens for contests. Woodruff Sullivan and Ellis Bentley are the Den chiefs. John Gibbs and Clarence Smith are the Sixers. In the absence of Assistant Cubmaster Olsen, the pack was inspected by Scout Clayton Rose. The drill period was in charge of Scouts Edward Eccleston and Earl Robinson. The Cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter read a new installment of the story.

In the efficiency contest John Gibbs and Frank Jordan are tied for first place with a score of 360 points. John Yetke is in second place with 320 and Robert Barber holds third place with 315. There was an attendance of 19 including visitors. The meeting closed with the playing of Taps by Bugler Ellis Bentley.

EAST HADDAM VOTES TO ACCEPT $400,000 LEGACY

At a meeting attended by more than 100 residents the town of East Haddam this week voted to accept the bequest of $400,000 made by Arthur R. Stillman, Moodus storekeeper, without a dissenting vote. The meeting, while largely attended, was short, and the business, after the vote of acceptance, consisted of decided on how the fund, which Mr. Stillman bequeathed for use in maintaining the Nathan Hale high school, should be handled.

It was finally decided that the school committee, of which Crary Brownell is chairman, should employ a trust company to handle the bequest. A committee consisting of Chairman Brownell, Secretary and Town Clerk Wilbur C. Root, and Clarence E. Hungerford, was named to act as agents to work with the trust company in the matter. The $400,000 gift of Mr. Stillman is to be placed in trust and the income used to maintain the high school named for Nathan Hale, who once taught a grade school in the town.

"Came home coughing their heads off—

Yet both my boys are hale and hearty in two days! George and Al went out to play football. They came home in the rain, both with a very bad cough. Believe me—I was scared, particularly for Al—he is not very strong. Immediately I put them to bed. Immediately I gave them a dose of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup.

BOOTH HAD PLANS TO KIDNAP ABRAHAM LINCOLN

In the valuable collection of Lincoln memorabilia owned by Attorney William H. Shields, one of the unique pieces is a copy of the diary which John Wilkes Booth kept while he was a fugitive after he had shot President Lincoln.

Booth mentions therein the "work to capture" Lincoln, referring to the little known fact that six months before the assassination of Lincoln, Booth had formulated a plan to kidnap Lincoln in Washington, whisk him off to Richmond and there deliver him to the Confederate government heads. Booth's idea was that the Confederates might thus make terms for ending the war by the surrender of Lincoln or exchange Lincoln for all the thousands of southern prisoners who were held in the north.

President Lincoln was killed by John Wilkes Booth, the actor, on Friday (Good Friday), April 14, 1865. For one week from the date of the murder, the assassin kept in his own handwriting a diary. After Booth was shot, killed and captured by United States soldiers, that diary was found in his clothing. That original diary, ever since it was found, has been in possession of the department of justice of the United States government at Washington. William H. Shields of Norwich has a printed copy of the diary in his library that reads as follows:

April 14, Friday the Ides.

Until today nothing was ever thought of sacrificing to our country's wrongs. For six months we have worked to capture, but our cause being almost lost, something decisive and great must be done. But its failure was owing to others who did not strike for their country with a heart. I struck boldly, and not as the papers say. I walked with a firm step through a thousand of his friends, was stopped but pushed on. A colonel was at his side. I shouted sic semper before I fired. In jumping I broke my leg. I passed all his pickets. Rode 60 miles that night with the bone of my leg tearing through my flesh at every jump. I can never repent it. Though we hated to kill, our country owed all her troubles to him, and God simply made me the instrument of his punishment. The country is not what it was. This forced union is not what I have loved. I care not what becomes of me. I have no desire to outlive my country.

The night before the deed I wrote a long article and left it for one of the editors of the National Intelligencer, in which I fully set out our reasons for our proceeding. He or the South.

Friday 21.

After being hunted like a dog through swamps, woods, and last night being chased till I was forced to return, wet, cold, and starving, with every man's hand against me, I am here in despair: and for why? For doing what Brutus was honored for, what made Tell a hero; and yet I, for striking down a greater tyrant than they ever knew, am looked upon as a common cut-throat. My act was purer than either of theirs. One hoped to be great himself; the other had not only his country's, but his own wrongs to avenge. I hoped for no gain. I knew no private wrong. I struck for my country, and that alone—a country ground beneath this tyranny—and prayed for this end. And yet, now behold the cold hand they extend to me.

God cannot pardon me if I have done wrong. Yet I cannot see any wrong, except in serving a degenerate people. The little, the very little, I left behind to clear my name the government will not allow to be printed. So ends all. For my country I have given up all that makes life sweet and holy, brought misery upon my family, and am sure there is no pardon in the Heavens for me since man condemns me so.

I have only heard what has been done (except what I did myself), and it fills me with horror. God try and forgive, and bless my mother. Tonight I will once more try the river with the intention to cross, though I have a greater desire and almost a mind to return to Washington and in a measure clear my name, which I feel I can do. I do not repent the blow I struck. I may before my God, but not to man. I think I have done well, though I am abandoned, with the curse of Cain, upon me, when, if the world knew my heart, that one blow would have made me great, though I did desire no greatness.

Tonight I try to escape these bloodhounds once more. Who can read his fate? God's will be done. I have too great a soul to die like a criminal. Oh, may He, may He spare me that, and let me die bravely. I bless the entire world I have never hated or wronged anyone. This last was not a wrong, unless God deems it so, and it is with Him to damn or bless me.

And for this brave boy Harold with me, who often prays (yes, before and since) with a true and sincere heart—was it a crime in him? If so, why can he pray the same? I do not wish to shed a drop of blood, but must fight the course. 'Tis all that's left me.

These are the last words in the diary, and probably the last he ever wrote, as he was shot very shortly afterward.

Lincoln is being likened broadly unto the Christian Saviour for his love of the poor, his humanity, goodness and charity. Singularly and strikingly Lincoln's life was sacrificed on the anniversary day of the Saviour's cruel death on the cross, Good Friday. Lincoln's life and death were both God-like, and as the Scripture saith, "Now abideth faith, hope and charity and the greatest of these is charity." Lincoln's emancipation of the Negro race was on his part an act of mercy, a political and war measure, not authorized by the constitution and law of the nation, as Lincoln himself well knew. Lincoln himself did that merciful deed and charity, and he sounded the alarm and warning that if it should ever thereafter by law be attempted to place back in bondage those whom by his proclamation be made free, another, not he, must be sought to sanction such violation of the freedom and liberty of the colored man.

ASPINOOK COMPANY IS TO MARKET "PERMATEX" ABROAD

The Aspinook company of Jewett City, dyers, bleachers and finishers of cotton fabrics have indicated their intention of entering the foreign market with their newly developed and trade marked fabric known as "Permatex" according to word received from the headquarters of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut.

Since its organization in 1898, the Aspinook company has been bleaching, dyeing, and finishing cotton and rayon goods for the domestic market, and only recently since the development of "Permatex" have they visualised the possibilities of greatly increasing their business by promoting the sale of this product in foreign markets. This new waterproof and sun-proof product is greatly in demand in the domestic market for coverings, cushions, curtains, card table tops, walls, etc. Since the "Permatex" finish can be applied to imitate leather, it is being used for making pocketbooks, book bindings, belts, novelties of various kinds, and for upholstering purposes.

Considering the varied adaptation of this new specialty and the lack of competition abroad, officers of the company are looking forward to a substantial increase in business as a result of aggressive sales effort to be carried on this year in foreign countries.

Representatives of the Aspinook company will attend the foreign trade dinner meeting to be held at the Mohican hotel, New London at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday, February 18, where a group of eastern Connecticut manufacturers will meet with the foreign trade committee of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut to discuss their specific export problems.

PLAINFIELD PROS BEAT HAAS' ALL STARS IN GAME FEATURED BY KASPER'S PLAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 13—With Kasper scoring more than half of the points, the Plainfield Pros delighted a capacity Lincoln's day crowd here tonight at the Community house with a clean-cut 41 to 33 victory over Mule Haas' All Stars from Clifton, N. J., in one of the best played games of the year. Kasper alone accounted for 22 points.

Every player tonight accounted for at least one point.

Haas played a first-class game at left forward, the stellar center-fielder of the World Champion Athletics tossing in six of his team's points and showing some clever floor-work. Mylord led the visitors in scoring, he having eight points.

Whitey Bernot scored 12 of Plainfield's points and Brusso, Conway and Dissinger, the remaining members of the Pros, threw in four, two and one points, respectively. Plainfield had a half-time lead of 22 to 17.

In a freakish preliminary game the Danielson Radio Five beat the Plainfield Buddies, 14 to 8. Withey, right guard of the winners scoring 12 of his team's points. Plainfield led at half time, 6 to 3, but was completely stopped in the second half.

Plainfield plays the Long Island Pros next week.

BRUINS BEAT PIRATES IN FREE-SCORING GAME

FORT ERIE, Ont., Feb. 12—(AP)—Boston Bruins continued their winning form in the National league hockey here tonight when they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, in a free-scoring game in which the champions were placed to the test in the final period when George Owen was sent down on a major penalty.

The Bruins did not have the snap expected, probably because of their overtime game with Toronto last night, but their class finally told. Hitchman and Shore on the defense gave Thompson marvelous protection through the greater part of the fray, but it was the brilliance of the little goalie that finally brought the champions through the storm of the closing rush of the cellar occupants.

HUNTER FORCED TO EXTEND HIMSELF TO WIN TOURNEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—(AP)—Although pressed harder than he was in capturing the national indoor tennis championship Saturday, Frank Hunter, America's second ranking player, defeated Harry Brunie, of New York, 6-3, 11-9, 2-6, 7-5, today to win the Brooklyn Heights casino invitation tournament.

Doubles honors went to Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., and Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., the national clay court champions. They defeated the new U. S. indoor titleholders, Merritt Cutler and Perzine Rockafellow, of New York, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

The Hunter-Brunie match was a far more stirring struggle than Saturday's championship final in which Hunter polished off Julius Seligson, of Lehigh university in straight sets.

It was a battle of heavyweights with Brunie, a stalwart six footer weighing 190 pounds and Hunter about ten pounds less, both hammering the ball with all their power.

Brunie, although he holds no national ranking and did not enter the indoor title tournament, is a formidable opponent on the canvas surface at the Casino, having beaten Mercur on the way to the final. His hair trigger half volleys and bullet drives gave Hunter trouble throughout the match and for a time it appeared that Brunie might upset his high ranking opponent as Johnny Van Ryn did Bill Tilden in the final of the same event last year. Like Jean Borotra, perhaps the greatest of all indoor players, Brunie hits a rising ball which forces his opponent to hurry his strokes and is likely to demoralize his game. To meet this dangerous attack, Hunter shifted from his usual driving tactics and took the net at every opportunity. This aggressive game ultimately brought success after the issue virtually had been decided in the long second set.

SKATERS WELL BUNCHED IN QUEST FOR TITLE

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Feb. 12—(AP)—The crown in the North American amateur outdoor speed skating championships still is anybodys after two days of racing. No skater has a commanding lead.

Irving Jaffee of New York city was leading tonight with 50 points. Hard on his heels came Frank Stack of Chicago and Alex Hurd of Toronto, with 40 points apiece. And then there was Jack Shea of Lake Placid, present champion, who has 30 points and two days on the ice at home in which to gather more.

Shea did not add a point to his total today, though he won a race and set a world's record winning it. He set a terrific pace all the way in the sixth of a mile, not counting toward the championships, and won in 24 seconds, breaking the old mark by two-fifths of a second.

Hurd won the five mile Eddie Whitby memorial race, the only senior event skated today. Jaffee came in second and Ross Robinson of Toronto third. Jaffee climbed into the point lead by virtue of this second. Jaffee was in the lead at the final lap but Hurd wouldn't be denied. Shea dropped out in this event on the next to the last lap when he slipped.

The young skaters also showed their class by setting three world's records. Art Pickering of New York city set one in winning the half mile intermediate: Wilbur Marks of Chicago set another in the mile junior and Orlie Duffy of Toronto another in the sixth of a mile for boys under 14.

Stack of Chicago failed to place today. His two second places yesterday put him in the first day's lead.

Tomorrow and Friday the championships move to Lake Placid.

MALONEY STOPS FRIEDMAN IN THE FOURTH ROUND

BOSTON, Feb. 12—(AP)—Jimmy Maloney was credited with a four round technical knockout over Al Friedman, his Boston heavyweight rival, here tonight, when the latter plunged through the ropes and struck his head a paralyzing blow on the edge of the ring. Friedman had launched a furious rush at Maloney, which the latter sidestepped, and the accident rendered him unconscious for several minutes.

The battle was a furious slugfest until this abrupt ending. Both men were equally aggressive but Maloney had a slight edge over his lighter opponent. Friedman displayed remarkable courage, trying left hooks to Maloney's head as the latter pounded his body with heavy lefts.

The opening round was an even affair, both men left jabbing to the head and body. During the second, Maloney's heavy lefts to the head shook Friedman but not enough to slow him down. Maloney shifted his attack back to the body in the third counter but Friedman digested all of his hooks and returned stinging jabs to Jim's head.

Maloney traveled at a furious pace in the fourth and his success enraged Friedman, who rushed wildly. Maloney was at the ropes and when he stepped aside, Friedman dove through them. His collision with the ring was heard in all parts of the house.

The seconds from both corners worked on Friedman for several minutes under the direction of two boxing commission physicians.

Maloney stood by until his opponent came to and then he carried Al through the crowd to the dressing room.

NORWICH GIRLS PLAY TOURTELLOTTE HIGH SATURDAY

The Norwich Girl's basketball team will play the Tourtellotte high girls in the preliminary to the Y Seniors-Winsted Y state league game Saturday night at the Y. gym. This will be the sixth start of the season for the local lassies, who have lost but once to date.

The main game will bring together two of the most evenly matched teams in the loop, which finds both battling for a first division berth as the league schedule hits the home stretch.

Friday night, the Seniors will play a return game with the Sub Base five, which also brings together the best court representatives in Norwich and New London. The Seniors won a thrilling, 36 to 33, over-time game in their first meeting.

VAUGHN HAS UNFINISHED RUN OF 85

CARL A. VAUGHN

Carl A. Vaughn, former national amateur pocket billiard champion, now of the billiard promotion division of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., clearly demonstrated why he was the title holder last night in his exhibition at the Recreation billiard parlors and at the Aetna parlors. Playing against Al Benson, local cue wizard and former state champion, Vaughn ran out on Benson with an unfinished run of 85 in their 125 point match at the Recreation. Vaughn's run of 85 was one of the prettiest exhibitions of pocket billiards ever seen in the city and sets a local record.

At the Aetna later in the evening the local billiardist turned the tables on Vaughn and won the final match 125 to 73. Vaughn missed and Benson romped away with the match. The local star played brilliantly through this match and executed some difficult shots.

After the exhibition match Mr. Vaughn gave instruction and demonstrated some of the intricate shots of the game that requires years and years of practice before perfection is reached. An interested spectator at the matches was Mayor Lee -Roy Robbins.

In fact Mayor Robbins was so interested that he has volunteered to give the prizes for the two tournaments which are to be run off in this city in the next few weeks. Bob's Men's shop is to give the second prizes in the tournaments.

These tournaments are to be conducted at the Aetna and the Recreation billiard parlors to stimulate interest among the younger billiard players. The teams in the tournament are to be made up of three players, one an experienced player, one a mediocre player and the third a novice. The tournaments will run for two weeks with play every night except Saturday. At the conclusion of the tournaments a city title tournament will be run off between the winners of the other two. When the city championship is won the champion will represent Norwich in an eastern Connecticut tournament.

With the arrangements of the teams practically every billiard enthusiast has an equal chance of placing with a winning team.

Is there anything more foolish-looking than the man who can't find his ticket when the head-waiter calls for it at a banquet.

Perhaps foolish isn't quite the word and mayhaps I should have said pitiful. Honestly, it is one of those moments that come to all of us when we wish there was a great big hole into which we could fall and have the hole fall in after us.

The other night in New London at a banquet I saw a man in this predicament and my heart went out to him in his embarrassment. But, believe me, there were two others who must have hearts of flint for their glee at their fellow townsman's discomfiture was perfectly obvious.

Everything had been perfectly lovely during the dinner until it became time for the tickets to be collected. The headwaiter was making his collection of dinner tickets and the young man to whom I have reference was perfectly unaware of what was about to happen.

He was thoroughly enjoying himself apparently until the waiter says, "Your ticket, please." "Oh, yes, my ticket," parrots the young man. And then began that frantic search through his pockets. That's one thing us women have on the men, there are no pockets in evening gowns. If our ticket isn't in plain sight we haven't got it, that's all.

But this man started the search. First one pocket, then the other, until all had been thoroughly searched, when he began all over again. Meantime the waiter had been waiting with that bored sort of expression. Others in the near vicinity of the young man simply tittered and tittered until their tittering became outright laughter. And many were the suggestions offered by unsympathetic diners.

Finally, the young man who was pitifully embarrassed remembered that he had given the ticket to his wife. So like all good husbands he meekly asked of his wife, "Have you my ticket?" "Why no, you didn't give it to me," emphatically replied the young woman. "But I'm sure I gave it to you," insisted the husband.

And the young woman was equally as insistent as her husband. Then there was another search through the many pockets with the same result as before. The waiter, meantime, had given up in disgust and said he would return later. By this time the young man had become plenty hot and bothered and was as red as a crossing signal.

Again he asked of his wife, "Are you positive that you haven't my ticket?" "Of course I am, why should I have your ticket. You gave me mine and that's all," was the positive statement. And to make things even more embarrassing, if such a thing was possible, the toastmaster said that he believed somebody was holding out on the tickets.

Finally, when things got to a point where the young man was ready to buy another ticket, friend wife had a happy thought. Reaching into her dinner partner's pocket she produced the missing ticket. She beamed innocently at her husband and asks, "Is this your ticket?" "Of course it is, where'd you get it?" asks the muchly relieved better half.

"Why, I put it in Mr. ——'s pocket, I thought it was an extra ticket." Can you beat that. And then it was her turn to blush.

Anyway, everybody had a bang up good time, and the incident was soon forgotten.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE ?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball games of other years.)

Monday, July 20, 1903, at Holyoke, Norwich and Holyoke battled to an eleven-inning scoreless draw in one of the best games in the Connecticut league that season!

Quinn pitched a magnificent game for the Reds (that was the Norwich's team monicker). Holyoke made only five hits while Norwich had eight and Holyoke made the only error of the game.

The nearest thing to scoring came in the ninth inning when Quinn singled, went to third on Turner's single and Harrington was passed, filling the bases with no one out. With Stewart and Jack Tighe coming to bat, it was dollars to doughnuts, says The Bulletin of July 21, that Norwich would score, but Holyoke had the luck to get out of it.

Stewart hit to Francis and Quinn was forced at the plate and Stewart doubled at first. Tighe was purposely passed, again filling the bases, but Anklam was retired on strikes, to end the inning. There was an attendance of 1,013 for the contest. Summary:

Tigers Win Fourth Straight.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 12—(AP)—The Princeton hockey team scored its fourth straight victory today, defeating Boston University 3 to 1. The Tigers launched a speedy offensive in the third period to win after Boston University had tied the score at 1-1 in the opening minute of the frame. McAlpin scored both of the deciding goals. Barber tallied first for Princeton and Lombard scored for Boston.

KOZIOL CONFIDENT OF BEATING MACHADO IN TOMORROW'S BOUT

When Al Koziol, Norwich Cyclone, steps into the ring against Joe Machado of Fall River, Friday evening at Parish hall in one of the three eight-round star bouts on the Shyma club card, he will be going out after revenge, pure and simple. Machado holds two decisions over the local boy and those are not to Koziol's liking in the least. In two bouts Machado has jabbed and pedalled his way to a decision over Norwich's most active fighter, and he is expected to fight the same way tomorrow night, that is if Koziol is willing.

But the local lad says he is not going to let Machado get away with any jab and run fight. The Fall River lad, like many another boy, who has fought Koziol, knows that it is dangerous to mix with him and swap punches. Ledoux found that out at Danielson when he tried to swap punches with the Cyclone. In that bout Ledoux had been boxing and staying off Koziol's attack with jabs until Koziol in a clinch said, "I thought you could fight." Ledoux lost his head and started to make Koziol regret those words. Ledoux was counted out.

JOE MACHADO

The two decisions given against Koziol were in other states and the local boy never did get any the best of those Massachusetts and Rhode Island decisions. Koziol feels confident that Machado will go down just as quickly as Ledoux, if the Fall River boy will fight it out with him. Tomorrow night's bout is the first of three bouts which Koziol will fight in less than a week. Monday he fights at Fall River and on Thursday of next week at Providence.

Another bout where there will be plenty of action is the one between "Shiek" Leonard, former state welterweight champion, and Joe Russo of Westerly. The Shiek is hitting the comeback trail after a long layoff and his work will be watched with plenty of interest. Leonard is having no setup in Russo, as the Westerly Italian is a hard-hitting, shifty boy. Russo is much the same type of fighter as Leonard and the bout should be a real slugging match. Leonard has been hard at work getting in shape for the bout, devoting much of his time to road work and rope jumping to develope his endurance. He has apparently lost none of his ring knowledge and looks just as good as when he was defending his title against all comers.

Among those at the ringside tomorrow night will be Charlie Brown of New Haven, manager of Mule Brown and Alex Tourain. Tourain comes to Taftville for the express purpose of challenging the winner of the Koziol-Machado bout, while Brown challenges the winner of the Brouillard-Rossi go. Tourain is in hopes that Koziol beats Machado, for he is very anxious to get a shot at the Norwich boy for some reason. Charlie Brown is manager of Romeo Dubois, who meets Rene Peloquin in the six-round preliminary. Bouts between Tourain and Koziol and Brown and Brouillard would make two attractive bouts for another card.

Y SENIORS TACKLE OCKFORD FIVE HERE THIS EVENING

The Y Seniors will open a crowded week end session tonight when they tackle the Ockford five of New London at the local gym. This is the first of three games in as many nights, two of which will be played on the local floor.

The Seniors will be out to snap their two-game losing streak this evening, they having lost to Greenwich Y last Saturday and Bridgeport Y Monday of this week, both state league games. The Ockfords will present a strong front, with players taken from the New London City league.

In the preliminary, which starts promptly at 8 o'clock the Phi Delta Nu team of the local Church league will meet the St. Mary's choir boys of Willimantic. Tonight's main game starts at 9 p. m.

Coach Demarest of the Seniors expects to start Audrey Brown and Tommy Lynch at the forwards, Les Pingree at center and Captain Roland Harris and Enos Ecclestone at the guards. Ray Yerrington, Howard Ludlow, Al Grebe, Gink Barber and Manager Zeke Leffingwell will be held in reserve. Randy Whaples will handle the main game and Howie Ludlow will call them in the prelim.

CONNIE MACK IS AWARDED $10,000 BOK PRIZE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12—(AP)—Cornelius McGillicuddy, better known throughout the country as Connie Mack, manager of the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics, was tonight awarded the $10,000 Edward W. Bok award for 1929 for "having rendered the most outstanding service to Philadelphia" during the year. The award in the form of a check, was accompanied by a medal and the presentation was made privately tonight after a dinner at a downtown hotel attended by the Bok award committee and a number of prominent citizens. In other years the presentation was made a public affair, but the usual exercises were dispensed with this year because of the recent death of Mr. Bok.

Charles E. Fox, former district attorney, made a brief presentation speech, in which he praised Mack for his clean sportsmanship and the attention he had attracted to Philadelphia in the winning of the league pennant and the world series.

Mack, who had been in Florida until yesterday, was accompanied to the dinner by his son, Connie, Jr., but none of the baseball warriors who carried him to his fourth world series championship last year was present.

But in acknowledging the award the 67-year-old leader of the champions spoke of them, Simmons and Foxx and Haas and Miller, Cochrane, Grove and the rest. He gathered them about him as co-inheritors of his honor and tendered to them much, if not all, the due that the award indicated as his.

It was not of past achievements that Mack spoke, but of the future and what he hoped for in the years ahead.

POLISH STATESMAN WINS EASY VICTORY AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—(AP)—Stanislaw Petkiewicz, Polish conqueror of Paavo Nurmi, won an easy victory in the invitation mile run at the Osceola club indoor track meet at the Seventh Regiment Armory tonight.

The Polish diplomatic courier led all through the race to beat Loring McMillan, former Union college miler. Frank Bayley of the New York A. C., was third. Petkiewicz ran the mile in 4:23 4-5.

Dr. Paul Martin, Swiss Olympic distance star now wearing the colors of the New York A. C., failed in his attempt to break the only world's record for 300 yards, but ran a fine race to win the event. Martin covered the distance in 1:46 4-5 to lead Thomas Brennan of the New York A. C., and William Schneider of the Paulist A. C. to the tape.

There is no listed indoor mark for 800 yards indoors so Martin's race established a new record. The outdoor record for the distance, 1:48 3-5, was set by Mel Sheppard 20 years ago.

Martin took a short lead at the start and held it for the best part of the race. Brennan passed him at the start of the last lap but Martin increased his speed and went ahead again to win by about ten yards.

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS AT MEADOWBROOK GAMES

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12—(AP)—Two new world's records were hung up tonight in the annual indoor track and field meet of the Meadowbrook club at the arena.

Chet Bowman, of the Newark A. C., established a new indoor mark of 5 seconds flat in the 45-yard invitation sprint and Miss Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, lowered the old record in the 220-yard sprint for girls to 26 4-5 seconds.

Jack Elder, of Notre Dame, forced Bowman to the limit every inch of the distance and the finish was so close that the judges were unable to decide on the winner for several minutes. The former Syracuse flash and the Hoosier meteor ran neck and neck down the last 30 yards. Bowman's time of five seconds created a new record for the distance in a final, but Percy Williams, of Canada, was said to have run a faster heat than this last year.

The fleet-footed Cleveland girl ran away from the field to beat the record in the 220-yard sprint. She shot out ahead and sped to an easy victory over Miss Dallas Creamer, of Canada; Miss Olive Krueger, Tennessee; and Miss Mary Gilliland, Milrose, who finished second, third and fourth, respectively.

ACADEMY RELAY TEAM TO RUN AT BOSTON SATURDAY

The Academy's crack mile relay team will compete in the College Freshmen event in the Boston A. A. games at the Boston Madison Square Garden Saturday night. The team will be picked from the following men: Capt. Sam Berkman, Johnnie Lyons, John Lenkiewicz, Bill Agnew, Bill Mahoney, Sera and Walter Sura.

The Academy won the New England championship relay event at Brown last spring and in the indoor season, in its only scholastic start, scored an impressive victory over Suffield prep so that they go with high hopes of making a good showing before the big crowd that will jam the Boston arena on the week end.

TIGERS WIN 11TH GAME DOWNING NAVAL QUINTET

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 12—(AP)—Princeton's basketball team won its eleventh victory of the season tonight, downing the Naval Academy team, 27 to 23. Princeton led all through the game except for a brief time at the start.

Keyes, Navy forward, started the Midshipmen off to a 5-0 lead, but Nicholson and Low tied it at 5-5 and from that time on Navy got only two foul goals until the end of the half. The half time score was 14-7. The second period was closer, Navy coming to a position three points behind in the closing minutes. Princeton played a defensive game at the end.

AGGIES HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE BEATING ST. MICHAELS

STORRS, Feb. 12—(AP)—The Connecticut Aggie five handed St. Michael's a 39 to 23 trimming here tonight. It was the second defeat of the Vermont aggregation in nine games.

The Aggies kept the lead all through the game, score at the half being 23 to 12.

Captain Ryan starred for the victors, and Slattery for St. Michael's. The latter has scored 117 points in nine games.

WALTHOUR-DUELBERG TEAM IN TIE IN BIKE RACE

CHICAGO, Feb. 12—(AP)—Franz Duelberg and Jimmy Walthour, German-American "kid team," and the Belgian-American pair, Gerard Debaets and Tony Beckman, were tied for the lead at the end of 73 hours of riding in Chicago's twenty-third international six-day bicycle race.

Two hours of jamming during which 37 laps were gained, broke up a "four-way tie which had existed for nearly 24 hours. Alfonso Zucchetti and Paul Broccardo, Italian-French team, and the Americans, Freddie Spencer and Charlie Winter, were tied one lap behind the leaders.

The Debaets-Beckman team had 1,176 miles and 9 laps.

LOMBARD WINS 30-MILE DOG SLED HANDICAP

LACONIA, N. H., Feb. 12—(AP)—Three mongrel pups, aided by a pair of cast-off Siberian huskies, today enabled Roland Lombard, 13 year old school boy, from Raymond, Me., to win the $500 first prize in the New England Sled Dog club's 30-mile handicap derby.

This youth, competing against some of the best Canadian and American mushers, drove his five hitch team with such skill that he finished his third and last 30 mile grind over the rutted and snowy countryside a good 16 minutes ahead of Georges Chevrette, veteran Quebec driver, who captured the $300 award for second place in the handicap race. Chevrette also made the second best time for the 90 miles and he received $200 more for this feat.

Emile St. Goddard of The Pas, Manitoba, one of the most successful drivers in competition, drove his seven wolf hound-huskies over the course in the fastest time, taking but seven hours and seven minutes on his three trips over the course. St. Goddard, thrice winner of the famous Quebec derby and last week's Ottawa race, was the scratch man in this New England event.

REDS PLAY TIE GAME WITH SPRINGFIELD INDIANS

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 12—(AP)—Providence and Springfield, the top and the bottom of the Canadian-American league hockey teams, played a 3 to 3 tie here tonight. The game was fast throughout the first periods, both teams scoring twice in the first and once in started rather slowly but livened up at half time and was further enlivened by the second session. The third period a fighting melee near the Springfield goal with less than a minute to play. Lamontagne was fined $25 for punching Johnny Gagnon. Gagnon and Futsy Callighen received major penalties for fighting and Gagnon suffered a cut in his head inflicted by Callighen's stick.

YALE SWIMMERS ROMP AWAY WITH FORDHAM

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 12—(AP)—Yale varsity swimmers easily took the measure of the Fordham swimming team, 44 to 14, here tonight. The big Blue took all first places but two. These, the 440 and the 150-yard back stroke, were won by Horans, of Fordham, the only man to win two events.

Yale did not use her best men in the relays, and in only some of the other events, as the Elis face the Navy Friday and the crack men are being saved for those races.

ARMY HAS LITTLE TROUBLE BEATING AMHERST

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 12—(AP)—Army's basketball team scored a 42 to 25 victory over Amherst in a dull game here today. The Amherst shooting was wild and few of their attempts at field goals were successful. The Cadets, led by Strother and Kreuger, played a good, but not brilliant game. Strother scored 13 points for Army and Kreuger 10.

Groskloss led for Amherst with eight points.

RAINBOW FIVE HANDS DEFEAT TO PUTNAM SCOUTS

At the Putnam high school gym on Saturday afternoon the Rainbow Five of Putnam nosed out the Boy Scout team, 37 to 36, in one of the closest games played on that floor in many months. It was a nip and tuck affair from start to finish with the winner in doubt right up to the final whistle. Tommy Denning, the flashy forward of the Rainbows, scored 23 of his team's 37 points, while Jimmy Alvord accounted for 8 points. For the Scouts Giradi played a brilliant game as did Joe Defocey. HEARING GIVEN OPPONENTS OF THE PROHIBITION LAW

Later Liggett was interrogated by Representative Stobbs, republican, Massachusetts, as to whether he referred to the plural in speaking of ex-governors and commissioners of public safety. The witness replied that he meant only one each.

The witness testified a "white slave ring of international scope" was operating in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and Michigan. He also said there was $22,000,000 a year being spent for drugs in Detroit, and blamed a growth of the drug traffic on prohibition.

Turning to Kansas, where, he said, they recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of state-wide prohibition, he declared he could go into any town as a total stranger and get a very good drink of liquor within 15 minutes after arriving. Within five minutes after entering a hotel in Topeka, he said a bellboy offered to sell him a pint of alcohol. In 16 counties in Kansas he declared he had found similar conditions.

"Wichita is wide open," Liggett said "I went into one of the classiest roadhouses in Wichita; it compared very favorably indeed with the better class of roadhouses in New York and it was running wide open; gambling going on upstairs with the roof the limit, and 75 people were playing as I watched the game and stakes high."

He said that liquor could be procured from taxicabs in Kansas; and that from his investigation he believed that not less than 6,000,000 gallons of hard liquor were being consumed in that state annually, while at least 600,000 gallons of home brew was being made in Topeka annually.

Although praising Detroit for what he called "mass production," Liggett said that "mass production in crime is also coming into its fullest flower in the city of Detroit."

"I have it on the authority of the ex-mayor and also the present chief of police," the magazine writer continued, "that there are today 20,000 speak-easies in the city of Detroit."

Asserting that arrests for drunkenness in Detroit had almost doubled in the last ten years, Liggett said the city was "in the grip of a bunch of gangsters, racketeers, crooked policemen and grafting politicians."

He described "a very wild party, where the liquor was donated by one of the principal gamblers of Detroit," as follows: . . .

"There were at that drunken revel at the Grand avenue roadhouse the governor of Michigan, the chief of police of Detroit, the chief of the state police, politicians, clubmen, gamblers, criminals, bootleggers, all there fraternizing in the spirit of the most perfect equality under the god Bacchus."

Liggett also said that four judges of the circuit court of Michigan were at the party, explaining later, however, that three of the judges had not at the time assumed their positions. Asked by Representative Tucker, democrat, Virginia, if he attended the party, the witness replied: ". . . I was not. I am more careful of my associates."

Representative Michener asked Liggett if he would present proof of this if called upon. The writer replied that he had the proof, and added: "I am perfectly willing to produce the proof, but hope that I will not be called upon to do so."

This statement was loudly applauded by the audience.

As the witness continued his testimony, laughter and applause at times interrupted his delivery until Representative Sumners, democrat, Texas, warned the audience to "suppress your emotion."

Liggett charged that there were "beer farms" and "beer flats" in the home state and "right under the nose" of former Representative Andrew Volstead of Minnesota, author of the dry act who, he said, was counselor for the prohibition administrator there.

"There is not a decent speak-easy in the city of Minneapolis," Liggett said, adding that most of the drinking was done in 3,000 "beer flats" run by girls.

"They also have beer farms in the state of Minnesota," he said. "That is one reason why you have not heard so much about farm relief. A good many of the farmers there are making home brew and the more excellent brands of bootleg booze, and a considerable portion of them are throwing their houses open to men and women and boys and girls who drive out from the city because they think they are in no danger of arrest there."

He said about 50 miles south of Minneapolis there was a beer farm at Le Seuer Center where school boys and girls motored from the city.

He added that there was more liquor drinking in Minnesota today than there was before prohibition.

The judiciary committee decided at an executive meeting late today to authorize Chairman Graham to consult leaders of both supporters and opponents of the 18th amendment before setting a limit on the time the committee will allow for taking testimony.

MONTVILLE

A very large crowd attended the masquerade dance given by the Jambouree club in Hickey's hall Saturday evening. There were many funny and attractive costumes. The prize for the funniest costume for the women went to Miss Muriel Davis of New Haven. Leon Neff of New London, who impersonated Madame Queen, received the prize for the funniest costume for men. Miss Edna Paton of Main street, who impersonated George Washington, received a prize for the best looking costume for the women, and Mr. McArthur of New London, received the prize for the best looking costume for the men. He was dressed in full evening dress and wore a high silk hat. A very fine time was enjoyed by all and the afafir voted a gerat success.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church will meet this week at the home of Mrs. Bertram Edmonds of Maple avenue.

Miss Mary Shea of Norwich Town spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carbray of Pequot.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murphy of Pequot and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gregson of Uncasville, were recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Annie Tooker of Noank.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Pekora of Thamesville, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sankowitz of Main street.

There was a meeting of the Montville League of Women Voters this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan of Mohegan.

Alex Williamson of Quaker Hill has greatly improved his property on Hurlburt hill by removing some old trees and trimming several others.

Mrs. Helen Rath of Philadelphia, Pa., has been the guest of Miss Teresa Hickey of Main street.

Mr. and Mrs Peter Gauthier and family entertained a party of relatives and friends at their home in Pequot Saturday evening, in honor of Mrs. Gauthier's mother, Mrs. Mary Gauthier, who celebrated her 8th birthday. Mrs. Gauthier has 37 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren. A very fine supper was given in her honor, which was certainly very much enjoyed by all. The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kenyon and daughter of Norwich, Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Dayon and son Ernest, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cloutier and two daughters, all of Glasgo, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beaudoin of Taftville, Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Barre of Plainfield, Mr. and Mrs. James Gauthier and three children of Three Rivers, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Pont and son and Frank Tillsky of Montville.

You may have observed that the average man is seldom willing to do the things he is constantly telling others they should do.

GAVE MINSTREL SHOW AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

A local event of considerable interest took place Tuesday evening at Uncas-on-Thames, when a combination minstrel show and vaudeville was produced much to the delight of the audience of doctors, patients, employes and local business men. The capable cast was composed largely of members of the nursing corps and the administrative departments, assisted by G. Roberge, A. Aldi, H. Aldi and J. Michael. The various acts were most ably accompanied by Miss Elsie Bogue.

The dancing of H. Aldi and the playing of his associates; the character singing of Jean Kieffer; the accent and stage presence of Miss Sadie Sharpe; and the rendition of Painting the Clouds With Sunshine, by Ambrose Cooley, were some of the high lights of the evening.

Highly commended was the singing of Misses Kava Kotmair, Cayting and Mrs. Whitney, and the Messrs. Cooper, Taylor, Gibson and Laden, as well as the direction of Miss Kotmair and the interlocutory duties of Mr. Clemens. Dr. Abernethy and Mrs. McCarthy were especially pleasing with their harmonica playing as were the end men with their wit and humorous antics.

Nine Have Licenses Suspended

Only nine names were in this week's list given out by the state motor vehicle department of operators having their licenses suspended for a year for driving while under the influence of liquor. The list follows:

Bridgeport, Samuel Deluca. Hartford, Eric W. Anderson, James D. Sweeney. New Britain, Arvid L. Foberg. New Haven, Edward Slattery. Wallingford, Robert Sile. Windsor, William A. Lonergan. Woodbury, Wallace Springer. Springfield, Mass., Arthur Belard.

Stops That Tough Hang-On Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

For simple coughs any simple sweet sugary cough syrup will probably do.

But when you want to throw out of your system one of those old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you've just got to have a real cough medicine.

Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion for the harder and tougher and tighter they come the more joy Bronchuline gets in knocking them out.

Bronchuline isn't a cheap cough conqueror, mind you, for first raters are never cheap. But if you are one of the unlucky ones that a persistent, health destroying cough is pushing towards the grave, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and soothes the terrible soreness.

Often three or four doses bring blessed relief and half a bottle forces the most stubborn cough into submission.

"A bottle of magic" one old man calls Bronchuline Emulsion. He was all worn out and ready to give up when a friend brought him the good news about Bronchuline.

Don't let a cough hang on — it's dangerous company—Get rid of it quick. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any up to the times druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion.

This will keep your scalp in a healthy condition, and your hair will be soft and lustrous.

HOW FORD METHODS CUT COST OF DISTRIBUTION

Lower profits in selling save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in manufacturing

TWENTY-SEVEN years ago the Ford Motor Company was formed to provide reliable, economical transportation for all the people. That original purpose has never changed. The constant effort in every activity is to find ways to give you greater and greater value without extra cost—frequently at lowered cost. This applies to distribution and similar important factors, as well as manufacture.

For the Ford Motor Company believes that its full duty is not only to make a good automobile at the lowest possible price, but to see that there is no waste, extravagance, or undue profit in any transaction from the time the car leaves the factory until it is delivered to your home. It is obvious that hard-won savings in production will be of little value if they are sacrificed later through excessive selling costs.

EVERY purchaser of a motor car has the right to know how much of the money he pays is for the car itself and how much is taken up by dealer charges. If these charges are too high, one of two things must happen. Either the price of the car must be raised or the quality lowered. There is no other way. The money must come from somewhere.

In the case of the Ford, the low charges for distribution, selling, financing and accessories mean a direct saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser in addition to the still greater savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. Ford charges are not marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

The profit margin on the Ford car has always been fair to both the dealer and the public. Within the past three months, it has been possible to effect still further economies. Today, the discount or commission of the Ford dealer is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

THE business of the Ford dealer is good because he makes a small profit on a large number of sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales. He knows, too, that the extra dollar-for-dollar value of the car makes it easier to sell and more certain to give satisfactory service after purchase.

Consider also that the Ford car is delivered to the purchaser equipped with a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, an extra steel-spoke wheel, and bright, enduring Rustless Steel for many exterior metal parts, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes.

If for any reason you wish to buy certain small accessories, you will find that these, too, are sold at the usual Ford low prices. Replacement parts are also available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the country.

THESE are important points to remember in considering the purchase of a motor car. They show why it is possible to put so much extra quality into the new Ford and still maintain the low price. They are also the reasons why more than 35% of all cars sold today are Model A Fords.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Red Arrow Auction

In order that the Red Arrow patrons who attend the Palace theatre on Red Arrow auction nights may be able to get home early the Red Arrow club has made arrangements with the Palace theater to run only one show that night so that the auction may begin promptly at 9 p. m. and finish at the regular theater time.

To make the auctions more attractive to the public the Red Arrow merchants are arranging to have a professional auctioneer in charge of the Red Arrow auction. The new arrangement will be a show in itself and will attract a greater number of people to witness the auctions.

In addition to the 141 valuable articles to be sold to the Red Arrow patrons for Red Arrow money the Red Arrow club will award sixteen prizes for the handicraft contest which is open to the public. Everyone who can produce with his hands any kind of artistic piece of work, such as embroidery, crocheting, weaving braided rugs, artificial flowers, dolls (whose dresses are made by girls under 14 years of age), bird houses, model aeroplanes, drawings (made by children under 14 years), and the best collection of handicraft sent in by any Boy Scout troop of the Norwich council. The Red Arrow club will award 15 prizes for the handicraft articles in amounts of $5.00 and $2.50 and $10, to the Boy Scout troop. The articles entered in the contest will be returned to the contributors, whether they win a prize or not. Three prominent Norwich citizens will assist the Red Arrow club in awarding the prizes. All articles entered into the Red Arrow contest will be displayed in the windows of the Silberman Furniture company from Feb 21st to Feb. 24th. The Boy Scout articles will be displayed in the windows of the former Bankers Trust company, Franklin square.

The people interested in handicraft work may expect to see a fine exhibition of work done by the members of the Norwich Scout organizations. The boys are very proficient with their hands and are enthusiastic about the coming handicraft contest.

The second Red Arrow Booster contest now going on is being received with great enthusiasm among Red Arrow patrons. The new Booster prizes to be awarded at the May auction are valued at $1,200. The six valuable prizes are as follows: First prize, 10-piece living room suite, $625; 3-piece Italian Velour suite, French seamless Wilton rug 9x12, Junior floor lamp and shade, table lamp and shade, mahogany davenport table, end table. Second prize: Electrolux gas refrigerator $400; third prize, diamond ring and setting, $250; fourth prize, Zenith radio, $215; fifth prize, Maytag washing machine, $160; sixth prize, Domestic electric sewing machine, $150.

The contest is open to all the people of Norwich. Every customer in a Red Arrow store can nominate himself or his friend as a booster by obtaining a free nomination blank in any of the 15 Red Arrow stores of Norwich. By signing the nomination blank and depositing it at the Palace theater treasure chest, the person becomes a booster and is ready to vote for himself or any of his friends. The voting is done by arrows, which can be obtained at the Reid & Hughes company by exchanging Red Arrow money. For every dollar of Red Arrow money the Reid & Hughes company will issue a voucher in the person's name equal to 500 arrows. These vouchers are to be deposited in the treasure chest at the Palace theater lobby, and at the finish of the Booster contest, the persons having the largest amount of arrows will receive the first prize; the person having the next largest number of arrows will receive second prize, and so on until the six prizes are disposed of.

The Red Arrow merchants are confident that a greater number of Norwich people will participate in the present Booster contest as the prizes are well worth working for and that there is lots of fun and sport to be one of the boosters.

Plainfield Community House.

Paul Specht, who appears at the Community house, Plainfield, with his New England Majestic Dance band on Feb. 14th, has often been called the most persistent musical leader in the world, because of his long drawn out battles with the British musicians trust, which finally ended in the United States regulations against foreign musicians being tightened and a more equitable basis for the exchange of musicians being worked out between the two countries.

Mr. Specht's tour of Europe was perhaps the most elaborate of any American dance band leader, his original engagement of two weeks at the world famous Kit-Cat club in London having been extended until the expiration of his passports. In addition to appearing before royalty in England, Specht's band played for a number of other crowned heads of Europe, three distinct tours taking him into practically every city of importance in England and on the continent.

Broadway Theatre.

Two youngsters, one well known to Norwich people, play prominent parts in the twin talking pictures now being shown at the Broadway, continuing through tomorrow. In "The Song of Love," which stars Belle Baker, radio and phonograph favorite, with Ralph Graves, is playing David Durand, a lovable youngster who made his screen and talking debut with the famous Chevalier in Innocents of Paris. Little David is an honory member of the Lions, the Kiwanis, the Optimists, and the Green Cross, the national forest conservation society, as well as being the youngest Boy Scout in the United States As the son of two struggling vaudeville artists, singing "echo" from a stage box, to his mother's songs of home and love, the boy has a wonderful opportunity and makes the most of it, to the delight of audiences wherever the picture plays. That he is all boy is shown by his love for baseball, which even makes him forget his "show." The Song of Love should be seen by every parent and child, especially the Boy Scouts, in the city.

BELLE BAKER in SONG of LOVE
—A COLUMBIA PRODUCTION—

In the companion picture, Wall Street, a vivid picture timely in its references to the recent financial debacle, Ralph Ince as "Roller Macray," a Wall street power, and Aileen Pringle, "the perfect screen personality," are supported in no small way by the clever acting of Freddie Burke Frederick, son of Norwich's own Pauline Frederick, who so cleverly supported his distinguished mother in "Evidence." Excitement runs high in this virile talking play as the ex-steel worker Macray battles the organized "bears" in their determined onslaught to crush him. Fox movietone news completes the long and interesting bill.

Palace Theater

A double feature bill of unusual appeal is now being presented at the Palace theater. It includes on the one hand a tense story of passion and vengeance in the Southland, and on the other a comical, uproarious tale with an aviation background.

In the first of these, "The Other Tomorrow," Billie Dove and Grant Withers play the leading parts. It is the tale of a honeymoon couple who return to their home in the south after a trip abroad. There the woman finds that an old sweetheart of hers is still in the offing. Jealousy springs up in the husband's heart, and, goaded by gossip, he forbids her to have anything to do with the other man. She does not like to obey, but she does, and it is only by an accident that she is finally thrown into the man's company again. An automobile mishap forces her to seek aid. She finds herself at the home of the other man, and circumstances force her to stay there through the night. The husband hears of this, and is out for blood, but once again when vengeance is trailing its shadow across the screen, fate steps in and unravels the tangled skeins in dramatic fashion, in a manner which will come as a magnificent surprise to the audience.

The other picture, "The Aviator," also a vitaphone film, starring Edward Everett Horton, is the story of an author named Street. Street had no use for planes, but to oblige a publisher, he allowed his name to be used as the author of an exciting war novel with an aviation theme. Henceforth life was a nightmare to him. He was hailed on every hand as a supreme ace, and was expected to fly and do great stunts. A pretty girl, among others had great faith in her ability, and her father, a French aviator of great fame also expected Street to show his stuff. Desperately he tried to take lessons in flying, but his instructor turned out to know almost as little as he did about air craft. It's a whale of a picture.

Starting Saturday the Palace will show "No, No, Nanette," featuring Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray, the leading man of "Sally." Here is the screen version of one of the most popular musical comedies of the time.

Breed Theatre

When "The Voice of the City" comes to the Breed theatre Saturday, playgoers will see and hear the first all-talking picture to be written and directed by Willard Mack, one of the most eminent playwrights and masters of spoken dialogue so far produced in this country. "The Voice of the City," like such Mack successes as "Kick In" and "The Noose," is an extremely fast-moving melodrama, played in a dramatic period of twenty-four hours and featuring a prisoner's escape from Sing Sing and the man hunt which follows. Robert Ames, plays the juvenile lead with Sylvia Field as his sweetheart. Willard Mack, himself, plays "Biff," the detective.

Connecticut College Concert

By a series of performances deserving the strenuous plaudits they elicited, The Cleveland orchestra, under the direction of Nikolai Sokoloff, at its concert in Carnegie hall last night, demonstrated a remarkable gain in virtuosity and tonal opulence. Only Mr. Toscanini, among conductors active here this season, has excelled the interpretations of the Ohio leader. The musicians, inspired by his ardor, scored nothing short of a triumph. The foregoing refers to a concert given by this splendid organization December 5, and was printed in the Evening World the next day.

Today, the orchestra and Mr. Sokoloff come to New London for two concerts in the armory. The program for the concert in the afternoon has been especially arranged for young people of all ages, and will be conducted by Mr. Rudolph Ringwall, assistant conductor of the orchestra.

In the evening, under the baton of Sokoloff himself will be offered a list which includes the great Beethoven Fifth Symphony, the first movement of which depicts the terrible rage of Orthello when he hears from Iago the slanders which persuade him of Desdamona's guilt. Now it is a frantic delirium which explodes in cries of anguish, and profound self pity. Hear these dialogues of chords between the wind and stringed instruments, which come and go, always weaker and fainter, like the painful breathing of a man wholly overcome by his emotions, and then give way to a phrase full of violence, in which the orchestra seems to rise to its feet, revived by a flash of fury, and then say if this passionate style is not beyond and above everything that has been produced hitherto in instrumental music.

CENSUS OF DISTRIBUTION IS TO BE TAKEN IN FEBRUARY AND MARCH

A census of distribution, which applies to statistics on wholesale and retail trade, is to be taken during February and March, in connection with the coming United States census, for which Judge Otto B. Robinson of Willimantic is to be the supervisor for the district that comprises the counties of New London, Middlesex, Windham and Tolland.

In a statement applying especially to the census of distribution, Judge Robinson gives the following information as to the scope and work involved:

The coming census of the United States will be the most comprehensive statistical compilation ever undertaken in this or any other country. It will necessitate the employment of over 125,000 people to canvass the dwellings, farms, shops, factories, stores, and other establishments for which data must be obtained. It will cover population, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, manufactures, mines, unemployment, and distribution.

The original purpose of the census when it was initiated 140 years ago was simply to ascertain the population of the several states as a basis for the apportionment of representatives; and the taking of a census decennially for this purpose is required by the constitution of the United States.

The earlier censuses were confined to the one subject of population. Censuses of manufactures were taken in 1810 and 1820; and statistics of agriculture, manufactures, and mining have been collected in every decennial census since and including that of 1840. A census of manufactures is now taken every two years, and a census of agriculture every five years.

Census Of Distribution

Now for the first time we are to have a census of distribution, which may be defined briefly as a gathering of statistics in regard to wholesale and retail trade. It will show the number of stores of different types and other distributing agencies; the number of persons employed by such establishments; the principal expenses including rent, interest, and total wages paid; the stocks of goods on hand December 31, 1929; and the sales during the year 1929 broken down by commodity groups so far as practical. The inclusion of this subject of distribution means a very material addition to the work of taking the next census. It is estimated that it will be necessary to canvass nearly two million establishments.

So far as possible the census will distinguish the main classes of goods dealt in, so as to present separate totals for important classes of commodities, such as, for instance, boots and shoes, clothing and groceries. But this classification can not be carried out completely because many merchants do not keep their books in such a way as to be able to furnish separate figures for various classes of goods. In manufactures there has been a tendency in the direction of greater specialization or concentration upon the manufacture of some line of products. But in the retail trade, with the development of the department store, the mail order house, and the modern so-called drug store carrying all sorts of other articles and drugs only incidentally, it seems as if the tendency were in the other direction.

Covers Several Classes

In order to make a complete canvass of distribution it is necessary to cover several different classes of distributors, such as jobbers, commission dealers, brokers, manufacturers' sales branches, importers, and others, as well as retail and wholesale merchants. In cities, where these various classes are represented, it will be necessary to use a number of different schedules or questionnaires, since a schedule suitable for one class of distributors would not be applicable without change to other classes. There will be a special schedule, for instance, for drug stores, another for grocery stores, a third for other classes of retail stores, a fourth for wholesale dealers in food products, a fifth for other classes of wholesale stores, and so on—in all, some ten or a dozen different schedules. It is expected, however, that in the rural districts and small towns the census of distribution will be covered by one general schedule and as a rule the canvass will be supervised by the regular population and agriculture supervisor. The schedules will be collected by specially well qualified enumerators selected by the supervisor for that purpose. But in cities having 10,000 inhabitants or more, it is planned to send chief special agents from Washington to supervise the work. Each chief special agent will have charge of an average of 10 cities, and will employ with the cooperation of the supervisor, the necessary special enumerators to do the work

Counting Upon Co-operation

In taking this census the government counts upon the co-operation and support of the merchants and other distributors. While they are required by law to answer the questions on the census schedules and are subject to penalties for refusing to answer, the experience of the census bureau justifies the expectation that they will recognize the importance of the census and willingly supply the information requested. The census takers are forbidden—under penalties—to reveal any information or data obtained through the census in regard to any individual person or individual establishment. No one except sworn employes of the bureau will be permitted to examine the reports, and no information can or will be given out to any person outside the bureau, whether in the government service or in private life, which would disclose either exactly or approximately, any of the facts or figures in these reports. The data, as the law requires, will be "used only for the statistical purposes for which it is supplied."

The need for the kind of information which may be obtained through a distribution census is very generally realized, and has been urged upon the attention of the American people by the president of the United States, by the present secretary of commerce, by chambers of commerce, and business organizations, especially those concerned in trade and distribution. It is believed that one of the reasons why we have not made improvements in the efficiency of distribution corresponding to those that have been made in production is that we have hitherto possessed relatively little comprehensive information about the movement of commodities. There is altogether too much waste in the present machinery of distribution. There is too wide a gap between what the producer gets and what the consumer pays. More adequate information on this subject should point the way to economies that will in the end benefit the consumer as well as the distributor.

First Step

Of course these results will not come about immediately. In this as in other things we can not accomplish all we want to all at once. But the census of distribution will be the first step, a beginning in the progress towards improved conditions as regards economy and efficiency in the processes of distribution.

That we should have the information called for by this census is to the interest of the individual business man, and of business and industry generally. It should benefit the local community, as well as the country at large.

The census of distribution will be taken during February and March, and the population and farm enumeration will begin April 2nd, 1930. The enumerators who have made application for this work are being examined as to their qualifications by test schedules which are sent on and checked up by the bureau at Washington, and those who meet the requirements are certified to the supervisor with the grade of the examination for appointment. It is planned to complete the enumeration within thirty days.

WESTERLY IS EXPECTING GOOD SMELT SEASON

Weather permitting, the 1930 smelt season will open on the Pawcatuck river in another week, according to Capt. Prentice Lanphear of Westerly. A few warm days to let the ice down into Little Narragansett bay and the finny delicacies for which Westerly and the Pawcatuck waters have long been noted will begin their annual journeys upstream to spawn.

This year, according to the smelt fishermen, should be a good one. Every other season the smelters turn in barrel upon barrel of the shiny fish. Last season the catch was exceedingly small. In 1928 it broke records for several years back. Nineteen hundred and thirty, therefore the wise ones figure, will see another busy season and possibly a new high record. At least hopes are already high, and experienced eyes are watching the movement of ice in the Pawcatuck. The winter has not been severe and only a few mild days are required to clear the stream.

GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE WITH CAKE AND GIFTS

There was also a favor at each plate in Valentine form. Mrs. Ladd was assisted in serving by her daughter, Miss Isabelle Webster. Mr. Ladd received many gifts. Friends were present from Norwich, Ledyard and Norwich Town, and wished Mr. Ladd many happy returns of the day.

GOAL SET FOR $8,000 FOR BOY SCOUTS TONIGHT

The teams in the Boy Scout financial campaign must turn in a total of $3,000 more in collections and pledges this (Thursday) evening, if they are to realize the goal that has been set for them by the leaders in the effort to provide such financial support for scouting that it can move on to a wonderful future in Norwich for the current year.

The report that will be made this (Thursday) evening at the supper meeting at the Arcanum club will cover the campaigning for two days and if the hoped-for figure is reached every team will have to average $200. It is understood that Division A, headed by James L. Case, is attempting to have a report of $1,500 for the meeting.

Along with a team attendance that is expected to register 100 per cent, the leaders are looking for a response that will also be 100 per cent and will show reports on all cards in the hands of the teams.

The mail campaign brought in $88 more Wednesday, making a total of $172 more by this means, and leaving $828 more to come to equal the $1,000 that is expected from this source

Earl Taggart has prepared a special chicken pie dinner for the meeting this evening and the drum and bugle corps of Troop Five, together with scouts, is to be on hand to serenade and encourage the workers.

Arthur M. Brown is to be the speaker at the supper and afterwards is to go to the Palace and the Broadway theatres to give three-minute talks.

Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce spoke at the two theatres Wednesday evening, giving three-minute talks in which he appealed for community support in backing the Boy Scouts, and he was warmly applauded.

A special meeting of the division heads, attended by H. D. Larrabee, James L. Case, Frank R. Murdy, H. E. Robbins, Charles B. Gilbert, F. Russell Smith and Scout Executive Sellman, was held Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel in considering plans to complete the drive for $8,000 this week, and Scout Executive Fred Purdick of New London was here in conference over some of the campaign plans.

FOUR WOMEN OUTSPOKEN IN CONDEMNATION OF DRY LAW

Consensus of Verbal Assault Was That the 18th Amendment Is Breeding Crime, Corruption and Debauchery—That the Youth of Our Country Is Being Destroyed By Unregulated and Illegitimate Purveyors of Liquor—Former Senator Bruce Declared That He Would Rather Have "A Raven Perched Upon His Bedpost Than Be Compelled to Turn For Consolation to Some of the Hybrid Preacher Politicians Who Are Doing All They Can In Support of the 18th Amendment."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Led by four determined women, opponents of the 18th amendment today related to the house judiciary committee stories of crime, corruption and debauchery which they charged resulted from the prohibition law.

The women set out to refute claims that the women of the country favored the dry statutes. The men witnesses, among them former Senator Bruce of Maryland, backed them up with charges that the greatest crime wave in history had resulted from the 18th amendment.

Approximately 200 men and women in the audience applauded declarations by the witnesses so frequently that Chairman Graham, of the committee, said he would have to ask those who continued to leave.

Representative Mary T. Norton, a New Jersey democrat, vigorously assailed the dry amendment. She charged the voters had no voice in its adoption and advocated a national referendum.

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, a former republican national committeewoman from New York, declared that co-educational and uncontrolled speak-easies had displaced the corner saloon and were worse, because they sold liquor to children. She represented the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Mrs. David Holmes Morton of Brooklyn, N. Y., secretary of the Women's Committee for Repeal of the 18th Amendment, demanded an "unequivocal repeal of prohibition because it undertook to interfere with the personal habits of the individual."

"This enterprise," she said, "is specifically denied the government by the bill of rights without which there would be no constitution."

Charging that national prohibition had failed of its purpose, Miss M. Louise Gross of New York, chairman of the Women's Moderation league, asserted that "young people are drinking liquor obtained in speak-easies, at road houses and from bootleggers who cannot be regulated."

"The youth of our country is being destroyed by these unregulated and illegitimate purveyors of liquor," she said.

Asserting that he believed it an impossibility to repeal the 18th amendment entirely, former Senator Bruce supported the Sabath resolution which would permit local option by the states under federal supervision. He said that there would be some better way under which liquor could be controlled instead of returning the saloons to their former corners. He added, however, if "I were put on my choice between the old saloon and prohibition, I would take the old saloon."

The former senator, one of the most severe critics of prohibition in congress since its enactment, declared that he would rather have "a raven perched upon my bedpost than to be compelled to turn for consolation to some of the hybrid preacher-politicians who are doing all they can in support of the 18th amendment."

The appeals to the committee to report to the house legislation that would at least modify that amendment, if not repeal it, came on the second of a two-day hearing on seven measures before the committee to wipe out or alter the amendment.

The committee later decided to grant the wets next Wednesday and Thursday in which to conclude their argument. The drys then will be given an equal opportunity to defend their position. Adjournment was taken until next Wednesday, when the wets expect to present Pierre S. DuPont, of Wilmington, Delaware, and other prominent proponents of their cause.

The Anti-Saloon league, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals and the Woman's Christian Temperance union, were attacked for their activities.

The committee heard John H. Miner, secretary of the Michigan prison commission, deny the charges made before it yesterday by Walter Liggett, magazine writer, against Governor Green and other Michigan officials. Representative Clancy, republican, Michigan, also took issue with Liggett's charges.

Miner said the people of Michigan had the utmost confidence in the judiciary and in the governor, "and I am satisfied that I voice the sentiment of the respectable citizenry of Michigan when I say that the accusations made against Governor Green and the four judges are too absurd to be given serious thought."

"The people of Michigan know Governor Green as one of the state's finest citizens," he added. "They know him so well and have been associated with him so long that they will not stand for reflection against his official or personal character, much less those based on hearsay and gossip from persons anxious to do him harm."

Attacking conditions under prohibition, Miner said that as a result of the dry law taxpayers of the state of Michigan would have to pay $40,000,000 for new penal institutions.

HOLD-UP MAN KILLED, TWO POLICEMEN FATALLY SHOT

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—(AP)—A holdup man was killed, two private policemen were fatally wounded; and another private policeman and a city patrolman were shot in two gun battles which followed an attempt of five men to rob the main office of the Western Union Telegraph company here tonight.

John Scott, 46, and Jesse Catlin, 30, private policemen, died at receiving hospital about two and a half hours after they were wounded in an exchange with the robbers.

Three of the holdup men entered the office at 9:30 p. m., ordering seven employes and four customers to stand [illegible] and shouting to one employe not to step on the alarm. Another employe, [illegible] Blues, money order clerk, stepped on the button, which sent an alarm without a corresponding sound in the office.

The first private policeman to [illegible] the scene exchanged shots with [illegible] of the robbers, who with his companions ran outside, where the fight continued on the street. There [illegible] police were wounded and [illegible] was killed.

[illegible]IND SAILFISH CAUGHT BY MRS. HOOVER

[illegible]G KEY, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The [illegible] rivalry which has developed between the white house and the supreme court continued today in President Hoover's vacation party with Mrs. Hoover scoring for the white house with a 38-pound sailfish, her first catch of the season.

Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States supreme court, went without for the day, and Mrs. Stone, who was in the boat with Mrs. Hoover, was unable to get so much as a nibble.

The president himself fulfilled fifty per cent of his day's intentions. He went out to get a sailfish and absorb the sunshine and came back after having absorbed sunshine for eight hours. It was the second day during which he got nothing but sunburn.

MAN AGED 121 SEEKS PENSION DURING REST OF HIS LIFE

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Feb. 13—(AP)—Cefrino Mejia, who gave his age as 121, came up on foot to the capital today from the distant village of Lamani to ask congress for a pension during the rest of his life. Mejia still enjoys the full use of his faculties and remembers the campaign for the independence of Honduras clearly.

INCREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended February 11, were announced by the federal reserve board today, as $3,450,000,000, representing an increase of $48,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

JUDGE SAVES NEGRO FROM LIFE SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—To save William Poppore, 39-year-old Negro from a life sentence under the Baumes law, Judge Alonzo McLaughlin today allowed the prisoner to plead guilty to a petit larceny charge in a Brooklyn court. The charge originally lodged against him was burglary.

"It is my firm belief that in cases such as this a judge is expected to use ordinary intelligence, and to exercise a sense of justice in accepting a plea that will not make mandatory a sentence of life imprisonment," the court said.

"Judges will lend little cooperation to the task of solving the problem of crime and the criminal by rubber stamp dispositions based on neither intelligence nor on judgment."

Poppore was charged with entering a Brooklyn apartment house Nov 13 and stealing a pair of trousers. He had previously been convicted of three felonies. Sentencing was deferred.

WITHDRAWAL IN PROTEST TO DR. VALERIA PARKER

DANBURY, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Danbury branch of the League of Women Voters, which recently extended an invitation to the Fairfield branch for the latter to hold its quarterly meeting here, today withdrew the invitation.

The move by the local society was in protest to Dr. Valeria Parker, scheduled by the Fairfield society to speak at the meeting. Dr. Parker, now of New York, but formerly of Hartford, recently resigned from the D. A. R., expressing herself out of sympathy with the organization's views.

SURETY COMPANIES ARE TO FURNISH BAIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—As a remedy for evils which, it is charged, now exist in magistrates' courts, nine of the largest surety companies in New York city today went into the business of furnishing bail for people who get into trouble with the law.

Most of them have never engaged in the business before. At the request of Albe T. Conway, superintendent of insurance, they formed a central bail bond bureau, to be located near the criminal courts building and announced that they will furnish bail strictly at the legal rate.

CLAIMS DRY REPUBLICANS ELECTED WET DEMOCRAT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Orville S. Poland, general counsel of the New York State Anti-Saloon league, told the New York State Women's Committee for Law Enforcement today that it was the dry republicans who elected William J. Granfield, a wet democrat, to congress from Calvin Coolidge's district in Massachusetts.

They bolted their own party, Mr. Poland said, after the republican candidate, Fred B. Griggs of Springfield, switched from dry to wet.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

CAPETOWN, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Earl of Clarendon was appointed governor-general of South Africa to succeed the Earl of Athlone, whose original tenure of five years ended in 1928. The Earl of Athlone is brother of Queen Mary.

LONDON, Feb. 13—(AP)—The archbishops of Canterbury and York, prelates of the Church of England, and Cardinal Francis Bourne, of the Roman Catholic church, all found opportunity to denounce publicly what they described as "persecution of Christians" by the government of Soviet Russia.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 13—(AP)—Rumors that explosives were stored in the office of the local representative of the soviet trade commission caused police to stage a raid on the building. Finding no explosives in the office, the officers compelled employes of the commission to take them to their homes but search of the dwellings also failed to reveal explosives or arms.

HOOVER TO CUT SHORT HIS FISHING TRIP

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 13—(AP)—President Hoover decided tonight to leave for Washington Saturday night instead of remaining here until Monday night, as he had planned.

It was thought here that the change in plans was made because the London naval conference had reached a point where he wished to be in closer touch with developments than is possible here.

TRIAL OF CUSTOMS AGENT FOR SECOND DEGREE MURDER

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 13—(AP)—Hopes of the defense to bring the trial of Emmet J. White, United States customs patrolman, charged with second degree murder, to a speedy end were dashed today when Federal Judge William A. Cant denied a motion to dismiss the action.

George A. Heisey, assistant United States district attorney, presented the motion immediately after attorneys for the state of Minnesota had wound up their case after a single day of testimony in the effort to convict White for the slaying of Gust Henry Wirkkula of Big Falls, Minn., last June.

Examination of the car in which Wirkkula with his wife and two daughters were riding when he was killed was the last item in the state's case. The jury was escorted to a local garage where the car is stored and inspected a large number of bullet holes torn in the car when White discharged a riot gun five times as Wirkkula failed to halt promptly to submit to a search for liquor. No liquor was found.

Belief that the car was near a standstill when the firing began was expressed by Albert E. Sahr, a stocky farmer, who was in his bedroom only 50-feet from the scene of the killing. He said he heard the car approach, noticed that its motor slowed down and then he looked out the window.

The witness said he saw a customs officer, E. V. Servine, who held a cloth signal warning cars to stop, run to the other side of the car as it seemed to pause before him. Then in quick succession, he said, he heard a command to stop and shots. A few minutes later Servine came into his farm home and asked for help, saying his assistant, White, had shot a man.

CHARGES FICTITIOUS PRICES FOR ADVANCE-RUMLEY STOCK

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—Charges that six members of a pool established fictitious prices for the stock of the Advance-Rumely company of Indiana with the result that public lost an estimated $6,000,000 were contained in a suit filed today by Dorothy Brown, who said she was assignee of one of the alleged victims of the pool's operations.

The suit asked appointment of the defendants as trustees of their supposed profits, an accounting of profits and full disclosure of the operations of the pool. The six defendants named are Abner S. Werblin, Edward T. Morton, William E. Carter, William L. Jarvis, Leonard J. Rolnick and Jacob W. Stallin. Jarvis' place of residence was given as Boston, Mass.

The plaintiff charged that the price of the stock was run up to 108 5-8, and sold out as low as 21 5-8 on December 8, 1929. Miss Brown's assignor bought 50 shares for $5,423.75 and sold for $1,060, she said.

She asserted the pool established fictitious prices, made "wash" sales, and bribed both tipster and some reputable financial sheets.

WATERBURY WOMAN WINS AWARD OF $12,000 DAMAGES

WATERBURY, Feb. 13—(AP)—Damages of $12,000 were awarded here today to Miss Sarah Doyle in the superior court against the estate of Judge Edward F. Cole, dean of the Waterbury bar for many years.

Miss Doyle based her claim on a promise by the judge in which she was to receive in his will $1,000 each year she worked for him without a raise in pay. She worked for the judge 26 years. The will, as probated, allowed her $4,000 and this has been added to the $12,000 judgment given today. Included in the witnesses to take the stand for Miss Doyle, was ex-Gov. Charles A. Templeton, who said that Judge Cole often spoke highly of Miss Doyle.

RELATIONS BETWEEN SOVIET RUSSIA AND MEX. TERMINATED

HAVANA, Feb. 13—(AP)—Alexander Makar, former Russian minister to Mexico, arrived here today from Vera Cruz en route to France and said relations between his government and Mexico were definitely terminated.

Makar said he still was indignant over the incident in Vera Cruz before his departure when Mexican secret services were said to have held him and Madam Makar several hours while going through their luggage.

He and his party will resume their journey to France Saturday morning.

The Cuban government extended diplomatic courtesies to the Russian diplomat. It was the first time in four years that a soviet minister had been allowed to come ashore.

WATERBURY NOT TO LOSE BRANCH OF INT'L SILVER CO.

WATERBURY, Feb. 13—(AP)—Fears that Waterbury would lose another of its industrial plants, were set at rest tonight with a statement from W. J. Hayden, manager of the local branch of the International Silver company, that only a few departments are to be closed here and moved to Meriden. The main plant here will continue as usual and since the department are small in comparison with the plant their removal will not materially lessen activities here

Naval Tonnage Figure Submitted By France

Fixes 724,479 [redacted] By Dec. 31, 193[redacted] Basis Upon Which [redacted] elegation Wo[redacted] ate.

LO[redacted] Feb. 13—(AP)—The long ex[redacted] French pronouncement of nav[redacted] ds, was made today, setting a figure of 724,479 tons by December 31st, 1936, as the basis upon which the delegation would debate.

The Japanese delegation also made public an outline of its policies, expressing willingness to agree to a holiday in capital ship construction until 1936, and favoring reduction in battleship tonnage to 25,000 tons and in gun caliber to 14 inches.

The American delegation did not greet the statement of Premier Andre Tardieu with great delight, but was pleased because the French figures by their complete and definite nature at least provided a working basis upon which agreement could be sought.

The Italian delegation also was disappointed in the high total of French fleet requirements as Dino Grandi, having proclaimed parity with France as the watchword of Italian policy, presumably may announce similar figures as the Italian needs. That, if carried out, would necessitate Italy's doubling her present fleet if Franco-Italian parity were to be reached during the life of the proposed London treaty.

The Italians have announced, however, that they will never build up to the high French figure but will insist on the right to do so.

American circles tonight characterized the French plans as tending toward a naval building program rather than toward naval limitation. The French bid for a mutual security pact, which might alter French naval needs, failed to produce favorable American comment other than that the United States could give such a scheme moral support but no active American participation could be expected for such an essentially European political arrangement.

The French statement sends the London conference to the bed rock of tonnage figures, and it is likely that long and tedious negotiations will largely occupy the five power delegations from now on.

DANCE HALL HOSTESS AND GAMBLER SHOT TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—Mamie Carosia, 24, a dance hall hostess who formerly was the wife of Robert Carosia of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Carmine Barelli, 30, a gambler, were shot dead early today as they fled in terror along a Bronx street, trying to escape from their unknown assassins, who pursued them in an automobile.

Mrs. Carosia and Barelli, who according to the police, had been living for more than a year in a Bronx apartment, had just come out of a garage, where Barelli stored his car, when an automobile drew up to the curb.

Four men stepped out, and as they did so Barelli and Mrs. Carosia separated and ran in opposite directions. Screaming in terror, the woman tripped and fell, according to a garage man who saw the shooting. As she lay on the pavement, struggling to get up, one of the four men cooly fired four shots into her body.

Barelli was cornered in the ramp leading into a nearby garage. With five bullets in his body, he died before an ambulance arrived.

A Negro washer in the garage ran out just as the slayers were firing at Mrs. Carosia. As they escaped in their car, he placed Mrs. Carosia in a taxicab and started for a hospital, but she died before they arrived there.

Barelli had been five times convicted of felonies, police said.

Police experienced difficulty in searching for a motive for the slayings. Employes at the dance hall where Mrs. Carosia worked and members of Barelli's family said that, so far as they knew, neither had any bitter enemies.

STEAMSHIP REPUBLIC FOG-BOUND IN DELAWARE RIVER

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13—(AP)—The United States Lines steamship Republic, with more than 350 passengers returning from a West Indian cruise, is fog-bound in the Delaware river, 23 miles below this city. The Republic probably would have been in port tonight but for a slight mishap in coming up the river.

While passing the submerged wreck of the United States Hopper dredge Manhattan, the big liner fouled a cable attached to one of the gas buoys marking the scene of the wreck. The cable wrapped itself around one of the ship's propellers, causing Captain A. M. Moore, in command of the liner, to anchor. A thick fog prevailed at the time.

A nearby lighthouse tender came to the assistance of the Republic and in a few hours the ship was freed of the cable, it was stated at the offices of the liner's agents in this city. As the fog was still thick, the captain decided to remain at anchor until it lifted. The vessel suffered no injury, it was stated.

TO CHANGE PRISON INTO SCHOOL OF REGENERATION

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13—(AP)—Schools, athletic fields, cooperative labor organizations and even a moving picture show are to appear on "Devil's Island," the Mexican prison colony in the Pacific named after the famous French penal camp off Guiana.

General Francisco Mugica, governor of the island, has been called to Mexico City to make arrangements for the new form of management, which is intended to change the colony from a place of punishment to one of a "school of regeneration."

Years ago prisoners confined to the island were subject to the whip and other forms of torture and the life led by the exiles was said to have been so wretched that a sentence to the island was considered the worst form of punishment possible.

CHANGE IN FACULTY OF YALE GRADUATE SCHOOL

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 13—(AP)—Dean Wilbur L. Cross, of Yale Graduate school, will retire as dean and Sterling professor in English, in June, it was announced today by President James Rowland Angell.

He will be succeeded by Prof. Edgar S. Furniss, associate dean, the appointment being effective July 1.

Cash Raised To Pay Chicago Employes

By Borrowing Almost $2,000,000 From the Vehicle Tax and Corporate Funds of the City.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP)—By borrowing almost $2,000,000 from two city funds Chicago city officials late today found sufficient cash to pay city employes their salary checks, which have been past due since January 15.

City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson today announced the money would be borrowed from the vehicle tax and corporate funds of the city. The payroll for the half month totals $1,850,000.

The city employes who will receive these checks—the first this year—number about 12,000 and include firemen and policemen. There remain, however, approximately 30,000 teachers and other employes of the board of education and the county who have received no salaries since shortly after Christmas.

The money will be enough to pay only the semi-monthly salaries due January 15. February 1 salaries are also overdue and with no more money in sight it is probable that February 15 will find the city again one month in arrears.

ARGUMENTS IN OKLAHOMA LIQUOR CONSPIRACY TRIAL

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Argument to the jury in the Pottawatomie county liquor conspiracy trial in federal court here was started today after further depletion of the number of defendants, originally 102 by Judge Edgar S. Vaught's sustention of motions for instructed verdicts in the cases of Jackson Windrow and Gus Herne, Jr., Negroes, and R. L. Sherill, former constable at Maud.

Among the twelve remaining defendants are Randall Pitman, county attorney and Frank Fox, former sheriff of the county.

A half dozen women from the Shawnee chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance union, who at their request had been seated "where the jury can see us," today were ordered to take seats behind the railing after they had been seated in the enclosure set aside for lawyers and defendants. The move was made after defense attorneys protested to the court when they learned the identity of the visitors.

Concentrating his attack on Pitman, Herbert K. Hyde, 31-year old assistant United States district attorney, addressed the jury more than three hours this afternoon.

The entire burden of government argument will fall upon Hyde and Roy St. Lewis, district attorney, while defense speeches will be divided among the attorneys for the twelve defendants.

REBELLION RENEWED IN HONAN PROVINCE, CHINA

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Widespread depredations by bandit armies and renewed rebellion in Honan province today harrassed the nationalist government of China. American shipping, fired upon by bandits, was given United States warship convoy.

Apparently the nationalist government has moved its force against the bandits only in Kwangtung province, of which Canton is the capital. Extensive depredations in that province caused the government to prepare an expedition of troops and five gunboats.

In Honan, Kiangsi Hupeh, Szechwan, Anhwei and Kiangsu provinces bandit armies, largely composed of former soldiers, are pillaging towns, hampering shipping and main travel in interior China unsafe. Bands of armed women bandits are perpetrating highway robberies south of Peiping, the former capital.

SENATE CONFIRMS HUGHES AS CHIEF JUSTICE, 52 TO 26

Vote Followed Four Days of Debate, During Which Severe Attacks Were Made On the Views of Mr. Hughes On Economic Questions — 38 Republicans and 14 Democrats Voted For Hughes—11 Republicans and 15 Democrats Opposed Him — Mr. Hughes Is Expected to Assume the Chief Justiceship Immediately.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.— (AP) — Charles Evans Hughes was elevated to chief justice of the United States tonight with the consent of the senate, after four days of intense debate over his attitude on economic issues.

His nomination by President Hoover to succeed William Howard Taft was confirmed by a vote of 52 to 26. Mr. Taft resigned last week as his health gave way. Mr. Hughes is expected to assume the chief justiceship immediately.

A stubborn uphill fight in the senate against the former supreme court justice and presidential candidate, led by Senators Norris, of Nebraska and Borah, of Idaho picked up unexpected support but fell short after another full day of debate.

The roll call showed the democrats almost evenly divided. Fourteen democrats and 38 republicans voted for Hughes while 11 republicans and 15 democrats opposed him.

The roll call follows:

For confirmation: Republicans—Allen, Baird, Bingham, Capper, Dale, Deneen, Fess, Gillett, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Gould, Greene, Grandy, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Hebert, Jones, Kean, Keyes, McCulloch, McNary, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Pine, Schall, Shortridge, Smoot, Steiwer, Sullivan, Thomas of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, Waterman and Watson—38.

Democrats — Ashurst, Barkley, Broussard, Copeland, Fletcher, Harrison, Kendrick, Ransdell, Steck, Stephens, Swanson, Trammell, Wagner and Walsh, of Massachusetts — 14. Total, 52.

Against confirmation:—Republicans—Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Couzens, Frazier, Norbeck, Johnson, LaFollette, McMaster, Norris and Nye—11.

Democrats—Black, Blease, Bratton, Connally, Dill, George, Glass, Harris, Hawes, McKellar, Overman, Sheppard, Simmons, Walsh of Montana, and Wheeler—15. Total, 26.

Of those not voting it was announced the following were paired for Hughes.

Republicans—Moses, Robinson, Indiana; Reed, Pennsylvania, Metcalf, and Robison, Kentucky.

Democrats — Robinson, Arkansas, and Brock.

Those paired against Hughes were: Republican—Howell.

Democrats—King, Thomas, Oklahoma; Smith and Tydings.

Farmer-labor—Shipstead.

The following were absent and unpaired:

Cutting, republican; and Caraway, Hayden, Heflin and Pittman, democrats.

Foes of Hughes carried the debate almost entirely and launched a relentless drive today while it appeared they were gaining strength, but a motion by Norris to recess for another day was defeated, 45 to 35. The judiciary committee chairman then moved to return the nomination to his committee for reconsideration and this was rejected 49 to 31.

Launched unexpectedly on Monday by Senator Norris, the opposition to Hughes gained considerable momentum as one after another of the senate, mostly on the democratic side, made known a decision to vote against the celebrated republican jurist. Four days of hectic work and sharp debate followed. Members of the senate who were classed as "doubtful" were centers of frequent conferences after the debate warmed. The contest attracted full galleries and tonight at 6:35, when the final vote came, the gallery seats were still filled.

The opposition to Hughes was based principally on the ground that his attitude on economic issues before the courts today were prejudiced in favor of "big business" and because he had resigned from the supreme court to run for the presidency in 1916.

In the closing hours, Senator Walsh, of Montana, the acting democratic leader, announced to the senate that he had changed his mind and would vote against Hughes. He had voted for a report of the nomination from the judiciary committee but he said after "the most mature reflection" he had come to the conclusion that he was wrong. He then unleashed one of the most severe attacks on the nominee.

Meanwhile Mr. Hughes' distinguished predecessor was on a sick-bed in his Wyoming avenue home, unable to receive visitors. Word of the senate action was made ready for him by friends.

Confident of commanding the votes necessary for confirmation, friends of Mr. Hughes left the debate entirely to the opposition today and they hammered away severely.

Senators Lafollette, Wisconsin; George, Georgia; Hawes, Missouri, and Nye, North Dakota, were those who carried the attack today.

It was the most determined fight waged against a nominee for the supreme court since the senate confirmed Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis. The nomination of Brandeis to the supreme court by President Wilson in 1916, was before the senate for six months.

The nomination of Harlan F. Stone to the supreme court by President Coolidge five years ago also was contested but there were only a few votes against him on the roll call.

HUGHES TO QUALIFY AT NEXT SESSION OF COURT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, whose appointment as chief justice of the United States was confirmed tonight by the senate, issued a formal statement in which he said:

"My appreciation of the honor of the appointment is outweighed by a deep sense of responsibility. The ideals and principles relating to public service with which I entered public life 26 years ago and which I have tried to exemplify in public office I hold unaltered. In facing this new and most important task I am heartened by the generous expressions I have received from all parts of our land. I wish to express my grateful acknowledgments.

"I expect to qualify and take my seat at the opening of the next session of the court."

50 SCHOOL CHILDREN INJURED BY EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP)—An explosion, ascribed by police to accumulated gas from a leaky connection, destroyed two one-story brick houses in Brooklyn today, and ripped out all the windows on one side of a nearby public school building, injuring 50 children. Twelve of the children were taken to hospitals and two were said to be in a serious condition.

The blast occurred in an unoccupied brick dwelling house directly across the street from a new wing of public school, number 33. Police said they found a still in the ruins of the house with a rubber hose connecting it to a gas main, which had been tapped.

Calvin Brooks and his step-son, Levi Graham, 18, Negroes, who were asleep in the other dwelling house, were carried out of the building by the force of the blast and were found in the back yard. Both were seriously injured.

Reports that a bomb had exploded in the school building brought hundreds of frantic parents to the scene, anxiously calling the names of their children.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST 18 CHICAGO GUNMEN

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Indictments were returned against 18 gunmen and true bills were reported voted naming five others today, as the police drive against crime went forward with only one bombing and one important robbery blotting the record for the day.

Most of the 425 hoodlums seized in the round-up last night, including Myles O'Donnell, reputed West Side gang chief, were released today. O'Donnell, however, was placed under $1,400 bond on a charge of disorderly conduct. Three of his four henchmen arrested with him were among those said to be named in true bills for carrying guns. They remained in jail. O'Donnell obtained his freedom because of a weak heart. He fainted when a photographer's flashlight boomed during the police show-up last night.

Bonds of $10,000 each were set for the 18 less well known gunmen named in the indictments and State's Attorney John A. Swanson said early trials would be sought.

EAST HAMPTON, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Justice of the Peace Henry W. Hopkins continued until Monday the case of Earl C. Stevens, former treasurer of the East Hampton Bank and Trust company, arrested today on a charge of embezzlement of bank funds.

Justice Hopkins reduced the amount of the bond from $10,000 to $6,000 saying that "the amount of the bond should not exceed the alleged embezzlement."

The bond was furnished.

If probable cause is found, Stevens will be bound over to the superior court.

Stevens had been previously arrested and later released when a justice court found no probable cause on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

DUFFY BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 13 — Lloyd Duffy, originally of Vermont, was remanded to the county jail at Brooklyn today to await trial at the May term of the superior court, when he failed to furnish bonds of $1,000 fixed in his case by Police Court Judge Frank H. Foss, who found probable cause to charges of issuing fraudulent checks. Duffy was arraigned for the issuance of two checks in October last and he pleaded not guilty. Irving M. Ford positively identified Duffy as the man who last October came into Ford's store and purchased a quantity of groceries, tendering a check for $10.50 in payment. The check was made out by one Frank A. Andrews and Duffy represented that he was Ben Roberts in whose favor the check was drafted. Ford gave Duffy the change, totalling $9.01 in cash. Mrs. Frances A. Larkin corroborated Mr. Ford's testimony.

John W. Spencer said that he was unable to identify Duffy as the man who presented him with a fraudulent check for $10.25 last October. This check was received to cover the cost of groceries purchased. It was made out in favor of Harry Foster and signed by John Myers.

Duffy denied the allegations in the complaint, stating that he could furnish an alibi as to his whereabouts at the time when the fraudulent checks were cashed in this city, claiming that on October 10, the day he was supposed to have presented the checks to Ford and Spencer, he was working on a farm in Lebanon. He said that he first came to Willimantic with a carnival. He has just finished serving 120 days at the New London county jail, being released Wednesday when he was turned over into the custody of County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler.

The presentation of a beautiful silver flower basket, 30 inches high, was made to Dr. Frank E. Guild, chairman of the Windham town school committee at the February meeting of the board held at the home of the chairman Wednesday night. During the course of an excellent turkey dinner served by Mrs. Guild and assistants, Secretary Egbert A. Case of the board arose to express the appreciation of the members for the annual invitation of Chairman Guild to be the latter's guests at dinner. He went on to say in part: "At this time the board members want to have you know that we realize the wonderful amount of good service you have rendered the town of Windham and wish to bestow upon you a token of our appreciation." The presentation was then made. The basket bears the inscription: "Presented to Dr. F. E. Guild by the Windham town school committee, 1930." Chairman Guild has been a member of the board for 40 years and has been its chairman for 22 years.

The resignation of Dr. W. P. S. Keating as a member of the school committee and as town school physician, to take effect February 28, has been accepted by the committee with regret. Dr. Keating who leaves soon to take over the position of surgeon at Fitch's Soldiers' home in Noroton, has been a member of the committee for over 20 years and has been school physician for more than 12 years. The committee filled the vacancy caused through the resignation by appointing John Reilly, a former member, to the office. On the matter of filling the position of school physician the applications of Dr. Nathan Spector and Dr. Fred M. Smith were placed on file to await further action. The board is considering a suggestion not to make an appointment during the balance of the present school year.

TURPENTINE INCREASE DEVELOPED BY WOMAN

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—By cutting chips out of pine trees considerably shorter than at present the turpentine and rosin stores of the United States can be increased, says a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The experiments are reported by Eloise Gerry of the forest products laboratory here in the United States department of agriculture. Turpentine and rosin come from the sap of pines, obtained by small incisions made by cutting out of chips. Ordinary practice, says the report, is to cut chips three quarters of an inch long. Government leases limit the chips to one half inch.

The Madison experiments indicate that still smaller chips, but one quarter of an inch long give better results, besides helping to preserve the trees.

CRAFTY BUG, BATTY FLY PUT FICTION IN SHADE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A bug having peculiarly non-union habits is described among many other unusual insect traits in a new book by Austin H. Clark of the United States National museum.

This bug lives in animal-eating plants, but his presence is not for protection of other bugs. Instead he tries to steal his trapped fellow-bugs and eat them before the plant can do so.

There also is the maddening fly which buzzes around the living room chandelier. His course, which mostly escapes the eye, seems to be in angles, and Dr. Clark says it is angular. He is not an ordinary house fly gone batty, Dr. Clark explains, but a different species of fly, giving self-expression to his own queer nature.

Dr. Clark recently attracted international attention with his studies which indicate that new species of animals and plants may come into existence relatively suddenly, instead of necessarily requiring countless ages to evolve.

ARMY OF UNKNOWNS HELPS WEATHER MAN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. —(AP)— There are about 5,000 cooperative observers in the United States weather bureau, says a report by Dr. Clarence J. Root of the Springfield weather bureau to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Their records," he says, "are used by engineers, meteorologists, agriculturalists, manufacturers, business men and in the settling of legal disputes. Some of the observers have served for 40 years, others 10, 20 and 30 years, keeping records day by day, month after month, year after year, thus exhibiting a marked loyalty and faithfulness to the service."

NOTICE THIS NOTECE, SAYS NEW SPELLER

CHICAGO—(AP)—Which of the following spellings is correct—noticible, noticable, noticeable or noticeible?

Answering this and similar questions is a "more economical method" than the old-fashioned spelling test, says a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. Frederick S. Breed of the University of Chicago.

Another new-fashion test, he says is to ask the pupil to "write in the blank space the correct spelling of the word in parentheses in the following sentence."

This latter test, he adds, is not quite as good as the first one, but he says both are of "surprisingly high validity."

STOVES CITED AS CAUSE OF SMALLER MEAT CHOPS

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—The more gas and electricity the American public uses, the smaller will be veal, lamb, and pork chops, says Joseph F. Cox, dean of agriculture at Michigan State college.

Dean Cox sees in trends toward light-weight livestock carcasses the influence of electric and gas stoves. The housewife, he says, wants to finish her cooking job in short time.

The Michigan swine carcass that took first place at the Chicago International Show last year weighed 203 pounds compared with a weight 10 years ago of 260 pounds for prize animals and 275 pounds 20 years ago.

'HONEST FACE' TEST REPLACED BY FLIES

CHICAGO—(AP)—The honest face no longer is the merchant's sole test of a customer's integrity.

Its place has been taken, says Justin Edgerton, president of the National Retail Credit association by a vast card index filing system with 60,000,000 "master cards."

Filed in more than 1,000 credit bureaus that serve 200,000 merchants, these reveal what persons try to move ahead of their debits. Anyone who buys even the smallest item from his grocer, goes into the index.

DANIELSON

DR. GREGOIRE ARRESTED FOR PRACTICING WITHOUT LICENSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Feb. 13.—Dr. George H. Gregoire, of Moosup, again is in the toils of the law, facing a charge that he has been practicing dentistry in the community where he has resided for years without having a license to do so. For more than a decade Dr. Gregoire has, from time to time, found himself in situations similar to the present one.

Last night he was taken into custody by State Officer Elton Nolan, following the officer's investigation of Dr. Gregoire's activities. It will be charged against him in court that he actually has been practicing dentistry without authority to do so. The case is set down to be heard in the town court of Plainfield on Saturday, Feb. 22. Meanwhile Dr. Gregoire is at liberty under bonds of $1,000, furnished by Fred Sharkey of Moosup.

On evidence deemed sufficient to warrant such action, State Officer Nolan visited Dr. Gregoire's home last night and seized a quantity of modern equipment for dental practice and removed it to the state police barracks here.

It was recalled today that Dr. Gregoire, who is said never to have held a license to practice dentistry in this state, was arrested six years ago by State Officer Merrill Keith, now chief of police at Northbridge, Mass. At that time the court disposed of the case by finding Dr. Gregoire $100, and sentencing him to serve 30 days in jail, execution of the sentence being suspended.

The present case against him has been carefully built up, following complaints said to have been presented in official circles that he allegedly has been working as a dentist again.

Only three days have elapsed since a series of liquor raids here resulted in several local people being sent to jail in default of heavy bail, yet applications for aid from the town already have come in from the families of two of those imprisoned. In one family there is the mother and five children, the eldest of the little ones being 8, the youngest 10 months old. This family was absolutely destitute this morning after a scanty breakfast had been served and the necessity of relief immediate. In the other family three persons were on the verge of hunger today and the town was being pleaded with to come to their relief. Present indications are that the town will have these nine additional persons to care for for some time to come, and that means not only supplying them with food, but also with fuel and money for their rents. The prospects are that the bill before the situation is cleared up will be far from a small one, and one in which the cost will be distributed among the taxpayers of the town, for it is upon them that the charges eventually fall.

Another nasty case came out of East Killingly to be disposed of in the town court this morning, the second of the same nature to be presented in the town court this week. Mrs. Alice LaPointe and Raymond Hopkins were presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward to answer to a statutory charge. The woman pleaded guilty, and the court ordered her committed to the state farm for women at Niantic, where she was later taken. When her case was disposed of she remarked in serious vein that she was glad, anyway, that she had not been convicted of a crime. Hopkins, represented by Attorney L. A. Woisard, pleaded not guilty. His case was continued until next week.

getting evidence on which the liquor raids of Monday night were based were not averse to using young women to aid them in their operations. One hears of a taxi party that originated here in which the under-cover men and their female companions drove out to have dinner and buy some drinks, in another town, and how the operators were so kindly and generous as to invite the chauffeur to dine with them and be a member of their merry party. Having accepted their hospitality and being a witness of what went on, he now rates a witness for state, though he never expected to find himself in that role. He appears to have been the innocent victim of circumstances.

Funeral services for James W. Wignall, long a resident of Wauregan, were held at his home in that place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. Rees Jones of St. Alban's church, Danielson, and Rev. William Williams of Wauregan, officiating. Burial was in Westfield cemetery here, the same clergyman conducting the committal service. The bearers were Myron Carpenter, Fred Reynolds, Joseph Benoit, Delor LaBelle, Henry Pratt and George Gullette. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

George Ford, alias George Beecher, who flashed a gun on state officers when they conducted a liquor raid at the Howard Bullard place in Putnam Tuesday night while Ford was frequenting there, was taken to the Day Kimball hospital today, that his eyes might be treated. Ford has been held at the state police barracks on North Main street since he was placed under arrest for defying and threatening the officers. The trouble with his eyes originates from his having been tear-gassed during the process of subduing him.

Sight returned at least partly to one eye today, but the other one has not improved so rapidly.

Ford has been in the employ of Ralph Tracy, residents northwest of Attawaugan on a farm. Ford, or Beecher, is understood to come from a good family. His only known court record has to do with his having been prosecuted for a violation of the game laws.

Appointees to the Federal council are: S. H. Perry, Harold Bigelow, Mrs. Harold Holehouse and Ernest Dyson. Trier of appeals is Luther Pilling.

CONFINED TO HOSPITAL RECOVERING FROM TEAR GAS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 13.—George Ford, alias George Beecher, who claims his residence in Springfield, Mass., is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital in this city today, suffering from the effects of tear gas received Tuesday evening when he attempted to draw a revolver on a state officer during a raid at the residence of Howard Bullard on Killingly avenue. Beecher's condition was reported as serious today. The gas fumes rendered the would-be gunman helpless and temporarily impaired his sight. His appearance in city court in this city was slated for this morning when it was anticipated that his condition would be improved. He is facing charges of assault, breach of peace and carrying concealed weapons.

Beecher is known to the police of this city and is generally known in police circles throughout the country. Reputed to be a desperate character when under the influence of a stimulant, state police who raided the Bullard homestead exercised every precautionary measure when they were aware of Beecher's being armed. As told in this column and in the Danielson news this morning, the addict resisted arrest. Rather than injure the prisoner with gun-fire, the officers subdued Beecher with the more humane weapon of the law—the tear gas shell. Although he is suffering from the effects of the gas attack, his recovery is expected within a few days.

Manager James F. Mahoney of the Bradley theatre screened a reel of film most appropriate for the occasion of the day, Wednesday, observed as Lincoln's birthday. The short subject was a talking appearance of an actor in the role of Abraham Lincoln, who delivered in true Lincoln eloquence, the immortal literary masterpiece—The Gettysburg Address. One aged veteran of the Civil war who recalls one of President Lincoln's public appearances in Washington, said today after seeing the screen version, that the enactment was exact in every detail, even to the quaint western accent in the speaker's voice.

One of the first box alarms in many weeks called firemen from their beds at 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning for a fire in a house on the corner of Green and Church streets. The blaze was discovered by Officer Benoni Durand whose attention was directed to columns of smoke pouring from the house. Prompt action of the firemen prevented what might have been a serious catastrophe, since it was near zero weather and the flames had obtained a good start. Damage was estimated at about $100. After an investigation, firemen are of the opinion that the blaze was started by a night prowler who dropped a cigarette in shavings strewn on the floor of the unoccupied house. A second alarm Wednesday was for a chimney fire at the residence of B. N. Andrews on Farrows street.

Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of Willimantic was in this city today on business.

Had the thermometers indicated zero weather today the city might have been buried beneath a deep blanket of snow tonight, but the continuance of a warm wave turned a heavy storm into rain which fell throughout the day with much intensity. The rain was followed by a severe fog tonight, rendering driving conditions extremely hazardous.

The matter of appointing a successor to the late Mrs. Addie H. Parks, as matron and superintendent of the Windham County home in Sawyer district is still before the board of county commissioners, Arthur C. Keith, member of the board, said today. Mr. Keith asserted that the selecting of a capable successor to Mrs. Parks is by no means an easy task. The applications of many seeking the appointment are being carefully investigated before any action is taken. Mr. Keith was of the opinion that approximately another month will be required before the commission will complete its investigations and meet for an appointment.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES

Could the coalition of democrats and republican insurgents have been held together, Charles Evans Hughes would have been kept out of the chief justiceship of the United States. All the opposition they could muster against him after four days of effort was 26 votes. Twice as many members of the senate, including 14 democrats, refused to listen to the demands for rejection and insisted that a man of such outstanding qualifications should be confirmed.

Mr. Hughes has risen to such heights in the minds of the people of this country that the attacks made by his opponents in the senate carry little weight. It is a case of being judged by the opponents one makes. Every conceivable reason was brought forth that could be dug up and yet there was nothing of a substantial character that was presented as a reason for refusing approval. It was another one of those cases of playing politics, directing an attack against the administration and serving notice that everything must conform to the demands of the group holding the balance of power. While this has prevailed in too many instances there was too much at stake for certain of the serious-minded democrats to follow the bolt. It has been a demonstration which is believed does not bear the approval of the country.

Mr. Hughes is probably one of the best qualified men for the office. The country is, in fact, fortunate in being able to obtain his services. Such criticism as that advanced concerning his economic views and the fact that big corporations have employed him are puny. Those lawyers in the senate who were party to any such claim of bias because of his practice would hotly resent any such criticism of themselves.

Throughout his career, Mr. Hughes has demonstrated his ability to uphold the duties of whatever office he occupies. He deserved to have been named without opposition, but to the country it will be apparent that he has not been injured by the opposition thats has permitted its head to come to the surface and it is certain that regardless of it he will render an invaluable service as the head of the highest court in the land. The approval of Mr. Hughes was in keeping with the sentiment of fair-minded citizens.

MARAUDING YOUNGSTERS

It isn't what can be called a happy situation when the proposal is made by the board of education of Bridgeport that school janitors engaged in night duty be armed with revolvers as a protection for themselves and school property against boys.

It isn't pleasant to contemplate because it indicates that the boys of that city are engaged in a practice which ought not to exist in the first place but which ought to be stopped by other methods. On the other hand, marauding youngsters are not as a rule engaged in crime that calls for the use of deadly weapons.

Is Bridgeport suffering, like other places, from too many of those boys who are taking advantage of the law which makes it impossible to prosecute them for their various offenses and creates in their minds the belief that they are immune from arrest? Has it been developing too many of those youngsters who are ready to defy any and all authority, to tell the police, "I ain't afraid of you; you can't arrest me," and who have become emboldened to really serious acts and a bad career because of the removal of all fear of authority?

One would gather that the Bridgeport board of education considered the situation desperate when it urges arming its janitors. The intention may not be to have them shoot to kill, or even to maim, but just simply to be in a position to let the marauders know that the janitors are not helpless and unable to protect themselves.

Police and special constables are permitted to carry firearms. Individuals are able to get permits to carry firearms if they can show justification for it. Possibly it would be easy to make out a case for the janitors who work at night, but the greater need would seem to be to insist upon better police protection and to urge different treatment for those youngsters who are caught while engaged in forcing their way into schools or other property. The indiscriminate use of firearms in order to frighten may have worse consequences than anticipated, and yet it is a deplorable situation when the Bridgeport board of education thinks it impossible to meet the situation otherwise.

FOURTH OFFENDER LAWS

The example that was set by New York in enacting a fourth offender law has received much attention in other states. The idea has not only been advocated but adopted elsewhere. The aim was to deal with those confirmed criminals and put them where they would not be a constant menace to the public. It had been found that there was no chance for reformation. They are in a class that has no thought for that. They intend to live by crime and to make the most of every opportunity that is permitted them, and in doing its best to put them away where such a menace will be removed from the public a real service is rendered.

It seems not improbable, however, that some such modification of the law will have to be made in New York as was done in Michigan. In the latter state certain persons were sentenced for life because their fourth offense consisted of selling liquor. It was not the intention of Michigan law makers to make liquor selling punishable by life imprisonment. Because violations of the liquor law are rated as a felony in that state no other course was open. The law has, however, been changed and no more life sentences for violating the dry law will result.

In New York a woman has just been sentenced for life because of shoplifting. There seems to be no question but what she is a confirmed shoplifter. She has been convicted four times. No one knows how many times she escaped being caught. But New York's law was not intended to deal with such crime. Rather was it the crime of violence that was in mind and yet there is no chance for the judge to discriminate. This is because of the desire to do away with any favoritism.

From the protests which have arisen from what is regarded as an unwarranted sentence, it seems not improbable that New York will see the need of modifying its law by at least better defining the cases where fourth offenses are to be considered as requiring a life sentence. Experience has brought to light a situation which it is believed was not contemplated. Life sentences for petty thefts do not appear consistent. Possibly stiff sentences in such instances, but of much less severity, may yet be the outcome.

NO RIDERS

The demand for a law to prevent people from asking for an auto ride, that practice of boys and girls, men and women, standing beside the road and indicating that they want to be carried along in the direction in which the machine is going, is again before the Massachusetts legislature.

The desire is for a law that is intended to put an end to a nuisance and a practice that has on many occasions proven decidedly serious for the soft-hearted driver. There are all sorts of possibilities that may result from taking in strangers, so much so that many drivers have neither eyes nor ears for such appeals. They simply refuse to pay any attention to the solicitations and in the long run they are probably saving themselves much trouble.

Some question arises as to whether there is need for legislation in dealing with such a situation. It is clearly evident that it rests with the auto driver to encourage it or to put an end to it. If he refuses to listen to such entreaties and it becomes recognized that there is no chance of getting a free ride there will be no time wasted in trying to get from one city to another in such a manner. Auto drivers can do just as effective work as a law, if they will. The trouble is that all are not constituted alike. Some are always anxious to share their car with others, until they have an experience which reveals their poor judgment. Some yield occasionally, while others understand that only through turning down all can they be assured of relief from unjust claims, framed charges and a lot of annoyance. Experience has taught many to avoid trouble by denying all riders. Therein lies the simplest of all solutions.

FARM ORGANIZATIONS PROTEST

When it is pointed out by farm organizations that the attitude that is being displayed in the senate to the tariff is having a detrimental effect upon agriculture it is in keeping with the protests that were made some weeks ago by similar western spokesmen. It was perfectly evident to them that tariff-making which gave consideration only to the farmers was not what was desired or needed. They recognized that there was need for dealing with the inequalities which exist in the case of other industries, but further than that they understand that the tactics that are being employed by those who are delaying and slashing the tariff are having detrimental effects upon agriculture.

There are many complications involved in tariff revision. Time causes changed conditions in all lines of industry. There is a desire to see agriculture properly taken care of, but that doesn't mean that a lot of unreasonable and inadvisable demands should be carried out in any particular direction without due regard for the effects that are going to be produced.

Farm organizations which take the stand that they are not the only ones who should benefit by tariff revision are voicing a sound and sensible attitude. They believe that tariff action should be applied wherever it is needed. They do not support those fanatics who insist upon everything for their business and nothing for the other fellow, because they are conscious of the fact that each has a dependence upon the other.

Thus far, rational appeals have had little effect upon the senate. There the aim appears to be to bring about a delay that will stall tariff action and interrupt everything else. If the farm organizations are irked over it there can be no surprise. It is a feeling that has long since gripped the country.

A MODEL HUSBAND

"Where's Valorie?" asked Babs, coming into the family living room with her husband and looking about for her youngest sister. "She promised Robert and me to stay home with the baby tonight."

"She's out dancing as usual," replied Eloise from the couch, where she sat with her husband. "Norris and I came over to have her drive us to Hillsdale, only to find she'd completely forgotten her promise."

"Don't tell me she agreed both to take care of your baby, Babs, and to drive you to Hillsdale, Eloise," called her sister, Ernestine from the porch, where she was swing with her fiance. "She arranged a double date with Bill and me to go out to the beach."

"You all know," put in their mother, "the utter folly of depending upon Valorie ever to keep her promise with you married and engaged girls. She's at the frivolous age. With all her invitations she's kept busy every minute of the day."

"Who," asked Eloise, "is the child dating with tonight—her millionaire friend Brooks, or Irving, who looks like a movie hero, or Eliot, the football star, or that daring young aviator?"

"It seems to be a dark secret of some sort," said her mother, "but lately Valorie has been going with a young man she utterly refuses to bring to the house. I haven't met him."

"Ugh," said Babs in a piqued voice, "must be a diplomat's son or some other notable she's ashamed to have meet her ordinary family. We aren't in the same class with her ideas." By this time the two husbands had gone for a stroll and had taken Ernestine's young man with them, and the three sisters, left alone with their mother, began a round of reminiscence.

"Do you remember," said Eloise, "the snippy things Valorie used to say about Norris before we were married? She had me wondering whether, after all, I ought to marry a man with so few qualifications. Why, Norris hadn't the faintest idea of the latest dance steps, let alone possessing evening attire; he escorted me places on street cars; he was working his way through a night school course in law, and he answered to the outlandish name of Pepper."

"That's nothing compared to the slams she threw at Robert," remarked Babs. "Why, he hadn't been to Europe, which in her opinion, was a terrible affliction, he wasn't strong on looks, he actually expected his wife to do her own housework, and he possessed the outlandish name of Pennypacker."

"When Bill and I became engaged," put in Ernestine in an aggrieved voice, "Valorie pointed out to me what a huge mistake I was making and outlined the qualifications any man must have who expected to lead her into matrimony. 'Why,' she said, 'a girl is utterly foolish these days who gives up a comfortable home to marry some poor man for whom she'll have to work and slave. There are four qualifications any prospective husband of mine absolutely must have. He must be good-looking, he must have a substantial income, he must supply me with a nice home, a car, a maid and travel, and he must have a name I shall be proud to exchange mine for!'"

Eloise's remarks came to an abrupt end as a flushed and breathless Valorie flung open the door leading by the arm one of the funniest looking young men her sisters had ever beheld. His hair was red and tousled, his suit was unpressed and his freckled face and his hands were smeared with axle grease.

"Mums!" cried Valorie excitedly, "Alex and I are engaged!"

"And our car broke down," offered the peculiar looking gentleman—a needless explanation.

"Engaged!" exploded her sisters, laughing in spite of themselves. Then Babs had a devastating idea.

"What kind of a car was it that broke down?" she asked wickedly.

"It was a—a 1912 flivver," answered Alex nervously.

"Ah," said Eloise gloatingly, "we thought so. What business are you in, young man?"

"I'm a—a baker's helper," said Alex weakly.

"Dou you expect," put in Ernestine severely, "to supply our sister with a chauffeur, a maid, and a yearly trip to Europe?"

"I—I—I—," spluttered Alex distractedly, "why, of course not!"

"What," asked Babs, flinging their last cruel blow, "is your name?"

"It's really no use telling you," said Alex in a give-up voice, "you couldn't pronounce it anyway."

"O. K." cried three joyous sisters, surging around Alex good-naturedly. "You pass every qualification. Hurry, let's introduce Alex to his prospective brothers-in-law. They'll be glad to welcome another model husband to the family circle."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—If Franklin Fort had some deep underlying political purpose in synchronizing his resignation from secretaryship of the republican national committee and his now celebrated "home-brew" speech in the house, Washington political writers have failed to get a strangle hold on it. They seemed at sea to account for Fort strategy.

Some observers saw indications of disappointed hopes of the national committee championship; others ascribed Fort's proceedings to plans to run for governor.

And still others, with some show of actual knowledge of what it all meant, said Fort's private business connections made it necessary to curtail his extra-congressional engagements; that the time of his resignation was merely figured to relieve the national committee of any connection with what he was going to say on prohibition.

Hall Was His

But be all this as it may, Representative Fort managed to insure a hearing in the house that rarely falls to the lot of any member.

All hands and the cook were on deck to hear him. Even a lot of senators went A. W. O. L. on the tariff debate and held down house benches.

Press advance notices on the Fort prohibition speech ran a wide gamut of speculation. It went far enough in some cases to indicate that he might come out for modification. And that, coupled with his resignation from the national committee job, was ample to insure him a big audience.

Possibly because of his national committee duties, Mr. Fort holds no important house chairmanship. He is a member, however, of the powerful rules committee and also of the banking and currency committee.

Since 1919 he has been connected with numerous insurance and banking concerns and gossip has it that his business associates have refused to consider his retirement from private enterprise in order to devote himself to congressional duties and national politics. In any event, with surrender of his secretarial responsibilities to the national committee, he will have time for private business.

More To Say?

"I have prepared what I have to say with considerable care," Fort said in beginning his prohibition speech in the house.

That seems a modest statement. Fort is said to have made up his mind to talk on prohibition more than two months before he spoke and devoted the interim to preparation.

Which implies that Mr. Fort is going to have considerably more to say on the subject hereafter. He is rumored, in fact, to have in mind a series of speeches to which his "home-brew" effort was merely an introduction.

He might aswell do that. If he don't somebody else will talk prohibition at every opportunity. Throughout January congress did not miss a day on wet and dry bombardments. Time for such speeches was being reserved by house orators as much as two weeks ahead.

YOUR HEALTH

Watch These Adenoids

By Peter Potter, M. D., Butte, Montana
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Adenoids are a mass of foreign tissue located above the soft palate and immediately behind the nose. They are of much the same structure as the regular tonsils except that the adenoids are more soft and friable, and do not harbor infection in the same way or to the same extent as the regular tonsils. Hence adenoids are not the source of toxin under ordinary circumstances.

The presence of adenoids is usually shown by frequent or constant head colds and mouth breathing, especially when the child is asleep.

Adenoids are harmful, because they prevent a free passage of air through the nose and so interfere seriously with the proper oxygenation of the blood and therefore normal mental and physical development. They also obstruct the openings into the eustachain tubes leading to the middle ears and sinuses. Improper breathing is shown in malformed face and chest and general lack of bodily development. These things cannot be attributed to adenoids alone, but since adenoids are always a part of a condition involving all the lymphoid tissues about the throat, they produce their share of the ill effects and must be dealt with as a part of a general throat condition.

Adenoids usually disappear after puberty if they have not been previously removed. But this is not a reason for neglecting them, for if left to disappear in this way they will so interfere with development that permanent disability usually results. They should be removed when the throat tonsils are removed, for that is the only satisfactory method of handling the problem they present.

Teach your children to sleep with their mouths closed in a well ventilated room; to breathe through their noses at all times, and to keep themselves so fit physically that they may put up a fine resistance to cold germs.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 11

Salaries paid employes constitute one of the largest items of business expenses which are deductible from gross income. To be allowed such, claims must conform closely to the words of the revenue act, which provides for the deduction "a reasonable allowance for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Money paid an officer of a corporation for which no services are rendered, or for services inadequate tao the compensation, is not deductible as salary. Reasonable compensation is held to be an amount that ordinarily is paid by like enterprises in like circumstances for like services. For example, an officer of a corporation received in 1929 compensation in excess of the amount ordinarily paid for services such as he rendered, and which bore a relationship to the amount of his stock holdings. The excess would not be treated as salary, but as a distribution of earnings of the corporation, and the amount of such excess would not be considered a deductible item.

Terceira Island

The first modern air service station on the busiest Europe-America air lane is in process of construction on Terceira Island of the Azores. The Portuguese government has issued warrants for $5,000,000 to build the airport.

"Terceira, situated off the usual path of tourist travel, has been unspoiled by modern encroachments," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"From the air the island presents a panorama of an agricultural area. Except for its egglike shape and irregular rim, its 175 square miles resemble a checkerboard with squares of various hues of green and brown. These squares are the well-kept orange and lemon groves, vineyards, grain fields, vegetable gardens and cattle pastures which, with the splendid fisheries off the coast, keep the Terceirans in food and spending money.

"The traveler must mingle with the natives on the streets of villages and towns that dot the island and bounce with them over gracefully winding roads in springless oxcarts to get the genuine 'atmosphere' of Terceira.

"Angra, the capital of Terceira, and largest city on the island, was the capital of the Azores until the early part of the last century. Since then it has seen few changes. From Angra bay, Angra presents a splash of color—clusters of white houses with emerald green, vermillion and blue tile roofs, nestling snuggly at the base of massive gray fortress walls that, in the heyday of the city's political power, made the capital safe from attack.

"Even the scows and rowboats dotting the Angra anchorage are graceful in line, painted in bright colors, and adorned with artistic designs. A cargo hoist and parked autos lend a modern touch to a traveler's first 'closeup' of Terceira. On the main street, however, a dozen 1930-models of American automobiles in pastel shades would not distract his attention from the native fruit vender whose bewhiskered, suntanned face, under a colorful stocking cap, has smiled so long and continuously that smile wrinkles deeply mark his countenance. The peddler leads a drowsy donkey whose slow movements seem to protest against a burden of baskets of oranges, lemons, pomegranates and bananas.

"Goat carts and sheep carts that any American boy would like to own, weave in and out of Angra traffic. The little fellows draw riders several times their size and weights and loads of grain and other produce tax the strength of their frail legs.

"One would gather from the number of oxcarts seen on Terceira that this is the 'national vehicle' of the island. With bodies like huge woven reed wash baskets set between two thick crude wheels, they are seen on all the island highways. In wine-pressing season, the 'wash baskets' often give way to wine barrels.

"Some of the main streets of Terceira villages are paved with pumice blocks and flanked with neat gutters. Beyond the gutters are smooth pavements of mosaics. Now and then the black and white blocks spell a name familiar to the islanders, or form a beautiful design.

"After a glance at those who tread the mosaics it would be hard to convince a stranger that Terceira is about midway between Paris and New York on the popular trans-Atlantic air lane, for these two fashion centers have had no influence on native styles.

"A flapper with upthrust head proudly tells her friends that her grandmother, or perhaps her great-grandmother owned her voluminous, ankle-length frock and the bright-colored scarf that covers her dark hair. The black, nunlike capote and capello (cloak and hood) also are commonly seen on the island.

"Makers of men's shoes are not in demand on the island for the wrinkled fruit venders, the venders of sweet meats, the draymen, the longshoremen and in fact nearly all the peasant men—even those bound for the festival—do not wear shoes."

The Passing of the Comic

You remember, I remember, how the teacher looked at us;
How each thought he heard her saying: "There's the guilty little cuss!"
And you knew, down deep within you, that you really, truly were
The one who sent the valentine marked "Teacher Dear" to her.
Pal, today you'd send the sender sprawling through the open door,
Since they don't have old maid teachers at the schoolhouse any more.

Yes, the market's closed to comics—dainty ones are all you'll get—
It's a sweet distinction, Buddy, to be called the teacher's pet.
Love abides where once was hatred, smiles long since have banished tears,
Proving well my declaration that we live in changing years.
Valentines today are bonbons—roses—violets, galore—
Since they don't have old maid teachers at the schoolhouse any more.

Times keep changing, changing, changing as the years go rolling by,
Some one's always disarranging things we cherished—you and I.
There's the valentine, for instance—yes, the comic ones of old—
In the shops they'll smile and tell you: "Comics aren't being sold!"
Yes, they're banished from the counter of the little corner store
Since they don't have old maid teachers at the schoolhouse any more.

You remember, 'way back yonder, in our days of Youth and Song,
How we waited for Saint Valentine to help us right a wrong.
Teachers then were old and crusty, tired of life and all its joy;
Two events alone gave pleasure—pay day and an erring boy!
Valentines? Of course they got them! Love now settles every score,
Since they don't have old maid teachers at the schoolhouse any more.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Sammy Does A Little Boasting

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Of boasting there is never need;
To trouble it will likely lead.
—Old Mother Nature.

Sammy Jay had discovered a secret over in the Green Forest. As soon as he had discovered it, he had hurried away as fast as his wings could take him. The secret he had discovered was an egg. It was a rather large egg, dull white and in an old nest. The old nest was the one that Blacky the Crow had used a year ago. But the old nest had been fixed up. Sammy had noticed that before he discovered the egg. So he knew that it was no accident that that egg was there. He knew that that old nest was now the home of some one else and he knew who that someone was.

"That egg belonged to Hooty the Owl and Mrs. Hooty," said Sammy, as he hurried along. "Yes, sir, that was an Owl's egg. They have fixed up that old nest of Blacky's. That is why Jumper the Hare had seen them hanging around there."

A sudden thought came into Sammy's head. It was such an astonishing thought that for an instant Sammy almost forgot to make his wings go. "It is winter!" exclaimed Sammy. "What is an egg doing in that nest in winter?"

Until that very instant Sammy hadn't thought of this. He had been so excited by the discovery of that egg that he hadn't had room in his mind for anything else. But now with the realization that it was still winter, the wonder of that egg filled his mind.

"It must be," thought Sammy, "that Mrs. Hooty had just left that nest. I happened to get there just at the right time. Of course, it is possible that she laid that egg there because it was the handiest possible place and that she had no intention of hatching it out. I guess before I say anything about it I'll have another look."

So the next day Sammy flew back to the Green Forest and over toward the tree where the nest was. You may be sure he kept his tongue still. He was as silent as a Jay could be. He approached by flying from tree to tree and stopping in each tree to look and listen. So it was that he discovered Hooty the Owl sitting in a tree napping. Then Sammy flew high and straight over the top of the tree where the nest was. As he flew over he looked down. Mrs. Hooty was on the nest. Then Sammy knew for a certainty that she and Hooty had begun housekeeping. What he didn't know was that there was another egg beside the one he had seen the day before.

"What do you know that we don't know?" demanded Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel

Back to the Old Orchard flew Sammy Jay. Once there, he began to boast. "I know something the rest of you don't know!" cried he.

"What do you know that we don't know?" demanded Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel.

"I know where the first sign of spring is," declared Sammy.

"And what may that be?" inquired Happy Jack.

"An egg," replied Sammy Jay. "A newly laid egg in the nest of a bird."

Just then Blacky the Crow happened along. "Did I overhear you saying something about fresh eggs?" inquired Blacky. "I don't know of anybody who would be silly enough to have fresh eggs at this time of year, excepting those stupid hens of Farmer Brown's. But if you know where there are any fresh eggs, Cousin Sammy, just lead me to them. I cannot think of anything in all the Great World that would taste better just now than a good fresh egg. By the way, whose egg did you find?"

"I don't believe he found any," spoke up Happy Jack. "Sammy Jay was boasting. That is what he was doing—just boasting. The idea of eggs with ice and snow all about! The very idea!"

"Will you go get that egg if I will tell you where it is?" asked Sammy Jay mischievously.

"Certainly," replied Blacky the Crow.

"I'll tell you some other time," replied Sammy.

If Baby has COLIC

A cry in the night may be the first warning that Baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than some needlessly strong medicine meant only for adult use. Genuine Castoria always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Prescribed by doctors!

WAY TO GET AT A COLD IS THROUGH THE BOWELS

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, billous, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN UP TO $5,656; PUSH TO CLOSE DRIVE BY NIGHTFALL

Hard work by the teams in the Boy Scout campaign Thursday added $1,624.79 to the total when the reports were turned in at the supper meeting at 6 o'clock at the Arcanum club. This brought the total to date to $5,656.29 and the team members registered the determination to go back to the campaign with fresh vigor today (Friday), in a concerted effort to have $2,400 more to report by nightfall so that they might be able to jubilate over reaching the goal of $8,000.

From Campaign Manager H. D. Larrabee all the way down through the teams it was felt that the weather man had played them rather a mean trick instead of doing a "good turn" Thursday, when he sent a torrential rainstorm to handicap the drive, but they propose to re-double their activity today and are calling upon every citizen who has the welfare of the boys of the city at heart to do his individual "good turn" by making a liberal contribution whether he is called on by a team member or not.

Field is Open

The weather handicap was believed to account, in a measure, for the fact that there are still 300 cards of prospects upon which no reports have been made.

The team workers will concentrate their work first upon these, and after that the field is open.

Thursday night a new supply of 2 dozen blank cards was sent out to every team member, which are to be used in their open solicitation to receive contributions from any citizens who may not have been reached or whose names have not been on the lists.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown was the speaker for the evening, delivering a ringing appeal for the men to go forth in the conviction that they were engaged in one of the grandest causes on earth. When Abraham Lincoln, the speaker said, believed in the right and justice of his cause he had the strength that refused to be broken down by opposition and discouragement. There never was a more just cause than this of making clean, manly boys for the days to come. Let us go forth in this final day, said Mr. Brown in conclusion, in the spirit that knows no defeat and we shall win the victory.

Frank R. Murdy, who is the leader of Division B, seconded a suggestion made by John P. Lyston to throw the field open and spoke strongly for a united effort to put the campaign across in as quick time as possible, while James L. Case, leader of Division A, exhorted the workers to raise the average of contributions, pointing out that the average so far on the 700 contributions received had been less than $10, which was not enough to provide for one scout for a year.

In response to Mr. Case's appeal, the 77 men present pledged themselves to do everything possible to clean up the campaign by tonight.

A chicken pie supper was served, the invocation was by Rev. F. A. Kilmister, Frederick J. Maples was the song leader and Nicholas J. Spellman was at the piano.

The teams are to meet again tonight (Friday) for supper and reports.

JAMES MORTON TO BE MILL AGENT AT MAYNARD

James M. Morton, for nine years agent of the American Woolen plant in Thamesville, will be transferred, in the near future, as agent of the American Woolen mill in Maynard, Mass. The transfer is a promotion as the Maynard mill is one of the largest operated by the company.

Mr. Morton, during his long residence in Norwich, has made many friends here, who, while regretting his removal from Norwich, wish him every success in his new position. Late in 1921 Mr. Morton located in Norwich. This was at the time the American Woolen Co., took over the three mills controlled by the Norwich Woolen Mills Corp., of which Samuel Kaplan was treasurer and general manager. These were the Yantic mill and the two mills located in Thamesville. Mr. Morton was at first agent of the Yantic mill and was then transferred as agent of the Thamesville mill.

He is one of the most active members of Park Congregational church, a prominent member of the men's club connected with the church, a member of the Norwich Golf club and has a summer residence at Groton Long Point.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Individual motors and motors for group drives for the various machines have replaced the system of large power units in most mills of large power units in the textile forum of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in the Boston City club today.

Reardon, agent of Grosvenordale company, North Grosvenordale, Conn., the forum committee chairman in addressing master mechanics from mills throughout New England. "The change," he continued, "is among the major developments in cotton manufacturing."

Control of humidification and the general problems encountered in keeping the mill equipment at the peak of operation conditions were among the subjects for discussion.

280 FAMILIES SUPERVISED BY HUMANE SOCIETY

Under supervision of the children's department of the Connecticut Humane society in January were 280 families involving the welfare of 447 children, according to the report made by Mrs. Nellie T. Brent, director of this department. There were 134 new complaints in the list. Forty-four children received hospital or medical care, 12 were given temporary shelter and 51 placed with relatives or other agencies. Forty-two were assisted by towns, 5 homes were re-established and living conditions were improved in 64 homes. Twenty-three petitions were filed for commitment to state care. Eight children were committed to county homes, 4 to the selectmen, 1 to Long Lane farm, 1 to the Connecticut School for Boys, 1 to an orphanage, 2 were placed in the House of the Good Shepherd and 1 child was committed to the School for the Deaf. Sixteen persons were prosecuted for offenses and crimes committed against children resulting in 22 penalties. Nine persons were committed to jail or prison, 2 women committed to the state farm and 1 person paid a fine and costs. Three orders of support were issued, 5 were given jail sentences, execution suspended, and one case was bound over to the superior court.

Reed W. Hitchcock, director of the animal department, reported 515 complaints of cruelty or neglect of animals received during the month. Twenty-five of these were for beating or cruel treatment, 23 for working when lame or unfit, 60 without food, shelter or bedding, 262 injured, sick or disabled, 8 abandoned, 102 stray animals, first aid administered to 44, veterinary care for 19. Sixty-nine dogs and 18 cats were cared for at the shelter. Homes found for 47 dogs and 18 cats. One horse, 13 dogs and 1 cat were returned to their owners. Seven hundred sick or unwanted small animals were humanely put to sleep. Prosecutions were necessary in 4 cases resulting in fine and costs for 3.

STATE WILL REPLACE WOOD WITH WIRE RAIL

As a result of a recent decision of the superior court of Connecticut concerning the function of highway guard or guide rail as a safety factor, Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald has asked for contractors' bids for the construction of approximately 30 miles of standard wire rope railing to replace existing sections of wood guide on several sections of the highway system where the use of such railing would afford increased protection to the motorist.

Commissioner Macdonald stated that in order to comply with the court's decision by the erection of the new type of railing the state would be forced ultimately to spend in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Although the locations to be equipped with the wire fencing were not announced, the commissioner said that those places where the most severe damage was likely to result when motor vehicles ran off the road would be given first attention.

Until the court's judgment had been handed down highway guide rail had not been recognized legally as a means of preventing motor vehicles from running off the road. Its main function had been considered that of definitely marking the right of way so that the eyes of the motorist might not be deceived in night or bad weather driving. In recent years, however, the department, of its own accord, has installed the stronger type of railing in many of the places believed to be more dangerous.

Experiment has shown that the wire rope railing is considerably stronger, and, consequently, a greater factor in preventing serious accidents. When a runaway motor car comes hurtling at the wooden rail, it crashes at one particular section of fence. This single section must bear the entire brunt of the attack, and it, therefore, usually gives way with little resistance.

When the wire cable is used, the car strikes the fence in exactly the same fashion, but the wire spreads the force of impact throughout the entire fence, so that its entire strength is applied in resistance to the passage of the vehicle. Moreover, the resiliency of wire is considerably greater than that of wood and it naturally acts as a cushion to any applied force, at least partially arresting if not completely stopping the progress of the vehicle.

AVON TAX COLLECTOR GETS WHOLE TAX IN

William J. Smith, tax collector of the town of Avon, has filed with the selectmen of the town his eighth annual report and once again the town finds itself in the enviable position of having had collected every cent due and collectible.

On the first day of April, 1929, the amount turned over to Mr. Smith for collection was $51,819.16. On the first day of February he had collected and turned over to the town taxes on property in the amount of $51,927.91, which was $108.75 in excess of the amount he originally started out to get, due to interest.

On the personal tax list of 1929 he collected a total of $1,670, cleaning up his books. As is common with collectors in many cities and towns there was some difficulty in the collection of taxes on automobiles but a diligent tracing of cars practically across the country brought in all but $50 of this tax.

Mr. Smith is now serving his ninth year as tax collector of his town and every lien filed by him in that period has been released by the payment of the tax. No liens have been placed on property in the town in the last three years, and in the entire period of his service there has never been a foreclosure.

Mr. Smith is now making a diligent house to house canvass in an effort to collect the personal taxes now legally due the town. In addition to his collection of taxes for the town, Mr. Smith is employed in the municipal tax division of the state tax department.

MANY UTILITIES AND INDUSTRIALS REACHED NEW HIGH LEVELS FOR 1930

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—Powerful [illegible] for the advance met increasing resistance in today's stock market, but managed to lift a wide assortment of utilities and leading industrials to new high levels for 1930. Bears gained the advantage for a time in the afternoon and gains chalked up earlier in the session were considerably reduced, particularly in the utility group. Shorts were driven to cover in the last half hour, however, and despite several isolated weak spots, the market closed irregularly higher. Total sales aggregated 3,663,-[illegible] shares.

The weekly brokerage loan figures, coming to hand after the close of the market, could not be interpreted as favorable, showing a gain of $48,000,000 on top of last week's increase of $57,-000,000, but there has been a tendency to disregard brokers loans of late on the theory that they have been so thoroughly deflated that a substantial upturn need not be viewed with alarm. Some observers, however, point out that increasing loans may be interpreted as indicating an unfavorable change in the character of the buying.

The industrial news of the day included the announcement of the proposed Stone & Webster-Engineers Public Service merger, together with a $4 annual dividend basis for Stone and Webster, which stimulated pool operations in the electric power issues. Underwood-Elliott-Fisher reported 1929 earnings of $10.08 a share, compared to $6.77 on a smaller capitalization in 1928.

There were further discouraging developments in the petroleum situation. The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., jointly owned by Sinclair Oil and Standard of Indiana, met the reductions in crude oil prices recently instituted by Standard of New Jersey, and President Farish, of Humble Oil said he saw no near prospect of an upturn in mid-continent crude prices. Copper statistics for January were a little more favorable than those for December, but showed another moderate gain in stocks on hand.

The tobacco shares were bid up rapidly, American Tobacco "B" rising 7 1-2 points to 236, equaling its 1929 high. American Can was a strong spot in the industrials rising about 4 points reflecting continued splitup and higher dividend gossip. U. S. Steel rose to a new high for 1930 at 186 3-8, but closed at 184 7-8, up 1 3-8, and several of the so-called independent steels made substantial gains. In the utilities, Engineers Public Service sold up 4 and General Public Service about 7 points, but these gains were not maintained. Stone and Webster encountered heavy profit-taking and lost about 5 points. Although rails were inclined to sag, New York Central and New Haven rose moderately to be the best levels in several weeks. Air Reduction, and Hershey Chocolate were strong spots, and the Curtiss Wright shares were continuing their recovery.

Merchandising shares were mostly under pressure, Safeway Stores dropping more than 3 points to a new 1930 low. Western Union lost more than 3 points in response to denial of split-up rumors. Simmons and Gillette were again weak spots, reaching new lows for the year.

There was little change in credit conditions, call money holding at 4 per cent. The weekly reserve condition statement showed a moderate reduction in holdings of bankers acceptances, despite recent reductions in buying rates.

Commodities were inclined to ease. Wheat futures sagged fractionally, reflecting bearish Oklahoma weather reports, and corn lost about 1 cent a bushel on larger Argentine estimates. Cotton futures closed 35 to 50 cents a bale lower.

Renewed weakness of the Spanish peseta, which declined about 1-4 cent to 12.63 cents, featured the foreign exchanges. Sterling cables were steady at $4.86 1-4, although the demand rate sagged.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—Unfinished orders now on the books of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, it was reported today, amount to around $24,-000,000. Operations at the company's plants are being increased gradually, with the expectation that about 7,000 men will be on the pay rolls by early summer, as against the 5,000 employed there now.

Stockholders of the United States Gypsum Co. have approved an increase in the $20 par stock from 1,250,880 to 3,080,000 shares.

Julius Kayser & Co., manufacturers of silk hosiery, plan to place its new Melbourne, Australia, plant in operation early in May. Initial production of the factory will be about 1,000 pairs of hosiery weekly.

R. Stuart Hotchkiss, for nearly 30 years associated with the United States Rubber Co. and its subsidiaries, has indicated his intention of relinquishing these connections at the next annual meeting. John W. Bicknell, managing director of U. S. Rubber Plantations, Inc., will be elected president of that company.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—Major speculative activity in today's curb market was again on the upside, with the public utilities in the forefront of the advance. There were sufficient soft spots scattered throughout the list to give the market the appearance of irregularity at the close but the large declines were general in ordinarily inactive specialties.

Buying of the utilities was based on persistent but unconfirmed reports that several new alignments are in the making as a result of the renewal of merger discussions which were interrupted by the break last fall. Most of the leading operating companies also are showing a healthy increase in earnings, which has attracted some investment buying in that group. Two of the most important business and financial developments of the day were announced after the close, namely the increase of $48,000,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans, and the decision of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company to meet the cut in mid-continent crude recently put into effect by the Humble company.

Electric Bond & Share returned to the leadership of the utilities by crossing 100 for the first time since last fall, closing 3 3-4 points higher at 101 1-2 after having sold as high as 102 3-4. The stock touched 50 in the November break. American Superpower, Cities Service and several others also touched new highs for the year. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore & Northern States Power A each jumped about 5 points.

National Investors, with a gain of 3 points, was the feature of the investment trust, trading and holding company group. Pennroad declined slightly, but most of the other active issues showed moderate gains.

Standard Oil of Ohio preferred was marked up 3 1-4 points, Cumberland Pipe 3 and Gulf Ohio Oil and Pacific Western about a point each, but Vacuum and Indian Territorial were heavy, the last named company announcing the discovery of another well. A 2 point gain in Aviation Corporation of the Americas was the only change of consequence in the airplane group. Aluminum Co. of America added 5 points to its recent gain, and Deere & Co. jumped 14.

New low records for the year were established by Amrad Corporation, Bentley Chain, New York & Hamburg and several others.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—The bond market moved briskly today, but prices shifted up and down erratically, failing to develop a definite trend. Much of the confusion was apparently due to switching to new issues, especially in the utility group.

There was considerable activity in foreign bonds, which likewise followed an irregular course. Belgium 6s were marked up more than a point and British 5 1-2s rose 5-8, while the French 7 1-2s recovered some of the ground lost earlier in the week. Italy 7s, Greek 6s, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s Paris-Orleans 5 1-2s and Rome City 6 1-2s were well traded and showed marked firmness, as did the Brazilian listings. Colombians were mixed.

The feature in the domestic list was the heavy trading in American Telephone convertible 4 1-2s, which touched a new high for the year at 152 on a turnover of nearly $1,500,000, principal amount. The closing price of 150 1-2 represented a net gain of 2 1-4. Some of the other stock feature obligations were heavy, Colon Oil 6 1-2s declining 1 1-2 and International Telephone 4 1-2s losing 1-2. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s and New Haven 6s were steady.

Prime rails displayed considerable uncertainty, although the undertone was firm and small net advances were numerous. Atchison General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Rock Island Refunding 4s, Illinois Central 4s, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern 4s, New York Central Debenture 4s, Pennsylvania Gold 5s and Union Pacific 4s, improved 1-4 to 1-2, but easier tendencies prevailed in Canadian National 4 1-2s of 1957, Baltimore & Ohio Gold 4s, Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 4s, Series B, New York Central 5s, New Haven 3 1-2s, Virginian 5s Northern Pacific prior lien 4s and the Southern Pacific and Southern Railway listings.

Selling of Western Union 5s and Real Estate 4 1-2s on the flotation of the new $35,000,000 issue of 30 years 5s carried the listed bonds down 1 1-4 and 2 points, respectively. American Telephone 5s of 1965, International Telephone 5s and other new utility loans held firm. Montana Power 5s lost a point.

Industrials were a little heavy and declines of half a point or so appeared in Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s, Chile Copper 5s, Goodyear 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s, Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s, and a few other favorites. Western Electric 5s lost 1 3-8. Wickwire Spencer Steel bonds continued Tuesday's advance, the First 7s rising 4 7-8 and the convertible 7 per cent certificates mounting 3 points. Schulco issues, which had a broad advance about a fortnight ago, again received attention and the "A" 6 1-2s rose 3 7-8 while the "B" issue of the same coupon improved 3.

The market for United States governments was dull. The long term Treasury issues made fair progress in light trading. The First Liberty Loan lost 1-4, but the Fourth 4 1-4s and the 3 1-2s were firm.

MILL TO HANDLE LOGS HAULED 50 MILES BY RAIL

BURNS, Ore.—(AP)—A lumber mill 50 miles from a merchantable tree will be put into production this spring.

The mill, located in the heart of eastern Oregon's desert, will receive its logs by train from a rich timber stand 50 miles north. A 40-acre artificial mill pond will be heated by steam during the winter months.

Forty-six dry kilns will take the green lumber and turn out dry boards in from three to four days. The estimated output is 200,000 board feet of lumber per day.

GOLF IS A GREAT SOURCE OF PLEASURE TO JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IN FLORIDA

(By Allan J. Gould, Associated Press Staff Writer)

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 13—(AP)—Golf, one great leveller of American sport, brings recreation, enjoyment and a real competitive thrill to one of the most distinguished of its followers John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

"I get great lessons out of golf. Taking the conceit out of one is a good thing and it does that," observed Mr. Rockefeller today, while playing his customary eight-hole round on the links of the Ormond Beach Golf club. He had just played a good brassie shot from the edge of the rough on the third hole.

His carry-through was vigorous. The ball, well hit, sailed fully 150 yards, "straight as a gun," he remarked. He was delighted.

"It's all very enjoyable," he said a moment later, "when you get a good shot—and, you know, there is always a chance of doing so. That is what makes the game."

Playing the same ball alternately with Mrs. Walter Buvard, of Lincille, N. C., in the Scotch-foursome manner although the rest of the group of five played individual balls, Mr. Rockefeller took his turn at the next tee, facing the rolling fairway of the 465 yard fourth hole. With an unusually slow and carefully timed backswing, he again hit straight and true.

Turning with a gleeful look, he said: "That was a good ball and I am proud of it. No false modesty there." Thus in good spirits, praising his youthful partner's shots, with a "Bravo" for the good hits of the others, meanwhile playing his own shots with meticulous care, this kindly, soft-spoken head of the House of Rockefeller played the abbreviated round that has become a part of his life, his daily routine.

Daily, except Sundays or days when the weather may be too stormy, Mr. Rockefeller, is to be found on the links, attired in white sun-hat with the brim turned down, gray trousers, longer-sleeved jacket and a light coat, which he discarded today after playing a few holes. He starts punctually at 10:15 and takes about an hour and three quarters to reach the eighth hole where his car waits to return him home.

Today, with a tournament in progress, his party was slightly delayed in getting off the first tee. Excepting this circumstance philosphically, he chatted with friends, shook hands with strangers, yielded to the pleas of amateur photographers and distributed bright, new dimes. This ceremony was repeated at the eighth hole, where another small group of curious folk awaited him with cameras and a word of greeting.

Again he distributed dimes, though during the play the reward to his companions for a well-played shot or a long putt was a shiny nickle.

Mr. Rockefeller, though he will be 91 years old on his next birthday July 8, plays with vigor and enthusiasm. His hands are steady, his swing easy, though his backswing is exceptionally measured, and the results generally are good.

Direction, rather than distance, is his virtue with the wood. He seldom carries more than 125 or 150 yards but his forte is the short game, especially the mashie niblick pitch to the green from 50 to 100 yards.

Here his control is excellent, his delight keen in "plunking" a nice shot close to the pin.

On five of the eight holes today Mr. Rockefeller pitched beautifully to the green with his favorite approaching iron. Only once was he ever close to trouble. That was on the first hole and when his ball neatly hopped the corner of a sand trap and rolled well on the green. He was highly pleased in word and gesture.

His best shot of the round was a pitch dead to the pin from 80 yards away on the 470 yard sixth hole. With good support from his partner, Mrs. Buvard, their combined efforts showed a score of 47 for the eight holes, for which par is 33.

The others in the party played a friendly but interesting match. They were Mr. Buvard, Miss Betty White of Cleveland and Major Max Oser.

Mr. Rockfeller's caddy carried a bag containing a dozen clubs, including three brassies of varying weight and an assortment of nine irons.

The faces of his wood clubs are chalked so that their user can tell how he is hitting the ball. The brassie, approaching iron and putter get most use.

Throughout the play today Mr. Rockefeller studied the position of each shot carefully, debated with his caddy the proper club to use and commented on the results for future reference. His interest in the strokes of his companions also was lively and he was quick to make the first award of a nickle when Mrs. Buvard sank a 25-foot putt on the second hole.

Asked whether he got more satisfaction over a lengthy drive or a long putt, Mr. Rockefeller replied: "They are equally enjoyable—when they are good."

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 13—(AP)—Dwindling of buying when prices advanced left the wheat market here lower today at the finish, despite material transient upturns. Houses with foreign connections took a hand in acquiring Chicago wheat future deliveries, but backed away from any large-sized immediate export business either United States or Canadian. Much of the stimulus for today's temporary advances in wheat values came from a statement attributed to C. E. Huff, chairman of the board of managers of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, that the federal farm board's loan basis is the minimum price at which wheat should sell.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-8c to 5-8c lower than Tuesday's finish. Corn closed 1-4c to 1 1-8c down, oats 1-8c to 1-4 at 3-8c off and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 5c.

In contrast with relative weakness shown by the wheat market toward the last here today, prices earlier averaged higher most of the time, notwithstanding irregularity at the opening. The hesitant start in Chicago was associated with setbacks in quotations at Liverpool said to have been due to larger Russian and Argentine shipments. However, a notable absence of selling pressure here quickly became apparent, and considerable speculative buying developed owing in the main to expected activities of the newly organised National Grain Stabilization corporation.

Particular notice was taken by Chicago wheat traders that Chairman Huff's statement about the federal farm board's loan basis being the minimum basis at which wheat should sell is not an arbitrarily chosen price, but was fixed upon after deliberate consideration of world market factors. As the day drew to an end, though, efforts to realize profits on the part of traders who earlier had been on the buying side of the market led to reactions in prices. Another notable disturbing influence was the circumstance that today's export business in North American wheat totaled only 300,000 bu., chiefly Canadian.

Corn was bearishly affected by advices that Argentine corn acreage is 20 per cent larger than a year ago, suggesting a possible Argentine corn export surplus of $15,000,000 bu. Oats sympathized with corn weakness, and was also responsive to indications of a large increase of oats acreage in Texas.

Hog values at the season's top level tended to bolster the provision market notwithstanding the downward trend of corn.

Well, well, folks, gather around and I'll tell you some news.

Norwich has a censor of motion pictures. Did you know it? Well, it's a fact and I didn't know it until the other day.

No, I'm not trying to spoof you at all. I've positive proof of it. Who is it? Well, you're asking me something I can't answer. In fact, I don't know whether he's a she or she's a he.

I discovered this guardian of the public morals quite by accident. I was in the office of a certain local theatre manager when he tossed a letter over to me and said for me to read it.

I read it and I marveled. Not at the contents of the letter but at the great responsibility assumed by the writer when he or she signed the letter "The City of Norwich in General." Boy, this person sure did think he was speaking for a lot of people.

Isn't it strange how some people's minds act. Here a person gets a thought and right away gets the impression that he's the spokesman for the entire community. That sure must make the old head come up and the old chest swell out.

It seems this self-appointed censor has placed the ban on motion pictures in which skeletons are pictured. The censor says, in speaking of a picture where three skeletons were made to do tricks, "I never saw a more disgusting picture in all my life. Instead of amusing your audience it made them sick."

Well I, for one, saw the picture and having no antipathy for skeletons I got a good laugh. And I was only one of many who laughed. The manager said that something like 17,000 persons saw that picture in Norwich and not one fatality has yet been reported. The only way I could see for a person to get sick from that picture was to laugh themselves sick.

But just imagine what a burden it must be to realize that you must protect the morals of some 30,000 souls in this city. Boy, that's what I call responsibility. One little slip of forgetting to write to the manager about a picture you think is demoralizing and 30,000 souls are in jeopardy.

Not that it makes any difference to the theatre manager but it gives you a lot of satisfaction to know you have expressed in no uncertain terms what the people of Norwich think. It's like sticking out your tongue at a big brute who has just stepped on your pet corn.

But just the same it gives us poor defenseless folk a comforting feeling to know that we have some good soul who is watching out that we are not led astray or our morals debased by some fantastic motion picture.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years).

Academy fans of the present day may think their baseball teams are quite the thing but the local school has also had its great teams in bygone days.

As proof of this statement we have gone into The Bulletin files and brought out a game that the splendid team of 1911 played. It was a tilt with Windham that turned out to be just a batting picnic for the local boys, they making 19 hits and one more run to eight runs and 14 hits for the Willimantic team. The game was played at the Academy grounds on Saturday, May 20.

The Academy that year established a clear claim to the state championship when Meriden, the winner of the Western Connecticut league title was challenged by N. F. A., the winners of the Eastern Connecticut league honors, only to have Meriden decline to play a post season game. After this year the Academy did not rise to state title heights again until 1927 when they won that year and repeated in 1928. Here's the game:

NORWICH GIRLS TO HAVE NEW UNIFORMS FOR GAME

The Norwich Girls basketball team will be decked out in brand new suits when they make their next appearance Saturday evening playing the preliminary to the Norwich-Winsted Y State league game. The local lassies will oppose Tourtellotte high girls and will have gaudy suits of Copenhagen blue with white emblem and blue N on the front.

In the feature game the Seniors are confident of grabbing the verdict. They beat Winsted at Winsted early in the season and think they can repeat but it will be remembered that they also defeated Greenwich at Greenwich in the first part of the campaign only to have that fast-stepping quintet come here and turn the tables on the locals.

BOUTS AT TAFTVILLE TONIGHT ARE EXPECTED TO ABOUND WITH ACTION

Tonight's Card.

Three Star Bouts—8 Rounds.

Lou Brouillard of Danielson vs. Jimmy Rossi of Westerly at 152 pounds.

Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Joe Machado of Fall River at 128 pounds.

Sheik Leonard of Norwich vs. Joe Russo of Westerly at 152 pounds.

Six Round Preliminary.

Rene Peloquin of Danielson vs. Romeo Dubois of New Haven at 122 pounds.

Four Round Preliminary.

Young Guoin of Taftville vs. Young Westphal of New London at 140 pounds.

Those who know their boxers know that in tonight's boxing show at Parish hall they will see plenty of action for their money. To those who are unfamiliar with the boxing ability of the above named pugilists it can be said that they will not be disappointed if they attend. Without doubt the card arranged for tonight by the Shyma Boxing club is one of the best cards ever put on in the eastern part of the state. There is absolutely no bout on the card that looks as though it might be a flivver which is saying some thing for any boxing show.

The three star bouts should produce torrid action while they last. Of course no guarantee is made that any one of the three will go the limit and it is doubtful if they do. Five of the principals in the main bouts are noted sluggers while the sixth, Joe Machado, of Fall River, is something of a boxer, but he will have to fight tonight if he wants to stay in the ring in an upright position. Al Koziol, the local cyclone, is determined that the Fall River lad is going down to stay down, at least for a count of ten.

In the Brouillard-Rossi bout the Westerly boy is given a slight edge because of his experience and heavier hitting power. Brouillard hits hard, but Rossi is credited with carrying more weight in his punches. If Brouillard wins from the Westerly Italian he will have beaten the best boy at the weight in southern New England.

Shiek Leonard hits the comeback trail tonight. The "Adonis of the Wayside Lunch" is tackling a mighty stiff puncher in Joe Russo of Westerly and it will be a severe test for the local youth. If Leonard comes through with a win tonight there will be probably many more bouts in store for him in the near future. Many are skeptical about Sheik being able to go eight rounds but it can be said that there is no fear of that, for Leonard looks to be in perfect condition. He has been putting in plenty of road work and rope skipping until he shows no signs of exertion after a five or six mile run.

The two preliminaries one of six and the other of four, are looked upon as being bouts where the fans may see some pretty boxing, and also may get something of a surprise when Young Guoin steps into the ring against Young Westphal. The Taftville lad is entering upon his first ring engagement but at the same time he is no novice at the boxing game. For the past two years this Taftville lad has been boxing with every opponent he could find about the village. He has trained faithfully and well and should be in about as fine condition as any boxer on the card.

The management is anticipating a capacity house and has made arrangements for accommodating a large crowd. The first preliminary goes on at 8.15 o'clock.

SMITH GETS VERDICT OVER LEW MASSEY

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 13—(AP)—Steve Smith, 129, of Bridgeport, slugged his way to a decision over Lew Massey, 129, of Philadelphia, and conquerer of "Bat" Battalino, in a smashing give and take ten round battle here tonight.

The first three rounds were Massey's. The Quaker City boxer pecked away at Smith's right eye and opened a cut which hampered the Bridgeport boy. After the fourth round, however, Smith put a different complexion on things, thrashing Massey about the head in many toe-to-toe stances. The seventh was Smith's big round. He hit Massey two stunning blows with rights to the head and knocked him half through the ropes. In the next round, Massey came back to administer similar treatment to Smith. Massey also held his own in the ninth, but Smith was points ahead of him when the gong sounded in the last round.

Other bouts:

Lew Feldman, 134, New York, decision over Nick Christy, 127, Bristol, 8 rounds.

Leo Salla, 160, New York, decision over Leo Larrivee, 161, Waterbury, 8 rounds.

Bruno Salla, 178, New York, decision over Al Gainor, 168, New Haven, 6 rounds.

Carmen Knayy, New Haven, 134, decision over Frankie Carleton, 135, Jersey City, 4 rounds.

Sam Fusci, 126, Philadelphia, knocked out Tommy Brown, 128, Norwalk, in the third.

SHEA TIES JAFFEE FOR FIRST IN SPEED SKATING

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 13—(AP)—Jack Shea of Lake Placid skated to victory in the 440-yard dash of the North American amateur outdoor speed skating championships here today and tied Irving Jaffee of New York for first place in total points for the meet, which will end here tomorrow. Shea and Jaffee have sixty points each. One of them is expected to be crowned champion. Shea is defending the crown. Hurd of Toronto and George Black of Chicago are in second place with 40 points apiece.

While Shea was skimming the bad ice in 35.4 seconds, only two fifths of a second behind the record, boys under 14 were setting two records and equaling a third. In the 220-yard dash for boys under 14, James Barry of Lake Placid set a world record of 22 1-5 seconds; in the one-sixth mile for boys under 10, Alfred Reed of Lake Placid skated to a record in 23 1-5 seconds, and Wilbur Marks of Saranac Lake, tied the record in the 440-yard for boys under 16 with 39 1-5 seconds.

MANDELL AND McLARNIN WILL NOT MEET UNTIL LATER

CHICAGO, Feb. 13—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, B. C., welterweight puncher, will not meet in their proposed ten round bout at the Chicago stadium on February 24.

The bout may be held on another date, but the Illinois state athletic commission today decided that Stadium officials had not requested the date in time for sanction and also rebuked the management of the huge arena for what it termed "taking the law into its hands."

LOMSKI WILL HAVE WEIGHT ADVANTAGE OVER WALKER

DETROIT, Feb. 13—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, who will take on Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., light heavyweight, at Olympia, Friday night, as his first move toward a fight for the crown vacated by Tommy Loughran, has finished training and is ready to weigh in tomorrow afternoon, according to his handlers.

Lomski will outweight the toy bulldog by about eight pounds. Walker's weight has remained constant at 165, while Lomski expects to scale about 173, although he has weighed as low as 171 1-2 while training for the fight. The Aberdeen Pole also has been pronounced ready for the bout which will go ten rounds.

Elmer (Slim) McClelland, Detroit referee, has been selected as the third man in the ring by promoters.

Walker and Lomski both have declared their desire to meet Jimmy Slattery, recognized by the New York boxing commission as light heavyweight champion, in a fight for the championship.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13—(AP)—Reggie McNamara and Gaetano Belloni, the Italian-American combination of Gerard Debaets and Tony Beckman, and Harris Horder and Harry Horan, Australian-American pair, were in a three-way tie for first place in Chicago's twenty-third international six-day bicycle race, tonight after 27 hours of riding. They had ridden 1546 miles 3 laps.

A long jam, during which 28 laps were gained, enabled the McNamara-Belloni, and Horder-Horan teams to move up even with Debaets and Beckman who had led most of the day.

TILDEN VOTES AGAINST DROPPING ONE SERVICE BALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP)—In reply to a questionnaire as to whether the rules of tennis should be changed to allow only one ball on service instead of two, Big Bill Tilden declares emphatically, "no, no, no!" Henry Austin, ranking player of England, however, votes "yes".

Tilden answers a simple "no" to the query: "Do you favor playing over all net cord shots which occur during rallies?"

As to dropping the word "love" out of the scoring system, Big Bill says, "Makes no difference."

Tilden's reactions, sent from France where he is playing on the Riviera, are published in the current issue of the magazine "Tennis" together with those of such stars as Austin, Jean Borotra of France and Betty Nuthall, British rival of Helen Wills. The latter two voted no.

SENIORS BEAT OCKFORDS BY 36-30 COUNT

Coach Demarest of the Y Seniors used his second-stringers for three periods against the New London Ockfords Thursday night at the Y and the visitors outplayed them by nine points. He then inserted the regulars for the final stanza and they proceeded to romp away with the verdict, the local team finally winning 36 to 30.

Every member of the winning team broke into the scoring column and the regulars played an especially brilliant brand of basketball during their stay in the game. The local mentor was saving his first-stringers for tonight's important game with the Sub Base at New London. New London held a half time lead of 14 to 12.

Play Sub Base Tonight

The Seniors will play the second of three games in as many nights when they tackle the Sub Base five at the New London Y this evening. This will be a return game as the Base played here about three weeks ago and was sent back home with its first defeat of the year by the Demarest-outfit. The score of that game was 36 to 33, the contest not being decided until a five-minute overtime period had been played.

Interest akin to an Academy-Bulkeley game is being manifested in New London for this Norwich-New London basketball clash and a large crowd is expected.

STORRS HENS MAINTAIN PACE IN EGG LAYING

The stern winter weather that checked production in the Storrs egg-laying contest last week had a less depressing effect for the week that has just ended. A couple of spring-like days that intervened may have cheered the hens on their way, but what is more probable, the birds have accustomed themselves to the rigors of New England winter.

In the 14th lap of the race, the total output for all birds was 4,007 eggs or a yield of nearly 66 per cent. This is a pick up of 227 eggs over the previous week's production and is 422 eggs better than the corresponding week last year. The management is still operating on the bullish side. The birds are expected to lay as many eggs in February as they did in January in spite of the difference in the number of days involved.

All the pens getting special mention for the past week laid 60 eggs or over. Toivonen's pen of Leghorns from Girard, Pa., finished at the top with 64 eggs. The second best pen is owned by W. Otis Day, whose pen of Reds from Westford, Mass., came through with 63 eggs. There was a tie for third place. Hanson's pen of Leghorns from Corvallis, Oregon, and Harold G. Colt's Rhode Island Reds from West Hartford, Conn., did 62 eggs each.

Fourth place for the week goes to Burdean Acres' pen of Reds from Newton Center, Mass., that laid 61 eggs. Still another pen of Reds that hails from Peterboro, N. H., and is owned by Edward N. Larrabee, was runner-up with a total of 60 eggs. Thus it will be noted that the maximum margin between the six best pens for the week is only four eggs.

One pen in the contest is not getting the breaks, the something that might perhaps befall the best of breeders. Mortality at this writing amounts to 64 per cent. If many pens were affected the same way, the contest could not successfully continue. In view of this breeder's record in other years it appears that St. John's Poultry Farm from Orongo, Mo., has simply gotten an unusually bad break.

Here's what this farm's birds have done at Storrs for the past three years, all reckoned on the basis of 100 pens. Three years ago, finished the year in 28th place with an average of 202 eggs per bird; the following year finished in 17th place with an average of 219 eggs per bird; and in the contest that closed last November, the Missouri pen finished in 10th place with an average of 255 eggs per bird.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 763; Faber P. Farm, Ayton, Ont., Canada, 602.

Barred Rocks—R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 708; R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 679; Spring Brook P. Farm, South Wethersfield, Conn., 671.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 631; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass., 581; E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass., 600.

Rhode Island Reds—Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 869; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 791; Edw. N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., 780; Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 759.

White Leghorns—Toivonen Poultry Farm, Girard, Pa., 861; Steelman Poultry Farms, Lansdale, Pa., 794; Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 786; Meadowedge Farm, Sterling Jct., Mass., 776; Geo. Lowry P. Farm, West Willington, Conn., 767.

JEWISH FARMERS INCREASE THROUGH SOCIETY AID

In 30 years the Jewish farm population of the United States has increased from scarcely 1,000 persons to 80,000 to 100,000, according to the annual report issued by the Jewish Agricultural society, which has interests in rural sections of New London county. Feb. 12 the society will have been in existence 30 years.

Speaking of farm settlement, the report says that 89 more Jewish families were established on farms last year.

The area under cultivation by Jews in the United States is estimated at 1,000,000 acres. The report says:

"All told, 451 farms were examined and appraised and 89 families comprising about 450 souls were established on farms in Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. The cost of these acquisitions totaled the respectable sum of $492,156, an average of $7,132 per farm. The average capital possessed by families settled was $3,977, somewhat larger than last year. The average cash payment per farm was $2,319, also slightly larger than in 1928. The balance remained on mortgage. To help finance the operations, our society made 34 loans aggregating $52,891 and averaging $1,510.52. The others were able to start under their own resources. Some of the latter may need our assistance later."

With the exception of 1923, more persons turned to the society for advice on farming possibilities than in any year since 1920, the beginning of the period of farm deflation, the total number being 1,246, coming from 14 states and from a capital of $3,000 or more and only eight per cent on $1,000 or less.

The report says that the lack of farm credit is a problem which perplexes the Jewish farmer, especially as he is strange to his environment and new to his calling, and that 477 loans totaling $305,692 were made to Jewish farmers in the United States in 1929.

The only states not yet reached by the society's loan work are Iowa, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Nevada, Utah and West Virginia. Most of its activities are centered in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

The society has created a revolving loan for farmers, an educational service, an advice bureau for agriculturists, a system of field instruction, a night school and a farm publication. It has distributed text-books and pamphlets in Yiddish, granted scholarships and student loans, and made awards of merit to farmers and their families.

Don't take worry with you on your travels; you'll find it everywhere.

INDIAN MAP OF STONE CLUE TO ISLAND TEMPLE

AVALON, Catalina Island, Cal.—(P)—Trails indicated by an odd Indian "map," a slab of stone drilled with holes showing routes converging upon one point, are the clues upon which has been launched the third search for the legendary sacrificial temple of the prehistoric White Indians of Catalina island.

Prof. Ralph Glidden, of the Catalina museum of the Channel Islands Indians, believes he has located three of the trails. He reports that they lead toward Mt. Torquemda, at the foot of which he hopes to find the remains of a temple, recorded in California Spanish history as that of the sun-god Chiningchinch, buried beneath landslides caused by earthquakes.

LONGO, IN SPEED MANIA, BUMPS DEPUTY CHIEF'S CAR

Joseph A. Longo, a youth residing at 41 Shaw street, was in court on a charge of reckless driving, upon complaint of Deputy Fire Chief Calvin Edmunds. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs. Longo was driving an automobile late yesterday afternoon on Lincoln avenue at a terrific rate of speed. At the corner of Jefferson avenue and where a traffic beacon stands, Longo reduced the speed of the auto but slightly and rounded the beacon in a reckless manner. At the same time the fire chief was driving in a northerly direction and in the auto with him was his little son. As the car driven by Longo rounded the corner it was traveling at such a fast rate that the Edmunds auto was struck with such force as to cause the child to be hurled against the windshield, which was shattered. The child suffered severe lacerations of the head. Longo did not stop at the time of the crash, but headed toward Bank street. Edmunds gave chase and when he overtook the auto he compelled Longo to accompany him to police headquarters, where the young man was arrested.

Harold Chapman, 39 Brooks street, was charged with reckless driving upon complaint of Romolo Gentilella, 848 Bank street, but the count was nolled. Chapman was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Louis Tooker.

FALL THREE MONTHS AGO SERIOUS FOR S. D. BARNES

Samuel D. Barnes, 186 Lincoln avenue, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from injuries, of a nature not definitely determined. Mr. Barnes, who is employed as night watchman by the proprietors of many stores on State, Bank and Main streets, suffered a fall three months ago and it is believed that the injuries he sustained have now developed until his serious condition caused his being taken to the hospital.

The derailment of a car of a freight train on the Thames river bridge yesterday afternoon caused a slight delay to passenger traffic and was caused by the dislodging of a draw-bar key. The delay was not more than 20 minutes.

But 16 marriage licenses were issued at the office of the city clerk during January and it is doubtful if the number that will be issued this month will exceed that of last month. Among the most recent issuances are licenses to John J. Flaherty, letter carrier, 86 Jefferson avenue and Miss Nora Cumaine; Emil John Ruckert, U. S. Coast Guard, radioman and Miss Bertha L. Whitman, 171 Main street; John Tremaine, United States lighthouse tender Hawthorne and Miss Gertrude Daniels, 5 Howard street, a factory employe.

George. "Cowboy," Sheehan, High street, who several years ago, participated in ring bouts, is engaging in a new role of late years, for he was arrested today for the 16th time and for intoxication. He was arrested on Douglass street by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Dennis Murphy. Sheehan, who was making a nuisance of himself, will be in the police court tomorrow. The last time that Sheehan was arrested was Jan. 21 and on the same charge. The next day in the police court Sheehan was sentenced to 30 days in jail, but execution of the sentence was suspended. Whether he will be treated with the same degree of leniency tomorrow remains to be seen.

The New Haven railroad has installed a sprinkler system at the union station as a fire preventive. The system has been installed in the top floor of the depot, which is not used. Both floors of the remaining portion of the station are always occupied so that in the event of a fire breaking out on the top floor that the sprinkler system will subdue it unless more than an ordinary blaze develops, which is not likely.

SAND WASHED ON TRACK DERAILS A TROLLEY CAR

One of the main line trolley cars of the Connecticut company was derailed this afternoon, but only a slight delay of traffic was experienced. The trolley car in charge of Motorman Livermore was descending the grade on Williams street and approaching Bayonet street. A downpour had washed sand upon the tracks, so that when the wheels passed over the gravel they left the rails. The car continued with one set of trucks off the iron so that it was nearly at a right angle with the rails when it came to a stop. A wrecking car was used to get the derailed car back on the tracks and then traffic was handled normally. No damage resulted.

Attempt to Rob

An employe of the Thames Sheet Iron & Metal company, Hamilton street, reported to the police late today that an attempt had been made to rob the establishment for two lights of glass had been smashed. One of the windows shattered was at the entrance and so that the lock to the door could be manipulated by thrusting a hand through the opening. So far as could be determined if entrance was gained, none of the contents of the building were removed.

COUNCIL REDUCES BUDGET BY A TOTAL OF $105,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 13—The city council sat as a committee tonight in the municipal building in furtherance of an effort to prepare the budget to be presented for the ensuing year to the council at its next regular meeting Monday night next. The budget, as originally prepared, has gradually been reduced $105,000 and of this amount practically half of this reduction is taken from the appropriation of the board of education, for of the request of this body for expenses for conducting the schools, $50,000 asked for the purpose of installing a sprinkler system in several of the grade schools is denied. The appropriating of this money was vigorously opposed at a recent meeting of the council by Councilor William C. Fox, a former member of the board of education. The budget last year called for an expenditure of $1,546,420, and it is believed that this year's appropriation will not exceed that amount. It is possible that the budget will be adopted at the meeting of the council next Monday night.

FAR FOLKS PREFER HOME TALENT DRAMA

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Common in the winter season, home talent plays are giving rural communities a taste for the drama.

Representative of the growing demand, Mrs. P. N. Payne of Cerro Gordo county, Iowa, writes:

"Our community is tired of the much used old time plays showing us how to improve our farms and homes. This, we think, is done better through other sources. A play for a rural community should call for characters of different ages. Our community meetings are made up of entire families, and why not interest the young people in dramatics as well as the older ones? Drama means more now in the rural schools than ever before."

Mrs. Payne won the Iowa state contest for the best staged home talent play.

Teacher: "Johnny, if five sheep were in a field, and one jumped out, how many would be left?"

Johnny: "There wouldn't be any left. You might know arithmetic, but you don't know sheep!"—Great Western Magazine.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Baird Machine Company, Bridgeport

The founder of The Baird Machine company was Joseph H. Baird who was born in Oakville, Conn., in 1837. When 20 years of age, he opened up a shop of his own in Huntington for the manufacture of tools, presses and special machinery. He was a genius in the designing and building of such machines and soon made a name for himself. Profit, however, was a secondary consideration in the making of a machine, if only, as he expressed it, he could "make the dern thing work."

The Baird Machine company was incorporated in 1894 and moved to its present location from Oakville in 1911. Baird machines are known the world over. The chief products are machines for forming wire and ribbon metal, presses, tumbling equipment, and automatic chucking machines in which forgings and castings are made into finished parts.

Because of the vast amount of experience accumulated during the past 70 years, the phrase, "Ask Baird About It," has become a by-word among those interested in ribbon metal and wire forming machinery.

The present officers are: Chas. L. Warner, president and general manager; Burton C. Warner, vice-president and works manager; Arthur J. Lewis, secretary and chief engineer; Leon A. Warner, treasurer and assistant general manager; B. J. Calkins, assistant secretary.

WESTERLY

MILLIS, MASS., DRIVER IN TOO GREAT HURRY TO FLA.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 13.—Harry A. Walker, 37, of Village street, Millis, Mass., was released about noon Thursday in cash bail of $50 by Judge William A. Wilcox in Pawcatuck, for his later appearance in Stonington town court, to answer to a charge of reckless operation of an automobile on the Boston Post road, between Westerly and Mystic. Walker, accompanied by his family, was on a trip to Florida in his Peerless sedan, 445,933, Mass., when first seen by officers of the Groton barracks, Connecticut state police, who under the leadership of Officer Whitmarsh have been especially vigilant to prevent auto accidents by having drivers give closer attention to Connecticut motor vehicle laws. The driver of the Peerless car was reported as proceeding at such high rate of speed, at times 56 miles per hour, that the officer following had difficulty in overtaking the auto. The car was said to have gone at the rate of 57 miles per hour down Lord's Hill and was not overtaken until it slowed down to make the Wilcox curve in Quiambaug. It was here that State Police Officer Charles F. Hill of West Haven overtook the car and had the driver accompany him back to Pawcatuck.

Mrs. Daisy Peabody Hirschfield, former Westerly resident and more recently making her home on Fishers Island before removing with her husband to their new home in the Pacific, writes Westerly friends from Honolulu, Hawaii, under date of Feb. 1. She describes her new home, Boxe, Ft. Kamehameha, T. H., as the "Paradise of the Pacific," the best of the South Sea Islands, that it's "just beautiful," the place to pass a vacation at the next opportunity.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., of Pawcatuck, Worshipful Raymond E. Pendleton, master, held a stated communication Thursday evening in Masonic hall. There has recently been placed on the walls of the Masonic hall reception room a cabinet with glass doors within which have been placed the Masonic jewels, bequeathed to Pawcatuck lodge by the late Past Grand Master of Masons in Connecticut Thomas McKenzie, who died at his Elm street home in Westerly, July 28, last.

HOUDINI JOHN CRANE JUMPS FROM PLANE INTO LOVE

Noank's Houdini, John Crane has got out of everything from straight jackets to packing boxes and never was stuck. Tuesday afternoon as the wind was blowing off the ocean Houdini had one up his sleeve: something new to him; "But when Steve Brodie took a chance off Brooklyn bridge I don't see why I cannot make good," he said. There was not a large crowd on hand because of such a clam tide that hardly a person was left in the village, all going with their clam hoes. "Well, my new stunt is a jump off the highest thing or building in town!" so taking the airplane umbrella he started for the water tank at Groton Long Point, which is almost 100 feet from the ground. Only a few people went over to see him do his stuff. Getting to the top, how that mean wind did blow! "I thought it was going to blow me off before I could show a handful of people shaking like a jar of jelly on a holiday table a stunt never been done around this part of the world," he said. It was 2 o'clock when Trainer Walter Wilkes said, Are you ready, Hand-cuff King, for your long ride through the February air? "Sure I am! All set!" So taking a good, deep breath and counting three, Houdini Crane jumped. The umbrella opened and he was sailing through the air. In five minutes he landed half way across an open lot, right in a water hole. "It was about up to my waist, but I was unhurt!" he said. The small crowd cheered him for several minutes and the worst that Houdini Crane got was wet feet. "Gee!" Mike Duffy said, "How did it feel going through the air?" "Old Top, just like eating a piece of pumpkin pie! But I was afraid the parachute would not open and Houdini would kiss this world good-bye! But when about 25 feet from the tank I was counting the stars, for I thought the umbrella had failed me. What a feeling it was! Gee, talk about Bobby Jones hitting the ball for the 18th hole at golf and making it O. K.! I made it like Bobby did so add that stunt to my list! It was no kind of a day to try the jump, for the ground was hard and I might have broken a leg if I did not land in the water. I thank those who braved the cold wind to see me do that jump. Also Scott McBride for using his auto to take me over.

"I can remember once in a small town in Canada where an airplane took me up about 1,000 feet or more to jump. It was my first try at that game. A bet of $200 by a butter-and-egg man who had more money than John D. Rockefeller had dimes! The fellow at the wheel of the airplane, Shooting Star Philip McCann took me up and I was afraid to be so high in the air and felt my feet up to my nose and could see people on the ground small as bugs. Getting over a big field where no houses were in sight McCann said, "Are you ready?" "Yes!" So I jumped and it seemed that I went 200 feet or more through the Canadian air before the umbrella opened. Gee! Everything I did in my life came back to me! Thought my day had come! But the parachute opened and I was happy going through the air. I made a good landing in a farmer's cornfield among about 2,000 ears of corn, breaking down many stalks. Farmer Peter Grant saw me and came on the run with a dog and told me to get out of his corn. I told my story about the jump. Well you are smart to do a stunt like that! But see that poor corn you've spoiled on me—about $80 dollars' worth. Well, I said, old timer, wipe the tear-drops away for here is your money for the damage that Noank Houdini did! Gee, the farmer was all smiles and told me to come up to the house and have supper, for it was in the afternoon that the jump was made. The three of us went up to the house about three-quarters of a mile away where his wife, Mrs. Grant, had everything ready for us, while his daughter, Pearl, pretty as a picture on the wall, waited on table. So I was putting my feet under a farmer's table loaded with everything a man wanted to eat. It was roast pig, brown as high yellow neck in the south; and whipped cream cake that would melt in your mouth, made by the girl. I had two pieces, it was so good; that was the best meal I ever had. I picked up my hat to leave for the town where I was staying. Pearl said, 'Where are you going so early. Stay and tell about your jump from the airplane. I would love to hear it.' You couldn't say no to a pretty farmer girl like that, so going into the parlor that was as large as a dance hall, with a big fire place and a radio in the corner, hand made rugs on the floor, etc., the family came in, so I had to tell about the airplane jump and why I did it and how I came to land among the 2000 ears of corn of Mr. Grant and won $200. Pearl said, 'Why do you do those things? You might get killed.' I am also a handcuff king. I can get out of anything that has a chain to it or a straight-jacket. I've been doing those stunts a long while." "Mr. Crane why don't you give up these things before it is too late and you get hurt?" Houdini got stuck on the farmer's daughter. It was love at first sight. It was a late hour when Houdini Crane left for the town after a real evening with the Grant family.

"The next day the mayor of the town gave me a big time where the hall was packed. Again I had to tell the story about the jump, I being the first one to do it. Talk about things they gave me! Like Lindy got when he hopped to Paris and which are in Forrest Park building in St. Louis. Wow! Gee! Believe me, I was happy and my picture was in several papers so I will never forget that time!

"While in Noank I still hear from Pearl and some day she can make my whipped cream cake in this village! I will take a vacation this summer and spend a few weeks in Canada and learn to be a farmer! But it will be hard for me to give up getting out of chains. I will do those stunts until the knot is tied. I will have to move to Canada!" Then the fishing village will lose its Houdini, John Crane.

Big Flood Recalled

Feb. 13 was the anniversary of the great flood of 44 years ago. Those who are watching the construction work at the big viaduct, find special interest as they recalled the alarming heights to which the water ran. These facts are of more importance today, because right where the flood rose the highest and where its raging torrent swept everything before it, is a long row of the new bridge piers, which had they stood then where they stand now, would all have been under water.

D. A. R. DELEGATES NAMED FOR COMING CONVENTIONS

Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., observed Lincoln's birthday at the home of the regent, Mrs. Charles E. Spicer, Wednesday afternoon. During the business meeting, it was announced that the Sons of the American Revolution had caused a marker to be placed on the grave of Asa Partridge in the Geer cemetery, and asked that the chapter place a flag upon it for Memorial day. Resolutions were placed upon the records expressing sorrow for the death of two members, Mrs. Ida B. Ladd and Mrs. F. L. Kanahan. Mrs. A. M. Brown was appointed to investigate the furnishings of the chapter's room in Backus hospital. The delegates appointed recently to attend the state meeting in Bridgeport in March are: Mrs. Spicer and Mrs. J. P. Post with Mrs. J. H. Tracy, first alternate, and Miss Alice Brown, second alternate. The delegate to the National Congress in Washington in April is Mrs. Spicer and the alternates are Miss Ida Foster, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Mrs. J. P. Post, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Mrs. F. S. Leonard, Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. F. A. Faust, Miss Alice Brown and Mrs. H. E. Olsen. Miss Idella Young prepared the special program and opened it by repeating from memory Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. She told many incidents about Lincoln and Washington. Miss Young has a wonderful collection of stamps, also photographs of men whose pictures appear on them which she exhibited giving the history of many. At this meeting, Mrs. Brown, chairman of the patriotic education committee, had asked the members to bring some article to be sent to the Hindman school, in Hindman, Ky., and many useful articles were received. Mrs. Spicer served ice cream and cake.

Miss Clara Hyde was a waitress at the chicken pie supper held in Lisbon Community hall Tuesday evening.

PICTURESQUE MEXICO THROUGH CONNECTICUT EYES

Writing from *303 Fifth avenue, San Diego, Calif., under date of Feb. 3, Mr. Ross says:

Wherever we drive, out of the city we are always in sight of the mountains.

To the south is Mexico and mountains, to the north are canyons, valleys, mesas and mountains. To the east almost immediately we are in the mountains, the distant mountains to the east are covered with snow.

Driving east the other day to El Cajon (El Cahon), we met a number of autos with sleds strapped to the running boards. These cars usually had children in them.

Driving south last week we entered Mexico at Tijuana (Tiwana), then to Agua Caliente (Ahwah Calaentar, the Monte Carlo of America. Here are a casino and hotel. The sleeping rooms of the hotel are in detached, small buildings surrounding the patio. The casino is part of the hotel—several gambling rooms and a bar. The bar opens from all the gambling rooms and is about 150 feet long. These buildings are in Mission style and are very elaborate. The Spanish thought is carried out in everything.

The buildings are gorgeously colored, in reds and brown and yellows, with antique ironwork, the mission bell towers surmount the main building. This American Monte Carlo is a stock company owned by Americans, mostly. It is made very attractive to draw the crowds. Here was held the golf tournament with $25,000 offered in prizes, the first for $10,000.

The gardens are worked by Mexicans dressed as peons, wearing enormous straw hats. The bell boys are dressed in varied colored uniforms. Blue with silver buttons and slashed trousers (to the knee (slashed in silver). Red uniforms, with gold slashings and sashes. The bellboys all wore patent leather hats, stiff, wide brim. Young girls dressed as caballeros, very tight trousers, yellow sashes, high-heeled shoes, were going about the casino selling cigarettes.

The two orchestras were the most strikingly dressed. Brilliant in scarlet and gold; very wide sashes, wide hat bands of gold dollars on their hats.

About a mile from the casino is the new race track. This track is one of the finest in the world. It is so arranged that the horses can race at and distance, from two furlongs to a mile. These races are all running races and are nearly all handicap races. The horses are handicaped by added weight.

Pools are sold on all races. The first race we saw, the $2 mutuels, paid $91.40. That is, whoever bet $2 on the winner, won $91.40. In the second race, $2 mutuels paid $4.20. In this race five yards from the finish the fourth horse snapped his rear fore leg, falling and throwing the jockey. There was a great deal of sympathy expressed for the horse, no one seemed to care for the jockey. He was not hurt. Some one said he did as well as the Prince of Wales.

Rather a pitiful sight to see the lame horse walk off trying to put his foot to the ground. One of the family did not want to see any more races!

The great day is Sunday. No races on Mondays. It is said that on Mondays the money brought to San Diego in armored cars is from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, this includes two days' winnings and includes the casino, as wel as the race track. This is a great sum of money to gather in two days. The bar must bring in a good sum. The rooms in the hotel and the cottages around the patio are from $8 up. The gambling tables in the casino are well patronized, in fact, at the great center roulette table it was almost impossible to get near enough to see all the plays. I watched the croupier (the man who takes in all the money), and tried to fathom what was in his mind, or, perhaps I wished to find out just what kind of a man he was. He had a cast in his eyes, one eye was turned out farther than the other (nalleyed). I spoke of this to someone near me. They said "he could see the number where the marble stopped and the number on the table at the same time."

There were 10 or 15 tables and all were more or less busy. There was only this center table for roulette, the other tables were card games and dice.

The crowd there was from all stata of life, not all gambling or drinking at the bar. Men and women, no children under 16. One woman with a shawl over her head (chal) laid down a Mexican dollar and received four 25 cent chips. These she played very carefully. I watched to see her win, for I think she was poor. She lost 75 cents in three plays, and then she won. She lost at times, yet when she left the table she had a handful of silver dollars and some in her dress pocket. She went to the bar and bought a bottle of wine and took a drink at the bar.

A young woman of rather striking appearance put down a $20 bill and received 20 dollar chips. She played to win and was rather impatient when she lost. I saw her when she had six piles of 25 dollar chips in front of her. To make this clear, she had six stacks of chips, each stack having 25 chips worth $1 each. She had $150.

I saw her afterward go to the bar and get a drink. She had taken off her beautiful fur coat. I don't know what she drank, it looked like water. She made rather a wiry face. She went back to the table and bought $20 worth of chips and began over again. I did not see the end of her gambling.

A very old woman, white hair, and feeble, began with 100 $1 chips. These melted away gradually and I saw her leave the room. In a few minutes coming back with an old man and he (under protest) gave her a roll of bills. Another woman, in deep mourning, began at a card table and lost at every play. Then going to the dice table, where she won at first, and I think left only a few dollars, then to another card table where she won and won.

Going to the roulette table she played always on the red (3 for 1), where she lost all she had. I do not know as this interests you, yet it will give you an idea of what is going on across the border, only three miles from the line between Mexico and the United States.

I have not mentioned any men, although there were hundreds of them there. One man I saw loose $100 on two plays. Another man had in front of him at one time about $1,000 worth of chips. He got up to take off his coat but he was made to put it on again, no man was allowed to play in his shirt sleeves. Our hats, overcoats and canes were taken away from us when we went in and returned to us when we left. I do not know how busy the gambling is on Sundays. I am told that to get a seat at any of the tables a person has to wait a long time. More than a half hour.

There were two croupiers at the center table, the wheel being in the center of the table, and these men were so busy taking in the chips and money they had two helpers to stack the money and chips. The marble did not whirl more than ten seconds at a time, so you see that in one minute there were 5 or 6 plays.

After leaving the race track we came home through Tijuana and beside the road we saw a cock pit where the Mexicans fight game cocks and little farther along a bull ring where on certain days there are bull fights.

I think the most picturesque thing we saw in Mexico was a sergeant of police. His uniform was of twilight blue, gold braid on cap and coat, scarlet sash and belt in black patent leather, a heavy revolver and sword with scabbard of silver plate.

We expect to come home via the Panama canal on steamship Ecuador, of the Panama Mail Steamship line. We will sail from San Francisco March 22, arriving in New York (Brooklyn, I think), April 21st. We touch at six different countries and have a chance to go ashore for a few hours, to one or two days, at different places. We bring our machine with us.

Last week we had a call from Harold ("Dick") Herbert and his sweet-faced German bride. The bride was very interesting and more than ordinarily intelligent. Dick was very proud of her and he had good reason to be proud. They are living in this city at present. Dick wants to go to Washington (state) or Oregon, is not very well, but improving, he told us.

I will tell you about Balboa Park in another letter.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

THE MARKET GARDENER'S OPPORTUNITY

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

There was a time when Connecticut was chiefly reputed for its manufacture of wooden nutmegs.

Later it plunged into the working of brass and the growing of tobacco.

This was even before it took on the selling of sound shore lots to rich New Yorkers as a comparatively steady occupation.

Now I am informed that it manufactures something over 700 different kinds of factory and shop products, to say nothing of quarrying granite and digging clams.

But how about its agriculture? Its total acreage is small compared with such states as Illinois or Iowa; its soil is thin and infertile under any similar comparison; its climate is not always benign, and its "growing season" is curtailed by late spring and early fall forests.

And yet, the little state does enough farming to be considered worthy the attention of a state department of agriculture. The report of this department for the year ending June 30, 1929, lies before me as I write. It is a modest but rather meaty document—one deserving the thoughtful attention of all the responsible citizens of the state—those not personally working land as truly as "dirt farmers."

According to the information of Commissioner Buckingham, Connecticut has still over 122,000 milch cows and yearling heifers. They produced last year more than 312,000,000 quarts of milk. The annual business of just one milk producers' association exceeds $12,000,000. Tobacco brought in over $11,000,000. The apple and peach crops accounted for more than $2,400,000.

A better than $25,000,000 income from just three farm lines doesn't warrant the small state in bragging, but it is not to be ignored, either. And this leaves out of the figuring all such things as poultry and grain and potatoes and vegetables, etc. Taking all forms of farm production into account, it would be a conservative estimate that their total sales aggregate more than $50,000,000 a year. How much should be added to for the grains and fruits and meats and vegetables consumed on the farms where they are produced is purely a matter for guess-work. Having had some experience with Connecticut farmers, and having always found them "good providers" not only for their families but for their animals, I should be inclined to guess that they ate up or fed out fully as much as they sold, taking them "by and large" and from Cos Cob to Woodstock. If that guess is worth considering, then it means that Connecticut's farms, last year, contributed a round hundred million to the state's income.—The state's income, not the state government's.

And a hundred million dollars isn't to be sneezed at by any man less well fixed than Henry Ford or John D. Rockefeller.

There's one paragraph in the 1929 report which I want to quote in full, and hope those of my readers who aren't working farmers will be willing to read to the last word. Here it is:

"The nation is begining to realize that farming is more than a business; that it is a mode of living which produces a trend of thought and a type of character which this nation cannot afford to lose. This problem, like other economic and social problems, lies beyond political relief. Legislation can at most merely furnish agriculture with the ways and means for working out her salvation. The actual solution must be worked out by the farmers themselves from an exact knowledge of the facts and problems involved . . . . It is not merely the farmer's problem, for agriculture is a fundamental industry and her problems cannot be brushed aside by the city dweller any more than they can by the farmer himself. History has demonstrated that the strength and prosperity of a nation depend very largely upon the prosperity of its agriculture, and that the wealth of a nation, the character of its people, the quality and permanence of its institutions are all dependent on a sound and sufficient agricultural foundation."

Isn't that just about what you and I have been saying? Doesn't it permit your venerable Uncle John Farmer the incomparable luxury of exclaiming: "I told ye so. I told ye so!"

The farm is not merely a factory or a shop or a store or an office. It must be a little of all four but, above and beyond all such functionings, it is a home, and real farming is, first of all, home-making. The farm is not a means which the farmer exploits, but an end towards which and with which he grows. It is not merely something off which he lives, but an integral and inseparable part of his life itself.

Moreover, as Commissioner Buckingham says, the "trend of thought and type of character" which the farm encourages are something this nation cannot afford to lose. The thought may not always be logical and the type of character may sometimes be too narrowly dogmatic. But both are based on the substantial verities of nature, and not, as too much city thought and character are, on the fluctuating fads of vulgar conventionalities.

Coming back from general principles to concrete cases, the commissioner hasn't a very hopeful report to make of the Connecticut vegetable industry. As this is the one form of farming which I know most about I couldn't but be deeply interested. He reports that it is facing keen competition from outside areas; also that the absorption of much of the best market-garden land by city expansions and the soaring wage-scale have tended hugely to increase the costs of production, thereby of course diminishing the profits.

Now, my prognostications for Connecticut farming are that it must turn more and more completely to market-gardening and steadily away from large-scale farming. The state is filled with cities, all demanding fresh and good vegetables and all rather more willing to buy from neighbors than from strangers, other things being equal. Commissioner Buckingham is of the opinion that Connecticut vegetable growers must find some way of securing lower production costs, and that they need to pay greater heed to the desires of the buying public. Both things seem highly reasonable. Getting farther away from the reach of city "realtors" where land isn't valued in building lots will help to reduce production costs. Uniform grading and packing, standardized containers, etc., will also help, without doubt.

But there's one other phase of the situation which mustn't be ignored. That is the market gardener's own attitude towards his customers. If he regards them as too many "sharp" traders do, as just sheep to be shorn, cattle to be milked, pockets to be picked for his own profit, he may flourish for a season, but not for long. He will be found out, sooner or later. But, if he meets his customer halfway every time—if he gives always a little over-weight or a trifling over-measure—if he is more willing to give the half cent on a small deal than to collect it—if he sincerely tries to find out his market's whims and play up to them—if he grows for his trade what his trade wants, not just what he likes to grow—if he stands behind every deal and is not only willing but eager to make good any shortage or correct any mistake—why, then, I'm inclined to think there's a place for him in the sun, notwithstanding high land and labor costs.

Of course, this involves a persistent and almost pernickety attention to small details. Some may say it is not adapted to the doing of big business in a big business way. Well, truck-growing and market gardening will usually have to be comparatively small businesses, each meeting the demands of a market near enough and small enough for the truck-grower to know it from its toenails up.

The big truck-growers of New Jersey and Virginia and Florida and Texas can't sell direct to their customers. Their markets are hundreds of miles away. They have to sell in carload lots to reduce transportation expense, and they have to grow such things as will produce the biggest yields at the least unit cost, regardless of quality. This leads to the market being flooded with second-rate, stale vegetables which hurt the Connecticut producer—in certain quarters. But they help him in other directions. There is always a considerable and growing class in every community which would rather buy fresh local asparagus the same day it is cut, and fresh green corn the same day it is broken, and fresh peas the same day they're picked than stale stuff, imported from Lord knows where and pawed over by Lord knows how many dirty, perhaps infected hands.

That is the market the local market gardener can take and keep against all competition, if he understands his opportunity and is capable of living up to it.

But he's got to meet stale goods with fresh ones; he's got to meet under-weights and short measures with over-running ones; he's got to supply mild white onions instead of stronger yellow ones, if the mild whites are what his market wants, no matter though they're harder to grow and less productive. And so on and on. Above all, he's got to make and keep it absolutely clear in every customer's mind that everything he sells is exactly what he represents it to be, or—"your money back and no questions asked."

With its big and hungry cities just beside almost every rural town, with its limited acreage which forbids the branching out into "big farming," market-gardening seems to this old truck-grower just exactly the sort of farming for Connecticut to go it for.

But, to be successful, it will for the present at least have to be done in a comparatively small, individual way. Standardizing and co-operation will help in their own fields, later on.

But the man with only ten or a dozen acres of suitable garden must accept the day of small things and begin, at any rate, in a small way—and an insuredly individual way.

There's room for and at least living returns from a good many more small Connecticut market-gardens.

THE FARMER.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean; thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

If any of your youngsters develop a cough from a cold that hangs on, use sensible precautions immediately and give them Creomulsion. Help their strong youthful bodies to fight coughs from colds with Creomulsion. It is pleasant, easy to take.

Creomulsion is an old remedy now. Millions know its merits and like it. We guarantee that it will relieve coughs from colds, or we'll refund your money. Adv.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"One good turn deserves another," so Bessie Love and Charlie King, the popular favorites of "Broadway Melody," which scored such a tremendous worldwide success last season have been teamed up again by Metro in the rousing, peppy, brand-new musical sensation "Chasing Rainbows," which opens at the Broadway tomorrow. Lavish use of technicolor, with plenty of comedy, a touch of drama, but with pep the keynote throughout, with clever dancing, song numbers which are already a sensation with orchestras and broadcasters, and with Bessie Love's clever artistry, Charlie King's melodies, the buffoonery of Jack Benny, George K. Arthur, and that inimitable team, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, has produced a spectacle that for sheer beauty, speed and class, has never been equalled. Stepping boldly away from the usual methods, the director, Charles (Chuck) Reisner, has made the revue scenes, beautiful as they are, secondary in importance to the fast moving story of the two young troupers, with the young husband developing a "femme" complex which bids fair to wreck not only their act but their very lives. The belated awakening of the young fool comes in time, however, thanks to the contriving of the entire troupe, and everything ends happily with the most rousing chorus number ever written, "Happy Days Are Here Again." Those movie fans who revelled in the beauty and pageantry of "Broadway Melody" have a brand new "rave" in store for them in "Chasing Rainbows." On the same bill are shown the latest Paramount Sound news, with three selected Vitaphone specialties, and William O'Neal, famous baritone, in "On the March," a breath from the Foreign Legion on a Sahara campaign, with a wonderful soldier's chorus. The double features "Wall Street" and "The Song of Love," have their final showings tonight.

Breed Theatre

"Tide of Empire," Peter B. Kyne's vivid drama of the California gold rush, with Renee Adoree, George Duryea, William Collier, Jr., and a huge cast, is the attraction now playing at the Breed theatre, with synchronized score and sound effects. This spectacular Cosmopolitan production, directed by Allan Dwan at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, is the love story of the Spanish heroine and her Irish prospector lover, set in the grim struggles of the pioneers who overthrew Spanish rule in the west. The discovery of gold, historic founding of the Wells Fargo Express and the rise of the vigilantes form dramatic highlights. Hundreds of people appear in the vivid production, which was produced on a most lavish scale, employing many historic locations and descendants of some of the early pioneers the story tells about.

Palace Theater

Less than two weeks ago the Palace theater was presenting one of the most charming of the musical comedies of our time, "Sally." Tomorrow it brings another, equally alluring and tuneful, the screen version of "No, No, Nanette," starring beautiful Bernice Claire and Alexander Gray. Mr. Gray, it will be remembered, played opposite Marilyn Miller in "Sally," and his voice and acting is just as memorable in this production as in the former.

An uproarious story is told in "No, No, Nanette," a story which has as much and more comedy to it as had "Sally." To give away the whole plot would be unfair, but it is sufficient to say that it concerns the love and troubles of a charming young couple who can sing and dance like nobody's business. A couple of misunderstood wives and their poor husbands are also part of the story, to say nothing of countless charming young women who help to keep the plot continuously laughable and enjoyable.

It is impossible to keep from being excited about the music. Think of all the beautiful songs in "No, No, Nanette." There is, for instance, "King of the Air," charming melody. Then also there are "The Japanese Ballet," "The Dance of the Wooden Shoes," "Dancing on Mars," "Pretending," "I Want to be Happy," and "Tea for Two."

Those who saw the "Gold Diggers" will remember the tall sophisticated blonde, chorus girl, Lilyan Tashman. Well, Lilyan is in "No, No, Nanette" too, and has a hard time keeping her husband subjugated? She is even forced to put detectives on his trail, and how she chases that man once she becomes suspicious of his long train rides and absences from home.

Today for the last times the Palace presents its double feature bill including that striking drama, "The Other Tomorrow" with Grant Withers and Billie Dove, and that uproarious comedy, "The Aviator," in which Edward Everett Horton tries to look like one and actually gets away with it.

Plainfield Community House

A famous radio band will appear at the Plainfield Community house tonight when Paul Specht and his New England Majestic orchestra are here for one performance.

Mr. Specht's Georgians are a smaller unit of musicians famous for their recordings to "hot" dance music and for broadcasting of the same kind of harmony. The Georgians have been combined with the Original Specht orchestra, and the two bands are appearing under the personal direction of Mr. Specht for a short American tour.

Among the original radio dance bands having broadcast from Station WJZ as early as 1922, Mr. Specht numbers his radio listeners by the millions. This band was the first regular feature to be broadcast to a New York station regularly from a remote control point, as in 1923 special telephone wires were run from the New York studio of WJZ to Philadelphia, where Mr. Specht's orchestra was appearing, so that the regular broadcasts of this famous musical organization would not be lost to the listeners of WJZ.

Broadway Theatre

Manager Fitz has an unique stunt in connection with the showing of "Chasing Rainbows," the all-talking musical comedy, successor to the "Broadway Melody," which opens at the Broadway tomorrow. "Chasing Rainbows" has always been a popular diversion on account of the age-old superstition that a pot of gold lies waiting at the end of the rainbow for the persistent searcher. Mr. Fitz has arranged not one, but three "pots of gold," on display respectively at the Broadway lobby, at 267 Main street, and at 14 Broadway. "Guess-coupons" are distributed at the theatre with blank spaces for guessing the contents of the unique "pots," and the nearest guess in each case will be rewarded with the cash contents of the pot.

Will Address Hadassah Meeting

Modern developments in Palestine, especially pertaining to health conditions, in which American Jewish women are directly interested, will be the subject of an address next Monday evening at Buckingham Memorial by Mrs. Alexander Lamport of New York who has just returned to this country, after spending seven months in Palestine.

The meeting is under the auspices of Norwich chapter of Hadassah, of which Mrs. Abelman is president. Mrs. Herman Sears will be chairman of the meeting.

Mrs. Lamport observed closely, not only the Hadassah health methods, but the general life and atmosphere of Palestine. She also attended the Hebrew university in Jerusalem, sitting at lectures on Orientalism and archaeology. She will give her impressions of Palestine and is a speaker of vitality and charm and gives a vivid and interesting picture of her subject.

Woman's City Club Supper

The members of the Woman's City club will gather at the Wauregan hotel on Tuesday evening, at 6 o'clock, for supper and a social hour. Mrs. Charles Schwenk's singing will add to the enjoyment of the occasion.

A business meeting will follow, starting at 7:30. Members are requested to notify Miss Amy F. Burlingame by phone, of their intention to be present at the supper meeting, by Saturday night. See adv.

POETRY

The Princess

The stone-gray roses by the desert's rim
Are soft-edged shadows on the moonlit sand,
Gray are the broken walls of Khangavar,
That haunt of nightingales, whose voices are
Fountains that bubble in the dream-soft moon.

Shall the Gazelles with moonbeam pale bright feet
Entering the vanished gardens sniff the air—
Some scent may linger of that ancient time,
Musician's song or poet's passionate rhyme,
The Princess dead, still wandering lovesick there.

A Princess pale and cold as mountain snow,
In cool, dark chambers sheltered from the sun,
With long, jack lashes and small delicate hands:
To kiss her mouth men sighed in many lands
Until in shifting sand they buried her.

And the Gazelles shall flit by in the moon,
And never shake the frail Tree's lightest leaves,
And moonlight roses perfume the pale Dawn
Until the scarlet life from her lips drawn
Gathers its scattered beauty in the sky.

—W. J. Turner.

Refuge

I shall go down from the stark, gray stone towers,
Out from this town—the dogs that howl at its gates—
The sad clocks strike the eternal hours
And my refuge waits.

I shall go forth with sandals and a crust,
Before the evil, stupid, friendly feet
Have stopped my singing mouth with choking dust,
Stamped from the common street.

For hope has planted vineyards in a place
Of valleys where a heart may lie at ease,
And dreams can dally with a shy, young thought,
Naked among the silver birchen trees.

There Æolus will play a willow harp,
Soft as the autumn light upon a hill,
And dipping swallows leave tight water rings
Which widen with a motion that is still.

—Hervey Allen.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Has Archie proposed yet?"

"No, but last night I saw a folder on Niagara Falls in his inside pocket."—Pathfinder.

The two cracksmen had been toiling for hours at a tough safe. They were about to give up when one of them rose and moved toward the telephone.

"Whatcha doin'?" asked his mate, alarmed.

"This is sure to work," said the first with a sigh. "I'll ask the wife to come over."—Boston Transcript.

"What's the trouble?" asked Jones, when one of his most popular jokes failed to score a chuckle.

"Let me see," said the solemn one, thoughtfully. "I've got to buy some flowers, some chocolates, and the theatre tickets, and—"

"Doing mental arithmetic?" asked his friend.

"Sentimental arithmetic," sighed the young man sadly.—Answers.

BIRTHDAY NEVER EXCITED WASHINGTON, DIARY SHOWS

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George Washington never got much of a lift out of his birthday, his diary indicates.

A good many of them he spent quite ordinarily, sometimes alone, but once he had rather an elegant time.

A birthday event which he undoubtedly enjoyed to the utmost was on February 22, 1799, the year of his death. On that day at peaceful Mount Vernon he gave way in marriage his beloved adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, to Mayor Lawe Lewis, his favorite nephew.

Washington's diary for February 22, 1799, carries a note of the marriage of Miss Custis "about candlelight."

The bride wanted her foster father to appear in his "splendidly embroidered gold uniform," but the wore his continental blue and buff one with the continental cocked hat bearing the plain black ribbon lockade of the brave days of '76.

Frequently the diary notes that on his birthday he "rid to the Ferry plantation and Muddy Hole," or "rid to my mill today." Sometimes he remained at home all day alone.

Again, he set out lilac bushes and other flowers at Mount Vernon to tidy up the place.

The farm appeared to have fascinated him particularly on that day, for he tried out new plows, and made reports on the condition of the soil as well as the way fences should run.

FIRST PETITION UNDER CUBA'S NEW DIVORCE LAWS

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Cuba's new divorce laws, which lift all criminal penalties in cases of adultery and make it only grounds for divorce, were today used for the first time in a petition filed for the immediate freedom of 22-year-old Carmen Rosa Roman held in the city jail on charges of unfaithfulness.

As the laws are retroactive, all those serving terms for adultery are expected to take advantage of the simplified code to gain freedom.

A survey of the jails showed that most of the prisoners held on such charges are women. It was explained that under the old Cuban laws a woman, if convicted, was forced to serve time. The man usually escaped.

FINDS NEW LONDON FIRE CONDITIONS UNSATISFACTORY

The volunteer system of the New London fire department is partly blamed by the National Fire Protection association for what it terms "distinctly unsatisfactory" conditions prevailing in that city according to a news letter issued by the association.

The letter states that the congested district is made up largely of inferior unprotected buildings, and residential areas are largely of frame construction with many wooden shingled roofs. Ocean Beach is characterized as a "severe conflagration hazard."

"The fire department," the news letter continues, "is well equipped with apparatus. The membership, however, is made up of 1,124 volunteers and 26 full-paid members, the latter being on the two-platoon basis.

"Records show at many fires a suitable working crew is not available which indicates a satisfactory response of the volunteers is not being made.

"A proposal to replace four of the existing old and unsuitable fire houses with one modern central station, including a safe location for the fire alarm headquarters and a drill tower, was reported to have been rejected by the city council on account of the unfavorable attitude on the part of the volunteers.

"With the small number of full-paid members on duty, which provides practically only enough to drive apparatus, much dependence must be placed on the volunteer membership. As a result of the unsatisfactory response of the volunteer force actual fire fighting strength is limited, thus tending toward inefficiency of operation at fires.

"The building code requires considerable amplification including adoption of an ordinance prohibiting the use of wooden shingles. In addition, fire prevention ordinances are meager."

JOHN FLYNN RECALLS FRESHET 44 YEARS AGO

Thursday's storm brought to the mind of John Flynn, of Boswell avenue, memories of the river rising forty-four years ago, (Feb. 13, 1886). Ice piled up against the bridge that was near Rose Alley, causing the water to flow over the banks.

Mr. Flynn was then employed as a barber with the George Aloff shop which was located where Mara's drug store is now. He stated that the first they noticed of the water was when it worked its way up through the floor while he was shaving one of the customers. The mills in Greeneville also suffered heavy losses at this time by damage, both to cloth and machinery.

COMPILES LIST OF INTERMENTS IN OLD NORWICH FIRST BURYING GROUND

From a search of vital statistics, land and probate records, Mrs. Edna Miner Rogers, the well known genealogical authority of Norwich, has compiled a list of those of the original settlers of Norwich and their descendants who must have been buried in the First Burial Place of the town, close to the present location of the Mason monument at Norwich Town.

There are the names of 65 adults and 23 children in the list which she has compiled, but, in her opinion, other names could probably be added to the list by a more thorough study of the various records.

In connection with the compilation of the lists, Mrs. Rogers makes the following contribution:

THE FIRST BURIAL PLACE OF NORWICH, CONN.

In the rear of the historic center, or First Church of Hartford, Conn., lies the first burial place of that town. Interments were made here as early as 1640, and for many years it was the town's only burying place. It has been estimated that there were nearly 6,000 burials here, but only a comparatively small number of gravestones were standing when Dr. Hoadley copied the inscriptions in 1835. High buildings were erected around the place, trees grew there to a great size and the burial place almost disappeared from public view.

In 1897, Ruth Wyllys chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Hartford, commenced the restoration of this sacred spot and today it is a beautiful historic memorial of the past. About 1835, a monument was erected near the center of the ground, commemorating the founders and first settlers of the town, and it still stands bearing its silent witness to them.

In 1871, a monument, perhaps suggested by this one in Hartford, was erected in Norwich, to the memory of Major John Mason and the Founders of Norwich, and was placed close to the first burial place of the town. This monument, like the one in the first burial place of Hartford, bears the names of the first settlers, the founders of the town. Unfortunately no stones of any kind were left to mark these early graves; interments began here in 1661 and continued till about 1706, when the second burial place was used, but a few persons either by privilege or choice, were interred here till 1749.

Of the thirty-five original settlers, Rev. James Fitch and John Birchard removed to Lebanon, and rest in the burying ground there. Deacon Thomas Bingham removed to Windham, Conn and he and his wife lie in the old Windham cemetery. Richard Henry probably died in Killingworth, Conn., and Thomas Howard was killed in the Narragansett fort fight in December, 1675.

Of the other founders, five lived to be interred in the second burial place, now called the Norwich Town burying ground. Here lie Deacon Simon Huntington who died in 1706, and his wife Sarah Clarke; Deacon Thomas Adgate, who died in 1707, and his second wife, Mary (Marvin) Bushnell; Thomas Waterman, who died in 1708; John Post, who died in 1710, and Stephen Gifford, who died in 1724, and his wife Hannah.

In old burial places the graves were in rows, and close together; the coffins were simple affairs and so took up much less room than those of today. Joshua Hempstead, in his diary, tells of going to a house in the morning to make a coffin, staying to dinner, and attending the funeral in the afternoon.

Though no stones are left and probably with few exceptions, these stones had borne no inscriptions, and there is no record of burials, yet the accompanying list has been gathered from vital, land and probate records, of some of those who must have been buried here. They lived in this part of the town, attended the First Church of Norwich, and in due season were gathered to their fathers. The list is as follows, with dates of death:

Mary (Andrews) Post, died 1661; William Backus, 1663; Sarah, wife of Thomas Rood, 1668, Anne (Stanton) (Bingham) Backus, 1670; Lieut. Francis Griswold, 1671; Sarah Griswold, his widow; Major John Mason, 1672; Mrs. Anne Mason, before him,—; John Bradford, 1675; Martha (Bourne) (Bradford) Tracy, before 1683; Richard Wallis, 1675; John Reynolds, Jr., 1675; Josiah Rockwell, Sr., 1675; Capt. John Mason, 1676; Samuel Hyde, 1677; Thomas Bliss, Jr., 1681; Robert Wade, 1682; William Hyde, 1682; Joanna ( ) (Abel) Hyde, —; Mehitabel (Smith) Abel, 1685; Lieut. Thomas Tracy, 1685; his first wife who died before, 1676; Nehemiah Smith, 1686; Ann (Bourne) Smith, —; John Elderkin, 1687; Elizabeth (Gaylord) Elderkin, —; Sarah (Huntington) Tracy, 1683; Ruth (Huntington) Pratt, 1683; Elizabeth (Mason) Fitch, 1684; Stephen Reynolds, 1687; Thomas Bliss, 1688; Elizabeth, his wife, died before 1700; Christian (Andrews) Birchard —; Sarah (Saxton) Roath, 1688; Elizabeth ( ) Backus, 1695; Dr. John Olmstead, 1686; Elizabeth (Marvin) Olmstead, 1698; Hugh Calkins, 1691; his wife Ann ( ) Calkins —; Christopher Huntington, 1691; Samuel Leffingwell, 1691; Ann (Dickinson) Leffingwell, 1691; Ruth (Rockwell) Huntington, —; Richard Edgerton, 1692; his wife, Mary Sylvester—; John Edgerton, 1692; Elizabeth ( ) Roberts, 1692; Hannah (Adgates) Lathrop, 1695; Stephen Backus, 1695; Benjamin Abel, 1699; Samuel Lothrop, 1700; his wife, Elizabeth Scudder, before 1690; Margaret (Post) Abel, 1700; Thomas Post, 1701; John Tracy, 1702; John Reynolds, 1702; John Gager, 1703; Elizabeth, his wife, —; Obadiah Post, 1703; John Calkins, 1703; John Baldwin,—; Morgan Bowers—; his wives, Judah and Sarah ?—; Samuel Gager, died 1740, buried "by the bodies of his parents."

Children, with date of birth and death: John Birchard, 1659-1662, William Gager, 1660-1662; Lydia Griswold, 1663-1664; Mary Rood, born and died 1664; Thomas Post, 1664-1701; Sarah Birchard, 1661-1664; Elizabeth Huntington, 1664-1664; Hannah Post, 1666-1667; John Tracy, born and died 1671; Martha Howard, born and died 1672; Benjamin Birchard, born and died, 1675; Abigail Post, 1664-1678; Elizabeth Roath, 1667-1678; James Fitch, born and died, 1677; 2nd James Fitch, born and died, 1679; Edward Culver, born and died, 1682; Samuel Roberts, born and died, 1682; John Huntington, 1688-1690; John Post, 1689-1690; Sarah Roath, 1672-1695; Hezekiah Leffingwell, 1695-1695; Margaret Lothrop, 1685-1696; Jonathan Leffingwell, 1688-1699.

As the burial place was mostly on the Thomas Post home lot, there were undoubtedly also buried here, his 2nd wife, Rebecca (Bruen) Post, and his children, Mary, who died 1742, Hannah who died in 1743, and Joseph, who then owned the home lot, and died in 1749.

A more thorough study of the various records would probably add other names to the above list.

LINCOLN DAY EXERCISES AT GRACE MEMORIAL CHURCH

At Grace Memorial Baptist church Wednesday evening, the Lincoln celebration was observed with a good attendance. Rev Dr. Dickson, the pastor, was master of ceremonies, the programme opening with singing two stanzas of America, by the choir and congregation. Prayer by the pastor was followed by Kenneth Thompson reading the oration of C. H. Shaw of Passaic, N. J., on Lincoln's life. The last two stanzas of America were sung, followed by three phases of Lincoln's life. The first by Richard Mack, the second by Miss Annetta Epps, followed by singing, "Hail Columbia", as a solo, led by Mrs. Fanny W. Dickson and the choir joined in the chorus. The third phase of his life was read by Miss Florence Lee. Two stanzas of the Star Spangled Banner were sung with the congregation standing and the proclamation was read by Mrs. Fanny Wormsly Dickson with telling effect. The Rev. Edward W. Gantt, pastor of A. M. E. Zion church, was present and was called upon to deliver a few remarks which he did with ability. Then the last stanza of the Star Spangled Banner closed the patriotic service. The church was beautifully decorated with bunting, Abraham Lincoln's picture, and American flags. Light refreshments were served.

MISS BARROWS TO BE TEACHER AT COLLEGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 13. — Miss Florence L. Barrows, formerly of Stafford Springs, and for the past several years connected with the Carnegie institution of Washington at Cold Spring Harbor, has been called to the department of botany at Connecticut College for Women, to carry on through the remainder of the year, the work of Dr. Caroline A. Black, who died of meningitis just after the Christmas holidays. The Carnegie institution has granted Miss Barrows a leave of absence for the spring semester, so that it will be possible for her to come to Connecticut college for that period.

Miss Barrows took her first degree, A. B., at Smith, and her master's at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. She was several years ago instructor in the department of botany at Connecticut College for Women. At the Carnegie institution she was acting as librarian in the department of genetics, the subject in which she has specialized.

MADE ADDRESS TO LIONS ON WORK OF NURSING

An interesting and instructive talk on nursing was given by Miss Grace Anslow, superintendent of nurses, at the W. W. Backus hospital, at the weekly noonday meeting of the Norwich Lions' club, Thursday, at the Wauregan hotel. Miss Anslow explained what is being done in the school of nursing at the hospital and told of the requirements prospective students must meet and of the course of study given the students.

Miss Anslow spoke of the fact that last year the nursing care of the patients and the school of nursing at the hospital required an expenditure of $26,532.72. In closing she quoted Miss Adelaide Nutting, professor of nursing at Teachers' college, who said, "One cannot hand out the art of nursing to anybody." At the conclusion of her talk Miss Anslow was given a rising vote of thanks by the Lions.

The meeting was presided over by President Charles W. Cassidy, and Dr. K. K. Markoff was the song leader. Frederick C. Geer presided at the piano.

Edward Carpenter was the five-minute speaker.

President Cassidy spoke of the Boy Scout financial campaign and urged the Lions to support the campaign. The meeting came to a close with the Lions' roar and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

HISTORICAL ADDRESS FOR GROTON D. A. R. MEMBERS

Anna Warner Bailey chapter, D. A. R., of Groton and Stonington, met Thursday afternoon in the parlors of the Baptist church at Groton. Miss Grace Denison Wheeler read an interesting paper on "Old Roads of Stonington and Groton." Miss Wheeler is the historian who wrote with her father, the late Richard Wheeler, "The History of Stonington." Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Ambition is wound up with the key of hope.

TWO CHILDREN BURNED IN FIRE IN LANTERN HILL ROAD FARM HOUSE

A boy and a girl, aged one and two years, respectively, were burned to death, and another boy, aged three years, was quite seriously burned, shortly after noon Thursday, in a fire of unknown origin which destroyed the one-story frame residence of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Knight, who live on the Old Lantern Hill road, about a half mile from the Norwich and Westerly highway in the town of North Stonington. The bodies are now in the debris, one of them in plain sight, and the other, covered over with charred timbers and other material. They will be taken from their places today (Friday).

No one besides the children was in the house at the time of the catastrophe, as the father had gone to Westerly late in the morning and the mother was at a neighbor's house, about a half mile distant, securing a quantity of milk. The youngest child is believed to have been left in bed while the mother was away, as his charred remains were found there by the investigating officials, after they were able to approach the ruins. The other child, who lost her life, was suffering from rickets that prevented her the use of her legs.

While the mother was returning home she noticed the oldest child running toward her with his hair badly singed and his clothing practically all burned off and held tightly in his hand a key to the house. Glancing toward her residence she noticed smoke rising and hurriedly set out for the structure, which by the time she reached it was a mass of flames. The flames had gained such headway that she and neighbors who were attracted to the scene were unable to enter the house. They had to stand by and watch the fire destroy the building and snuff out the lives of the younger children.

Dr. Thurman P. Main, medical examiner for the town of North Stonington, and Coroner Edward G. McKay of this city were notified and went to the burned structure, where an investigation was conducted. The bodies of the two burned children were not touched as the ruins were too hot, but they will be removed today (Friday) and given in charge of undertakers upon order of the medical examiner.

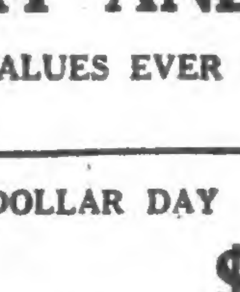
ALICE DAY

MARCELINE DAY



SALLY BLANE

"What is Girl's Greatest Beauty?"

Famous Screen Stars say "Lovely Skin"

"No girl is alluringly beautiful unless she has the very softest, smoothest skin," say 45 Hollywood directors—and the fascinating screen stars agree.

Moreover, Hollywood has found, no girl ever rises to stardom unless her skin shows flawless in a close-up.

These are the reasons why 9 out of 10 Hollywood stars care for their skin with Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps the skin so velvety-smooth!

Vivacious Alice Day, whose skin shows so lovely in the innumerable close-ups of the talkies, says: "I find that Lux Toilet Soap is wonderful for my skin—it keeps it so softly smooth."

And Marceline Day, her charming sister, says: "I'm frank in saying that this delicately fragrant white soap leaves my skin as satin-smooth as the finest French toilet soaps do!"

Sally Blane, too, delightful little Radio Pictures' player, says: "Beautiful smooth skin that isn't afraid of the camera's close-up is very important to a star, and Lux Toilet Soap is certainly a wonderful soap for the skin!"

Are you using Lux Toilet Soap? Luxurious as fine French soaps at 50¢ and $1.00 the cake—yet only 10¢.

FOREIGN TRADE EXPERTS TO AID MANUFACTURERS

Manufacturers in Eastern Connecticut will have an opportunity to learn more about the proper approach and follow-up procedure necessary to assure the successful marketing of their products in foreign markets when they confer with the foreign trade committee of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut at a dinner meeting to be held at 6 p. m., Tuesday, Feb. 18, at the Hotel Mohican, New London. This meeting will be the third of a series of meetings held monthly in the larger cities of the state for the benefit of manufacturers desiring technical advice on export sales possibilities and means of developing them.

The eight members of the foreign trade committee are experienced and capable export managers in the state, representing large manufacturers in different lines of industry, who have been unusually successful in the foreign market. H. F. Beebe, export manager of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., is chairman of the committee.

This meeting was first conceived and planned shortly after a request for information was made to the committee by A. J. Pfannenstiel, secretary of the Gillett-Vibber Co., New London.

Although the New London meeting is open to all manufacturers in Eastern Connecticut, it was specially planned to discuss the export problems of the Aspinook Co. of Jewett City, the Gillett-Vibber Co. of New London, the M. S. Brooks & Sons, Inc., Chester, the C. H. Norton Co. of North Westchester, and the Standard Machine Co. of Mystic.

The following representatives of manufacturing concerns are expected to be present at the meeting: H. F. Roberts and A. K. Roberts of the N. Y. Net & Twine Co., Moodus; E. B. Lincoln, export manager, American Thermos Bottle Co., Norwich; Joseph C. Worth, treasurer, Uncas Finishing Co., Norwich; Harry la Tourettee, Aspinook Co., Jewett City; A. J. Pfannenstiel, secretary, Gillett-Vibber Co., New London; L. M. Brooks, president M. S. Brooks & Sons, Inc., Chester; E. H. Norton, secretary of the E. H. Norton Co., North Westchester, and N. C. Wheeler, secretary, Standard Machine Co., Mystic.

LANGUAGE OF SIGNS
COMES TO STUDIOS

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The sign of the "slit-throat" is the most used in the radio studio. It means to "cut it short as time's up." When the finger is placed across the throat the artist or lecturer must give up the microphone.

A finger language has developed in the broadcasting room because of the necessity for absolute quiet. Two fingers crossed by one of the other hand means "cut it in half." Palms extended to the performer indicate the program is not going over.

DEMAND OF CAMPERS
DESPAIR OF RANGERS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Forest rangers are expected to produce curling irons and blankets from fir clad solitudes as magicians would rabbits out of a hat, the U. S. forest service reports.

Last summer the 1,845,692 persons who used the 1,186 camp grounds provided by the service appealed to the rangers for all sorts of odd things. Through invariably considerate of "tenderfeet" the rangers could only offer them the camp facilities of five places, garbage pits and sanitary conveniences.

These have been installed in all but 300 of the camps. As soon as funds permit these will also be equipped.

When misfortune spoils a man it's a safe wager that good fortune would have ruined him.

Ten per cent. of the areas of the national parks will be open to travel when the present ten-year road building program is completed; and the other 90 per cent. will be retained in its wilderness condition.

MONTEVIDEO RECENTLY BECOMES SO. TERMINUS

Montevideo has recently become the southern terminus of the new world's longest air mail line. Mail leaving the South American capital crossed the Andes, traversed in all 8,000 miles by plane, and arrived in New York on the twelfth day, thus cutting more than a week from the fastest steamer time.

A bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society deals with this city of the southern hemisphere that has in effect been moved nearer to her sister cities north of the Equator.

"Among South America's big cities, Montevideo stands out on three scores," says the bulletin. "It is one of the world's great ports; it is a national capital of importance; and it is a pleasure resort of international appeal. The latter aspect of Montevideo is one that colors it from the edge of the 'Old City' to the remotest of the numerous bathing beaches that extend southeastward, and to the outermost of the far-flung park system that unfolds inland.

"Geology and climate cooperated to make the city attractive, and it has gained the reputation of being one of the cleanest and healthiest of the world's larger urban communities. The site of the older portion is underlain by almost solid rock, covered with a thin layer of soil. The surface slopes moderately toward the sea, giving ideal drainage conditions. The existence of an almost continual sea breeze prevents the accumulation of dust. The temperature is never very high nor very low; and the rainfall is adequate. As a result flowers, shrubs and trees thrive, and Montevideo has gained the title, 'City of Roses.'

"The Montevideans have taken full advantage of their soil and climate. Outside the relatively small 'Old City' numerous wide, tree-lined boulevards stretch out fan-wise and along them are strung charming plazas and parks.

"The city was founded a little more than 200 years ago, in 1726. The settlement was established on a peninsula extending westward into the La Plata estuary that may be taken as marking the point where river and ocean meet. Northward and westward of the peninsula is a circular bay—the Bay of Montevideo—which became the city's harbor and great commercial asset. For a long time this bay was open to the winds when they blew from the south and west, and shipping was then unprotected. Since 1901, however, Montevideo has spent more than $30,000,000 in harbor improvements, outer and an inner harbor. As a result of these improvements, the city now is a port of call for the largest ocean vessels bound to and from Buenos Aires, across and a little farther up the estuary. More than three-fourths of the national trade passes through Montevideo, and annually it sees the arrival and departure of 5,000 ships.

"The city long ago outgrew its original peninsula site. It has grown northeastward along the ocean, inland over the rolling country, and westward along the bay. Along the ocean is a series of bathing beaches, the most fashionable of which is Los Pocitos, about three miles from the old city. During the southern hemisphere's summer and early autumn—from December through March—Pocitos and its neighboring beaches are crowded with vacationists and pleasure seekers from Montevideo itself, the back country of Uruguay, Argentina, Paraguay, southern Brazil, and even more remote sections of South America. Thousands of little moveable bath houses dot the beaches. Uruguyan custom calls for the division of the beaches into three sections: one for women and children, one for men, and one for mixed bathing by family parties.

"Inland the city has spread over a considerable area. Into the closer portion of this new territory extend the broad, shaded boulevards. Farther out are large parks; and at still greater distances are a number of suburban communities separated by gardens.

"Industrial Montevideo has developed chiefly along the bay to the west. There are the great meat packing plants—'frigorificos'—which make use of Uruguay's chief product, livestock.

"In the portion of the old city still devoted to residences, and in a large part of the new city, the typical dwelling houses are low and flat-roofed. Full use is made of these flat roofs in Montevidean family life. On the main boulevards are many handsome structures of stone and brick—hotels, theaters, shops and public buildings. Vistas along some of the finer thoroughfares such as the Avenida 18 de Julio (18th of July avenue), and the Avenida de Mayo, conjure up thoughts of Paris.

"Montevideo's unusual name is supposed to have come from the exclamation of a look-out on an early exploring vessel: 'I see a mountain!' The exclamation was probably made in Portugese but came to have a Latin form. The 'mountain,' a conical hill 486 feet in height, rises across the bay from the old city, and is now called 'El Cerro,' 'The Hill.' On El Cerro are the ruins of an old Spanish fort speaking of its past, and a lighthouse and a radio tower providing twentieth century service."

SUZANNE SHUNS CLOCKS NOW SHE'S IN BUSINESS

PARIS—(AP)—There are no time clocks in the life of Suzanne Lenglen since she turned high powered saleswoman for a dressmaking house.

She arrives when she's ready in the morning.

When she has finished at night she goes home.

Her job is to sell sport cloths to women, and to see that the clothes are right as to style and cut.

In order to judge she intends to try her clients out in action on a vest-pocket tennis court and putting green in the court yard of the establishment.

She intends to turn the whole force of her termendous personality into making the out-door salesroom a success.

"I've never been so interested in anything as I am in this," she said. "I want tremendously to succeed and I believe I'm going to."

She appears for work quietly dressed in dark tailored costumes. She never takes her hat off in working hours.

"Letting my hair grow," she confided.

FLYING COUPLES INCREASE AS "WE" BLAZE SKY TRAILS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— "We" is not the only flying partnership.

Other married couples than the Lindberghs are taking to the air, judging by the latest list of licensed pilots issued by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

Besides Anne Lindbergh there are three other women with aviator-husbands who are seeking their own private licenses as pilots. They are Mrs. Stanley Stanton, who honeymooned on the 1929 national air tour with her husband, Mrs. Assen Jordanoff and Mrs. Ivan Gates.

The pioneer flying husband and wife are Phoebe Omlie and her husband, Vernon C. Omlie. Both are transport pilots.

C. W. and T. W. Kenyon, as they are officially listed, are married and known around the Boston airport as Ted and Teddie. The "flying Fennos" are not circus acrobats, but aviators, but aviators J. K. and his wife, Sarah. They fly out of Providence, R. I.

Other couples in aviation include the Thadens of Pittsburgh, the O'Donnells of California, May and Jim Haizlip, Blanche and Dewey Noyes, Claire and Herbert Fahy, Esther and Earl Vance, Phyllis and Norman Goddard and Frances and Bill Marsalis.

U. S. PARKS TO BE MODEL FOR SYSTEM IN AFRICA

WASHINGTON —(AP)— U. S. national parks will serve as models for the Albert national park in the Belgian Congo.

Jacques Dumont de Chassert of the Belgian foreign office has been making a study of the national park system of the United States to get ideas for the new park in the Congo.

The Albert Park, named after the King of Belgian, contains 495,000 acres in the volcanic regiou of Kivu. It will be the scene of extensive scientific research. The region contains every specimen of animal and vegetable life known to Africa. The board appointed to administer the park is composed largely of scientists. In officially inaugurating the work of the commision King Albert paid high tribute to the national park work of the United States.

GERMAN WAR FLIER NOW TRANSPORT PILOT IN U. S.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A German who pumped bullets at allied aviators in the war now holds a transport pilot's license in this country.

William Hirschfield entered the German flying service in 1915. He was shot down in an encounter with Georges Guynemer, famous French ace, and still limps from the wound.

Before the war ended he was up again and was shot down a second time in October, 1918. Coming to the United States four years ago, Hirschfield did what odd jobs he could to earn a living. Finally he was discovered by Curtiss field officials and employed there.

Pennies Buy Automobile

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(AP)—More than a third of a ton of pennies were used by a Phoenix man to purchase an automobile. He had saved the coppers for 10 years, and they were delivered to the dealer in a truck. There were 82,800 pennies.

Sweetening one's coffee is the first stirring event of the day.

THAMES 'BIG NAVY' MAY SAVE HOURS IN SWOLLEN TRAFFIC

LONDON—(AP)—In the midst of all the talk about reduction of navies there is agitation here for a bigger and better fleet of river boats to relieve London's traffic congestion by making use of the Thames.

Back in Shakespeare's day the river was one of the principal passenger throughfares of the metropolis. Thames boatmen, carrying passengers up and down or across the river, were as numerous then as taxi drivers now.

During the past century, however, valous efforts to capitalize the passenger traffic possibilities of the Thames have met with little success. In 1840 a service of seven steamers was established by the London, Westminster and Vauxhall Steamboat company, and steamer traffic grew rapidly enough to encourage the organization of rival concerns.

But before 1880 the river had become an exceedingly shallow source of profits. Company after company suffered the same fate—liquidation—and even the London county council, after starting a publicly owned service in 1905, gave it up in 1909.

London has excellent underground trains, but they are overcrowded; the tremendous number of private automobiles and taxis have slowed down surface traffic until an omnibus is doing well if it can average five miles an hour.

Street traffic is swollen so that it flows no faster than a very slow river boat. The Thames runs approximately east and west through the heart of London, and motorboats can be built with a speed and capacity undreamt of 20 years ago. So the big-navy crowd (Thames version are lifting up their voices and saying; "Let's get back to the river and give Londoners the thrill of seeing surface traffic move through the middle of the metropolis at something better than a walk."

COAL BURNED FOR POWER 4,000,000 TONS MONTH

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The United States is using approximately 4,000,000 short tons of coal monthly, a million barrels of oil and 11,500,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas in the production of electrical power for public utilities.

The commerce department's latest statistical picture of this industry shows that each state or section tends to use chiefly the fuel nearest at hand.

The middle Atlantic and east north central states get most of their utility power by burning coal.

The Pacific coast uses fuel oil and natural gas.

The Texas and Oklahoma areas also burn chiefly natural gas.

AUSTRALIA SEEKS INSECT TO FIGHT CACTUS GROWTH

UVALDE, Tex. (AP)—Partly successful in efforts to learn how to combat the cactus plant, Australian scientists have transferred their study, temporarily, from southwest Texas to the state of Oaxaca, Mexico.

R. C. Mundell and a group of coworkers sent to this country by the Australian government have worked near Uvalde for eight years, spending $36,000 annually gathering parasitic insects. Thousands of more than 50 species have been sent to Australia in a campaign to kill cactus on that continent.

CURB'S TRADING POSTS TO EXPEDITE BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York curb exchange has begun the installation of new trading posts designed to facilitate transactions.

They are octagonal in shape with a counter 43 inches high. Each side of the octagon has 112 pigeon holes outside and 84 inside. Above the pigeon holes openings have been provided for order books.

Below are drawer spaces for storing pads, order books and other papers. Inside the posts are seats, pneumatic tubes and telephone connections. The posts are built so traders have an unobstructed view of the entire floor.

APPLE GRADING RULES FOR CONNECTICUT GROWERS

Each fall after the picking season every apple grower should decide for himself which grade will include the bulk of his crop and consequently be of most practical use to him, says Earl E. Dodge, assistant director, Connecticut bureau of markets.

In years of generally poor quality perhaps "B" grade will be the best for him to use while for years of good quality Fancy and "A" grades may be used to advantage.

Growers should remember that the quality of the entire Connecticut crop should be taken into consideration in making this decision. If the entire native crop is poor, packing "B" grade apples will not be disastrous to prices because it will be evident that the bulk of Connecticut apples will be marketed as "B" grade.

Profit from apple growing in Connecticut require the combination of efficient production and efficient marketing as reflected in the following four-point program:

1. Grow only good market varieties. 2. Grow clean, well-colored fruit. 3. Grade according to Connecticut standard grades. 4. Pack attractively in standard containers properly labeled.

While the realization of these four points may indicate perfection, they represent the goal of every progressive apple grower.

New Air Line On Coast

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— A second company, operating a fleet of amphibians, has opened an aerial ferry across the 12 miles of water between San Francisco and Oakland. The concern plans to extend its lines into the two principal inland cities, Sacramento and Stockton.

And Grinning Darkly?

LONDON—(AP)—Two women seen recently in a London nightclub had teeth enamelled in shiny black and outlined in red. The shock was immense.

Catch Birds With Cotton

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Women of British Guiana have found another use for cotton—they capture birds with it. Smithsonian Institution has found them hunting birds with arrows tipped with soft cotton balls. They shoot to sage and the birds fall none the worse for a little stunning

When a woman and a cyclone make up their minds to go anywhere nothing on earth can stop them.

If you plant your money while young you may harvest a fortune in after years.
